The mortgage will be sold at a profit to the Fund and is expected to result in a distribution of approximately $1.58 per unit to unitholders of record as of Aug. 31, 1990, assuming the closing occurs as expected on Aug. 27. Approximately $1.22 per unit of this distribution represents return of capital and 36 cents per unit represents profit. The distribution from this mortgage sale, together with previous quarterly distributions attributable to it, result in a total average annual return of approximately 11.4 percent to original unitholders.

The regular quarterly distribution from the remaining six federally insured mortgages remaining in the Fund's portfolio is expected to be approximately 30 cents per unit per quarter. This represents a current return of approximately 9 percent to investors who have held units since the original offering.

The Fund was formed in July of 1983 and completed its initial offering of 3,867,659 units in December 1983. Units of the Fund are currently traded on the American Stock Exchange under the ticker symbol WMI. The General Partners of the Fund are affiliates of Winthrop Financial Associates, A Limited Partnership ("Winthrop"), a Boston-based real estate investment and management company.

Winthrop controls a national portfolio of real estate valued in excess of $6 billion made up of approximately 30 million square feet of commercial space, 50,000 apartments and several hotels. The company has properties in 41 states and Canada.

"Weather conditions during the third quarter allowed us to start our traditional spring business surge earlier than usual. The slight dip in fourth quarter earnings was not due to a resultant incursion into fourth quarter activity, but rather was caused by increased taxes, as fourth quarter operational income was up over last year."

In commenting about the record year, Heist cited "across the board increases. Industrial equipment-related sales were up 22 percent, painting was up 11.5 percent, and temporary help services were up 23.5 percent. In addition, our new acquisition, Pipe and Boiler Inc., contributed over $4 million in sales in its first year as a Heist affiliate. Overall, U.S. operations scored sales increases of 24.9 percent and Canadian sales were up 16.8 percent."

Capital expenditures for fiscal 1990 were $6,035,054, an increase over last year's expenditures of $4,190,797; despite this increase, working capital decreased by only $116,182. Stockholders' equity increased more than $3 million. The strong financial position of the company reflects a year-end current ratio of 3.3-to-1 and a quick-ratio of 2.8-to-1.

DALLAS (AUG. 10) PR NEWSWIRE - SUNSHINE MINING CO. (NYSE: SSC) Today announced a net loss of $10.4 million for the second quarter ended June 30 1990, compared to a $9.0 million loss reported for the second quarter of 1989. After giving effect to preferred dividend requirements, the company reported a loss applicable to common stock for the quarter of 14 cents per share. Revenues for the second quarter declined 17 percent to $18.8 million, compared with $22.5 million a year ago, primarily due to reduced prices for silver and oil during the quarter.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the net loss was $19.6 million, virtually unchanged from the same period in 1989. After giving effect to preferred dividend requirements, Sunshine's loss applicable to common stock was 27 cents per share for the six months ended June 30, 1990. Revenues for the first six months of 1990 declined 12 percent to $40.1 million from $45.6 million during the same period of 1989.

Sunshine has periodically entered into hedging transactions in the futures markets for its various oil and precious metals products. As a result of the recent rapid rise in world crude oil prices, Sunshine liquidated its positions in the crude oil markets and realized a loss of $27 million. This loss will be reflected in the company's third quarter results.

As of June 30, 1990, Sunshine had existing cash and cash investments and working capital balances of approximately $64.9 million and $68.9 million, respectively. The aforementioned loss was funded out of the company's cash balances. The company continues to have cash balances and investments sufficient to fund its future operating cash requirements.

OKLAHOMA CITY, (AUG. 10) PR NEWSWIRE - CMI Corp. (AMEX: CMX) today announced results for the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990.

The company incurred a net loss for the quarter of $300,000 (3 cents per share) on revenues of $24,385,000 compared with net earnings of $1,326,000 (8 cents per share) on revenues of $30,278,000 for the second quarter of 1989.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the company has incurred a net loss of $766,000 (7 cents per share) on revenues of $44,576,000 compared with net earnings of $335,000 (1 cent per share) on revenues of $53,329,000.

The loss for the quarter and for the six months can primarily be attributed to the company's high level of legal expenses relating to its patent infringement lawsuits against five of its major competitors. These expenses amounted to $519,000 for the quarter and $1,104,000 for the six months. In May, the company received a jury award of $4,457,000, excluding interest, for damages in its lawsuit against the Barber-Greene Co. The court has yet to issue a decision regarding the computation of interest. Consequently the damages due the company for the Barber-Greene infringement will not be recognized until a final judgment is received, including prejudgment interest dating back to 1980.

In August, the company completed the trial testimony relating to the patent infringement damage case against Astec Industries. It is expected that the court will render a decision by the end of 1990. Two more patent infringement trials are tentatively scheduled to be heard in the next four to five months against Cedarapids Inc. and Bituma Corp.

The construction machinery industry has continued to be very sluggish, with depressed sales levels. The company's revenues declined 19.5 percent in the second quarter and 16.4 percent for the six months when compared with last year. Despite the lower revenues for the six months in 1990, the company has been able to reduce its cost of sales and operating expenses, as a percentage of sales, when compared with 1989.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) PR NEWSWIRE - At 3:30 p.m. today, Dean S. Marriott, senior deputy comptroller for bank supervision, Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC), declared The National Bank of Washington insolvent.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) was appointed as receiver. Today's action follows the OCC's appointment of a conservator for the bank on Aug. 1. The purpose of the conservatorship was to safeguard the bank's assets until a purchaser could be found.

The bank's insolvency was precipitated by default of the bank's parent company, Washington Bancorporation (WBC). In May, WBC defaulted on $25.8 million in commercial paper. The bank was directly and adversely affected by WBC's default. This prompted steady withdrawal of deposits, slowed only by news of a potential investment in WBC.

However, once second quarter losses were announced and potential investors declared that their plans to raise money for the bank had failed, the withdrawal of deposits accelerated.

On Aug. 1 WBC declared bankruptcy, prompting the OCC to place the bank into conservatorship. Although the conservatorship was done to safeguard the bank's assets and facilitate sale of the bank, deposit withdrawals continued.

The bank exhausted all available funding resources and was not able to develop any other private source of funds to meet its current obligations. This inability to meet its obligations in the near term resulted in today's declaration of insolvency.

The bank had experienced a substantial deterioration in loan quality and significant loan losses which resulted in a decline in bank capital. In the spring of 1990, the OCC obtained commitments from the board of directors to undertake measures to correct the bank's liquidity and capital problems. However, these efforts were unsuccessful.

The National Bank of Washington received a national bank charter on Dec. 28, 1885. On June 30, 1990, it had total assets of approximately $1.6 billion. The bank reported a net loss of $69 million during the first half of 1990.

The FDIC is expected to release additional information about a purchaser for the bank later today.

JACKSONVILLE, FL. (AUG. 10) PR NEWSWIRE - St. Joe Paper Company (NYSE: SJP) announced today that net income for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, was $10.4 million, or $0.34 per share, down 38.3 percent from the same period on 1989. The income for the six-month period ended June 30, 1990, was $22.8 million , or $0.75 per share, down 32.4 percent from the like six-month period in 1989.

The decrease in net income was mainly in the forest products segment of the company and continues to be due to the decline in sales price of linerboard and containers and increased cost of sales and operating expenses.

The operating results of the transportation and sugar segments were up for the six-month period while the communications and real estate segments declined.

The company, headquartered in Jacksonville, is engaged in five separate business segments, with most of its operations in Florida. DENVER (Aug. 10) PR Newswire - Federal Bankruptcy Judge Donald E. Cordova today confirmed the Denver Symphony Association's (DSA) plan of reorganization removing the final hurdle to the merger of the Colorado Symphony Orchestra and the DSA.

When giving his ruling, Judge Cordova said, "I want to compliment the lawyers, board and musicians for their time and efforts. Everyone compromised, giving something. Hopefully all will see a return. If this venture succeeds, the whole state will benefit."

"Judge Cordova's approval of the plan and the overwhelming support of our creditors ensures continued quality symphonic music in Colorado," said John Low, former chairman of the DSA.

"We expect to begin paying the DSA's priority claimants, the musicians and ticketholders, within the next several weeks," he added.

Confirmation of the reorganization plan enables the release of funds to the association from the Scientific and Cultural Facilities District. Part of these funds will be used to implement the reorganization. The balance will be used for the 1990-91 season.

Past supporters have already purchased subscriptions exceeding $500,000, for the upcoming season. Within the next four weeks the public, business and groups will be given an opportunity to purchase subscriptions. The resolution of the DSA's bankruptcy is expected to bolster subscriptions substantially.

"We are grateful for the confidence of the community and their wonderful demonstration of support for the new organization," said Will McFarlane, CSA board chairman. "And we are proud of the efforts of our musicians and volunteers in launching our exciting 1990-91 season."

MT. KISCO, NY (AUG. 10) PR NEWSWIRE - Trans World Airlines Inc. (TWA) today reported an operating profit of $43.9 million for the 1990 second quarter and an operating loss of $56.8 million for the six months ended June 30, 1990, compared to operating profits of $80.5 million and $49.7 million, respectively, for comparable periods in 1989. The principal reasons for the reduction in operating profits in 1990 compared to 1989 are: (a) higher fuel costs (approximately $64 million higher for the first six months of 1990 than the comparable period in 1989); and (b) a general increase in the price to TWA of services and materials purchased, including certain contractual increases in labor rates and additional personnel employed to improve and maintain TWA's quality of service.

For the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990, TWA reported net income of $103.4 million and a net loss of $39.6 million, respectively compared to a net loss of $4.4 million and $87.4 million, respectively, for the comparable periods in 1989. The improvement in TWA's net income is principally attributable to $160.2 million of net gains from sales of assets including: (a) $80.0 million from the sale of certain airport facilities at Chicago; (b) $44.8 million from the sale of aircraft; and (c) $37.0 million from sales of a portion of TWA's interest in WORLDSPAN, the passenger reservation system owned principally by TWA, Delta and Northwest.

In addition, net income was increased by an extraordinary gain of $19.8 million from the repurchase of $213.1 million principal amount of TWA's long term debt securities, some of which was repurchased at a discount.

ELGIN, Ill. (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Safety-Kleen Corp. (NYSE: SK) announced on Friday the retirement of Russell A. Gwillim, 68, as chairman of the board. In recognition of his contributions to the company, the board elected him chairman emeritus and he will continue to serve as a director.

Donald W. Brinckman, 59, who found the obscure and unprofitable Milwaukee-based company called Safety-Kleen in 1968, and has been Safety-Kleen's only president and chief executive officer since that time, has been elected chairman of the board. In addition, he will retain his duties as CEO.

Elected to succeed Brinckman as president is Joseph F. Knott, 54, the company's executive vice president. He has also been named chief operating officer and will serve on the board as a director. This increases the size of Safety-Kleen's board of directors to nine.

Commenting on the retirement of Gwillim and the management changes enacted by the board, Brinckman stated that "Russ had been one of the earliest friends of Safety-Kleen and was instrumental in persuading CR Industries to purchase the company. Even though he hasn't been involved in the day-to-day management of Safety-Kleen over the years, he backed our decisions with wise counsel and decisive action. We're fortunate to have him continue to do this as a director.

"The actions taken by the board today don't signal the end of an era at Safety-Kleen. Instead, it affirms the principles that we've operated under for almost 22 years," Brinckman commented. "With the election of Joe Knott as Safety-Kleen's president, a continuity in management philosophy has been assured that should successfully guide our company through this decade, and well into the next century," he concluded.

Safety-Kleen Corp. is the world's largest provider of parts cleaner services and related solvent recycling, with 264 branches located around the world serving over 425,000 customers. The company also collects a variety of hazardous and quasi-hazardous liquid wastes from automotive repair outlets, industrial plants, dry cleaners and other waste generators. The collected fluids are recycled or re-refined at one of the company's 19 recycle, re-refining or processing centers. These reclaimed fluids are then either reused, or blended into fuels for use in cement kilns or industrial furnaces.

(AUG. 10) PR NEWSWIRE - During the past several weeks there has been a considerable amount of news coverage of activities in the Courts regarding the asbestos liability crisis. As you may know, Manville Corporation emerged from Chapter 11 reorganization in 1988. The Manville Personal Injury Trust was established as a totally independent organization to handle all health injury claims from exposure to Manville asbestos. The Trust has been the focus of several articles and Court activity. Ways are currently being discussed regarding how the Trust can restructure its payment procedures and how the financing structure can be changed to assist the Trust with its liquidity problems. The following briefing paper is designed to provide you with background information and Manville Corporation's position on these subjects.

Some key points are: -- Manville may not be involved in settlement or payment of any health claims. That is the sole responsibility of the Manville Personal Injury Trust.

-- The plan of reorganization relies on a strong injunction which separates the Trust from the Company, and requires that all health claims for injury from exposure to Manville asbestos be directed to the Trust.

-- Manville is a strong, viable corporation. It is essential for the present and future operations of the Trust that the company remain strong. This is the only way that the Trust can realize the true value of its present and future assets to pay claims. In the plan of reorganization all parties agreed that keeping Manville as a viable operating company was the only way to provide the long term funding needed by the Trust to pay claims.

-- Manville has met and, in fact, exceeded all obligations under the Plan of Reorganization, prepaying notes to the Trust of $56 million last December and offering to help the Trust with liquidity problems last fall with a proposed repurchase of $500 million in stock (the offer was not pursued).

-- As recently as last week, Manville offered a suggestion that would infuse hundreds of millions of dollars into the Trust in the next several years, beyond the nearly $500 million it will receive under current plan provisions in the next five years.

-- The issue is how claims are paid with the limited resources available, and over what time period.

-- Manville has already spent extensive time, energy and resources analyzing ways to help the Trust deal with its liquidity problems, and is actively involved in current discussions to find a financially viable solution in the best interests of all constituencies, the current and future claimants, the company's customers and employees, and all shareholders.

-- The Trust owns up to 80 percent of Manville's common stock. The rest is traded on the New York Stock Exchange (MVL).

-- Manville is not in bankruptcy. Manville produces no asbestos products.

Recent court activity and media coverage have focused on ways to get more money into the hands of asbestos claimants, and to get it to them faster. Judges all across the country, both independently and jointly, are saying that the asbestos issue is becoming a national crisis. Some judges are now calling for class action suits to resolve how to pay those claims.

This activity, and the resulting media coverage, has focused attention on Manville's role of compensating victims through the Manville Personal Injury Settlement Trust which was established under the company's plan of reorganization to pay all asbestos health claims against the company.

The health trust and the asbestos claimants they represent own up to 80 percent of Manville common stock, as well as substantial unsecured debt and profit interests in Manville. The company's obligation is well defined. And, the claimants are entirely dependent on a healthy, growing and secure company to produce the value that will pay their claims. All alternatives were rejected by the court and claimants committees during the reorganization proceedings because they meant far less value for asbestos claimants.

Today, the Trust estimates the value of its estate at $1.35 billion, including the present value of the company's unsecured $1.8 billion bond and its holdings of up to 80 percent of the Manville common stock, but excluding the value of its profit sharing interest in the company. The Trust also is to receive 20 percent of all Manville net profits for ever if needed to pay claims, beginning in 1992 and based on 1991 profits. This has not been factored into the $1.35 billion estimate.

With 150,000 claims and the average settlement to date at $43,500 for the approximately 22,000 claims already settled by the Manville Trust, the total liability for claims already filed could be several billion dollars, if a significant portion of the claimants manifest injury. Manville sought reorganization under Chapter 11 because the assets of the company were far exceeded by projected liabilities for asbestos injury. The company had two major goals in its Chapter 11: to find a way to efficiently provide compensation to those who were injured; to pay those who were injured according to their illness.

Recognizing that there was not sufficient money to pay claims, therefore, is not new. And, it was determined in the plan of reorganization that the only way to provide maximum value over time was to have an ongoing variety of funding mechanisms which would be paid over time and grow in value. This relies on Manville's continuing as a strong company to meet those long term funding obligations and provide maximum value to not only present claimants, but those who will become ill in the future from earlier exposure to company asbestos.

In a May 29, 1990 Memorandum to the U.S. District Court, the Trust stated: "The only way the Trust can fund the payment of all claims it has received is over time through the realization of a share price which better reflects the value of Manville Corporation's cash flow, through receipt of the full $1.8 billion face value of the Trust Bonds, and through the preservation of Manville as a healthy growing business capable of earning a steady stream of profits for the Trust's use."

Judge Jack Weinstein, U. S. District Judge from Brooklyn, New York, said in his court on August 6, that the Plan relied on a strong company and the strong injunction which separates the company from asbestos related suits.

The injunction is critical to the investing and financial community. Without this confidence and support, the Trust will be unable to achieve fair value from its stock when it is sold into the market to raise funds to pay future settlements.

Challenges to the Plan or injunction would destroy this confidence and be devastating to the people it was designed to protect. This does not mean that restructuring the way that the Trust pays claims, or that changing the way funding is provided to the Trust, are not important considerations which need to be addressed. Manville's management and directors have spent extensive time and effort, using some of the best legal and financial consultants available, to examine ways to assist the Trust with its cash flow needs. The injunction specifically prohibits the company from being involved in claims settlement procedures---that is the sole responsibility of the Trust. Manville's obligation is to be strong and profitable to meet its obligations to all shareholders, particularly the major owner, the claimants, who hold up to 80 percent of our common stock.

In late 1989, Manville proposed a $500 million repurchase of stock from the Trust to help with its liquidity problems. That proposal was not accepted. In December, Manville pre-paid approximately $50 million in notes to the Trust. Manville also has agreed to pay certain fees of financial advisers to the special representative of the District Court in order to assist him as he prepared his recommendations to judge Weinstein.

Manville remains willing to work cooperatively with all appropriate parties and the judiciary to continue to find solutions to the current issues facing the Trust.

BACKGROUND Shortly before Manville's filing under Chapter 11 in 1982, asbestos health litigation had already reached crisis proportions. Manville faced 17,000 pending claims. Independent epidemiological and other studies predicted at least as many as 50,000 additional suits by persons suffering various forms of asbestos-related injury.

Manville's filing for reorganization was unusual for two reasons: it was one of the first significant filings occasioned by tort liabilities and, at the time of the filing, Manville was a healthy, profitable Fortune 500 company.

Manville filed before the financial effect of its asbestos liabilities had crippled company operations; cut off Manville's sources of capital; and, cut off Manville's businesses. Manville avoided piecemeal destruction and made the decision to retain its ability to function as an economic enterprise. This decision preserved the values necessary to pay claims, particularly to asbestos health claimants.

Four years of complex, often bitter negotiation and litigation ensued among all interested parties who had a financial stake in Manville -- not just present and future asbestos health claimants, but commercial creditors and shareholders as well. A plan of reorganization was finally devised, voted upon and confirmed in 1986.

By that time, the number of asbestos health claimants had grown far beyond original estimates. At the time of the confirmation of the Plan in 1986, estimates were made during the Chapter 11 proceedings that there could be as many as 100,000 asbestos health claimants. No party in interest -- including the asbestos Health Committee, the Legal Representative for Future Claimants, or the other companies involved in asbestos litigation (co-defendants) disputed this estimate. The fact that no one was able to estimate the ultimate number of claims or the cost of those claims was the basis for many of the variable funding components of the Plan.

The Plan was designed around two principles. The first and overriding principle is to deliver the maximum value possible to pay asbestos health claimants.

After exhaustive analyses and concurrence by investment bankers, all parties agreed that maximum value could only be achieved by keeping the productive value of the Manville economic organization intact for the benefit of asbestos health claimants. Ultimately, any other approach, including liquidation, would produce substantially less value to asbestos health claimants than if Manville, as an economic enterprise, were permitted, to function, grow and generate income.

The permanent injunction issued by the bankruptcy court gives Manville the necessary protection from asbestos claims that it needs to operate effectively and competitively, including accessing the capital markets. The injunction is also critical to the fair valuation of Manville securities, the great portion of which are held by the Trust for the claimants.

The second principle underlying the Plan is that Manville, the corporate entity, should not be involved in any way in the handling or disposition of asbestos health claims.

For many reasons, including suspicion and distrust of the company when the Plan was designed, the asbestos health constituency demanded that some entity other than Manville be established to resolve, as fairly and expeditiously as possible, asbestos health claims. To that end the Trust was created, governed by five totally independent trustees, to evaluate and settle the health claims of all beneficiaries of that Trust - including persons whose asbestos-related injuries had manifested, as well as those individuals who would, in the future, develop an asbestos-related disease as a result of previous exposure to Manville's asbestos.

The first and cardinal principle -- to deliver the maximum value to asbestos health claimants by preserving the ability of the Manville economic organization to survive, grow, and fund asbestos claims -- was achieved under the Plan by creating the injunction and then by providing funding to asbestos health claimants in two phases: -- Funding of $815 million cash and notes, 24 million shares of common stock (50 percent of the shares currently outstanding) and 10 years of bond payments at $75 million per year for initial claims. -- Due to the unknown number of ultimate claims, an additional 72 million common shares (through conversion of Series A Convertible Preferred Stock), an additional 14 years of bond payments at $75 million per year, and up to 20 percent profit-sharing would become available, if needed.

In total, the potential funding equals up to 80 percent of the common stock of the company, $1.8 billion in bond payments beginning in 1991 (24 years at $75 million per year) and up to 20 percent in net profits for as long as needed, beginning in 1992, based on 1991 profits.

In short, asbestos health claimants are the ultimate beneficiary of the significant portion of the reorganized Manville.

To the extent that Manville grows and is profitable over the years, the asbestos health claimants realize that increased value through the amount of profit sharing and further increased market value of the common stock. Growth and profits for Manville mean more value to pay asbestos health claims, whether the number of claims turns out to be the 150,000 claims reported in 1990, or even higher.

Actions which threaten the confidence of Manville's customers, employees and commercial creditors undermine the company's ability to make future payments under the bond to the Trust; threaten the amount of the 20 percent future profit sharing to the Trust; and undermine the market value of the up to 80 percent of the company's common stock held by the Trust, which will be sold to raise cash to pay claims.

For example, actions which cause the market price of Manville common stock to drop by $1 translate into a direct loss to the Trust and asbestos health claimants of $96 million that could otherwise be used to pay claims. That means less money for the Trust to compensate asbestos health claimants. Manville common stock is presently trading at a multiple of approximately 7 times earnings. If Manville common stock traded at the rough market multiple of its industry peer group of about 9 times earnings that would mean nearly $200 million more in value available to the Trust to pay asbestos health claims.

No one can say how long it will take to pay all asbestos health claims. The human and financial costs, already staggering, continue to increase. Given the long-term solution required, the strength of Manville and the existence of the permanent injunction are imperative.

The difficult task of managing and dispersing the Trust's investments in Manville is the responsibility of the five trustees. They must consider the interests of the various beneficiaries--including present and future asbestos health claimants, and co-defendants.

Decisions on using the resources available to pay asbestos claims is complex. Guided by collective judgment and tempered by normal human concern for injured human beings, the questions the trustees face are not simple.

The Plan, in summary, recognizes that the only way to deliver maximum value to asbestos health claimants is to preserve, protect, and nurture Manville's economic viability and potential; to make that value available to the Trust to pay asbestos health claimants; and to have that value administered by independent trustees, charged with making difficult

BOSTON (AUG. 10) PR NEWSWIRE - Chancellor Corporation (NASDAQ: CHCR) announced today a net loss for the quarter ended June 30, 1990 of $8.9 million. The aggregate operating loss from continuing operations before taxes is $10.7 million and, after taxes, is $8.4 million. The loss is primarily attributable to reserves in the amount of $8.1 million taken for the doubtful collectability of certain obligations from lessees experiencing severe financial difficulties and for losses on the anticipated sale of certain assets. The remainder of the loss includes the reduction of $1.0 million of rental income related to the Chapter 11 filings of Greyhound Lines, Inc. and Circle K Corporation, $.5 million in legal, administration and consulting costs related to the company's new borrowing agreements, and reduced syndication levels of underwritten equipment leases.

Chancellor Corporation also announced today that it has entered into an agreement with a group of the company's lenders to extend and amend certain loan and forebearance agreements initially entered into in April 1990 among the company, its affiliates and the lenders. The new agreement provides for an extension of the loan facility and for continued forebearance and collateralization of the outstanding balances of the credit facility through Oct. 31, 1990.

Founded in 1977, the company has, in recent years, concentrated on the leasing of transportation equipment. It is also involved in the leasing of aircraft, communications, medical, agricultural and other equipment. SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) Friday suspended the Environmental Division of Science Application International Corp. (SAIC), San Diego, Calif., from future federal government contracts as a result of suspected improprieties. The suspension is effective immediately and will continue for up to 18 months, during which time EPA will decide whether to debar the company from receiving any federal contracts and grants.

"EPA must be assured that work conducted under contract to the federal government is performed properly. The public must have full confidence that agency decisions are being made on the basis of reliable information " said Daniel W. McGovern, regional administrator for EPA's San Francisco office. "When EPA suspects that the integrity of a company has been compromised we will aggressively investigate the matter and, when appropriate, propose and implement a suspension. If warranted, we will seek a complete debarment from any future federal government work."

Environmental Chemistry Laboratory, a subsidiary of the Environmental Division of SAIC, is located at 10260 Campus Point Drive, San Diego, Calif. The laboratory is a participant in EPA's Contract Laboratory program under which private companies provide analytical laboratory services in support of EPA's Superfund cleanup program. The data generated during analysis and evaluation are reported to EPA and are used as a basis for Superfund remedial and removal actions.

Information gathered by EPA investigators shows that Environmental Chemistry Laboratory/SAIC failed to conduct tests on samples within the ten-day timeframe as required under its contract. Further investigation also indicated that records and documents were backdated and falsified.

EPA is continuing to investigate SAIC; no further information regarding these civil and criminal enforcement actions will be made available until the conclusion of the investigations.

MIAMI (AUG. 10) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of AmeriFirst Bank (NASDAQ: AMRI) signed an agreement with the Office of Thrift Supervision today. This action is consistent with AmeriFirst's past working relationship with the regulators. The board unanimously approved and entered into the agreement on behalf of the bank.

The agreement describes a number of responsibilities of the officers and directors, as well as certain operating restrictions. The operating restrictions permit the bank to continue to serve fully its retail and deposit customers. There are a number of restrictions relating to commercial real estate loans and foreclosed and development real estate. The board of directors believes that the Office of Thrift Supervision has requested and negotiated the agreement in a spirit of cooperation and consistently with its responsibilities under the FIRREA. The agreement permits the Office of Thrift Supervision to appoint a conservator or receiver for the institution if the Office concludes that that step is necessary.

Dr. Laurence Brody, chairman of the board, said, "Amerifirst fully intends to continue its proud tradition of service to customers and the community." The bank will continue to operate under the present management and board of directors. All depositors are protected up to $100,000 by the federal government.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) PR NEWSWIRE - The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) today placed American Savings and Loan Association, Mt. Carmel, Ill., in receivership and chartered a new federal mutual institution to take its place.

The new institution, American Savings Association of Mt. Carmel, F.A., will assume certain assets and liabilities of the old thrift, and will operate in conservatorship under the management of the Resolution Trust Corp.

The takeover did not result in any interruption of American's day-to-day operations. The institution will remain open for business as usual. Holders of insured accounts are not affected by the action, which was taken by OTS to protect insured depositors and the interests of the thrift insurance fund. Deposits remain insured to the $100,000 legal limit.

OTS initiated the action because American was operating in an unsafe and unsound condition having insufficient capital in that it had negative tangible capital. Furthermore, there was no prospect of replenishment without federal assistance.

American's condition is due primarily to a high level of non- earning assets -- $1.8 million or 14.6 percent of total assets -- and heavy losses associated with its mutual fund investments. American has also been cited by OTS for management inadequacies, including failure to maintain adequate books and records, imprudent loan underwriting and poor loan documentation.

As of June 30, 1990, American reported assets of $11.851 million, liabilities of $11.853 million and tangible capital of negative $2,000, for a tangible capital-to-assets ratio of negative .017 percent.

MIAMI, (AUG. 10) PR NEWSWIRE - The Deltona Corporation (NYSE: DLT) today reported a net loss of $3,971,000 on revenues of $8,424,000 for the second quarter of 1990 compared to net income of $1,733,000 on revenues of $18,457,000 for the second quarter of 1989. The loss applicable to common stock was $3,971,000, or $.70 per share, for the second quarter of 1990 compared to income of $1,176,000, or $.21 per share, in 1989.

The prior year's quarter included $557,000 in cumulative dividends on preferred stock. The prior year's results benefitted from the inclusion of income from Deltona's discontinued utility operations, net of taxes, of $370,000, or $.07 per share, and from an extraordinary item of $652,000, representing the reduction of income taxes arising from the carryforward of prior years' operating losses.

During the second quarter of 1990, Deltona began to experience an increase in delinquent contracts receivable, primarily resulting from the negative publicity caused by the indictment of a major Florida developer, followed by the bankruptcy of that developer. As a result of the increase in delinquent contracts receivable, Deltona recorded an additional provision to its allowance for uncollectable sales of approximately $2,000,000, impacting net income by approximately $1,500,000. Deltona is taking all available actions to collect the delinquencies; however, it is unknown at this time whether the company will be successful. If this trend continues Deltona may be required to record additional provisions in the future.

The second quarter results also reflect approximately $1,000,000 of expenses related to the termination of some 230 employees and the termination of the company's retainer agreement with an investment banker.

For the first half of 1990, Deltona reported a net loss of $6,426,000 on revenues of $18,391,000 compared to net income of $1,771,000 on revenues of $34,518,000. The loss applicable to common stock was $6,426,000, or $1.14 per share, in 1990 compared to income of $456,000, or $.08 per share in 1989. Included in the six month results are losses of approximately $600,000 in 1990 and $1,500,000 in 1989 resulting from sales of contracts receivable. Included in the prior year's results was $1,315,000 in cumulative dividends on preferred stock. The prior year's results benefitted from the inclusion of income from Deltona's utility operations, net of taxes, of $932,000, or $.16 per share, and an extraordinary item of $666,000, representing the reduction of income taxes arising from the carryforward of prior years' operating losses.

Revenues for the second quarter and six months of 1990 have declined 54 percent and 47 percent, respectively, compared to 1989 results for the same periods. This decline in revenues is primarily due to depressed retail land sales, arising from the previously mentioned negative publicity surrounding the indictment and bankruptcy of a major Florida developer, and the financial condition of Deltona. It is unknown at this time if and when sales will recover.

In other news, Deltona reported that the temporary waiver granted by its lenders expired on July 31, 1990. The temporary waiver included the deferral of approximately $1,200,000 of interest for the three month period beginning May 7, 1990. The company has requested an extension of the temporary waiver to Aug. 31, 1990 and to include interest of approximately $400,000 which was due Aug. 1, 1990 in such waiver. The lenders are considering the company's request. At the same time, the company is continuing to negotiate for more liberal terms of the security agreement. There can be no assurance that the request for the extension of the temporary waiver or the negotiations will be successful. It is likely that the company will be required to seek additional temporary waivers throughout the remainder of 1990.

Deltona is also continuing discussions with the Florida Division of Land Sales concerning an alternative form of assurance to replace the corporate performance bond previously posted by the company to assure the completion of its estimated $6.4 million development obligation at its St. Augustine Shores community. If unsuccessful, the company could be requested to cease retail land sales at this community.

Deltona is the developer of nine planned communities, extending from the Florida Panhandle to the State's Gulf Coast, and encompassing approximately 100,000 acres.

ALBANY, Ore. (AUG. 10) PR NEWSWIRE - Synthetech Inc. (NASDAQ: NZYM) today announced a loss for the quarter ended June 30 of $76,358 (1 cent per share, unaudited) on revenues of $274,435, all of which were product sales. Last year's first quarter showed a profit of $171,304 on revenues of $490,310 with $293,656 from product sales and $196,654 from contract services and licensing. In comparing the two quarters, Paul C. Ahrens, president and chief executive officer of the company, stated, "Product sales for the first quarter of this year were roughly comparable to the first quarter of last year. The difference in results is primarily attributable to licensing and contract service revenue last year. While licensing revenue remains a part of the overall business strategy, it is not considered normal and recurring revenue." Ahrens also stated, "The company's customer base and product line continued to expand during the quarter with the product list reaching 125 items." He cautioned, however, that the company has not yet established an ongoing base load of demand for its products on a monthly basis and further quarter-to-quarter fluctuations in results would likely occur.

DENVER (AUG. 10) PR NEWSWIRE - MinVen Gold Corp. (TORONTO; AMEX: MVG) announces today its financial results for the three and six months ended June 30, 1990.

MinVen recorded a second quarter consolidated loss of Cdn$1,476,790 or Cdn$0.05 per share, compared with a consolidated loss of Cdn$291,285 or Cdn$0.01 per share in the corresponding 1989 quarter.

Consolidated revenues for the quarter were Cdn$10,995,434 on sales of 24,086 ounces of gold and 81,924 ounces of silver compared to Cdn$11,198,448 on sales of 23,186 ounces of gold and 55,722 ounces of silver in the second quarter of 1989. Consolidated revenues do not include proceeds of Cdn$1,512,800 realized on the initial sale of 3,193 ounces of gold and 7,400 ounces of silver which reduced the cost of developing the Golden Reward Mine into commercial production.

MinVen recorded a first half consolidated loss of Cdn$4,102,664 or Cdn$0.14 per share compared with a consolidated loss of Cdn$917,621 or Cdn$0.04 per share in the corresponding period of 1990.

Consolidated revenues for the first half were Cdn$18,628,656 on sales of 39,413 ounces of gold and 145,234 ounces of silver compared to Cdn$19,867,903 on sales of 40,765 ounces of gold and 87,375 ounces of silver in the first six months of 1989.

James A. Anderson, president and chief executive officer, said, "Results have been adversely affected by lower gold prices, production problems encountered at the Blackdome Mine as a result of a significant decrease of grade of ore being mined and the slow start-up of the Golden Reward Mine. The Blackdome Mine commenced drawing ore from a new high-grade stope on the No. 18 Vein. The effect of this higher-grade, lower cost production will be realized during the second half of 1990. MinVen produced 27,935 ounces of gold or 18 percent more ounces than the 23,736 ounces produced in the comparable second quarter of 1989. The Gilt Edge Mine is producing gold at record levels and Golden Reward is expected to enter commercial production late in the third quarter of this year."

At a meeting of the board of directors of MinVen held on Aug. 10, 1990, the board resolved to cancel and reissue all but 511,500 of the currently outstanding employees' and directors' incentive stock options. These options will now be exercisable at a price of Cdn$1.35 per share, being the closing price of MinVen's shares as traded on the Toronto Stock Exchange on Aug. 10, 1990 and will be exercisable until Aug. 10, 1995. The remaining 511,500 options, held by insiders of MinVen, were not reissued as they had been granted within the past year to replace certain options held by those individuals which were to expire in March 1990. Instead, these individuals received a like number of new options at the new price and exercise period. In addition, options to purchase an aggregate of 119,000 shares were granted under its stock option plan to a new director and to new employees of the company.

MinVen Gold is a publicly held, Denver-based mining company with interests in five operating mines in the U.S. and Canada. Its shares are traded on the American, Toronto and Vancouver stock exchanges under the symbol MVG.

#90222u0195 08/10/1990 ~United Press International
WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - The Iraqi military machine assembled by Saddam Hussein is 1 million strong and equipped with sophisticated weaponry, but military analysts said it lacked experience in air warfare that might be critical in a confrontation with the United States.

Several U.S. military experts inside and outside of the government also agreed that despite Iraq's nearly decade-long war with neighboring Iran, the Iraqi armed forces showed possible weaknesses in sustaining long individual battles.

In the week since Iraq rolled over tiny Kuwait, much attention has been focused on Iraq's 1 million-man army, its armored tank forces, its experience with desert warfare and its willingness to use chemical weapons.

But despite those military assets, Iraq is also the nation that was able to manage only a stalemate with an ill-equipped Iran and several experts said it was likely that in an air war, U.S. forces would dominate, largely because of a lack of experience by most Iraqi pilots.

Except for about 50 pilots trained by the French, said several analysts, the Iraqi air force was poorly trained.

''The saying in the Iraqi armed forces is that they were just as happy when the Iraq air force was not above them because they were never sure what they would hit,'' noted a congressional military expert.

''The Iran-Iraq war was notable for its lack of air-to-air combat,'' added Greg Grant, a military analyst for the Center for Strategic and International Studies. ''I would say the quality of the Iraqi (pilots) is suspect.''

What is not suspect is the quality of aircraft in the Iraqi arsenal.

During the 10-year war with Iran, Hussein built up a 513-plane air force, including large numbers of high-quality Soviet MiGs and about 94 French-made Mirage jets, which are capable of carrying Exocet missiles, such as the one that hit the USS Stark in 1987.

But even that incident raised questions about the Iraqis ability in the air.

Some analysts said the attack on the Stark was believed to be an accident and showed a lack of command control in the Iraqi air forces. But others said the attack proved a certain degree of ingenuity because the Mirage jet that hit the Stark was equipped with two Exocet missiles - an arrangement the French had said would be impossible.

The current deployment of U.S. naval, air and ground forces to the region indicates the United States will rely heavily on air power should the Iraqis cross the border into Saudi Arabia.

The analysts add that a main weapon for the United States in such an event will be the AWACs aircraft, which can detect enemy troop movements and aircaft placement and properly guide U.S. warplanes into combat. The Iraqis lack such a capability.

But while most experts are confident in U.S. superiority over the Iraqis in the air, there are differing opinions over whether air power alone would be enough to defend the oil-rich kingdom.

''If the Iraqis attack us, we're in a ground war,'' added the congressional analyst, who spoke on condition of anonymity. ''We will hit them very heavily from the air, but air power alone cannot win a war.''

And it is on the ground where the Iraqis enjoy their greatest strengths.

First of all, analysts said the Iraqi military of 1990 is much larger and different than the one that invaded Iran in 1980.

Its size more than tripled in the past 10 years and Hussein also has acquired large quantities of very sophisticated Soviet tanks and surface-to-surface missiles.

In addition, Iraq is known to have stockpiled artillery shells, rockets and bombs containing mustard gas and nerve agents. The Iraqis are unafraid to use the chemical weapons, having done so against Iran and rebellious Kurds in Iraq.

Military experts said while the total size of the Iraqi armed forces was about 1 million, the best battle-hardened troops - the so-called Presidential Guard which may have been the force that invaded Kuwait - numbered about 120,000.

Those troops, the experts said, proved in the late stages of the war with Iran that they could effectively establish supply lines, create defensive barriers and deal with the desert environment. ''They have excellent mobility and excellent supply operations,'' noted the congressional military expert.

But, some analysts said, those same troops showed signs that they could not sustain a long individual battle - a factor that might be key if U.S. and Iraqi forces confronted each other. ''About 12 days was the longest sustained battle of the entire Iran-Iraq war,'' said the congressional analyst.

Still, if there is combat with the United States, Iraq would have the built-in advantage of experience in the desert. The United States' last major military operation in the desert was the disasterous Iranian hostage rescue attempt of 1980.

''They know where they are and how to fight a war over this type of terrain,'' said Loren Thompson of the Georgetown University National Security Studies program. ''We never have.''

(AUG. 10) UPI - Arab leaders are gathering in Cairo for a Friday summit aimed at resolving escalating tensions stemming from the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. Observers say they expect Egyptian President Mubarak to press for a diplomatic end to Iraq's occupation of Kuwait. Iraq has promised to attend the session, which will also attract a delegation from the deposed Kuwaiti government.

The Pentagon reported Thursday that some 50-thousand Iraqi troops appeared to be filtering into Kuwait. Pentagon officials also said that there seemed to be a buildup of Iraqi forces along its border with Turkey. Defense officials said they did NOT have accurate estimates about the situation on the Turkish border. The United States has at least 14 Fbombers in Turkey. The F-111's were used in the U-S air attack against Libya four years ago.

President Bush is scheduled to leave the White House Friday for a three-week New England vacation. Presidential news secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the president did NOT fear public backlash for heading to his seaside reort in Kennebunkport, Maine, despite the largest U-S military operation since Vietnam. Fitzwater said Bush would get daily briefings on developments in the Persian Gulf.

A former U-S Drug Enforcement Administration agent pleaded guilty to charges of conspiring to traffic heroin and cocaine with two other ex-agents. John Jackson's guilty plea in Los Angeles comes less than one week after a key government witness testified he sold between 88 pounds and 110 pounds of cocaine and heroin for Jackson and D-E-A agent Darnell Garcia. Jackson's admission of guilt is part of a plea bargain.

NEW YORK (AUG. 10) UPI - Current and former FBI agents allegedly had a 20-year relationship with former Yankees owner George Steinbrenner and helped him make background checks of his employees, news reports said Friday.

FBI agents in Tampa, Fla., used the bureau's national computer system to obtain information about gambler Howard Spira for Steinbrenner, unidentified bureau sources told The National and The New York Times.

Baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent banned Steinbrenner from the game and ordered him to divest his majority interest in the club because Spira had offered to provide information about Yankee slugger Dave Winfield.

There were also allegations that Steinbrenner paid $40,000 to Spira to hush up the incident.

The sources said former FBI agent Philip McNiff, who has worked for Steinbrenner since 1980, asked a Tampa FBI agent earlier this year to pressure an assistant U.S. Attorney to convince a federal grand jury in Florida to indict Spira on extortion charges.

The grand jury indicted Spira in March and the case was moved to New York, where it has not yet come to trial.

The sources said Steinbrenner's relationship with current and former FBI agents dated back two decades. The former agents did not appear to have broken any laws on Steinbrenner's behalf, but the sources branded the agents' actions unseemly and beneath FBI standards of conduct.

FBI spokesman Mike Kortan said it was a misdemeanor for agents to use the National Crime Information Center's computer for purposes other than those allowed by federal law.

Kortan said the FBI would conduct an internal review of the allegations.

(AUG. 10) UPI - The sparks that flew in the fifth inning Thursday night lit the Mets' fuse and burned the Phillies.

After a bench-clearing brawl instigated when Philadelphia starter Pat Combs hit Dwight Gooden on the left knee, New York came back to score four runs in the sixth including the go-ahead run in their 5-4 victory over Philadelphia.

Trailing 3-1, the Mets scored all four runs off Darrel Akerfeld, 4-1, who replaced the ejected Combs. Kevin McReynolds walked and was forced at second by Daryl Boston. Howard Johnson tied the game with a blast over the right-centerfield wall for his 17th homer of the year.

Tom O'Malley followed with a single and Mackey Sasser's double put runners at second and third. Pinch hitter Kelvin Torve, playing in his third game with New York and batting for pitcher Bob Ojeda, then placed his double into the gap in right-center to give the Mets a 5-3 lead.

''I was a little nervous when I first came up, but they told me to gear down,'' Torve said. ''I was overjoyed when I reached second. I never had that feeling in the minors. I shortened my swing and tried to drive the ball.''

''When your starter is throwing pretty good and gets thrown out you are hurt,'' Phillies manager Nick Leyva said. ''In addition Dennis Cook (also ejected) is our long man. I had to stay with Darrel Akerfeld even though he threw a couple of stupid pitches. He threw fast balls to Howard Johnson and Mackey Sasser, both fast ball hitters. They were bad pitches.''

Gooden, who had hit Dickie Thon in the second and Tommy Herr in the fifth, reacted to Combs' pitch by instantly rushing the mound. Combs met him halfway and both players, joined by catcher Darren Daulton, wrestled to the ground, followed by their benches.

''When he hit me it was obvious he was throwing at me,'' Gooden said. ''I never try to hit anyone. I don't feel any different about the Phillies than anyone else. When Combs got behind me in the fight he was still throwing punches.''

Combs held a different view.

''I respect Dwight Gooden as a hitter and was just trying to throw inside '' Combs said. ''I wasn't trying to hit him.''

In addition to Combs and relief pitcher Cook, Daulton and coach Mike Ryan were tossed from the Phillies. The Mets lost Gooden, Tim Teufel and Darryl Strawberry in the fray.

Bob Ojeda replaced Gooden and picked up the victory to improve to 6-5. Alejandro Pena worked the seventh and John Franco pitched the final two innings to earn his 25th save.

Elsewhere in the NL, St. Louis dropped Chicago 3-1, Montreal edged Pittsburgh 7-6 in 10 innings, Los Angeles pounded Cincinnati 10-3, and San Diego blanked Atlanta 7-0.

In the American League it was: Oakland 5, Baltimore 2; Texas 13, Cleveland 5; Detroit 5, Toronto 4; Kansas City 5, Chicago 3; New York 1, Seattle 0; and Boston 14, California 3.

-- AROUND THE NL --

Cardinals 3, Cubs 1

At Chicago, Ken Hill and Lee Smith pitched a combined five-hitter and Willie McGee drove in a run and scored another to lift St. Louis and snap Chicago's five-game winning streak. Hill, 3-1, gave up four hits over eight-plus innings in his fourth start since being recalled from Triple-A Louisville. Smith recorded the last three outs for his 20th save. Lance Dickson dropped to 0-1.

Expos 7, Pirates 6, 10 innings

At Pittsburgh, Andres Galarraga raced home from second base on Mike Fitzgerald's check-swing infield single in the 10th inning to guide

Montreal. Steve Frey got two outs in the ninth to improve to 5-1. Bill Sampen pitched the 10th for his second save. Bill Landrum, who had allowed the Expos to tie the score in the ninth, fell to 4-3.

Dodgers 10, Reds 3

At Cincinnati, Ramon Martinez won his sixth straight game with eight innings of six-hit ball to pace Los Angeles. Martinez, 15-4, struck out 10 to raise his major-league leading total to 174. The right-hander, 10-1 in his last 13 starts, walked one and hasn't lost since July 5. Jack Armstrong, 11-8, didn't make it through the first inning as the Dodgers scored five runs.

Padres 7, Braves 0

At Atlanta, Bruce Hurst tossed a six-hitter and collected his first career RBI and Garry Templeton notched his 2000th career hit to lift the San Diego Padres to a 7-0 victory over the Atlanta Braves. Hurst, 7-8, struck out seven and walked two to earn his second shutout of the year and fifth complete game.

Charlie Liebrandt, 4-6, allowed seven hits over five innings to take the loss.

MASON, OH (AUG. 10) UPI - Number 15 seed Richard Fromberg of Australia upset No. 2 seed Andre Agassi of Las Vegas, Nev. Thursday in the third round of the $1.3 million Thriftway ATP Championship.

It was the first professional meeting for the two who faced each other seven years ago on the junior circuit in Australia where Agassi was the victor.

But Fromberg took revenge Thursday.

He broke Agassi on his first service game in the opening set. Two games later, Agassi broke Fromberg to tie the set at 2-2 only to be broken again on his next service game. Fromberg took the first set 6-4.

Agassi then won three straight games in the middle of the second set to take a 5-2 lead and eventually win the set 6-3.

But chances for a victory for Agassi began to fade when Fromberg won the first three games of the final set.

From this point on, it was clearly Fromberg's game. The Australian seemed to make all of the important shots on the way to a round of sixteen victory 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

''The problem is, getting motivated to beat these guys that everyone expects you to beat day after day,'' Agassi said ''I didn't feel good about anything.''

But Fromberg called it ''a very close match. It could have gone either way. I was able to get the right breaks at the right time.''

Fromberg advances to the quarter finals and will face the winner of the John McEnroe and Scott Davis contest.

Also Thursday, defending champion and No. 4 seed Brad Gilbert was an easy 6-1, 6-2 winner over 13th-seeded Guy Forget of France.

Forget won his first service game, but then Gilbert, a native of Oakland, Calif., swept nine games in a row.

''I was really expecting a tough match,'' Gilbert said. ''But I returned serve well and he was missing a little bit. I think he just got frustrated.''

Andres Gomez of Ecuador, the No. 3 seed, defeated Darren Cahill of Australia 7-6 (7-3), 6-3. But not without some struggle.

''Darren took the first couple of games,'' Gomez said. ''He didn't miss one serve. The balls were getting smaller and faster.''

Gomez fought back from a 0-3 deficit to send the first set into a tie-break, which he won 7-3, and then dominated Cahill in the second set.

Seventh-seeded Michael Chang used his speed and agility to overcome 10th-seeded Pete Sampras' power in a 7-5, 6-4 victory.

Sampras, of Rancho Palos Verdes, Calif., has one of the most powerful serves in tennis, but Chang said that's no good if it isn't accurate.

''Pete didn't make a lot of first serves,'' said Chang. ''That hurt him a little bit. Basically, when he hits that hard serve, all you can do is block it.''

Eleventh-seeded Jim Courier of Dade City, Fla, overpowered No. 6 Jay Berger of Weston, Fla., 6-2, 6-2.

Berger said he never had a chance.

''I definitely was not at the top of my game,'' he said. ''I let (Courier) get on top of me early.''

Also Thursday, Aaron Krickstein, seeded fifth, fell victim to unseeded Jakob Hlasek of Switzerland 6-2, 6-4.

(AUG. 10) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... U-P-I brings you the latest news.

Arab leaders meet in Cairo today for an emergency summit aimed at resolving the Persian Gulf crisis. Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak hopes to convince Iraq to accept an Arab peace-keeping force and withdraw from Kuwait, but Cairo Radio says Baghdad has so far rejected the proposal. Iraq invaded Kuwait last week.

The White House says President Bush will be able to keep tabs on the Persian Gulf situation even though he leaves today for a month-long vacation in Maine. Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says the White House worldwide communications network moves with Bush. The president said yesterday he ''CAN'T stay in one place all the time.''

More than one-thousand wildfires are burning in the West, but fire officials in California say their ''main concern is the Yosemite situation.'' Two fires burned 10-thousand acres below Yosemite Valley, forcing evacuation of all 500 residents of El Portal at the entrance of Yosemite National Park.

Peru's government announced stiff economic measures yesterday that sent gasoline prices skyrocketing, and also sparked widespread anger. Officials say three people were killed in clashes between security forces and rioters. Gasoline prices rose nearly three-thousand percent, to the equivalent of one-dollar-12 a gallon.

The jury in Washington Mayor Marion Barry's drug and perjury trial enters its eighth day of deliberations today. Yesterday's deliberations were halted when a diabetic juror was hospitalized for fever, stress and depression. U-S District Judge Thomas Jackson says the panel member is expected to be released in time for today's proceedings.

(AUG. 10) UPI - Thunderstorms blasted the South and Great Plains with gusty winds, hail, and lightning Friday as fog shrouded New England and more than 1,000 wildfires burned out of control in the rain-thirsty West.

Storms rumbled across the coastal South as a high-pressure system kept Alabama and Mississippi relatively clear, the National Weather Service said.

Thunderstorms spread across northern Georgia, dropping heavy rain and hail over Douglasville as winds gusted to 40 mph. The strongest storms, with hail and lightning, were reported south of Austell, Ga.

Severe storms also struck South Carolina as showers dampened North Carolina.

Severe thunderstorms in Iowa battered an area about 30 miles north of Des Moines early Friday, unleashing winds in excess of 60 mph, destructive hail, deadly lightning and torrential rains.

Thunderstorms lingered in the Southern Plains Friday after pounding north Texas and southern Oklahoma with heavy rain and hail. Golfball-size hail and heavy rains pushed through southern Oklahoma and north Texas late Thursday.

Chattanooga, Okla., was inundated by 1 1/2 inches of rain in 30 minutes.

In the Northeast, fog rolled across New England early Friday, dropping visibility to near zero in South Weymouth, Mass., and Portsmouth, N.H. Light rain sprinkled parts of Vermont, and temperatures ranged in the 50s and 60s across most of the region.

Showers soaked Baltimore and Washington, D.C., early Friday as clouds blanketed most of the Middle Atlantic region. Low readings ranged from 63 in Williamsport, Pa., to 76 in Atlantic City, N.J.

More than 1,000 wildfires were raging out of control in the West, charring about 200,000 acres of timber, rangelands and brush, and forcing the evacuation of a town at the entrance to Yosemite National Park.

The little mountain towns of El Portal and Foresta were threatened by the fires, and El Portal's 500 residents were evacuated. About 10,000 people were trapped in Yosemite overnight because the main roads leading in and out of the park were closed because of fire danger.

Firefighters said 1,000 separate fires were burning in California alone, with dozens more blazing in Idaho, Oregon and Utah.

The West's hot, swirling winds whipped the fires out of control, and crews jumped from hot spot to hot spot. A four-year drought and millions of dried-out, insect-killed trees aggravated the situation.

(AUG. 10) UPI - NASA's Magellan probe is sailing toward a historic encounter with Venus today. The spacecraft's braking rocket is to fire for 83-seconds to put the probe into an elliptical orbit around Venus so it can map the planet's surface. Magellan was launched 15 months ago from the shuttle Atlantis.

The repaired shuttle Columbia was returned to the launch pad at Cape Canaveral yesterday for lift-off next month on a 10-day astronomy mission. The mission was grounded May 30th by a hydrogen leak, which has been fixed. The grounded shuttle Atlantis was moved off the launch pad to make way for Columbia.

Police sources in Trinidad say Moslem rebels who tried to overthrow the government last month have been charged with treason, murder and several other offenses. The charge of treason carries a penalty of death by hanging. There have been NO executions in the Caribbean island nation since 1975.

In Liberia, rebel troops loyal to Charles Taylor attacked the eastern part of the capital of Monrovia, overrunning the West German and Nigerian embassies and moving toward the airport. The Guinean embassy also was hit yesterday by Taylor's troops. Guinea has been a supporter of President Samuel Doe.

News reports say current and former F-B-I agents allegedly had a 20-year relationship with New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner, and helped him make background checks of his employees. MIAMI (AUG. 10) UPI - Tropical Storm Edouard weakened in the North Atlantic after lashing the Azores Islands with 45 mph winds, and forecasters said Friday the storm would likely be downgraded to a tropical depression during the day.

At 6 a.m. EDT, Edouard was centered near latitude 39.9 north and longitude 26.5 west, or about 95 miles north northeast of the island of Terceira in the Azores.

The storm's maximum sustained winds held steady at 40 mph Friday, after dropping about 5 mph on Thursday. Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center near Miami said the storm was expected to weaken further during the day.

Hurricane specialist Miles Lawrence said the storm's winds would likely fall below the 39 mph threshold for tropical storms, perhaps by midday.

Tropical storm force winds extended outward up to 85 miles to the north of the center. Edouard was moving east northeast at near 6 mph, and forecasters said that motion was expected to continue for the next 24 hours.

Eduoard is the fifth tropical storm of the Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season, which runs from June 1 to Nov. 30. It formed from a tropical depression east of the Azores Wednesday.

Diana, the second storm to reach hurricane strength this year, dissipated Wednesday after slamming Mexico's Gulf coast with 110 mph winds, killing three people.

Forecasters also were monitoring a pair of tropical waves, one southwest of the Cape Verde Islands off the coast of Africa, and the other midway between Africa and the Lesser Antilles.

''The one that is really of interest is the one off the Cape Verde Islands. That one is looking fairly impressive today,'' Lawrence said. ''We'll be watching it during the day, and may decide to upgrade it (to a tropical depression). It just came off the coast a little while ago.''

(AUG. 10) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange continued their fall in very light trading Friday as investors tried to shield themselves from Middle East developments before the weekend.

The blue-chip Nikkei average of 225 selected issues, which Thursday plunged 893.41 points - or 3.1 percent - fell another 286.18 points to end the week at 27,329.55. It was the Nikkei's lowest close since Oct. 24, 1988.

The key index, which measures the value of Japan's largest 225 companies in terms of market capitalization, lost 2,186.21 points for the week.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Price Index, which measures all shares on the market's main section, lost 11.53 points to 2,056.88 following a 31.61-point loss on Thursday.

An estimated 320 million shares changed hands, compared with 410 million Thursday.

Declines outpaced advances 616 to 303, while 169 issues remained unchnaged.

Analysts said the arbitrage selling that pounded the market Thursday let up early Friday morning, leading to temporary gains.

But with a high degree of uncertainty lingering over the Middle East, where Iraqi forces continue to threaten Saudi Arabia, investors did not want to commit themselves to stock positions over the weekend, analysts said.

In the afternoon session, investors sold off stocks for cash to await developments.

The Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and its aftermath have driven the Tokyo market down at an astonishing rate, shaving nearly 10 percent off the Nikkei's value since Aug. 2. The rapid decline has made technical projections difficult, analysts said.

Declines were broad-based with no distinctive movements by sector, market markets said.

However, trading in Calpis, a beverage producer, was suspended on news of an imminent takeover by food giant Ajinomoto Corp.

Elsewhere in Asia, stock prices posted moderate losses in very sparse trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange as matters in the Middle East put a damper on bargain hunting.

Activity was heavily concentrated in the leading blue-chip issues.

The key Hang Seng Index, which lost 54.45 points Thursday, dropped another 12.15 points to 3,078.97. For the week the blue-chip index plunged 277.68 points.

Among the narrower indexes, financials lost 13.64, utilities eased 9.11 industrials inched down 1.87 and properties sunk 41.32 points.

An estimated 1.4 billion shares chnaged hands, down from the 1.8 billion shares Thursday.

Bargain hunters pushed the market up more than 30 points in the first half hour of trading, but analysts said some midmorning profit-taking quickly killed the buying spree.

In Singapore, stock prices closed lower in moderate trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange as tension in the Middle East continued to erode investors confidence.

The key Straits Times Industrial Index, which gained 15.24 points Wednesday, fell 32.06 points to 1,343.66. The All Singapore Index dipped 5.71 points to 387.55.

Markets in Singapore were closed Thursday for a national holiday.

An estimated 71.3 million shares chnaged hands, compared with 143.7 million Wednesday.

On the trading floor, Natsteel Ltd. paced the declining issues followed by Gold Coin and Singapore Press.

The Asean Fund (U.S.) paced the advancing issues followed by Jurong Shipyard and Singapore Airline foreign shares.

In Bangkok, stock prices rebounded slightly on the Stock Exchange of Thailand in moderate trading.

The Stock Exchange of Thailand Index, which plunged 54.10 points or 5.65 perecent Thursday, rebounded 17.36 points to end the week at 921.13.

An estimated 3.1 billion shares changed hands compared with 3.5 billion shares Thursday.

Advances outpaced declines better than 2-to-1.

The situation in the Middle East is still very influential for investors '' an official at a local investment house said, adding most large investors remained sidelined to await fresh developments.

Elsewhere around the region, stock prices ended lower in light and cautious trading in Taipei and Manila.

On the Taiwan Stock Exchange the Weighted Index fell 137.43 points or 3.25 percent to 4,094.78 - its lowqest closing level since April 28, 1988.

In Manila, worried investors liquidated stocks, pushing prices lower in light trading on the Manila Stock Exchnage.

The Manila Composite Stock Index of 25 selected stocks lost 14.47 points to 856.71.

In Australia, stock prices closed higher on the Sydney Sharemarket boosted by the Thursday's 24-point gain on Wall Street.

The All Ordinaries Index, which eased 5.4 points Thursday, rebounded 6.3 points to 1,569.1. The All Resources Index gained 6.0 points to 958.3, while the All Industrials Index rose 6.7 points to 2,355.9.

The Gold Index climbed 23.2 points to 1,507.1.

An estimated 77.8 million shares changed hands, compared with 90.1 million shares Thursday.

Analysts said that aside from selected gold and oil issues trading was tentative, with most investors waiting for more developments in the Middle East.

On the trading floor, WMC Mining rose 4 cents to $5.46, Placer Pacific gained 4 cents to $3.40 and GMK gained 1 cent to 99 cents a share.

Elsewhere, in the oil patch, Santos Oil fell 6 cents to $5.04 and Woodside Oil slipped 3 cents to $3.20.

In Johannesburg, a sharp overnight rise in the value of gold gave a boost to the mining boards Friday on the Johannesburg Stock Exchange.

Bullion was pegged at $388.60 to $389.10 per ounce.

The All Gold Index stood at 1,699.0, up from 1674.4 Thursday.

(AUG. 10) UPI - An emergency, one-day summit is under way today in Cairo as Arab leaders try to find a regional solution to the Persian Gulf crisis. The summit was originally set for yesterday, but was delayed because Iraq reportedly objected to Kuwait's participation. Arab leaders apparently overcame the Iraqi objection, and the session began today in the International Conference Hall. Iraq precipitated the crisis last week when it invaded Kuwait.

An airline industry spokesman says the price airlines pay for jet fuel went up last week within hours after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait. Those rising fuel prices are now having an impact on air fares. Several airlines- including United, Delta, Continental, Northwest and US-Air- say they will raise their fares to make up for the price hikes. Northwest and Continental will raise their fares 10 percent.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - Wholesale prices edged down 0.1 percent in July as energy costs declined for the sixth consecutive month before the start of hostilities in the Arab world, the Labor Department said Friday.

Private analysts predicted an increase of 0.2 percent in the Producer Price Index for last month, and expect a significant increase in the August data in the wake of the Iraq-Kuwait crisis and higher gasoline prices nationwide.

Putting into perspective what would normally be considered good news, the government said its report is ''based on prices reported as of mid-July, before the outbreak of recent disturbances in the Middle East.''

The overall 0.1 percent decline in July wholesale prices follows increases of 0.2 percent in June and 0.3 percent in May, according to the data compiled by the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Wholesale energy prices fell 0.5 percent in July after tumbling 0.9 percent in June and 1 percent in May. The last increase, January's surge of 13.7 percent, was blamed on a severe winter cold snap.

''In July, lower gasoline prices outweighed an upturn in the natural gas index,'' the Labor Department said. ''The home heating oil index rose slightly after substantial declines in both preceding months.''

Wholesale food prices in July were unchanged after slipping 0.4 percent in June and gaining 0.6 percent in May.

''Increases were led by fresh fruits, fish, cheese, processed poultry, soft drinks, roasted coffee and frozen specialties,'' the department said. ''These were offset, however, by declines in pork, beef and veal, eggs, and fluid milk products.''

Not counting food and energy costs, July wholesale prices were also down 0.1 percent for the month. For the year, wholesale prices are up 3 percent a government spokesman said.

Prices for other consumer goods climbed 0.7 percent in July, on higher wholesale costs for tobacco, cars, over-the-counter drugs and household glassware, after an 0.5 percent advance in June and an 0.2 percent dip in May.

Wholesale prices for crude goods, meanwhile, were up 0.6 percent in July after dropping 2.4 percent in June and inching down 0.1 percent in May.

Wholesale prices for intermediate goods, the step between crude and finished, were unchanged in July after decreases of 0.2 percent and 0.1 percent in June and May, the Labor Department said.

Lorenzo, tarnished by Eastern Airlines' bankruptcy filing, says he has become a ''lightning rod'' for attacks against Continental.

Poland's President Wojciech Jaruzelski apparently will visit the United States in October at the invitation of President Bush. Volume amounted to around 190 million shares compared with 204 million shares traded during the same period Thursday.

Analysts said investors were staying away from the market, awaiting further news from the meeting of Arab leaders in Cairo.

In addition, analysts said, large institutional investors do not want to open any new positions ahead of the weekend.

Among the most widely traded stocks, Glaxo Holdings tumbled 68 cents to $15.59 after Schroder Securities Ltd. downgrading the household products company earnings forecast.

In the oil patch, British Petroleum gained 5 cents to $6.51 and Shell added 5 cents to $8.73 as the prices of Brent crude edged slightly higher on spot markets.

DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, DE (AUG. 10) UPI - A group of 35 Americans, mostly military wives and children evacuated from a Saudi Arabian air base, returned to the United States early Friday as more U.S. troops reached the troubled Middle East.

A C-5 transport with women, children and four U.S. diplomats arrived at Dover Air Force Base from King Abdul Air Base in Daharan, Saudi Arabia, about 4:30 a.m., officials said.

Passenger Elaine Pitman, wife of U.S. Army engineer Marc Pitman, said dependents were told earlier this week they were being evacuated after a week of rising tension following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

''They said 'Don't worry, the C-5 will get you out safely because we have F-15s escorting you out of the kingdom,''' she said. ''We knew there were an awful lot of troops coming in. That made it real.''

Pitman said, however, the evacuees were given return tickets as they left, with the promise that they would be back in Saudi Arabia within 30 days.

Pitman arrived in Dover with her three children, ages 3, 6, and 11 months, and was waiting at the base for arrangements to be made for a rental car so she could drive to her mother's home in Hackensack, N.J.

''We were in a very hot spot in my opinion. Daharan is a very strategic location,'' Pitman said. ''Everybody was sitting around their house watching Cable News Network. We saw this invasion, we know how close it is. The big thing for us was to just follow the news.''

Pitman said life gradually became more restrictive in the compound where her family lived next to the air base and within several days the wives were told not to go to downtown Daharan.

''The next thing we find out is on Monday, the president announced he's going to start deploying all these people out our way,'' she said. But Pitman said she never saw the actual troop buildup until the group was waiting at the air base for their flight out Thursday.

Pitman and other family members of U.S. military personnel were told Wednesday they were being evacuated.

''That night was very emotional night for us because we knew we were leaving our husbands behind,'' she said. ''We know what equipment they didn't have ... and we were nervous because of the chemicals.''

Pitman said her husband and others at the installation were in Saudi Arabia in a training capacity and they had initially expected to be evacuated with their families.

''We're lucky because the government has the responsibility and obligation to get us out,'' said Pitman. ''There are a lot of civilians back there who are trying to get out.''

She said others aboard the plane were headed Friday for Washington, D.C., Texas, Maryland and California. There were 20 children among the plane out of the 35 passengers, plus four diplomats from the U.S. Consulate in Daharan.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - Wholesale prices edged down 0.1 percent in July as energy costs declined for the sixth consecutive month before the start of hostilities in the Arab world, the Labor Department said Friday.

Private analysts predicted an increase of 0.2 percent in the Producer Price Index for last month, and expect a significant increase in the August data in the wake of the Iraq crisis and higher gasoline prices nationwide.

Putting into perspective what would normally be considered good news, the government said its report is ''based on prices reported as of mid-July, before the outbreak of recent disturbances in the Middle East.''

Despite a 5.3 percent decline in the wholesale price of gasoline last month, economist Donald Ratajczak, at Georgia State University in Atlanta, said, ''Get used to a 20 percent increase next month.''

''That's probably the range we'll be talking about,'' he cautioned.

For example, analysts at Mitsubishi Bank in New York said, ''Each $1 increase in the price of crude oil will translate into a 4 percent hike in wholesale gasoline prices and a 2 percent increase in gasoline prices at the pump.''

But unlike the days before the 1973 and 1979 oil shocks, U.S. wholesale and consumer prices have been moderating ''and a result we shouldn't soar anywhere near the double digit'' inflation of the past, Ratajczak said.

The overall 0.1 percent decline in July wholesale prices follows increases of 0.2 percent in June and 0.3 percent in May, according to the data compiled by the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Wholesale energy prices fell 0.5 percent in July after tumbling 0.9 percent in June and 1 percent in May. The last increase, January's surge of 13.7 percent, was blamed on a severe winter cold snap.

JERUSALEM (AUG. 10) UPI - Israeli officials, attempting to calm fears of an Iraqi chemical weapons attack, said Friday Iraq does not have missiles with chemical warheads and there was no immediate need to distribute gas masks to the public.

Iraq's accusation Wednesday that Israel was disguising its planes for an attack and warning of retaliatory action caused deep concern in Israel that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein was laying the groundwork for a strike against the Jewish country.

Alarmed by the war of words, hundreds of Israelis and many Palestinians in the occupied Gaza Strip have tried to purchase their own gas mask kits. Iraq used chemical weapons in its war with Iran and also on its own Kurdish citizens.

Defense Minister Moshe Arens, however, Friday told the Hebrew-language newspaper Yediot Ahronot the chances of Saddam using chemical weapons against Israel were slight.

''As far as we know, he does not have missiles with gas warheads. His missiles carry explosives and are not effective weapons,'' he said. ''He will hesitate to use chemical weapons because he is able to estimate our reaction.''

Israel has repeatedly said it is not planning to attack any country but warned it was prepared to respond swiftly to any aggression. Military sources said they were confident that Israel's air force was capable of thwarting an attack by planes carrying chemical weapons.

Arens said a two-year experimental program of passing out gas masks in selected communities would continue and no changes had been made in the civil defense program against chemical weapons.

''There is no reason to deviate from the arrangements we have made. If we really have to, we are able to distribute gas masks in a very short time '' he said. ''At the moment there is no need. The public has absolutely no reason to panic.''

Military sources said a sufficient number of gas masks for the entire population were stored throughout the country and could be distributed quickly.

Israeli officials said Friday the public's growing concern about a chemical gas attack led to the defense establishment's decision to explain why gas masks were not being distributed and its statement that Iraq did not have missiles with chemical warheads.

In addition, Chief of Staff Lt. Gen. Dan Shomron said Thursday Israel wanted to avoid measures that might be interpreted as preparations for war.

The army has been reluctant to pass out gas mask kits to the public because studies several years ago showed that people did not store the devices properly, using them while painting and doing other chores or even wearing them as part of a costume.

This week as the crisis in the Gulf deepened, hundreds of people have contacted importers to buy gas masks, protection suits and other defenses against chemical weapons, the newspaper Yediot Ahronot reported.

''When people heard that I wanted to buy anti-biological and chemical equipment, they looked at me as if I was crazy,'' a 24-year- old woman in Tel Aviv said, ''but this is simply because they do not want to admit they are under a very serious threat.''

The price of the gas masks range between $60 and $175, but not all meet army requirements.

In the Gaza Strip, Palestinians concerned about the danger of chemical warfare have gone to pharmacies to ask for some form of protection. The stores, however, do not stock such protective equipment.

BOSTON (AUG. 10) UPI - The Food and Drug Administration will be testing honey sold for human consumption because of higher-than-allowed pesticide levels found in samples from Massachusetts, the Boston Herald reported Friday.

The FDA said there was a pattern of pesticide misuse among migratory beekeepers and that samples of Massachusetts honey showed levels 22 times higher than allowed by law.

The FDA said two large-scale beekeeping operations were improperly using the chemical fluvalinate in hives used to pollinate Massachusetts cranberry bogs.

Inspectors found fluvalinate, which is deemed ''low to moderately toxic'' by the Environmental Protection Agency, in honey taken from among 6,000 hives run by one of the firms.

That firm reportedly distribvted honey commercially and through a federal program that supplies schools and elderly centers, the Herald said.

''We don't know whether this is in food for human consumption or not at this point,'' said John A. Hamilton Jr., compliance director of the FDA's Boston office.

''So we are actively investigating it and we will begin testing the honey that is sold for human consumption,'' he said.

Hamilton said it is too early to tell if the fluvalinate levels are high enough to pose a public health hazard.

The Herald said at least two other states, including Florida, are cooperating with the EPA-FDA investigation.

Fluvalinate is made by the Sandoz Crop Protection Corp. under the name of Apistan. It can cause skin, eye and throat irritations and is toxic to fish and wildlife.

CAIRO, EGYPT (AUG. 10) UPI - Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak convened an emergency Arab League summit Friday in a last-ditch diplomatic effort to defuse the Persian Gulf crisis and said there can be no solution unless Iraq pulls out of Kuwait.

Shortly before the summit began, Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz called for an immediate withdrawal of U.S. forces from the region to allow ''the Arabs to discuss their problems freely.''

The official Iraq News Agency reported Iraqi President Saddam Hussein would speak Friday on Iraqi radio and television stations.

Mubarak hopes Arab powers can solve the crisis and wants to reverse the massive buildup of foreign forces in the region but Iraq has rejected all previous Arab calls for a withdrawal from Kuwait and it is highly unlikely it will alter its position.

To tighten its control over Kuwait, which it invaded Aug. 2, Iraq annexed the oil-rich Persian Gulf state Wednesday, declaring the merger eternal. On Thursday, Iraq gave foreign missions in Kuwait a two-week deadline in which to relocate to Baghdad.

U.S. forces dispatched by President Bush in Saudi Arabia settled into defensive positions. The Pentagon confirmed 48 F-15s were in the desert kingdom and an estimated 2,300 American paratroopers were continuing to arrive.

Bush's call for a multinational force met with commitments from Britain and Australia, while France announced it would reinforce its gulf naval presence and send arms and technicians to defend countries against an Iraqi attack.

The European Community said Friday closure of embassies in Kuwait might jeopardize the safety of at least 5,000 foreigners in both Iraq and Kuwait. Dutch Foreign Minister Hans van den Broek said the EC was determined to keep a diplomatic link in place to help Europeans.

The British Foreign Office said it intended to keep diplomats in Kuwait

City ''as long as possible'' to show its refusal to accept Iraq's annexation. A spokesman declined to say whether British diplomats would remain beyond the Aug. 24 deadline.

In his opening 20-minute address to the Arab summit, Mubarak described the Persian Gulf crisis as a critical time for the Arab world. He spoke of gulf states' fears for their security because of Iraq's invasion and reassured them the Arab League was ''standing with them firmly.''

''There is no solution to the crisis and no coming out of the dispute except with the retreat and the withdrawal of the Iraqi troops from Kuwait '' Mubarak said.

He called for Iraq to ''leave the internal matters of Kuwait to its people without any censor (and to) respect the legitimacy of the government before the Iraqi invasion.''

''The price of occupying land by force is a major threat to the whole Arab nation,'' Mubarak said.

Iraq had objected to the deposed Kuwaiti emir, Sheikh Jaber al Ahmad al Sabah, leading a delegation representing his occupied country at the Arab League summit. But Arab leaders held overnight consultations and apparently overcame the Iraqi objection.

As Mubarak opened the session, the downcast Kuwaiti emir sat near Jordan's King Hussein and Mubarak while Iraq's representative, First Deputy Prime Minister Taha Yassin Ramadan, sat farther away.

Sitting around the horseshoe-shaped conference table at Nasir City's International Conference Hall, just west of Cairo, were leaders representing 20 of the 21 Arab League members. Tunisia failed to attend the summit, which recessed for Friday prayers after Mubarak's speech. The Arab leaders reconvened 2 1/2 hours later for a closed-door session.

''This summit ... is not an arena to embarrass the Iraqi nation and accuse it for one way or the other,'' Mubarak said during the opening session. ''We are all keen on Iraq, for what it represents, its people, its civilizations.''

The Egyptian leader hopes the meeting will yield an agreement on creating an all-Arab peace-keeping force that would deploy along the Saudi-Kuwaiti border to allow Iraq to stage a negotiated withdrawal from Kuwait.

Mubarak's plan includes assurances to Iraq that the reinstated Kuwaiti government would compensate Saddam's regime for oil Iraq claims Kuwait stole from a border well. Economically ailing Iraq also had accused Kuwait of overproducing oil, thus driving down oil prices.

Before the summit, Aziz told reporters he wondered why an Arab summit had failed to take place as scheduled Sunday before the rapid buildup of U.S. forces in the region. He said Baghdad ''could not ignore the Arab summit'' and welcomed efforts to find a regional solution.

TOKYO (AUG. 10) UPI - Japan's global merchandise trade surplus in July declined 10.2 percent from the year-ago period to $5.381 billion after posting a 27.6 percent rise in June, the Finance Ministry said Friday.

The ministry, in a preliminary report, said Japan's exports gained 1.8 percent over a year ago to $23.888 billion while imports grew 6.0 percent to $18.507 billion.

The report said Japan's surplus with the United States, its largest trading partner, declined 5.7 percent from June to $3.066 billion. The surplus with the United States accounted for 42.4 percent of Japan's total down from 51.6 percent in June.

Japan had a favorable balance of $1.148 billion in its trade with the European Community, down 28.0 percent from June.

Ministry officials said the downturn in July showed that Japan's trade performance returned to a favorable pattern.

Japan's global trade surplus had shrunk since the beginning of this year until it increased in June.

The officials said the slow export growth was attributable to sluggish sales overseas of steel and electronic components and devices, which fell 15.2 percent and 11.4 percent from a year ago, respectively.

They attributed the slow pace of import growth to lower prices of imported primary products, such as crude oil.

The impact of the tense Middle East situation on Japan's trade data will not be known for a few months, the officials said.

They said Japan's crude oil imports surged 12.7 percent in volume in July over a year ago but fell 0.6 percent in value due to sagging prices.

The ministry said imports of manufactured goods accounted for a record 54.3 percent of the total, topping the previous high of 52.3 percent set in June and April this year.

The ministry said imports of aircraft soared 82.0 percent over a year ago while those of art works increased 440 percent.

Japan's posted a $1 million deficit in its trade with South Africa, down from dlrs 27.75 million in June. Exports declined 4.5 percent from a year ago to $142.8 million and exports fell 11.5 percent to $143.8 million.

Japan's trade surplus with the Association of Southeast Asian Nations rose 0.9 percent over June to $731.7 million, the ministry said.

Japan had a $474.7 million trade surplus with South Korea, down from $662.5 million in June. Its surplus with Taiwan stood at $606.96 million, down from $656.66 million in June while its favorable balance with Hong Kong rose to $1 billion from $980 million, the ministry said.

Japan posted a $758.89 million deficit in its trade with the Middle East, down from $843.4 million in June.

Japan's trade surplus with Latin America fell to $58.51 million from $160.16 million. Its favorable balance with Mexico rose to $45.8 million from $41.96 million while its deficit with Brazil increased to $174.86 million from $161.72 million, the ministry said.

GREENWICH, Conn. (AUG. 10) UPI - The International Brotherhood of Teamsters began counting votes Friday in nationwide balloting that may decide whether 150,000 full- and part-time workers will go on strike against United Parcel Service.

Teamsters officials have notified the company's corporate headquarters in Greenwich that if a proposed three-year contract is not ratified, a strike could begin on Monday.

It would be the union's first nationwide strike against UPS, the nation's largest parcel shipper, which handles about 11 million packages for U.S. customers daily.

''We're still optimistic that it's going to be ratified,'' said UPS spokeswoman Patricia Steffan, adding the package delivery company had not worked out a specific contingency plan.

''At this time a lot of people are looking into all of the possible options,'' Steffan said.

''No one really wants a work stoppage. It would not be good for the company, it would not be good for the Teamsters and it would not be good for the customers,'' she said. ''The company is still optimistic it's going to be business as usual on Monday.''

Steffan said word could come as early as Friday on whether or not the contract was ratified, but Teamsters officials in Washington, D.C., where the votes are being counted, indicated no announcement would be made until Monday.

The voting by the company's 150,000 union members has been under way since July 31, when the old contract expired and both sides agreed to a 10-day waiting period.

A walkout would create a massive shipping problem even for rival shippers and the U.S. Postal Service.

Major home catalog companies face delays in shipping products to buyers as the Postal Service has already announced it cannot absorb the volume of UPS business.

The Postal Service said it will limit the amount of packages it will accept from the catalog warehouses in the event of a strike, as well as limit to four, the number of packages shipped by individuals.

The contract offer includes a raise from $16.10 an hour for the average driver to $17.60 an hour over a three-year period and improved benefits.

If approved, UPS also will give full-time workers a $1,000 bonus within a month of ratification and part-time employees will get a $500 bonus, company officials said.

In 1989, UPS made 2.8 billion deliveries for $12.4 billion in revenue.

NEW YORK (AUG. 10) UPI - Stock prices moved lower in early trading Friday as traders, nervous about what may happen in the Middle East over the weekend, took profits from the gains of the past two sessions.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 24.01 Thursday, was down 18.81 to 2740.10 at 10 a.m.

Declines led advances 659-424 among the 1,568 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Volume was moderate, amounting to about 19.83 million shares during the first 30 minutes of trading.

Analysts said investors, uncertain about how events in the Persian Gulf may unfold over the next two days, cashed in some of their holdings, sparking the early decline.

Prices were sharply higher at the close in moderate trading Thursday as investors reacted favorably to news from the Middle East and to a strong bond market.

Analysts said prices were bolstered by news that a Pentagon spokesman described Iraqi troops in Kuwait as seeming to be ''in a defensive posture.''

ATHENS, GREECE (AUG. 10) UPI - Iran said Friday Iraq's invasion and annexation of Kuwait raise doubts about its intentions in peace talks with Tehran, the official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

Ayatollah Mohammed Yazdi, a leading Iranian cleric, said Iraq's action against Kuwait made it ''even less reliable as a party in peace talks with the Islamic Republic than it seemed last week.''

Yazdi, who is Iran's chief justice, was speaking at Friday prayers at Tehran University, which in the past decade has served as a platform where official Iranian policy is announced.

The Iraqi invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2 came only days after Iran and Iraq resumed low-level preliminary talks in Geneva aimed at paving the way for a summit between President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani and his Iraqi counterpart, Saddam Hussein.

The proposed summit was aimed at finding a durable peace between the two Persian Gulf neighbors who fought a bitter eight-year war between 1980 and 1988.

An IRNA dispatch monitored in Athens quoted Yazdi as saying Iraq's occupation and annexation of Kuwait ''has served to demonstrate the inherent belligerence of the Baathist regime'' in Iraq.

There was no immediate indication that Iran was considering breaking off the talks but the Iranian Foreign Ministry said in a statement Thursday that Iraq's annexation of Kuwait was null and void and Baghdad must pull its forces out of the sheikhdom.

Yazdi repeated the call that Iraq must pull its forces out of Kuwait ''and observe international regulations.''

Iran's call for Iraq to pull back came shortly after Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati returned to Tehran from a visit to several gulf capitals where he discussed the latest crisis.

Regional analysts said Iran has shown by its actions since the August 1988 cease-fire that it wanted peace with Iraq but it may now begin reconsidering its stance and boost its forces along the 750-mile border between the two countries.

IRNA said the Foreign Ministry in Tehran denied Friday reports that Iran and the United States had exchanged messages on the situation in the Persian Gulf.

The news agency quoted a Foreign Ministry official as saying: ''The Swiss ambassador, who is in charge of the Interests Section of the United States in Tehran, had previously offered certain viewpoints in relation with Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.''

He said that in a meeting the ambassador had with Iranian officials ''we voiced the position of the Islamic Republic of Iran.''

However, Tehran did receive a message from Turkish President Turgut Ozal on the situation in the Persian Gulf, the news agency said. It did not elaborate.

(AUG. 10) UPI - Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak is calling for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait. Mubarak opened an emergency Arab League summit in Cairo today saying there is- quote- ''NO solution to the crisis and NO coming out of the dispute except with the retreat and the withdrawal of the Iraqi troops from Kuwait.''

Shortly before the summit's midday start, Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz called for the immediate withdrawal of U-S forces from the region to allow ''the Arabs to discuss their problems freely.'' U-S troops were deployed in Saudi Arabia to help defend against a possible attack by Iraq, which invaded oil-rich Kuwait last week.

In New York City, the judge in the Central Park jogger rape trial dealt the defense a blow yesterday when he said parents do NOT necessarily have to be present during police questioning of juveniles. One defense attorney had urged the jury to disregard his client's confession, arguing that a parent must be present during questioning.

Deliberations resume today in the drug and perjury trial of Marion Barry, the mayor of Washington, D-C, who faces 14 federal counts. One juror was hospitalized yesterday for fever and other ills, but she's expected to be released today. The judge also says he'll consider asking attorneys if they would accept an 11-person jury.

ROSEWOOD, TX (AUG. 10) UPI - A satellite company and Cable News Network are helping a woman ''in the middle of nowhere'' keep up with developments in the Middle East, where her husband is being detained in a Baghdad hotel.

Charles Amos, 56, is among the Americans being held in Iraq. He was with 10 other oil field workers taken into custody in Kuwait at the outset of the Iraqi invasion.

His wife, Sarrah Amos, said she was keeping up with developments ''minute by minute, practically'' by monitoring the CNN.

When Amos, her daughter, Karen, and son, David, first learned of Charles's predicament, the family could only get information from State Department telephone calls and sporadic news updates.

The nearest television cable was 12 miles from Rosewood, located about 20 miles north of Tyler.

McCoy's Satellite Systems Inc. of Tyler heard of the family's situation from customer Alex Price, a sales representative for Tyler radio stations KZEY-KROZ, who mentioned that the Amos family lived ''in the middle of nowhere'' and only received two channels with their television antenna.

McCoy's installed a 7-foot satellite dish at the family's home so they could watch news accounts 24 hours a day. Manager Jay Simpson made about 25 calls to CNN in Atlanta to get authorization for the network's signal. Permission finally came from Ted Turner himself after he learned that the satellite equipment had been donated.

''That's what satellite communication is all about - communication,'' Simpson said. ''We knew if we didn't do it, she would have no other source. ... I know if we were sitting out there and I was wondering about my dad, I'd want to know what was going on.''

Mrs. Amos says the State Department calls daily but she has been unable to contact her husband.

''The State Department has assured me he is comfortable so ... I'm taking their word for it,'' she said.

The family is ''doing fine,'' she said. ''We're supportive of each other. Friends come and sit with me and want to know what they can do.''

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - A diabetic juror who had to be hospitalized for stress and depression returned to court Friday, allowing the jury in Mayor Marion Barry's drug and perjury trial to resume deliberations.

Juror Deborah Noel was examined Friday morning at Providence Hospital and released, a hospital spokeswoman said. She joined 11 other jurors shortly afterward in U.S. District Court, and they began the jury's eighth day of deliberations.

Noel was taken to Providence Hospital about noon Thursday for examination by her endocrinologist, Dr. Ashraf El-Khodary, who has treated her for diabetes, said U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson.

The hospitalization halted deliberations after only about two hours Thursday. Noel's fellow jurors were sent back to the hotel where they are sequestered.

''El-Khodary tells me he can find nothing wrong,'' Jackson told attorneys in the courtroom Thursday. ''She is, however, deeply depressed, overwrought and under great stress.''

Noel, 34, a clinical clerk at Howard University Hospital, was running a fever when she was hospitalized. The hospital released a statement saying Noel was in good condition and admitted for ''overnight observation to monitor her blood sugar.''

Jackson had told a pool reporter that, if Noel's condition worsened, he would consider asking attorneys for both sides if they would accept an 11-person jury to deliberate the 14 drug and perjury counts against Barry.

The jury has been sequestered since June 18. The panel of nine women and three men has deliberated more than 32 hours over seven days, apparently reaching a verdict on at least one count.

The jury told Jackson on Tuesday it had reached a conclusion on count 12, one of 10 misdemeanor possession counts, but did not announce the verdict.

In addition to the possession charges, Barry faces three felony counts of perjury and a single misdemeanor count of conspiracy to possess cocaine.

He could be sentenced to 26 years in prison and fined $1.85 million if convicted of all counts.

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (AUG. 10) UPI - The 12 nations of the European Community rejected Friday the Iraqi annexation of Kuwait and defied Iraqi orders to close their embassies in Kuwait City.

The EC foreign ministers said in joint statement Iraq had no right to take the powers of government in the oil-rich emirate and that they were determined to maintain their diplomatic missions to protect hundreds of Europeans trapped there by the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion.

After a crisis meeting in Brussels, the ministers declared their readiness to take further action to protect their vital interests in the Gulf.

''We reject the announced annexation of Kuwait, which is contrary to international law and therefore null and void. The same applies to the announced removal of diplomatic missions from Kuwait and to the attempt by the Iraqi authorities to exert powers of government within the territory of Kuwait,'' the communique said.

''The community and its member states, having in mind the vital European interests in the stability, territorial integrity and sovereignty of the states in the area, are ready to take further initiatives in the framework of the United Nations Charter that may prove necessary to contain the conflict,'' it said.

The ministers said they feared closure of the Kuwait City embassies might jeopardize the safety of the foreigners in Iraq and Kuwait, including about 8,500 Europeans and Americans.

There are about 300 West Germans in Kuwait and 600 in Iraq. The Irish believe they have 300 nationals in Iraq and 50 in Kuwait. Another 600 French and 3,000 Britons are believed trapped in both countries. About 455 Italians are similarly placed.

There are also about 3,500 Americans in the two countries, according to the State Department.

Japan earlier refused to move its embassy from Kuwait City to Baghdad.

The statement said the ministers hoped ''the summit of Arab heads of state and government convened Friday in Cairo may take concrete measures to defuse tensions and restore international legality'' after Iraq's invasion of neighboring Kuwait.

The ministers agreed that it is necessary to avoid an anti-Arab crusade in Europe and underlined the importance of an intensified Euro-Arab dialogue.

''We have to take into account three factors here - Arab nationalism, the difficult economic and social situation and fundamentalism,'' Italian Foreign Minister Gianni de Michelis reportedly told the ministers.

Belgian Foreign Minister Mark Eyskens said that one Arab country - Iraq - had turned on the whole Arab world.

''The European Community stands firmly behind all Arab nations which stand up against this aggressor,'' he declared.

European Commission President Jacques Delors indicated that a new diplomatic initiative by the EC's Council of Ministers might be in the works.

The ministers were said to have discussed the ''difficult'' position of Jordan, which has edged closer to Iraq in recent months and now finds itself embarrassed by the Iraqi invasion.

The Belgians tabled a proposal to set up a meeting of the Western European Union, or WEU, a post-war alliance of the west European powers that predates NATO.

During the Iran-Iraq war three years ago, the WEU sent a small flotilla of ships to the Persian Gulf to keep the sealanes free of Iranian mines.

Eyskens said a meeting of WEU members Italy, West Germany, France, Britain and the Benelux countries would be useful. But like his Dutch counterpart, he declined to comment on the possibility of collective military action.

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 10) UPI - A federal appeals court has ruled that the Philadelphia School District was right to bar a Muslim teacher from wearing religious attire to school.

The Third U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling upholds an 1895 Pennsylvania law that bans teachers from wearing any religious clothing while on the job.

''We ... accept that the commonwealth regards the wearing of religious attire by teachers while teaching as a significant threat to the maintenance of religious neutrality in the public school system,'' Judge Walter K. Stapleton wrote for the panel.

U.S. District Judge Harold Ackerman, another member of the appeals panel, wrote that ''forbidding one to teach in public schools while clothed in religious raiment keeps public schools swathed in constitutional neutrality - their proper philosophical attire.''

The case involved Alma Delores Reardon, a Muslim who adheres to the conviction that Muslim women should cover their entire bodies, except for their faces and hands, while in public.

Reardon, a substitute teacher in the city district, filed discrimination charges after several principals in 1984 told her she could not teach while wearing a long, loose dress and Islamic head scarf.

The case ended up in federal court and U.S. District Judge James McGirr Kelly issued an injunction against the law and ordered the school district to pay more than $5,000 back pay to Reardon.

The appeals decision reverses that verdict.

Reardon, who was reinstated following the lower court ruling, has since resigned for personal reasons.

UNITED NATIONS (AUG. 10) UPI - The U.N. Security Council's worldwide economic and military embargo on Iraq is as stringent as the set of measures tried unsuccessfully against the former British colony of Rhodesia 33 years ago.

Diplomats said sanctions against Iraq may have ''gaps,'' meaning that the measures leave room for interpretations as to how to implement them.

The sanctions against Rhodesia, now called Zimbabwe, were purely economic measures and they specified a ban on tourism, use of its commercial airlines and travel. In addition to the economic embargo, the Security Council also banned arms sales to Iraq, whose military threat looms large over the Persian Gulf.

The embargo to punish Iraq for its invasion of tiny but immensely rich Kuwait Aug. 2 did not call, however, for severing of diplomatic ties or preventing travel by bearers of Iraqi passports.

The action against Rhodesia was adopted in 1967 after the white-minority government there headed by Prime Minister Ian Smith rejected plans for independence and already had seceded from Britain two years earlier.

Smith finally gave up power in 1978 under internal pressure from blacks, a deadly guerrilla war and the withdrawal of South African military aid.

Rhodesia became independent in 1979 and the new black government changed its name to Zimbabwe.

But for 11 years, the Smith government, which ruled mostly the southern part of the country, defied U.N.-led sanctions and survived thanks to the help from South Africa and a host of countries that circumvented international trade law and continued to deal with the regime.

The sanctions against Smith were similar to those imposed on Iraq five days after the better-armed troops of President Saddam Hussein swallowed Kuwait in a matter of 48 hours - to the extent the council considered actions by the two governments a threat to peace and security.

In both cases, the Security Council banned imports of commodities and products from their countries. It ordered states to prevent their nationals from dealing with the condemned governments in commerce, trade or industrial business. Funds, financial loans and economic resources should be cut off.

But in the case of Rhodesia in 1968, the Security Council met to review compliance with the measures and acknowledged that ''they have failed to prevent trade with the illegal regime in southern Rhodesia.''

The Security Council issued four more resolutions from 1968 to 1970 in the face of sluggish compliance with the sanctions, each time calling for strict adherence and specifying more measures to encompass the entire economic activities of Rhodesia.

In 1969, the British governor of Rhodesia, Sir Humphrey Gibbs, reported to his government more than 50 cases of suspected sanction breaking.

A U.N. General Assembly report in 1972 said the Soviet representative complained that the United States, Portugal and South Africa broke the sanctions against Rhodesia.

The United States in 1972 was accused of continuing to import strategic commodities from Rhodesia, particularly chrome.

The General Assembly said in 1972 that the levels of exports of commodities from Rhodesia from 1968 to 1971, the beginning years of the sanctions, were as high as the level of 1965, or the year before before the sanctions.

The assembly cited one case in which 25,000 tons of Rhodesian chrome was loaded on an Argentine ship at a Mozambique port with its destination the United States.

The U.S. and British governments have consistently opposed economic sanctions against South Africa to force changes in Pretoria's apartheid system because they believed that the majority black South Africans will be hurt.

The Security Council imposed a military embargo on Pretoria in 1977 and wanted the isolate that country economically, but each time it encountered a veto.

(AUG. 10) UPI - Egyptian President Mubarak opened an emergency Arab summit today in Cairo with a call for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait. Envoys of Iraq attended the meeting... as well as the deposed Emir of Kuwait. Mubarak is pressing for an all-Arab peace-keeping force that would deploy along the Saudi-Kuwaiti border to allow Iraq to stage a negotiated withdrawal from Kuwait.

Iraq's foreign minister called for an immediate withdrawal of U-S forces from the Persian Gulf region to allow ''the Arabs to discuss their problems freely.'' Mubarak also wants foreign troops out of the area before the situation worsens. His peace plan also includes assurances that the re-instated Kuwaiti government would compensate Iraq for oil Baghdad claims Kuwait stole from a border well.

Tinder-dry conditions in the West are fueling one-thousand wildfires burning out of control in California today... with dozens more blazing in Idaho, Oregon and Utah. Fire officials say six-thousand firefighters are working the California fires, which have consumed more than 75-thousand acres. A series of dry-lightning storms began starting the fires August 3rd.

The Labor Department surprised private analysts this morning by announcing that wholesale prices edged down by one-tenth of one percent in July. Private analysts had predicted an increase of two-tenths percent in the Producer Price Index for last month. They expect a sharp jump in the August data in the wake of the Persian Gulf crisis and higher oil and gasoline prices worldwide.

(AUG. 10) UPI - President Bush travels to his home in Kennebunkport, Maine, this afternoon to begin his annual month-long summer vacation. The White House says Bush likely would return to Washington, D-C, one day next week for an update by key Pentagon and State Department officials on the status of U-S troops in Saudi Arabia. Bush also will receive daily briefings on the Persian Gulf from a bolstered travel staff.

According to psychologist Florence Kaslow, many single women who are 30-plus are career-minded, self-confident and happy with their independence... and far from being desperate to find a man. Kaslow says one reason women had NOT married is that they have high levels of self-confidence.

CHICAGO (AUG. 10) UPI - Grain futures were mixed and soybeans were sharply higher at midmorning Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

A bullish crop report boosted grain prices, although wheat had turned lower within 30 minutes of the opening bell.

The Agriculture Department's corn and soybean estimates in the August crop report were lower than the trade had expected. Additional buying throughout the soybean complex was based on reports of higher prices for soybeans and soybean meal on European markets.

Soybeans had underlying support from a decrease in ending stocks for new-crop beans.

Corn was higher on spillover from soybeans and a lower production estimate along with continued cool weather across the Corn Belt.

Wheat opened higher on follow-through buying, then turned lower in active trading. Commercials were featured sellers of wheat.

Overnight country movement was light and basis levels were steady.

The midmorning prices:

Corn Sep 2.51 3/4 up 1 1/2; Dec 2.48 1/4 up 2 1/2; Mar 2.56 1/2 up 2.

Soybeans Aug 6.08 1/2 up 10 1/4; Sep 6.14 1/4 up 10 1/4; Nov 6.24 1/2 up 11; Jan 6.35 up 12 1/2.

SAVANNAH, GA (AUG. 10) UPI - The remains of Pfc. William Theo Underwood, the victim of a Nazi artillery shell nearly 46 years ago, finally returned home for burial Friday to the relief of his tearful wife and a daughter he never knew.

''I really don't know how to describe it,'' said Underwood's wife, Ernestine, who never remarried. ''I'm glad that he's home and that I will know where he's at.''

Tears filled Ernestine's eyes as she hugged her sobbing daughter, Elaine, 45, as the casket bearing Underwood's remains arrived at Savannah International Airport from Travis Air Force Base in California.

The remains were accompanied by Army Sgt. Steven Hillman, who solemnly saluted as airport workers loaded the flag-draped casket into a hearse waiting to transport the corpse to a Savannah funeral home.

Underwood, a Jeff Davis County native, was 24 years old when he was killed in his first battle Sept. 10, 1944, along a riverbank in France, when an artillery shell collapsed his foxhole. His remains were not found until February 1988, when two French youths with a metal detector uncovered his helmet.

The Army did not positively identify Underwood until this year. Army officials contacted his widow June 6 to tell her that her husband was finally coming home for burial.

A military funeral conducted by a chaplain from Fort Stewart was scheduled Saturday at Sipple's Mortuary with burial to follow in Forest Lawn Cemetery.

Although the Army had officially listed Underwood as missing in action, his widow knew all along that he had been killed. Dale White, a young soldier from Bluefield, W.Va., had seen the foxhole collapse, and had told her of her husband's fate.

But, it was still difficult to let go without a grave to visit, said Mrs. Underwood, who never remarried.

''It was not having an idea of where he was, and not being able to visit his grave. I knew he was in that riverbank somewhere, but that was all,'' she said.

The couple had two daughters, one of whom never knew her father. Mrs. Underwood was pregnant with the couple's second daughter, Elaine, when her husband sailed from New York to France June 6, 1944.

Elaine Underwood, now 45, stood sobbing by her mother's side as the casket bearing her father's body passed by. Mrs. Underwood put her arm around her daughter's neck and hugged her, saying quietly, ''Shh, it's all right, it's all right.''

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - President Bush, praising the personal efforts of Marilyn Quayle to promote early detection of cancer, Friday signed legislation to assist mainly low-income women to screen for breast and cervical cancer.

It was the first public appearance for Vice President Dan Quayle's wife since she underwent a hysterectomy on July 28 after cancer cells were detected in a cervical Pap smear.

At a ceremony in the Roosevelt Room, Bush said the ''tragic'' statistics show that that breast and cervix cancer are detected in 150,000 women each year with 50,000 deaths.

''I want to stress the word tragic because medical experts agree that the early detection, accurate diagnosis and adequate follow-up treatment will significantly reduce these terrible numbers,'' he said.

Bush said there are ''so many sad stories of loss that could have been prevented if more women had been aware that the technology exists'' for early diagnosis.

Last February, Mrs. Quayle and the vice president announced a crusade to push for early detection of breast cancer and last spring they led a 5 kilometer race as part of that campaign.

The president said that Mrs. Quayle had brought ''a wonderful, sincere element to this cause.''

He referred to Mrs. Quayle's ''personal experience'' when her mother, a pediatrician, died of breast cancer, which had not been diagnosed in time.

The bill the president signed provides grants to states to screen women for breast and cervical cancer, using mammograms, Pap smears and physical examination.

Funds will be provided for appropriate referrals for medical treatment, dissemination of information for the prevention and control of such types of cancer and to improve the training of skilled health professionals.

The states would match $1 for each $3 in federal funds.

Vice President Dan Quayle, first lady Barbara Bush, Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan and Dr. Samuel Broder, director of the National Cancer Institute, joined the president in the signing ceremony.

(AUG. 10) UPI - President Bush today officially notified Congress that he does NOT believe U-S forces will engage in imminent hostilities in the Persian Gulf. Bush made the comments in letters to House Speaker Thomas Foley and Senate President Robert Byrd. The letters also said that U-S forces will remain in the Persian Gulf region as long as they are required to maintain the security of Saudi Arabia.

Arab leaders meeting in Cairo apparently are NO closer to agreeing on ways to end the potentially disasterous Middle East showdown than they were going into today's emergency session. Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak opened the talks repeating his call for Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait and warning about the dangers of a divided Arab community. But Iraq's foreign minister turned the tables by saying that Iraq is NOT the threat... and that U-S led multi-national forces should get out of Saudi Arabia.

The Iraq News Agency says President Saddam Hussein will speak shortly on Iraqi radio and television. Saddam did NOT go to Cairo for the Arab League meeting, but he did send a delegation.

There's some good news and some bad news for consumers. The good news is that Labor Department figures show wholesale prices dipped by one-tenth of a percent in July as energy costs declined for the sixth consecutive month. The bad news is that it is NOT going to last. Private analysts say soaring gasoline prices triggered by the Middle East crisis guarantee a higher cost of living in the months ahead.

(AUG. 10) UPI - Led by a gasoline increase of more than 2 cents a gallon, oil prices moved upward in early trading Friday as skeptical world markets watched nervously for a resolution of the Mideast crisis at the Arab summit.

"Right now, the market is on pins and needles," said Kirk Kinnear of Salomon Brothers' Greenwich, Conn.-based Phibro division. "The market is nervous." He said prices began to move upward as traders watched a spokesman for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein called on Arabs to unite in a holy war against foreign intervention in the Persian Gulf.

Saddam's call came as U.S. troops were flying into Saudi Arabia to protect the world's largest oil exporter from invasion by Iraqi forces in occupied Kuwait. "The behavior of the market suggests to me that it's going higher," said Michael McDermott of Paine Webber Inc. in New York. McDermott said the crude market had been "resting, waiting for news," while petroleum products, particularly gasoline, were leading the way upward.

The world embargo on exports from Iraq and Kuwait after the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of its oil-rich Persian Gulf neighbor may be tightening world gasoline markets first, McDermott said. Kuwait alone has a huge refinery with a capacity of about 500,000 barrels a day, he said.

While the United States, with its limited refinery capacity, doesn't import much gasoline directly from Kuwait, it depends on imports from other nations to satisfy higher demand during the summer driving season.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, unleaded gasoline for September delivery was up 2.18 cents by midday to 78.60 cents a gallon, while home heating oil was gaining 1.73 cents to 71.50 cents a gallon.

The benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude was trading at $26.10 a barrel at midday, 43 cents higher than Thursday's close. McDermott said he saw Merc crude resistance levels at $26.60 and $27.50 a barrel.

On the European cash markets, Dubai light, the key Mideast crude produced by the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and shipped mainly to the Far East, was up 33 cents to $22.13 a barrel.

It was unchanged Thursday after falling $3.95 a barrel Wednesday on reports that Saudi Arabia had agreed to raise its daily output by two million barrels to help make up for the 4.6 million to five million barrels lost by the world embargo placed on Iraqi and Kuwaiti exports.

Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent crude was up 35 cents to $25.10 a barrel in early trading. It also was unchanged Thursday after losing $3.65 a barrel Wednesday.

A statement by Saddam was unlikely to calm world oil markets, as he called on all Arabs to united against foreign intervention: "This is your day to rise up."

"We call for a holy war," a spokesman for the Iraqi president said in a defiant statement that coincided with an emergency Arab summit in Cairo, where moderate Arab leaders were struggling to avert widespread war and Western intervention. The statement was monitored and translated by CNN News.

"Fellow Arabs and Moslems, wherever you are, this is your day," said the spokesman for the Iraqi strongman. "This is your day to protect Mecca," the spokesman said in an appeal to fellow Moslems in Saudi Arabia, where U.S. military forces are taking up defensive positions at the request of the Saudi leadership.

In an apparent appeal to Egypt, where an Arab League emergency summit is underway, Saddam's representative called on fellow Arabs to "stop foreign fleets from passing through the Suez Canal."

Meanwhile, a spokesman for Japan's largest oil developer, Saudi Arabia Oil Co., said the company's non-essential workers and all dependents have left Saudi Arabia, with a core group of about 100 worders staying on.

HARPSWELL, Maine (AUG. 10) UPI - Local inns closed for the season early and tourists cut short their vacations because of a huge fish kill that has left as many as a million dead menhaden rotting in Quahog Bay and elsewhere along the Maine coast.

The menhaden, small herring-like fish, were killed last week when huge schools of them swam into the bay and quickly used up all the oxygen in the water.

''It's like the Dead Sea out there. Nothing is alive in that mess,'' said summer resident Marianne Lavine, 81. ''Now when I go outside I run to my car, jump in and close the door as fast as I can.''

She said she planned to leave in a few days for her home in Pennsylvania.

The dead fish first sank to the bottom but within a few days rose to the surface. Some of the fish floated on the surface of the water, others were swept ashore and lined the banks of the bay.

State officials said there is little to do but wait for the fish to decompose. In the meantime, local residents and summer visitors have been trying to cope with the foul stench.

The owners of one bed-and-breakfast on Great Island decided to end their season early. The Harborgate Bed and Breakfast on Dyers Cove Road has already refunded the money of guests planning a late-summer visit.

Marshall Murphy, a spokesman for the state Department of Marine Resources, said the state can do little but wait for the fish to decompose. He said the department has received many complaints about the smell.

''At this point we are continuing to see that natural decomposition is taking place and we are hoping that that will continue to do its work. This is a natural phenomenon and because of that, and the fact that a cleanup would be very expensive and time-consuming, it is best to allow nature to continue decomposing the fish.''

The menhaden are either chased to shore by feeding bluefish or are simply attracted by the warmer coastal waters, state officials said. Similar menhaden kills have happened in Maine's coastal waters in other years, they said.

DEARBORN, MI (AUG. 10) UPI - Lexus, Toyota's Lexus luxury automobile division, said Friday it is well on the way to meeting its goal of selling 60,000 cars this year but will open about 20 fewer dealers than planned because of a shortage of cars from Japan.

During a press briefing on Lexus's first year in business, central area manager James D. Melton said that the division sold more than 34,000 LS 400 and ES 250 sedans through the first seven months of 1990 and that July sales topped both Mercedes-Benz and BMW.

Melton also said that while nearly all of Lexus's 103 stand-alone dealers nationwide are already profitable in the new car business, Lexus will only have about 123 dealers in operation by the end of this year.

''We had set a goal of 140 dealers by year end,'' Melton said. ''But there has been higher than anticipated volume per dealer and a shortage of cars, and we want to keep dealers at the profit level we promised.''

In the central region - where Toyota has been busy adding dealer points to increase market penetration - Lexus has 18 dealers, mostly in the Illinois and Ohio area. There are plans to add several more, including two in the Chicago area and one in Des Moines, Iowa, Melton said.

Lexus, which went into business Sept. 1 after being formally established two years earlier, plans to open a third dealer in Michigan next year in the Farmington Hills area, northwest of Detroit, and is now choosing from about 25 candidates.

Lexus already has dealers in Utica and Grand Rapids.

Melton said there are currently no minority-owned Lexus dealers, mostly because of prohibitively expensive initial investments that range between $3 million and $5 million, plus $1 million cash ''just to open the doors.''

Company spokesman Art Garner said Toyota only has a program to ''identify potential candidates'' and help arrange financing. But he said Toyota does not provide financial support to any dealers.

On other matters, Melton said customer trade-ins on the ES 250 and LS 400 sedans, prices for which start at about $21,000 and $36,000, respectively, have come primarily from European and domestic brands, with the top two nameplates being Mercedes and Cadillac.

European brands have accounted for 45 percent of trade-ins, while domestics account for 35 percent and Asian brands the rest, he said, adding that ''Japanese trade-ins have been much less than expected.''

So far, the average LS 400 buyer is a married, college-educated male about 47 years old, earning over $160,000 a year. About 65 percent of all LS 400 sales are paid in cash.

The less costly ES 250 sedan's buyer is more likely to be a male, although 35 percent of buyers are female. Average buyer age is 44, with an annual household income of $90,000.

While little changed 1991 models are not slated to go on sale until this fall, Melton hinted that prices will rise, saying ''it would not impact sales significantly if we had a price increase.''

Lexus, based in Torrance, Calif., plans to introduce a coupe model priced between the ES 250 and LS 400 by mid-1991. The coupe is expected to compete with models like the Cadillac Eldorado and the Buick Reatta, both made by General Motors Corp. divisions.

LONDON (AUG. 10) UPI - Stock prices closed lower in subdued trading Friday on the London International stock exchange as news from the Middle East overshaowed genuine interest in the marketplace.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which added 7.4 points Thursday, eased 11.1 points to 2,233.8. The narrower top 30 industrial average slipped 9.8 points to 1,743.0.

Volume amounted to a meager 310 million shares compared with 430 million shares changing hands Thursday.

Analysts said large institutional investors do not want to open any new positions ahead of the weekend.

Market watchers said investors, uncertain about how events in the oil-rich Persian Gulf may unfold over the weekend, sold some of their positions.

Among the most widely traded stocks, Imperial Chemical Industries fell 40 cents to $17.

In the oil patch, British Petroleum added 4 cents to $6.,50 and Shell added 5 cents to $8.71.

A downgrading by a major brokerage house depressed the breweries sector. Whitbread fell 20 cents to $7.40 and Allied Lyons lost 31 cents to $8.60.

Among some of the day's other highlights, SmithKline Beecham gained 9 cents to $10 and Royal Insurance gained 9 cents to $7.92.

Elsewhere in Europe, stock prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange closed slightly lower in thin trading.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which gained 31.95 points Thursday slipped 6.29 points to 1,749.34 as traders continued to exercise caution because of the continuing unrest in the Persian Gulf.

(AUG. 10) UPI - Israel is apparently trying to calm fears of a possible Iraqi chemical weapons attack. Israeli officials announced today that Iraq does NOT have missiles with chemical warheads and there is NO immediate need to distribute gas masks to the public. The move follows escalating concerns that Iraq was plotting an attack against Israel.

Arab leaders searching for an internal solution to the new Middle East crisis appear to be running in place. Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak convened the emergency Arab summit in Cairo today by repeating his call for Iraq to get out of Kuwait. But Iraq's foreign minister says it is U-S troops who should get out of the region, allowing- in his words- ''the Arabs to discuss their problems freely.''

President Bush gave the official word to Congress today that although he does NOT expect imminent hostilities in the Persian Gulf, U-S troops will be there for as long as it takes to guarantee protection of Saudi Arabia. Bush made the comments in letters sent to House Speaker Thomas Foley of Washington and Senate President Robert Byrd of West Virginia.

The Labor Department says wholesale prices fell one-tenth of a percent in July as energy costs declined for the sixth consecutive month... but the trend is NOT expected to last. Private analysts say they expect a significant increase in August in the wake of the Iraq crisis and higher gasoline prices nationwide.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AUG. 10) UPI - Secretary of State James Baker called on his NATO allies Friday to curb the ''menacing ambitions'' of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and the European Community declared its readiness to take further action to protect vital interests in Persian Gulf.

EC foreign ministers said after a crisis meeting in a joint statement they are determined to maintain a diplomatic link to help Europeans in the wake of Iraq ordering foreign missions to relocate from Iraqi-occupied Kuwait to Baghdad.

The EC ministers said they feared closure of the Kuwait City embassies might jeopardize foreigners in Iraq and Kuwait, including about 5,000 Europeans and 3,500 Americans.

''The community and its member states, having in mind the vital European interests in the stability, territorial integrity and sovereignty of the States in the area, are ready to take further initiatives in the framework of the U.N. Charter that may prove necessary to contain the conflict.''

President Bush's call for a multinational force to deter further Iraqi aggression met with commitments from Britain, France and Australia.

West Germany announced Friday that five minesweepers would be sent to the eastern Mediterranean although it was unclear whether they would be ordered into the gulf.

The Netherlands, Spain and Belgium indicated they might consider military action too - perhaps joining in a blockade of Iraq.

In Washington, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said contingency planning is under way for a multinational naval blockade of Iraqi oil exports in the Persian Gulf but ''it's not necessary now.''

Speaking to NATO foreign ministers in Brussels later Friday, Baker said the U.S. allies in Western Europe needed a united response to Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of neighboring Kuwait.

''We must act now to blunt Saddam Hussein's menacing ambitions,'' he said.

Baker recalled the 1930s and Adolf Hitler's spread of Nazism.

''All of us share a deep interest born of bitter experience in demonstrating that aggression does not pay,'' he said.

Baker referred to the critical position of Turkey - a NATO ally on Iraq's northern flank and said that the gulf was a vital area of U.S. and western interest .

''We could not allow any hostile power to gain a stranglehold over its energy resources,'' Baker said. ''Turkey, one of our members, is in the frontline of a potential conflict.''

''I know this is a sensitive point for some of you,'' Baker said. ''My suggestion is simple. Members of the alliance should exchange information in NATO about their political and military activities, to facilitate cooperation in whatever channels - bilateral or multilateral - are most useful.''

''We urge each of you to examine how you might help,'' he said.

Iraq, meanwhile, issued a fiery appeal for holy war pitting the Arab and Moslem world against foreign intervention amid an emergency Arab League summit in Cairo.

PASADENA, Calif. (AUG. 10) UPI - NASA's Magellan radar mapping probe pulled into orbit around cloud-shrouded Venus Friday for a historic $551 million mission to find out what turned Earth's sister planet into a hellish inferno.

In what appeared to be a major success for NASA, a solid-fuel rocket motor bolted to the base of the 2,525-pound Magellan was believed to have ignited on computer command at 9:32 a.m. PDT for an 83-second ''burn'' to put the craft into an elliptical orbit around the second planet from the sun.

''Every indication so far is that this burn went absolutely normally,'' said Magellan commentator Steve Wall at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Had the rocket failed to fire, Magellan would have sailed past Venus and into a useless orbit around the sun. But the make-or-break maneuver appeared to be near perfect, giving NASA a much-needed morale boost in the waning days of a launchless summer.

If all goes well, the solar-powered probe will begin firing cloud-piercing radar pulses at Venus around Sept. 1, taking photo-like images of the surface that may help determine what caused Venus, so similar to Earth in many ways, to end up the 900-degree inferno it is today, the victim of a runaway ''greenhouse effect.''

Hurtling through space at 24,600 mph, Magellan sailed over the north pole of Venus at 9:28 a.m. Friday, plunging behind the planet as viewed from Earth and out of radio contact with spacecraft controllers at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena.

The flight planned called for the rocket firing to slow Magellan down by about 6,000 mph to put it into an orbit tilted 85 degrees to the equator with a low point of 170 miles and a high point of about 5,000 miles.

Obeying the laws of motion described by Isaac Newton in 1687, Magellan emerged from behind Venus at 9:53 a.m. and 13 minutes later, at 10:06 a.m. radio signals from the probe, traveling at 186,000 miles per second, covered the 145 million miles to Earth, confirming orbital insertion. The signal arrived just 10 seconds earlier than expected.

''We saw the signal at 17:06:27,'' said a technician, referring to Greenwich Mean Time.

''We copy that,'' another replied. ''Fantastic!''

It was the most critical milestone for Magellan since the probe was launched from the shuttle Atlantis on May 4, 1989. Project manager Tony Spear said his team felt a definite ''pressure to succeed'' because of recent problems with NASA's Hubble Space Telescope and the shuttle program.

But the 4,731-pound rocket, built by Thiokol Corp. of Odgen, Utah, apparently worked as advertised, setting the stage for a long-awaited mission to map the surface of Venus in unprecedented detail.

After about a month of checkout and calibration, science operations will begin.

Magellan, built by Martin Marietta Astronautics Group of Denver, was designed to map at least 90 percent of Venus's surface during its planned 243-day mission, photographing features as small as a football field to revolutionize knowledge about the mysterious planet.

Unlike the spectacular but brief planetary flybys of the Voyager program, Magellan will remain in orbit around Venus indefinitely. Project scientist Stephen Saunders said it will take several weeks for useful data to begin streaming toward Earth, ''but the wait will be worth it.''

''We're going to reveal some absolutely unexpected and fascinating aspects of the geology of Venus and it'll probably direct our thinking into such unexpected directions that we'll think about things on the Earth that we've never thought about,'' he said.

Magellan, named after the 16th-century explorer, will produce more data than any spacecraft ever built.

''Venus is of special interest to the geologist for the contrast it presents with Earth and for the clues it provides concerning Earth's origin and evolution,'' wrote Saunders and Michael Carr in a book titled

''The Geology of the Terrestrial Planets.''

''Both bodies are of similar size, composition and distance from the sun yet they have evolved to remarkably different states; one developed into a prolific haven for life, the other into a sterile inferno. Unfortunately, we are far from understanding why this happened.''

Radar data beamed back to Earth from Magellan will be processed by powerful computers to create photograph-quality images of Venus's surface, showing features as small as 350 feet across, about 10 times better than the best previous data.

The result will be a detailed map of Venus's surface between 67.2 degrees south latitude and the north pole, enough data to fill some 500,000 library books and enough to keep researchers busy for years to come.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - President Bush Friday appointed Dr. Condoleezza Rice, an expert on Soviet affairs, as a special assistant for national security affairs, making her the first black woman to hold the high-ranking White House post.

Rice replaces Dr. Robert Blackwill who has resigned to return to the John F. Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University after serving at the White House on a two-year sabbatical.

Rice has served on the national security council as the principal Soviet specialist since February 1989.

She became senior director for Soviet Affairs last May, and is currently on leave from her post as Associate Professor of Political Science at Stanford University where she was a member of the Center for International Security and Arms Control.

She is the author of the ''Soviet Union and the Czechoslovak Army'' and with Alexander Dallin, ''The Gorbachev Era.''

She recieved an award for excellence in teaching at Stanford and was a national fellow at the conservative think tank, Hoover Institute in 1985-86.

But Rice is probably best known for an incident last June during Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev's visit to San Francisco.

Rice, in San Francisco in her capacity as Bush's senior adviser on Soviet affairs, had been deeply involved in the preparations for the May-June summit in Washington between Bush and Gorbachev.

While waiting at San Francisco airport to say goodbye to Gorbachev and his wife Raisa, Rice was shoved out of the line of dignitaries by a Secret Service agent.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said at the time that Bush was ''very upset about'' the incident and said it should not have happened.

''A Secret Service agent pushed Condi Rice,'' Fitzwater told reporters. ''It's as simple as that. You've all had it happen to you 100 times.''

CHETICAMP, NOVA SCOTIA (AUG. 10) UPI - Hundreds of tourists and fisheries officials Friday tried to rescue about 60 pilot whales who beached themselves, leaving two of the animals dead as they thrashed in the shallow waters.

The whales beached Thursday but were pushed off the beach or dragged back into the water by rescuers, federal fisheries representative Linda Hache said.

Many of the whales, up to 16 feet in length, were bleeding from injuries incurred as they tried to escape from the shallow water.

Fisheries officials Thursday dragged two dead whales off the beach and out to sea and managed to lure some of the whales into following like lemmings Hache said.

''When one goes ashore, the rest follow,'' Hache said.

The whales repeatedly moved out a mile or two from the beach then swam back, Hache said.

The whales gathered again Friday and tourists from a nearby campground and residents were helping federal officials keep them away by crowding about in pleasure boats, Hache said.

Officials were reluctant to take drastic action such as roping the whales and dragging them offshore until it is clear they will not leave by themselves, Hache said.

''There's not much we can do. We're not going to intervene or do something drastic,'' she said.

''They might not die but be stranded and the question is how we get them back into the water.''

The whales travel in small groups called pods and sometimes try to beach themselves - but it is not clear why.

It's believed they may beach themselves when following a sick leader inland or become disoriented when unusual sonic movement in the water interferes with their navigating abilities, Hache said.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 10) UPI - A federal judge Friday ordered authorities to free a Mexican doctor who was abducted from Guadalajara, ruling he cannot be tried in a drug agent's murder case because his arrest was illegal.

U.S. District Judge Edward Rafeedie ordered that gynecologist Humberto Alvarez Machain be returned to Mexico.

Rafeedie, however, postponed the execution of his order for a week to give the U.S. Justice Department time to decide whether to file an appeal.

The doctor was abducted from his Guadalajara office last April by Mexicans apparently at the behest of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration. He was turned over to DEA agents at an El Paso, Texas, airport.

''The U.S., through its paid agents, unilaterally abducted Dr. Machain from his native soil,'' Rafeedie said. ''The record reveals that Mexico vigorously opposed this act.''

Rafeedie noted that Mexico filed a protest against the arrest with the U.S. State Department and said that, because his arrest was not ''consentual'' between the two countries, it violated the extradition treaty.

Rafeedie, however, did not dismiss an indictment against the doctor.

In February 1985, DEA agent Enrique Camarena was interrogated and tortured more than 30 hours before being killed by drug traffickers at a Guadalajara house, apparently in retribution for DEA raids on marijuana fields.

Alvarez Machain, who allegedly worked for drug traffickers, is accused of injecting Camarena with drugs to revive him during the torture.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (AUG. 10) UPI - Police and army reinforcements patrolled mixed-race suburbs near the Indian Ocean city of Port Elizabeth Friday and appeared to have restored order after four days of arson, rioting and looting that left 40 dead and scores wounded, authorities said.

Regional police spokesman Maj. Bill Dennis reported sporadic incidents of arson and looting Friday but said the situation had become ''much calmer'' after a ''large concentration'' of police and army units moved into the area Thursday night.

At least 220 people were arrested on looting and arson charges.

The looting spilled over into the nearby industrial city of Uitenhage Thursday night, and rioters in the mixed-race township of Rosedale set fire to a shopping center, burned a car and a bus and stoned police.

Dennis said at least two people were killed and 11 others injured in the Uitenhage area.

Widespread rioting in five mixed-race, or ''colored'' suburbs in an arc north of politically volatile Port Elizabeth erupted last Monday shortly after a legal protest rally over rental policies ended and police used tear gas to disperse a breakaway group of demonstrators.

But looting and arson and attacks on police quickly engulfed the suburbs, prompting police to declare the unrest had lost its political character and been ''hijacked by criminal elements'' in the area.

It was unclear how many victims had been killed by police but police said an infant shot by a lawman was among at least 40 fatalities. Some rioters were believed shot by store owners who took up arms during the rioting to guard their property.

More than 200 were reported injured.

Officials said the local civic organization, affiliated with the African National Congress, distanced itself from the violence, and ANC officials Thursday held a rally in a bid to halt the arson and looting.

Following the rally, residents helped clear many barricades erected and set ablaze to halt traffic into the area.

Police reinforcements, backed by helicopters and armored personnel carriers, distributed pamphlets Friday and used bull horns to appeal to area residents for a ''return to normality and lawfulness.''

''It may have started as a result of the political protest, but thereafter it was hijacked by these criminal elements,'' Dennis said. ''These gangs have persisted over the years and they have persisted to varying degrees. They are still in the area and it would seem these guys took advantage of the situation.''

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (AUG. 10) UPI - At least eight people were killed in incidents related to the communist insurgency over the past five days in the northern and central Philippines, the military said Friday.

A military report said government troops killed five rebels of the communist New People's Army in a gunbattle Wednesday in Kalinga-Apayao province, 200 miles north of Manila.

The soldiers were on patrol when they encountered about 20 guerrillas and had a 40-minute gunbattle. No casualties were reported on the government side, the report said.

In Negros island, 350 miles southeast of Manila, NPA rebels shot and killed a dean of the Central Visayas Polytechnic College Tuesday as he rode a bicycle on his way home in Guihulngan village, the report said.

Guerrillas also picked up two village officials from their homes Sunday in the Negros village of Gawahon and executed them publicly at the plaza after they were tried by a rebel ''kangaroo'' court, the report said.

The 19,000-member NPA, armed wing of the outlawed Communist Party of the Philippines, has been battling the Manila government for the past 21 years.

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 10) UPI - A national civil rights group said Friday it will investigate two recent shootings of black intruders by Asian store clerks to determine if they fit a pattern of growing ethnic tension.

''We want to take a look at the situations, the circumstances, to see if these things have some commonality,'' said Jim Martin, national legislative director of the Congress of Racial Equality.

''There are perceived problems with Asians and black Americans here in Brooklyn, there are reports of similar problems in Texas and California, and there are problems between black Americans and Cuban-Americans in Miami,'' Martin said in a telephone interview.

CORE's community relations staff plans to visit those communities to look at the problems and see what can be done to ease tensions.

''I am very reluctant to say what recommendations can be made until we look at the situations to see if there is a commonality,'' Martin said. ''We're going in with a blank slate and the facts will fill that slate.''

The group will visit Philadelphia next week to talk to residents and protestors in the neighborhood where the shootings occurred five blocks and eight weeks apart.

''We're going to talk to whoever will speak to us,'' Martin said. ''We're just going to go to the areas, knock on doors and ask questions.''

CORE plans to compile a report on its investigations in all the involved cities by Sept. 1.

In the first Philadelphia incident June 13, the son of a Korean-American shop owner shot and killed a black man after an argument in the Wild Wild West sandwich shop.

The shooting sparked protests after prosecutors determined the shooting was justified because the victim had brandished a box-cutter. Blacks called for the filing of murder charges and have been picketing the shop.

There have been fewer protests from the second incident, which occurred Monday. In that shooting, a Vietnamese-born store owner shot and killed one of two black men who tried to hold up the shop.

The brother of the victim in that shooting was charged as an accomplice in that robbery attempt.

AMMAN, Jordan (AUG. 10) UPI - For many Palestinians, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is the modern day Saladin, the 12th-century Moslem warrior and sultan of Egypt who drove the crusaders out of Jerusalem.

Saddam issued a fiery call Friday for an Arab uprising and urged fellow Arabs and Moslems to unite in a holy war against foreign intervention in the region behind his leadership.

Although the Palestine Liberation Organization remains neutral in the Persian Gulf crisis, Saddam was expected to continue to gain widespread support among the 4 million Palestinians as long as he defies Jerusalem and Washington.

''This is what makes this man popular - he stands against Israel, he stands against the West,'' said Hassim Abu-Yasser, the PLO's spokesman in London.

''We are caught in the middle,'' said Abu-Yasser of the PLO. ''We are trying to be neutral at the moment to have the facility to contact all of the conflicting Arabs to seek a solution.''

But he acknowledged that Palestinians, generally, are pro-Saddam.

A senior PLO official in Amman, Jordan, said Palestinians in Yemen, occupied Kuwait and Iraq are prepared to rebuff any military action against Iraq by U.S. forces now deployed in Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf region.

Palestinian fighters ''are ready for retaliation and we expect them to undertake suicidal operations against the U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia if the Americans move against Iraq,'' said the PLO official, who asked not to be named.

''There are more than 50,000 Palestinian fighters very well armed both in Kuwait and Iraq and they will defend the interests of Iraq.''

The PLO official said the Palestinians' history of friendship with Iraq, dating from 1948 when the Jewish state was established in Israel, formerly Palestine, cannot be denied.

Fawaz Najia of the London-based publication, Middle East Mirror, attributed Saddam's popular following in the Arab world to his hard-line stances against Iran and Israel.

''He is the person who stopped the mullahs of the ayatollah for eight years,'' Najia said, and is viewed a man who will stand up to Israel.

Much of Saddam's support is, indeed, motivated by anti-American and anti-Israeli sentiments.

Commenting on the U.S. military airlift to Saudi Arabia to counter the Iraqi forces that invaded Kuwait, a Palestinian wrote in the Jordan Times, ''We duly appreciate America's keenness to preserve peace and justice everywhere ... except in Palestine, and to establish right and security everwhere ... except in Palestine, and to uphold international principles everywhere ... except in Palestine.''

The outcome of what Saddam is trying to make a holy war is of special concern to Palestinians staging an uprising in the Israeli-occupied territories who depended heavily on financial support from Palestinians working in Kuwait and other Arab countries.

In an interview with the East Jerusalem weekly Al-Fajr, Slah Abdel Jawad, a professor at the Bir Zeit University in the West Bank, said the 400,000 Palestinians under Iraqi occupation in Kuwait will have mixed reactions to Saddam.

''I think they will lose this independence and the cultural and financial wealth in favor of the regime in Iraq. On the other hand, we must remember Kuwait has played a role in supporting many institutions in the occupied territories.''

Suhail al Natour, a scholar and official of the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine in Beirut said while the elite Palestinians in Kuwait would favor the return of ousted royal family, the majority would favor Iraqi rule because it would strengthen their struggle against Israel.

''Palestinian public opinion respects the Iraqi army because of one, good treatment of the Palestinians in Iraq, two, their victory in the Gulf war, and three, Iraqi regime's support of the PLO.''

A Lebanese businessman who owns a large company in Kuwait agreed. ''The majority of Palestinians in Kuwait hailed the Iraqi invasion of the emirate, showering the invading force with rice.''

''I will not be surprised if many Palestinians join the Iraqi People Army.''

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - Soldiers say their chemical weapons suits are so good they'll keep them toasty warm in the winter. In the desert summer warm is not the word for it.

''It's real hot,'' said Army Maj. Joe Padilla, who like everyone going through basic training has practiced in the suits.

''Out there in the summer time, in the heat and humidity, if you find yourself having to do strenuous activity you perspire heavily and your water intake has to increase,'' Padilla said.

Every soldier headed to Saudi Arabia, where troops could be subject to a chemical attack from Iraq, is issued a chemical suit as they get aboard their plane. Their unit travels with a second suit for each soldier. Each suit, once out of its protective package, is effective for up to three weeks, but once put on it cannot be reused and can be worn for about a day.

Each soldier also is issued three auto-injection hypodermics, one with atropine, one with pralidoxime chloride and one with a mixture of each to counter nerve agents. They can be injected safely through the suit.

The suit consists of pants and a coat, black rubber gloves and boots that fit over standard combat boots, a mask that is held to the head by straps, and a hood that covers the head and is held down over the head and shoulders by straps that run under the armpits.

There are different types of masks for the different chores soldiers, sailors and airmen are asked to perform. There is one for the basic infantryman, another that makes it easier to use radios, masks for tank soldiers, for combat vehicle drivers and for pilots.

And if a soldier wears glasses, at basic training he is issued pop-out prescription lenses that will fit his mask.

The mask has a flexible straw on it that can be used for drinking water.

The two-layer suits have an outer layer of a cotton-nylon weave. The inner layer is a foam impregnated with charcoal to filter out dangerous nerve agents or mustard gas before it reaches the skin. The mask itself has a filter to protect the lungs.

''In a hurry, you can put the thing on in a couple of minutes,'' said

Padilla, noting that with the various stages of alert involved soldiers already in the coat, pants, boots and hood on can get the mask and gloves on in 15 seconds.

Iraq has the ability to deliver nerve gas and mustard gas by rocket, air-delivered bomb or by artillery shell. Typically, the agents affect only the immediate area of delivery, unless pushed around by wind, and they become harmless over time.

U.S. analysts believe Iraq will think twice before trying to use chemical agents against U.S. forces because of the massive retaliation Washington could deliver - chemical, nuclear and conventional. But to be on the safe side the forces are taking their chemical gear.

The suit requires some adjustments, such as turning the rifle sideways to aim because a soldier cannot put the stock against his cheek to aim because of the mask, said Padilla.

''It doesn't keep us from doing anything. It doesn't prevent us from performing the mission, but it takes a little longer and you have to concentrate more on what you're doing.''

''It's basically a matter of training. The Army trains the way it's going to fight. We're confident that if we have to don this equipment, we can fight and win wearing it,'' he said.

MIAMI (AUG. 10) UPI - Representatives for Eastern Airlines and the Air Line Pilots Association met in Washington Friday in a last-ditch effort to reach a contract agreement before a midnight strike deadline.

As the deadline neared, Eastern said it expected a strike, if called, to have no impact on its operations.

Union officials conceded that a walkout would lack the crippling impact of last year's strike. However, an ALPA spokesman said a job action could still hurt the struggling airline.

''The impact will come this time from the travel agents and the public, not from the complete shutdown of the airline,'' said ALPA spokesman Lew Baldwin.

''The financial condition of the company is so fragile that any effect on (business) at this time will have a significant impact,'' he said.

About 3,500 Eastern pilots walked off the job on March 4, 1989, in sympathy with co-workers represented by the International Association of Machinists.

The participation of pilots was considered key to the success of the three-union strike, which forced Eastern to seek Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection.

The airline was able to rebuild its operation by filling its cockpits with new hires and union pilots who chose to cross the union picket line.

By the time ALPA called off its strike in November, Eastern said it had all the 1,800 pilots it needed. The company since has recalled 120 pilots.

The lack of ALPA loyalists among the current pilot workforce has led Eastern to label a possible strike as a ''non-event.''

''We are hopeful that an agreement can be reached. If that doesn't happen, that will have no impact at all on our operations,'' Eastern spokeswoman Karen Ceremsak said.

The pilots contract at Eastern became open for amendment in July 1988 and discussions over a new pact have been ongoing since, most recently under the direction of the National Mediation Board.

The board declared an impasse in July, triggering a 30-day cooling off period scheduled to expire at midnight Friday. After midnight, the union will be free to strike Eastern and the company will be free to impose its latest contract offer on working pilots.

However, Ceremsak said Eastern would make no immediate move to change the contract. ''We will assess the situation and consider our options next week,'' she said. ''We want time to study our options and assess the situation.''

Baldwin said Eastern likely chose to postpone a decision on the contract so as not to anger working pilots, who would be affected by any change.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - U.S. officials worked on plans Friday for a multinational blockade in the Persian Gulf, but with Iraqi oil exports apparently bottled up, a White House spokesman said the naval maneuver is ''not necessary now.''

President Bush, who has spent a wearying week-plus confronting the crisis sparked by Iraq's invasion of oil-rich Kuwait, left the White House for a lengthy Maine vacation, but planned to keep in close touch with key aides.

While an impressive naval armada formed in the Persian Gulf region, with warships from Australia joining dozens from the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union, Bush formally notified Congress of his dispatch of U.S. troops to the Saudi Arabia but said involvement in hostilities was not believed ''imminent.''

In a letter to the leaders of the House and Senate meant to comply with the 1973 War Powers act, Bush added, ''Additional U.S. air, naval and ground forces also will be deployed,'' but he did not elaborate.

With several thousand Americans already on the ground and more on the way, defense sources said the total U.S. force in Saudi Arabia could reach 50,000 troops.

The presidential spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, dismissed a call Friday by a spokesman for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein that Arab nations join a ''holy war'' against foreign military forces in Saudi Arabia.

''It was just a rambling attempt to disassociate himself against this obvious aggression that they have taken in the Arab world,'' Fitzwater said.

However, the State Department issued an unusual warning Friday saying the gulf situation may raise the risk of terrorism directed against Americans overseas and Bush remained concern about the fate of hundreds of Americans in Kuwait and Iraq.

The president, sticking to earlier plans, headed to his summer compound in Kennebunkport, Maine, for a 25-day vacation. Aides said he would be able to monitor the situation from there easily.

In the largest military operation of his presidency, Bush ordered U.S. troops into Saudi Arabia on Tuesday for Operation Desert Shield. He said their purpose was to defend the Saudi kingdom from possible Iraqi aggression and to see that oil supplies vital to Western economies are not jeopardized by Saddam's military adventurism.

While saying the withdrawal of the Iraqi invasion force and the restoration of the Kuwaiti government were U.S. goals, Bush did not list those objectives as tasks for U.S. military to accomplish and said the Americans position would be defensive.

High-level planning continued on several fronts to turn up the economic pressure on Saddam, with Fitzwater reporting that key pipelines used to transport Iraqi oil through neighboring Turkey to the Mediterraean had been ''completely shut down.''

In addition, he said oil from a Saudi Arabian pipeline that reaches the Red Sea was ''significantly reduced'' and that tankers were not loading at either location.

That effectively left Iraq with only one outlet for its oil - through the Strait of Hormuz at the mouth of the Persian Gulf, a region that became notorious in the late 1980s during the so-called tanker war that was part of the eight-year Iran-Iraq conflict.

To add muscle to last week's U.N.-ordered embargo against the import or export of oil from Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, Fitzwater said planning also was ''underway for a blockade should a blockade become necessary.''

But, he added such a move was not yet in the works. ''It's not necessary now. At this time we believe the sanctions are being complied with.''

On Thursday, a senior administration official at the White House said work continued with other nations on how best to apply the sanctions.

''I would anticipate that we would take some steps to interfere with the export of petroleum products. ... That's part of enforcing the sanctions '' the official said. ''Now, exactly how it will be done, what the characteristics of it will be, are still being worked out.''

The United States also continued to send troops and warplanes into Saudi Arabia, with departing truck convoys causing traffic jams on Interstate 5 outside the Camp Pendleton Marine base in California.

Bush administration sources said about 4,000 Marines from the 7th Marine Amphibious Brigade at Twentynine Palms, Calif., were beginning to ship out and would be in Saudi Arabia by early next week.

Already in place are 2,300 members of the Division Ready Brigade of the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, N.C., and 48 Air Force F-15 Eagle fighter jets.

The United States has about 34 ships in the region including two aircraft carriers - the USS Eisenhower in the Red Sea, off the west coast of Saudi Arabia where an Iraqi oil pipeline ends - and the USS Independence in the northern Arabian Sea, near the mouth of the Persian Gulf.

As part of that flotilla, nine U.S. warships are inside the Gulf, led by the command ship of the Joint Task Force-Middle East, the USS LaSalle.

A third aircraft carrier battle group, led by the USS Saratoga and including the battleship USS Wisconsin, is en route to the Mediterranean.

Joining the international effort Friday were Canada and Australia, which promised to send three ships each to join the multinational forces gathering in the strategic gulf.

Britain has committed three additional mine-hunting vessels, to join the destroyer HMS York, frigates Jupiter and Battle-Axe, and support vessel Orangeleaf. And France said it would dispatch the aircraft carrier Clemenceau and its accompanying ships.

The Soviet Union, which has said it will only take part in a multinational blockade if it was set up by the U.N. Security Council, has sent a command ship and an anti-submarine vessel.

Fitzwater reported ''no significant change in the situation in Kuwait'' and said that U.S. troop and aircraft movement would continue through the weekend for the stand-off that is expected to be protracted.

In his official notification to Congress, Bush said American forces would remain in the region as long as they are required to maintain the security of Saudi Arabia.

State Department officials also reported that the cat-and-mouse games with Iraq continued over the fate of the estimated 580 Americans trapped in the country. Another 3,000 Americans are in Kuwait.

Fitzwater reported no change in status for the 38 Americans detained in the Hotel Rashid in Baghdad or of a 10-year-old girl who is still believed safe in the U.S. Embassy.

''There's no influence that can be brought from the outside'' to secure their release at this time, said Fitzwater.

Also on Friday, 11 American diplomats and dependents were turned back again at the Iraqi border to Jordan in their second attempt to leave the country, the State Department reported. The U.S. Embassy had been told they would be allowed through, but in a repetition of the earlier contradictory behavior and words of Iraqi officials, they were not.

It was expected the 11 would try again as the United States tests Iraqi intentions.

(AUG. 10) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is calling on Arabs and Moslems to unite in a holy war against Americans and Zionists. A statement read by a Hussein spokesman appealed to Arab countries to join together in ptrotecting in his word- ''Mecca.'' In making the statement, Hussein rejected efforts by Arab leaders meeting in Cairo in hopes of finding a diplomatic solution to the high stakes stalemate.

11 Americans trapped in Iraq tried again to flee to safety today but were turned back at the Iraqi-Jordanian border. The U-S Embassy had been told the 11 diplomatic dependents and personnel would be allowed through after they were turned back in their first attempt yesterday. The State Department estimates that about three-thousand Americans are stuck in Kuwait, while 580 others are trapped in Iraq.

The 12 nations of the European Community say they will NOT follow Iraqi orders by moving their Kuwaiti diplomatic personnel to Iraq. The E-C foreign ministers in an emergency meeting today in Brussels said in a joint statement that Iraq had NO right to take the powers of the Kuwaiti government. They also said they will maintain their Kuwaiti embassies in order to protect hundreds of Europeans trapped in the country during the Iraqi invasion.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - Thousands of U.S. Marines were on the move Friday to ship out to Saudi Arabia, with military truck convoys causing traffic backups on California's Interstate 5 near Camp Pendleton.

Bush administration sources said about 4,000 Marines from the 7th Marine Amphibious Brigade at Twentynine Palms, Calif., were beginning to ship out to Saudi Arabia. They will be joining some 2,300 Army troops already there.

At the same time, the Navy was preparing to send to two large hospital ships to the Persian Gulf region - the USNS Mercy from Oakland, Calif., and the USNS Comfort from Baltimore, each with 1,000 beds and facilities to treat victims of poison gas.

President Bush ordered U.S. forces to go to Saudi Arabia Monday night to help deter a possible Iraqi attack, and troops and warplanes began leaving for the oil kingdom Tuesday morning.

Since then, 2,300 paratroopers of the Army's Division Ready Brigade of the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, N.C., and 48 Air Force F-15 fighter jets have taken up defensive positions in Saudi Arabia, officials said.

The United States has also sent five AWACS early-warning radar planes.

The Pentagon officially has refused to disclose the number of U.S. troops on the ground in Saudi Arabia or to confirm the movement of specific units until the forces are in place or well on the way.

Defense officials who asked not to be identified have said that the size of U.S. forces being sent to Saudi Arabia for ''Operation Desert Shield'' could reach 50,000 ground troops within a few weeks.

Others expected to be sent include members of the Army's 101 Airborne Division from Fort Campbell, Ky., the 24th (Mechanized) Infantry from Fort Stewart, Ga., and the 1st Marine Amphibious Brigade based on Okinawa.

Other aircraft expected to be sent include F-16 fighter-attack jets and tank-killing Apache attack helicopters. Also, there are perhaps eight to 12 B-52 bombers on the remote Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia, within easy striking distance of the Persian Gulf.

At Camp Pendleton, Marine officials declined comment on troop movements. But the California Highway Patrol said that large numbers of trucks entering the base backed up morning commuters on I-5 in northern San Diego County.

As the Marines prepared to ship out, an American living in the Saudi capital of Riyadh said by telephone that despite the buildup of U.S. forces, there was no outward sign of the increased American presence, at least in the city.

''It is not visible at all,'' the American, a retired U.S. military officer, said. ''The average person would be unaware.''

(AUG. 10) UPI - A federal jury in the drug and perjury trial of Washington, D-C, Mayor Marion Barry resumed deliberations today after a juror hospitalized overnight returned to court. Diabetic juror Deborah Noel was examined this morning and released from the hospital, after being treated for fever, stress and depression. The jury has been sequestered since June 18th and has deliberated more than 32 hours during the past seven days.

A New York jury reviewed maps of Central Park in the second day of deliberations in the rape-attempted murder trial of three youths charged with attacking a woman jogger. The jury asked for maps showing areas of the park where prosecutors say the youths were part of a random crime spree that included the attack on the wall street investment banker.

Officials have closed Yosemite National Park as firefighters throughout the West battle raging wildfires that have already charred 200-thousand acres. Fire officials say more than one-thousand separate fires are burning in California alone. About 10-thousand people were essentially trapped in Yosemite overnight when main roads were closed due to fire danger. Forestry officers today began escorting people out of the park.

OTTAWA (AUG. 10) UPI - Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, acknowledging a duty to ensure the integrity of free nations, announced Friday Canada will send a token two naval destroyers and a supply ship to the Persian Gulf.

The ships, with crews totaling 800, were to arrive in the Persian Gulf by mid-September, Mulroney told reporters. They will be placed on active service immediately after their arrival, he added.

Mulroney said the ships, part of Canada's aging fleet of destroyers that are ill-equipped to defend against air attack or sea mines, will ''eventually meet up'' with ships of friendly allies.

He said a decision would be made after their arrival in the Gulf of Canada's precise role in the region.

The West German navy is deploying five minesweepers and two supply ships to the eastern Mediterranean, a government spokesman said Friday in Bonn. It was not certain they would eventually be deployed in the Persian Gulf.

In Canberra, Australia, Prime Minister Bob Hawke said Friday his country will send three naval ships to join a multinational blockade of the Persian Gulf.

Mulroney said the situation in the Gulf was grave and Canada had a duty to play its part in the multinational effort to end Iraqui aggression.

Earlier, Canada suspended trade and economic relations with Iraq.

''By its actions and statements, Iraq has flagrantly violated international law and offended against the most basic values of civilized people everywhere,'' Mulroney said. He said ignoring Iraq's aggression would only encourage further aggression.

''If a clear warning is not sent to Iraq now, it will only be emboldened to find new victims,'' Mulrone said.

The HMCS Athabaskan, the Terra Nova and a supply ship will join ships from the United States, Britain, Australia, Saudi Arabia, and France that are already enroute to the Gulf.

RENO, Nev. (AUG. 10) UPI - The rock band Judas Priest and CBS Records should be required to pay up to $6.2 million for hiding subliminal messages on a record that triggered a suicide pact between two young men, attorneys for the surviving family said Friday.

Attorneys Vivian Lynch and Kenneth McKenna told District Judge Jerry Whitehead in closing arguments the evidence from a four-week trial showed the concealed phrase ''Do it'' was repeated several times on the song, ''Better by You, Better Than Me.''

Ray Belknap, then 18 and James Vance, then 20, shot themselves with a shotgun after listening to hours of the ''Stained Class'' album of Judas Priest, drinking beer and smoking marijuana on Dec. 23, 1985.

The band has denied it ever placed any subliminal messages on the album. The band argued the sounds in question are those of the band members exhaling and of a guitar.

Lynch said she was not required to show the band inserted the hidden messages but only to prove the messages existed.

The messages, she said, created a compulsion that pushed the two young men over the edge.

She called Judas Priest and CBS Records ''masters of deception and distortion.'' She accused CBS of finding the two track master of ''Better By You, Better Than Me'', taking it to a studio in Los Angeles and then erasing the subliminal messages.

Lynch said however the messages were discovered by using computers to slow down the record and isolate the sounds on the record listened to by the young men.

Judge Whitehead asked Lynch if there should be damages if the hidden messages ''just happened and there was no intent of the producers.''

Lynch said there would still be liability, but she told the judge the phrases ''didn't get their accidentally.''

She said medical bills amounted to $437,000 for Vance who lived for three years after the shooting in ''pain and torment.'' Belknap died instantly but Vance lived until November 1988 when he died of complications of the wound and prescription drugs.

She said the damage award should be $4 million to $5 million for the ''irresponsible actions'' of the British heavy metal band and the record company.

The judge has ruled already that the lyrics of the song are protected by the First Amendment of free speech, but he said there could be an award of damages if the hidden messages could be shown to be responsible for the shooting.

Judge Whitehead asked McKenna why the band would include the subliminal messages. McKenna said it was to ''enhance'' the record to give it a different sound and make more money - ''give it a competitive edge.''

McKenna asked for $1.2 million for the family of Belknap.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - The State Department issued a warning Friday which said that the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait may raise the risk of terrorism directed against Americans.

The unusual warning said there was no specific information on any attacks, but the gulf crisis may create a new danger of terrorism ''directed against American interests overseas.''

The department announcement said that U.S. diplomatic posts overseas have been ordered to ''take appropriate security precautions.'' The warning gave no advice on how private Americans should take similar precautions.

The department said it would pass on any specific information to travelers and others when it is received.

The State Department had already issued warnings against travel to Iraq, Kuwait and other areas near the Iraqi border.

MARTINEZ, Calif. (AUG. 10) UPI - A lethal mixture of morphine and cocaine commonly known as a ''speedball'' killed Grateful Dead keyboardist Brent Mydland, a coroner reported Friday.

Cause of death was ''accute cocaine and narcotic intoxication,'' said the report released by Richard Rainey, Contra Costa County coroner.

Mydland, 37, was found dead in his home in the east San Francisco suburb of Lafayette on July 26.

The final autopsy report also noted that there was no sign of foul play and no drugs or paraphernalia were found in Mydland's residence.

However, ''the autopsy revealed a recent puncture mark on the left arm consistent with recent intravenous injection prior to death,'' Rainey said in a prepared statement. A toxicology examination of the body disclosed ''a lethal level of morphine and cocaine,'' a mixture ''commonly referred to as a ''speedball,' Rainey said.

He had no futher comment.

A northern California native, Mydland had played keyboards for the Grateful Dead since 1972. He was the Dead's third keyboardist to die since the popular rock group was formed in 1965. Former member Ron ''Pigpen'' McKernan died of liver disease in 1973, and Keith Godchaux died in a car crash in 1980, one year after leaving the band.

Since the 1980s, Mydland had played an increasingly larger role in the band, writing and performing as lead singer for three songs on the group's latest album, ''Built to Last.''

Before joining the band, Mydland worked closely as a touring and recording partner with guitarist Bob Weir, one of the band's founding members.

Mydland is survived by his wife, Lisa, and his daughters, Jessica and Jennifer.

(AUG. 10) UPI - More than 1,000 wildfires raged on across four Western states Friday, blackening more than 250,000 acres, destroying summer dwellings and wildlife habitats and forcing the closure of California's Yosemite National Park.

The fires, most sparked by lightning and fed by hot, swirling winds, consumed timber, stormed across rangelands and brush left tinder-dry by years of drought.

Fire officials said 1,000 fires were burning in California alone, with dozens more in Idaho, Utah and in Oregon, where 1,000 U.S. Army troops were called in to join a force of 6,500 firefighters attacking a series of blazes in the eastern end of the state.

In California, with 15 major fires burning out of control Friday, officials said the situation remained ''grim,'' with an onslaught of intense thunderstorms and lightning strikes and high temperatures expected to continue through the weekend.

Since Aug. 3, when the first widespread dry lightning storm of the season hit, more than 17,000 strikes have been recorded in California alone.

''The success of our (fire) control efforts will depend on a favorable change in the weather; otherwise the catastrophic fire behavior on the major fires will continue,'' the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection said Friday.

The state's fourth consecutive year of drought, coupled with a serious insect infestation that is killing trees, has ''created unprecedented areas of extreme fire danger'' across California, officials said.

Harley Greiman, an interagency fire official, said that more than two dozen fires burning in Yosemite, a popular 750,000-acre vacation destination, had destroyed some 12,000 acres.

The park was closed Friday, with roads leading into Yosemite shut down at least through Saturday. A park spokeswoman said an estimated 15,000 visitors were in the park when it was closed but they were being escorted to safety.

The largest fire, called the ''A Rock'' fire, burned toward the community of El Portal and consumed about 7,000 acres in its path, destroying at least 28 buildings, including a historical structure and some homes in the Foresta area, a small community between highways 140 and 120.

Nearly 500 firefighters aided by air tankers were battling that blaze and another fire that had consumed some 5,000 acres between highway 140 and 40.

In other parts of the state, some 42,000 acres and several hunting cabins were destroyed in a fire near the Lassen National Forest southeast of the Northern California town of Red Bluff, while a blaze near Kernville in Southern California consumed 19,500 acres.

Back to the north, two smaller fires that consumed about 10,000 acres threatened the town of Ravendale, where officials evacuated the west side of town and residents on the east side were prepared to leave as well.

In Oregon, crews continuing to fight fires burning perilously close to the community of Burns and in other eastern Oregon towns.

But authorities said the army of more than 6,500 firefighters, with 1,000 Army troops en route, was making progress Friday against fires that blackened more than 100,000 acres.

A state of emergency was declared in Oregon's Harney County, where a fire killed horses and cattle and forced the evacuation of some ranchers.

Oregon's largest fire, sparked by lightning, was burning in the Ochoco National Forest, where 70,000 acres were destroyed and three communities threatened.

Evacuation plans remained in place Friday for residents of those areas. Containtment of the blaze was not expected until early next week.

About $5.8 million has been spent just this week fighting Oregon wildfires officials said.

In Utah, crews had contained one wildfire and gained the upper hand on another Thursday, but a third fire Friday was moving toward summer cabins in the Navajo Lake area.

The biggest Utah fire, burning across 5,350 acres on the Uinta-Ouray Indian Reservation, was 80 percent contained Friday.

In southern Idaho, two large range fires that erupted Wednesday had spread to 62,000 acres by Friday.

The largest fire, believed to be man-made, was burning 17 miles north of Gooding, about 100 miles southeast of Boise and had covered 50,000 acres of sagebrush and grassland home to deer, elk and sage grouse.

Fire officials reported that wildfires nationwide have blackened more than 3.1 million acres so far this year, compared to 1.4 million a year ago.

(AUG. 10) UPI - Iraq today defied other Arab efforts to find a diplomatic solution to the Middle East crisis by calling on all Arabs to unite in a holy war against Americans and Zionists. A monitored statement read by a spokesman of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein appealed to Arabs to rise up and- QUOTE- ''protect Mecca.'' The statement coincided with an emergency Arab session in Cairo at which Egyptian President Mubarak repeated his call for Baghdad to withdraw from Kuwait.

The White House says contingency plans are under way for a multi-national naval blockade of Iraqi oil shipments in the Persian Gulf. Administration spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says the plan will be used only if economic sanctions against Iraq doN'T work. U-S, British, Soviet ships already are in the region and French and Australian vessels, as well as West German minesweepers, are on the way.

The 12 nations of the European Community defied orders from Baghdad today by refusing to relocate Kuwaiti diplomatic workers to Iraq. European foreign ministers meeting in Brussels declared today that Iraq has NO legal claim to Kuwait and that European missions in Kuwait will be maintained in order to safeguard European lives. The ministers also expressed hope that the emergency Arab summit in Cairo will produce some ''concrete'' measures to defuse passions.

(AUG. 10) UPI - Gasoline prices nationwide dropped slighty Friday in the first decline since Iraqi tanks rolled into Kuwaiti oilfields while angry protesters marched on Exxon Corp. headquarters and politicians appealed to the industry to roll back on prices.

Although the Auto Club of Missouri said prices appeared to be moderating, Karl Scheffing, who works at a Shell station in the St. Louis suburb of Clayton, said most of his customers ''come in and yell, 'Holy cow!'''

The government, meanwhile, said wholesale prices fell 0.1 percent in July on the sixth consecutive month of lower energy costs, but warned its report was ''based on prices reported as of mid-July, before the outbreak of recent disturbances in the Middle East.''

The American Automobile Association, in its daily survey of gasoline stations, said the average price for self-service, unleaded fuel dipped nationwide 0.3 cent to $1.25 per gallon - the first decline since the Aug. 2 invasion.

The decline follows steps by several oil companies to freeze or cut prices.

The AAA also said there are ''adequate gasoline supplies to meet all current travel needs as well as those over the upcoming Labor Day holiday unless conditions significantly worsen in the Middle East.''

But scores of protesters, some carrying placards that read, ''Stop the Rip Off,'' and ''Hussein is Insane: Don't Make it Worse,'' converged on the midtown Manhattan headquarters of Exxon to protest the rise in oil prices.

''The oil companies should be rolling their prices back,'' said Rich Goldberg, a spokesman for the protesters. ''And it's up to consumers to pressure them to keep costs down.''

In Michigan, Gov. James Blanchard charged: ''There's absolutely no justification for what they've done except for foolish panic or price gouging.''

New York state Consumer Protection Board chief Richard Kessel and other officials personally asked oil companies to cut prices. ''I think it's a hoax. I think it's a rip-off of the consumer and everybody knows it,'' Kessel said.

Indiana Lt. Gov. Frank L. O'Bannon and Rep. Philip Sharp, D-Ind., also held a session with industry representatives in Indianapolis. ''I think the question is, who's doing the gouging?'' Sharp said. ''Saddam Hussein was the first big gouger.''

In Rhode Island, Gov. Edward D. DiPrete set up a consumer hotline to report complaints of price gouging. Angry calls have also been rolling into a Wisconsin state Department of Justice hotline.

''I don't see the price going up too much higher because of the flack the nation has put up against the increases,'' said Dave Stucker of AAA Kentucky.

On the gas line, Rich Cafotte, manager of the Alewife Mobil Station in Cambridge, Mass., said business is off. ''It's like when people first hear smoking is bad for them, they all decide they are going to boycott smoking but it only lasts a short while,'' Cafotte said.

In the nation's capital, Betsy Glick, of AAA Potomac, said one station was charging 11 cents per gallon less than it paid for the gasoline, because it lost two-thirds of its customers when prices shot up.

But John Steele, of the East Coast chain, which operates 42 independent gas stations in Virginia, said his company is losing money because it has no stockpiles, no refineries and relies on spot markets.

''We don't expect anybody to feel sorry for us, but on behalf of our cashiers, our managers, the public needs to know we are not on the winning side of the equation,'' Steele said. ''We buy gas every day just like our customers.''

DETROIT (AUG. 10) UPI - Chrysler Corp. said it plans to delay work on a new rear-drive luxury model to concentrate its resources on its mid-sized, front-drive models due by mid-1992.

Glenn Gardner, Chrysler's general manager of new platform engineering, said during a management briefing in Tarverse City, Mich. Thursday that the larger model, code-named 'LX,' has been moved to the back of its new car program, with three smaller new models to be introduced within the next five years.

Gardner said the mid-sized 'LH' model is the carmaker's top priority. Both company and industry analysts agree it will be as crucial to Chrysler in the 1990s as its famed 'K-car' was in the early 1980s, when the company was near financial collapse.

The LH models, to be built at Chrysler's Bramalea, Ontario plant, were intended to replace the Renault-based Eagle Premier and Dodge Monaco sedans that have not been selling well against cars like Ford Motor Co.'s Taurus and Sable sedans.

Gardner said the LX model, to be derived from the LH patform, "is not critical to the corporation." Apparently the decision to delay its development was made before the Persian Gulf crisis, which has so far resulted in a substantial price increases at the gasoline pump in the last week.

The decision to postpone the LX may also underscore Chrysler's limited ability to handle several new product programs at once, although a company spokesman stressed Chrysler has not scaled back plans to spend $15 billion on new product during the next five years.

Chrysler plans to also introduce a smaller car code-named 'LN' for the 1993-model year, and an as yet unlabeled replacement for its mid-sized Dodge Spirit and Plymouth Acclaim sedans by about 1995.

This fall it will introduce its first redesigned front-drive minivan since the first version bowed in 1984 under the Dodge Caravan and Plymouth Voyager nameplates.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - Prince Bandar bin Sultan, Saudi Arabia's ambassador to the United States, said Friday that Arab nations will be part of a multinational peace force guarding his country against attack from Iraq.

Bandar, a member of the Saudi ruling family, said the ''situation is very serious and it is tragic what happened'' and added if ''anyone is to blame'' for the introduction of foreign troops into the Persian Gulf ''it is the government of Iraq.''

Asked whether other Arab nations will participate in the multinational force forming in his country and in neighboring waters, Bandar said ''there will be Arab participation'' but said he would not disclose the identity of the nations until after the meeting of Arab leaders in Cairo, Egypt.

Bandar, for many years the Saudi representative in the United States, spoke to reporters after meeting with Senate Republican leader Robert Dole.

With U.S. troops and aircraft pouring into Saudi Arabia and ships from several countries massing in the Persian Gulf, Bandar said the military deployments were ''purely a defensive move.''

Bandar said the reason Saudi Arabia ''invited the United States and a multi-national'' force was that ''we don't want any escalation of the conflict and we were faced with a superior power.

''We could not rely on the words of the leader of Iraq,'' Bandar said. ''The Iraqis lied to us and the rest of the Arab world many times.''

''Our independence was threatened,'' Bandar said. ''The balance of forces in the region is such an imbalance that we felt threatened.''

''It is very important for the world to realize that the action of Iraq precipated (creation of the multi-national force),'' Bandar said.

Asked whether Saudi influence in the Arab world would be diminished by turning to the West for help, the ambassador said, ''No, I am not concerned about Saudi influence. Now, what counts for the government is the safety and security of its people.''

''Saddam has made a number of promise and broke all of them,'' he said.

Bandar discounted fears that poor Arabs might take it out on Saudi Arabia, and said his country has been ''willing to help any Arab country in need'' and specifically mentioned that Saudi Arabia has helped Iraq in the past.

After the meeting, Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., said he raised with Bandar the issue of financial help from Saudi Arabia for the U.S. assistance. He said Bandar suggested that the United States might get oil in return but deferred on the question of cash to offset U.S. expenses.

Dole said he, Bandar, Pressler and Sen. Don Riegle, D-Mich., also discussed a scenario involving a shift of hostilities to Israel, but he would not elaborate. Some analysts have suggested that Saddam might deliberately attack Jordan, which shares a border with Israel and that move would provoke an Israeli counterstrike. That, the analysts say, would let Saddam demand an Arab war on Israel that would shift the focus of the Middle East tensions away from his sweep into Kuwait.

Dole also said that Bandar said the Saudi people ''feel more secure (now) than they did 48 hours ago.''

(AUG. 10) UPI - Iraq today called for an Arab ''holy war'' against foreigners. An Iraqi spokesman also called on fellow Arabs to- in his words- ''stop foreign fleets from passing through the Suez Canal.'' In Washington... the State Department issued a warning that the Middle East crisis may raise the risk of terrorism against Americans overseas.

More than five-thousand demonstrators in Amman, Jordan, burned American, Israeli, and British flags today. Analysts say Iraq could try to rally Arab support by confronting Israel through Jordan. The Palestine Liberation Organization claims 50-thousand Palestinian volunteers are in Kuwait and Iraq... ready to fight if U-S forces strike.

The White House says it is planning an international naval blockade of Iraq if necessary. But spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says NO such action is needed now... as long as an embargo of Iraq holds up. Ships from France and Australia are joining U-S, Soviet, and British forces in the Persian Gulf region.

State Department officials say Americans were stopped today trying to leave Iraq for the second time. The U-S Embassy says Iraq had said 11 diplomats and their dependents could leave... but turned them back at the border to Jordan. A State Department spokesman estimates 35-hundred Americans are stuck in Iraq and Kuwait.

NASA officials say they believe the Magellan space probe swung into orbit today around the planet Venus. NEW YORK (AUG. 10) UPI - U.S. dependence on crude oil from Iraq grew significantly in 1990 prior to the embargo on Iraqi imports imposed in the wake of President Saddam Hussein's invasion of Kuwait, government figures showed Friday.

The latest figures from the Energy Department show U.S. imports of Iraqi crude oil for the first five months of 1990 grew 45.6 percent, or 28.3 million barrels, over a year ago to 90.45 million barrels.

Iraq provided 9.85 percent of total U.S. crude-oil imports of 918.06 million barrels during the January-May period, according to figures from the department's Energy Information Administration. In 1989, the Iraq share was 7.56 percent.

Imports provided half of all the oil consumed as U.S. dependence on foreign oil reached a record six-month high.

The United States and other oil-consuming nations imposed an embargo on oil from both Iraq and Kuwait after the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion and occupation of its Persian Gulf neighbor.

Oil from Iran and Libya had previously been embargoed by the United States because of allegedly terrorist actions by the two nations.

''The sanctions are starting to bite,'' said President Bush when asked by reporters about the current embargo during a flight aboard the presidential bount for his Kennebunkport, Maine, vacation retreat.

''Less of it is getting to market but I cannot tell you that it is totally out of the market,'' Bush said.

Combined, Iraq and Kuwait have exported about 4.5 million to 5 million barrels of crude oil worldwide on a daily basis.

Kuwaiti crude exports to the United States also grew dramatically in the first five months of 1990 to 17.698 million barrels from 5.12 million barrels in the same period of 1989, the Energy Department figures showed.

From May through June, U.S. imports of crude oil grew 96.86 million barrels over a year ago to 918.06 million barrels, with imports from Iraq and Kuwait accounting for 42.2 percent - or 40.89 million barrels - of this increase.

Analysts have attributed the rise in U.S. imports of Iraqi crude to the dynamics of the marketplace rather than any U.S. government encouragement.

John Redpath of Energy Security Analysis Inc. in Washington said the Iraqis expanded their daily crude capacity to the current 3.2 million barrels from 2.7 million barrels in November 1988 after the end of the eight-year war with Iran.

He said the Kuwaitis also were aggressively selling crude worldwide prior to the Aug. 2 invasion.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - In the wake of a government investigation, the American Red Cross announced a reorganization Friday of its blood collection system to ensure people who get transfusions are safe from AIDS and other diseases.

The Red Cross, which supplies about half the blood used in U.S. hospitals, announced a new administrative structure that gives the national organization more control over regional chapters.

The group also named a new adminstrator to head up blood collecting programs, announced several other personnel changes and pledged more resources to safeguard the quality of safety procedures and monitoring.

''It's going to make sure we can continue the process of maintaining a safe blood supply,'' said George Moody, the Red Cross chairman, at a news conference.

None of the changes should affect the way people actually donate blood at local centers, which already extensively screen and test donors.

The changes follow an investigation by the Food and Drug Administration that found laxity in blood bank tracking of transfusion-associated AIDS and other diseases.

''We think this will enhance their ability to ensure that the centers operate in a safe and proper manner,'' said FDA spokeswoman Sheryl Baylor. ''We do plan to continue to work with them in order that our blood suppply is safe. But we feel they are moving in the right direction.

The human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV, which causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome is one of several viruses that can be spread by receiving a blood transfusion from an infected person.

The Red Cross has tested donors for the AIDS virus since 1985 and taken other measures to reduce the risk of spreading the AIDS virus through blood transfusions.

But the FDA report found regional Red Cross offices often failed to report cases of AIDS transmission to the headquarters, which itself often failed to report cases to the government as required.

''Yes, we have had some problems with record-keeping and paperwork within the organization,'' Moody said. ''This is in response to that, because we feel desperately the need to keep the confidence of the American public.''

The Red Cross faces a class-action lawsuit filed in July by a man claiming he was infected with the AIDS virus in August 1984 by a transfusion at Suburban Hospital in Bethesda, Md., of blood collected by the Red Cross.

The restructuring calls for the organization's 54 regions to report more directly to the national headquarters in Washington through Dr. Jeffrey McCullough, the director of blood services in St. Paul, Minn., who was named as the new senior vice president for blood services.

The organization also said it planned to ''increase resources'' for ensuring and monitoring blood safety, including doubling the number of employees involved in ''quality and regulatory assessment'' and tripling the number working on ''regulatory affairs.''

Stephen Richards was also named as executive vice president while Gil Tills, a senior vice president, and Lewellys Barker, the former blood services director, have retired.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - President Bush, vowing that economic sanctions against Iraq will be ''tightened up even more,'' laid plans for a multinational blockade Friday and warned Baghdad not to ship oil through the Persian Gulf.

''I'm not prepared to use the word blockade, but I am prepared to say that we will do whatever is necessary to see that the exports from Iraq ... do not go forward,'' Bush declared.

Speaking with reporters on board Air Force One as he headed for a Maine vacation and as warships from many nations steamed toward the gulf, Bush also reported that Iraq now was shipping less oil than it has.

But he sent a clear warning to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein: ''I would advise Iraqi ships not to go out with oil.''

The president, expressing gratification at the round of international condemnation of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, also dismissed an Iraqi call for Arab nations to rally in a ''holy war'' against foreign powers in the gulf and said he was concerned about the safety of Americans still trapped inside the two countries.

He made his remarks as officials continued to craft plans for a multinational blockade, but with Iraqi oil exports apparently bottled up, a White House spokesman had said the naval maneuver did not appear to be ''necessary now.''

Bush, who has spent a wearying week-plus confronting the crisis sparked by Iraq's invasion of the oil-rich emirate, also expressed concern about the difficulty of dealing with Saddam and for possible acts of terrorism that might ensue because of the situation.

''The troubling thing is we're up against a man known for his brutality and irrationality and who has taken a step that is so widely condemned and still not been reversed,'' Bush said.

''I do worry about extremists taking extreme acts.''

While an impressive naval armada formed in the Persian Gulf region, with warships from Australia and Canada soon to join dozens from the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union, Bush earlier notified Congress of his dispatch of U.S. troops to the Saudi Arabia but said involvement in hostilities was not believed ''imminent.''

In a letter to the leaders of the House and Senate meant to comply with the 1973 war powers act, Bush added, ''Additional U.S. air, naval and ground forces also will be deployed,'' but he did not elaborate.

With several thousand Americans already on the ground and more on the way, defense sources said the total U.S. force in Saudi Arabia could reach 50,000 troops.

The president also dismissed as ''a frantic ploy'' a call Friday by a spokesman for Saddam that Arab nations rise against foreign military forces in Saudi Arabia.

''He is so isolated in the world, so much backed into a corner by world opinion which is almost 100 percent against him, that he has to find some mechanism to try to rally support,'' Bush said. ''It won't work. ... Nobody supports him.''

''Maybe, just maybe ... somebody can talk some sense into this man who has been thoroughly censured by the rest of the world,'' he added.

But Bush also sounded a note of concern for Americans and said he had urged the State Department to issue an unusual warning saying the gulf situation may raise the risk of terrorism directed against Americans overseas.

''Part of any planning has to be about how to protect citizens,'' he said. ''We're not helpless, no. But as we see with hostage situations - and I don't think this is one - sometimes it's very difficult.''

Though in the midst of the largest military operation of his presidency, he said he would stick to his plans for a 25-day vacation at his summer compound in Kennebunkport, Maine.

BOSTON (AUG. 10) UPI - A man accused of defacing a newly dedicated sculpture of John F. Kennedy in front of the Massachusetts Statehouse pleaded innocent Friday to a charge of malicious destruction of property, officials said.

Christian Driscoll, 21, of Everett, Mass., was ordered to stay away from the Statehouse and the statue of the slain president, Boston Municipal court clerk John Sweeney said. Driscoll also was scheduled to meet with a court psychiatrist, Sweeney said.

The 8-foot bronze statute was sprayed with splotches of white paint across the forehead and mid-section Sunday, and the word ''murderer'' was painted on the base. It has been taken to its foundry in Beacon, N.Y., for a delicate cleansing. The process is expected to last four to six weeks.

Capital Police arrested Driscoll at his home Thursday after receiving several anonymous tips.

Capt. Dennis Sullivan said Driscoll seemed to be the same Marilyn Monroe-obsessed man who telephoned police to claim responsibility for the vandalism shortly after it was discovered.

The caller said he defaced the statue because he felt the late president was responsible for the actress's death. The vandalism took place on the 28th anniversary of Monroe's death.

Driscoll was released on personal recognizance and was scheduled to return to court Sept. 13.

NEW YORK (AUG. 10) UPI - Helmsley-Spear Inc., the commercial real estate business now headed by Leona Helmsley, is closing branches in New Jersey, the lower Manhattan section of New York and Miami, a spokesman said Friday.

Howard Rubenstein, head of the public relations firm representing Helmsley, said functions now carried out in the branch offices will be transferred to the New York headquarters. "The reason for it is the dramatic downturn in the economy and the real estate industry," Rubenstein said.

Rubenstein said he did not know how many jobs would be affected. But a newspaper reported Friday that 60 brokers and secretaries at New Jersey branches in Secaucus, Parsippany and Shrewsbury had been notified of layoffs.

The New York Post said Helmsley told New Jersey workers Thursday through an aide. "We're in shock because she wiped us out without notice," one broker at the firm's Secaucus office told the Post. A secretary in Secaucus said Friday that workers there had not yet been given official notice.

Another Secaucus broker said he suspected Helmsley had done the firings in a state of panic because the division lost $300,000 in 1989, although the unit in other years made profits. Helmsley assumed control of Helmsley-Spear Inc., one of the nation's largest brokerages, after her husband Harry, 81, grew ill.

She faces a federal prison term unless her appeal of a federal tax conviction is successful. She was convicted last year on charges that she deducted personal expenses, including thousands of dollars spent on her Greenwich, Conn. estate, from business income. Harry Helmsley faced similar charges but was too sick to stand trial. Leona Helmsley is also awaiting trial on New York state tax charges. In April, a judge dismissed most of the counts against her.

ANKARA, TURKEY (AUG. 10) UPI - Turkey said Friday it may intervene if Iraq attacks Saudi Arabia, but played down reports that Iraqi forces were massing on the Turkish border.

Foreign Ministry officials said Ankara is not planning to assume a military role in the current Persian Gulf crisis, following the Iraqi invasion and annexation of Kuwait, but may act if Iraqi forces attack Saudi Arabia.

In Brussels, Secretary of State James Baker told NATO foreign ministers that Turkey was in a critical position on Iraq's northern flank.

Earlier, at the end of his visit to Ankara, Baker said any Iraqi attack on Turkey would be considered an attack on a NATO member-state and would draw NATO forces directly into the conflict.

Officials in Ankara said they had no evidence that Iraqi troops were massing on the Turkish border.

Turkey's air force was nevertheless put on what the officials described as an ''advanced state of preparedness,'' or a higher state of alert than that reported two days ago.

For the past two days Turkish jet fighters have carried out air exercises close to the Iraqi border.

Ankara has also boosted its forces around a controversial dam on the Euphrates River in the southeast of the country. The two states are engaged in a bitter dispute over Turkey's decision to build the dam, which reduces the volume of water flowing into Iraq.

Turkey has complied with U.N. Security Council sanctions against Iraq and closed a twin pipeline carrying about 1.5 million tons of Iraqi oil a day through Turkish territory.

Officials in Ankara said some 12,000 Turks were still in Iraq and Kuwait. They included some 8,000 truck drivers and their assistants currently in the two Gulf states with 4,000 trucks.

Several Turkish oil tanker-trucks have crossed back into Turkey over the past two days without oil. Returning truck drivers said large numbers of Iraqi troops were close to the Turkish border.

MOSCOW (AUG. 10) UPI - President Mikhail Gorbachev said Friday he is ''increasingly alarmed'' by the Middle East crisis and appealed to Arab leaders gathered in Cairo to settle the conflict spawned by Iraqi's invasion of Kuwait.

In his first direct comment on the crisis, Gorbachev issued the appeal in a letter to Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, who was hosting an extraordinary session of the 21-nation Arab League.

''I consider it necessary to address you and my other colleagues - leaders of friendly Arab states, attending the emergency summit in Cairo - with this message because developments in the Persian Gulf are taking on an extremely dangerous and increasingly unpredictable character,'' Gorbachev said.

The Soviet Union and the United States condemned the Iraqi aggression in an unprecedented joint statement Aug. 3, a day after the invasion. However the letter by Gorbachev represented the first comments he has made on the issue. He is on his annual August vacation near the Black Sea resort city of Sochi.

''We, as well as apparently our Arab friends, are increasingly alarmed by the situation that is taking shape in the Persian Gulf,'' Gorbachev wrote to Mubarak.

''We believe that the League of Arab States, as an influential regional organization with considerable experience in settling inter-Arab differences, should begin active work to settle the conflict,'' Gorbachev said.

The Soviet Union has sent a command ship and an anti-submarine vessel to the area, but their purpose was unclear. Deputy Foreign Minister Yuri Grimitskikh said Thursday that Moscow would consider joining a multinational force only if it was set up by the U.N. Security Council.

Rear Adm. Alexander Karlin told Krasnaya Zvezda, the official newspaper of the Soviet army, that there was no planned participation of Soviet naval vessels in any blockade of Iraq.

Gorbachev said the Soviets ''are doing everything we can to ... put out the fire in the region,'' but he said a settlement among the Arab countries themselves would be the most preferable solution.

The emergency Arab League session condemned Iraq for invading Kuwait, called for its immediate withdrawal and demanded restoration of Kuwait's conquered emirate. The resolution gave the Arab League's secretariat 15 days to finalize a plan to create a pan-Arab military force on the Saudi-Kuwaiti border.

At the same time, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein urged all Moslems to wage a holy war againt the West and called on Saudis to rebel against their government for allowing U.S. forces to enter the country.

Gorbachev, deferring to the dispatch of U.S. troops to Saudi Arabia to halt any further advance by Iraq, said the Saudi government had requested the deployment.

The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda, however, criticized ''the ostentation of the large-scale military preparations by the White House.''

The Arab world is more concerned about ''intervention by outside forces'' than by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait itself, Pravda said.

President Bush told reporters traveling with him to Maine that preparations were under way for an international naval blockade of Iraqi oil shipments, a more radical step than the economic and trade blockade approved earlier in the week by the U.N. Security Council.

The Soviet Union cut off all arms supplies to Iraq, its No. 1 weapons buyer, hours after the Aug. 2 invasion, but Gorbachev said ''there is nothing anti-Iraq'' in Moscow's critical response to the military action of Baghdad, a close ally for four decades.

''Baghdad's flouting of the world community's demands to withdraw its troops unconditionally from Kuwait is provoking military interference by other countries,'' Krasnaya Zvezda said.

Under the headline ''The thief of Baghdad,'' the Komsomolskaya Pravda newspaper described as a ''tragic fact'' Moscow's past bolstering of ''the most aggressive force in the (Middle East) region - the Iraqi army.'' dangerously.

Gold surged by $10 on the spot market and by more than $11 on the commodities exchange as investors sought a hedge against high political risks. Gold's spot-market price of $396.50 an ounce was the highest in five months.

Gold has appreciated since the Iraq crisis flared, said Alan Posnick, a vice president with MTB Banking Corp. Analysts and investors saw the next 48 to 72 hours as a "time zone of danger" in the Persian Gulf.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein called on Arabs to wage an Islamic holy war on Western forces deployed against him in the region, but he was set back when Arab leaders meeting in Cairo condemned his invasion of Kuwait and considered putting together a peacekeeping force.

Traders said the dollar slipped in sympathy with lower prices on the New York Stock Exchange, where many investors cashed out before the weekend. "We noticed that oil (prices) started to tick up, and the stocks started to get hit really hard," said Terri Reid, assistant vice president and corporate adviser with Harris Trust & Savings Bank in Chicago.

"I get the impression the market's just a little bit weary of all the rumors from the Middle East now," Reid added. "On a Friday, I think everybody's just ready to pack it up for the weekend."

The U.S. currency was at 1.5905 German marks, well down from 1.5955 marks late Thursday, but did considerably better against the Japanese yen, changing hands at 150.40 yen compared with 149.75 Thursday.

Currency vice president Linda McLaughlin said many players "got killed again" by a wave of technical selling of the dollar. "There was nothing said that would cause you to sell dollars at all, but the market did," she said, adding that trading moved on "paranoia, basically."

The currency market ignored the government's report that wholesale prices eased by 0.1 percent in July.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.3385 Swiss francs vs. 1.3395 Thursday; 5.3350 French francs vs. 5.3525; and 1,165 Italian lire vs. 1,166. The British pound moved up to $1.8735 from $1.8680.

In Europe, the dollar closed mostly higher in quiet trading as dealers kept a cautious eye on Mideast military and diplomatic developments.

"Anything could happen over the weekend, so everyone is cautious, not wanting to run long or short, basically," said Geoff Earnshaw, National Westminster Bank's deputy head of strategic dealing in London.

The dollar rose slightly in Frankfurt, to 1.5979 German marks against 1.5930 Thursday. But it slipped in Zurich to 1.3380 Swiss francs from 1.3405.

In London, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's call for an Arab uprising against foreigners in the Gulf pushed the dollar back just before the close. The pound sterling inched higher, to $1.8715 from $1.8710.

The dollar gained in Paris, Brussels and Milan, ending at 5.3675 French francs vs. 5.3435, 32.90 Belgian francs compared with 32.74, and 1,171.15 Italian lire against 1,166.90.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar rose against the yen in quiet trading as players stuck to the sidelines, ending at 149.75 yen against 149.68.

"Nobody wants to buy or sell at this stage," said Eshin Narayama, a Fuji Bank customer dealer. "The Middle East situation came to a sort of standstill, but anything may erupt at any time."

Speculative buying on continued Gulf tensions pushed gold prices through the $390-an-ounce level. In Zurich, gold ended at $392.75 an ounce against $384. In London, gold closed at $391.25 an ounce, up from $385.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $396.50 an ounce, up $10.25 an ounce from $386.25 Thursday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $396.90 an ounce, up $11.10 from $385.80.

Silver followed gold up to close in Zurich at $4.95 an ounce against $4.85. In London silver ended at $4.95 an ounce compared with $4.87.

Republic closed cash silver at $4.985 an ounce, up 11 cents from $4.875. comex silver gained 11.2 cents to end at $4.969 an ounce against $4.857.

CAIRO, Egypt (AUG. 10) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein Friday called on ''Arabs, Moslems and believers in God'' to wage a popular uprising against Western intruders in the Middle East, but Arab leaders meeting in Cairo stiffened their opposition to his invasion of Kuwait. The 21-nation Arab League, in an emergency summit called to try to avert all-out war in the tinderbox Persian Gulf, apparently failed to pursuade Iraq to withdraw its 170,000 troops which overran Kuwait last week.

Prince Bandar bin Sultan, Saudi Arabia's ambassador to the United States, said Friday that Arab nations will be part of a multinational peace force guarding his country against attack from Iraq. Bandar, a member of the Saudi ruling family, said the ''situation is very serious and it is tragic what happened.'' He said if ''anyone is to blame'' for the introduction of foreign troops into the Persian Gulf ''it is the government of Iraq.'' ---

President Bush, vowing that economic sanctions against Iraq will be ''tightened up even more,'' planned Friday for a multinational blockade and warned Baghdad not to ship oil through the Persian Gulf. ''I'm not prepared to use the word blockade, but I am prepared to say that we will do whatever is necessary to see that the exports from Iraq ... do not go forward,'' Bush declared.

U.S. dependence on crude oil from Iraq grew significantly in 1990 before the embargo on Iraqi imports imposed following President Saddam Hussein's invasion of Kuwait, government figures showed Friday. Energy Department figures show U.S. imports of Iraqi crude oil for the first five months of 1990 grew 45.6 percent, or 28.3 million barrels, over a year ago to 90.45 million barrels. Iraq provided 9.85 percent of total U.S. crude-oil imports during the January-May period. In 1989, the Iraq share was 7.56 percent.

More help for the United States for the naval exercise against Iraq. Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney said he will send a token two naval destroyers and a supply ship there. West Germany is deploying five minesweepers and two supply ships to the eastern Mediterranean but it is not certain if they would eventually be deployed in the Persian Gulf. Australian Prime Minister Bob Hawke said he will send three navy ships to the Persian Gulf.

There are still more than 3,500 Americans trapped in Kuwait and Iraq but some do escape, using grit, guile and a little bit of luck. Ten American diplomats and dependents, turned back in an attempt to leave Iraq, will try again Saturday to make their way out of the country, the State Department said.

The State Department warned Friday that the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait may raise the risk of terrorism against Americans. The unusual warning said there was no specific information on any attacks but the gulf crisis may create a new danger of terrorism ''directed against American interests overseas.''

Thousands of Marines were on the move Friday to ship out to Saudi Arabia. The Bush administration said about 4,000 Marines from the 7th Marine Amphibious Brigade at Twentynine Palms, Calif., were shipping out to join 2,300 Army troops already there. At the same time, the Navy was preparing to send to two large hospital ships to the Persian Gulf region, each with 1,000 beds and facilities to treat victims of poison gas.

Gasoline prices nationwide dropped slightly Friday in the first decline since Iraqi tanks rolled into Kuwaiti oilfields while angry protesters marched on Exxon Corp. headquarters and politicians appealed to the industry to roll back on prices.

Carl Lewis reportedly is ready to meet Johnson, who was stripped of his Olympic gold medal in Seoul two years ago, after he was found guilty of using steroids. Christie, who moved up from bronze to silver medalist following Johnson's disqualification, would be a major attraction in a rerun of the sprint. But British track spokesman Tony Ward said, ''I have spoken to Linford on this and while we would welcome the chance to race Ben Johnson in a sanctioned international or grand prix event, we would not take part in any race which meant he could forfeit his career.''

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 10) UPI - Jury selection began Friday in the retrial of actor Todd Bridges, charged with assault with a deadly weapon for allegedly shooting a drug dealer eight times inside a cocaine ''rock'' house.

Jurors at his first trial deadlocked 8-4 in favor of acquitting Bridges, forcing a mistrial last November.

The same jury acquitted Bridges, 24, the star of such television sitcoms as ''Diff'rent Strokes'' and ''Fish,'' of more serious charges of attempted murder and attempted voluntary manslaughter.

The retrial on the assault charge is expected to last several weeks. If convicted, Bridges could be sentenced to up to four years in state prison.

The charge stems from the shooting of convicted Texas drug dealer Kenneth ''Tex'' Clay. Bridges allegedly shot Clay eight times on Feb. 2, 1989 inside a South-Central Los Angeles ''rock'' house, where rock cocaine is sold. The actor said he had consumed large quantities of the drug at the house.

At his first trial, Bridges testified he was so impaired after a four-day cocaine binge that he does not remember shooting Clay, who survived the attack.

Bridges said that after ''Diff'rent Strokes'' went off the air in 1986, his life hit a downward spiral during which he couldn't find work, lost $1.5 million to embezzlers, became suicidal and eventually started ''freebasing'' cocaine every day.

Harvey Duckett, a man who accompanied Bridges to the rock house the day he allegedly shot Clay, previously pleaded no contest to being an accomplice and testified against Bridges at the first trial.

In the aftermath of the first trial, Bridges swore off drugs and said he wanted to become an anti-drug crusader.

In May, however, he and another man, Stephen Mallen, were arrested after police said they spotted the pair sitting in the actor's car in North Hollywood and found 48 grams of cocaine inside.

The District Attorney's Office, however, declined to file charges against Bridges, saying there was insufficient evidence to prove he was in possession of the drugs. Mallen was charged with possessing the cocaine.

Bridges is free on $25,000 bail in the assault case.

NEW YORK (AUG. 10) UPI - A market analyst with Golf Digest magazine Friday filed a lawsuit charging his bosses routinely passed him over for promotions and treated him with hostility because he is black.

The racial discrimination complaint, filed by Frank Harris in U.S. District Court in Manhattan, seeks damages of more than $1 million. It names as defendants Golf Digest and the magazine's parent company, The New York Times Company.

Harris, 33, of West Haven, Conn., said he joined the magazine in 1983 at their Trumble, Conn., offices, and became marketing manager for the company's trade magazine a year later.

His claims his first hint of trouble came in Christmas of 1984, when he objected and returned a company gift of South African Krugerrands.

''I told the company that I could not accept their gift in good conscience in view of the fact that so many people were dying under the apartheid system of government which that country represents,'' he said.

Two years later, Harris said he questioned the company's position on the first national observance of Martin Luther King's birthday, and shortly afterwards, was demoted and given the option of leaving the company with severance pay or going to work in the publication's Manhattan offices, a four-hour round-trip commute from his home.

Harris said he was the company's only worker given such an ultimatum, and that over the next five years his employers routinely promoted less experienced and less qualified workers over him, and made other attempts to get him to quit the company.

Harris's attorney, Daniel Alterman, said such complaints first were made in an Equal Employment Opportunity suit filed in February, but that neither Golf Digest nor the Times Company have responded to the charges.

Officials from Golf Digest or the Times Company were not immediately available for comment Friday.

Alterman, who won a $3.1 million discrimination suit on behalf of four black reporters and editors against the New York Daily News in 1987, said that a former manager at the magazine has sworn that management's decisions were ''based primarily on a desire to perpetuate the image of managers as being young, upper middle-class white(s).''

CAIRO, EGYPT (AUG. 10) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein Friday issued a fiery call for a ''holy war'' against Western intruders in the Middle East, but other Arab leaders stiffened their opposition to his invasion of Kuwait and said they would send a peacekeeping force to Saudi Arabia.

The 21-nation Arab League voted at an emergency summit in Cairo to demand Iraq withdraw from Kuwait, to adopt economic sanctions against Baghdad and to station a multinational Arab military force on the tense border between occupied Kuwait and Saudi Arabia.

The vote, which demonstrated the split between moderate Arab nations and radicals backing Saddam, came after Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak failed to engineer an Arab peace formula acceptable to both Iraq and the West.

A senior State Department official said the U.S. government welcomed the decision and said ''it shows world solidarity against Iraqi aggression.''

The United States and other Western nations continued beefing up their military presence in the tinder-box Gulf region and appeared to be preparing for a blockade of Iraq.

The Arab League after a a four-hour closed-door session said it would complete its plans to create a pan-Arab peacekeeping force within 15 days.

It was not immediately clear which nations would participate, but almost certain to lead the way was Egypt, which introduced the idea of an Arab force rather than join the U.S. military contingents already deployed in Saudi Arabia.

Voting in favor of the declaration were Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Syria Lebanon, Qatar, Bahrain, Morocco, Somalia, Djibouti and the United Arab Emirates.

Iraq, Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization opposed the motion, Algeria and Yemen abstained, and Jordan, Sudan and Mauritania expressed reservations. Tunisia did not attend the meeting.

Initially, Egypt had proposed the Arab force to be a buffer on the Saudi-Kuwaiti border and to oversee a negotiated withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

However, analysts said Iraq's determination to keep its troops in Kuwait would mean the force's main duty would be to protect Saudi Arabia and the Gulf states from invasion.

''The logistics are unclear and it seems a rushed solution,'' said one analyst. ''Its full of holes. I can't really see Saudi Arabia or any Gulf state allowing something like the Libyan or Syrian army into their territory.''

Saddam, who sent two advisers to the summit to reiterate his refusal to withdraw from Kuwait, called for the Saudi people to rise up against the rule of King Fahd because he had allowed U.S. troops to depoly on Saudi Soil.

''We call for a holy war,'' Saddam in a statement read by a spokesman on Iraqi television as the summit was taking place.

''Arabs and Moslems and believers in God, wherever you are. It is your day to rise up to defend Mecca, now the captive of the spears of the Americans and the Zionists,'' he said, referring to the U.S. military presence in Saudi Arabia, which contains the Moslem holy place at Mecca.

As was expected, the Arab League declared support for the U.N.-sanctioned embargo against Iraq, meaning Arab trade sanctions should commence.

It also supported ''the measures'' taken by Saudi Arabia and other Persian Gulf states to defend themselves, an apparent endorsement of Riyadh's decision to allow U.S. ground, air and naval forces to assist in its defense.

Kuwait's toppled emir, Shiekh Jaber al Ahman al Sabah, attended the summit's opening, but a near four-hour delay before the closed-door session began indicated Iraq was keeping up a threat to withdraw if the ousted ruler participated. The emir left and flew out of Cairo, apparently back to Saudi Arabia.

There was no reaction from the Arab League to the fiery call by Saddam, who also incited Arabs and Moslems to a block the Suez Canal against foreign intervention.

''It is your day to rise quickly to defend the prophet Mohammed, who carried the blessed message to this blessed land so it would remain holy '' the Iraqi leader said in his statement.

Saddam called on Egypt to deny foreign access to its air space and the Suez Canal so that ''history does not write about you what is not worthy of Egypt.''

The Iraqi strongman played to rising anti-American sentiments, especially in Jordan, urging Arabs to unite against foreign involvement in the Persian Gulf crisis.

Despite U.S. contentions the American forces were in Saudi Arabia and the gulf for ''wholly defensive'' purposes, Saddam hinted the U.S. troops were ready to strike Iraq.

''Burn the soil under the feet of the aggressors and invaders who want harm for your familes in Iraq,'' he said. ''Hit their interests, wherever they are, and rescue holy Mecca and rescue the grave of the prophet.''

In his opening speech at the Arab League summit, Mubarak spoke of Gulf states' fears for their security because of Iraq's invasion and reassured them the Arab League was ''standing with them firmly.''

''There is no solution to the crisis and no coming out of the dispute except with the retreat and the withdrawal of the Iraqi troops from Kuwait

'' Mubarak said.

Deteriorating conditions in Kuwait were reported by a Western diplomat in Cairo who said his embassy in the occupied emirate reported Iraqi troops frequently opened fire at protesters calling for the return of the emir.

The diplomat also said mass absenteeism had brought the economy to a halt and food shortages had fueled a thriving black market with some profiteers selling bread by the slice.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said there are no plans for the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait to move to Iraq or to close down since the U.S. does not recognize the annexation of that country. Nor, he said, will the other embassies leave Kuwaiti City.

As for the continuing U.S. buildup in the Gulf, he told reporters ''We're prepared for a long stay if that's necessary.''

In other developments Friday:

- The 12-nation European Community defied Iraq by rejecting orders to close foreign missions in Kuwait by Aug. 24, saying the closures might jeopardize the safety of 5,000 Europeans living in Iraq and Kuwait.

- President Bush, vowing that economic sanctions against Iraq will be ''tightened up even more,'' prepared plans for a multinational blockade and warned Baghdad not to ship oil through the Persian Gulf.

- Britain, Canada, Australia and France announced it would reinforce their gulf naval presence. West Germany said it will deploying five minesweepers and two supply ships to the eastern Mediterranean.

- Turkey said it may intervene if Iraq attacks Saudi Arabia, but said it is not planning to assume a military role in the crisis.

- Pro-Iraqi demonstrators in Jordan burned American, Israeli and British flags in an outburst of demonstrations that indicated Saddam had partially succeeded in his call for Arabs to unite against foreign powers.

- A PLO official said more than 50,000 Palestinians are in Kuwait and Iraq armed and ready to fight should American forces strike across the border from Saudi Arabia.

- American diplomats and dependents were turned back again at the sealed Iraqi border to Jordan will try again Saturday to make their way out of the country, the State Department said.

- Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, in his first direct comment on the nine-day crisis, appealed to Arab leaders to settle the conflict spawned by Iraqi's invasion of Kuwait.

- Polish military planes will evacuate about 4,900 Poles from Iraq and Kuwait.

(AUG. 10) UPI - Led by an increase in the price of wholesale gasoline of more than 3 cents a gallon, oil prices surged Friday after Iraqi President Saddam Hussein called on all Arabs to unite in a ''holy war'' against foreign intervention in the Persian Gulf.

U.S. retail gasoline prices at the pump, however, dropped slightly for the first time since the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait as some oil companies froze prices in response to this week's plea from President Bush.

Angry demonstrators nevertheless marched on Exxon Corp.'s corporate headquarters in New York to protest the 18-cent, industry-wide rise in the week following the invasion.

Wholesale futures-contracts prices on the New York Mercantile Exchange rose sharply as traders watched a spokesman for Iraqi President Saddam Hussein in a televised address call on Arabs to unite in a holy war against foreign intervention in the Persian Gulf.

Saddam's call came as U.S. troops were flying into Saudi Arabia to protect the world's largest oil exporter from invasion by Iraqi forces in occupied Kuwait and as Arab leaders were meeting in a Cairo summit to try to find a peaceful settlement of the crisis.

Demonstrators burned American, Israeli and British flags in Amman, Jordan, in support of the Iraqi strongman.

''The market was resting for the last day, and a half and it got some news today. Saddam's trying to make a holy war. That and lack of any progress toward a peaceful settlement took the market higher,'' said Michael McDermott of Paine Webber Inc. in New York.

Traders were scrambling to get out of short positions, previously taken in anticipation of prices going lower, because of fears there might be some outbreak over the weekend, said Kirk Kinnear of Salomon Brothers' Greenwich, Conn.-based Phibro division.

''There might be a war, and no one wants to be short,'' Kinnear said.

On the Merc, unleaded gasoline for September delivery shot up 3.03 cents on the day to 79.45 cents a gallon, while home heating oil gained 2.84 cents to 72.61 cents a gallon.

Unleaded gained 7.27 cents on the week despite a 6.18-cent decline Wednesday,when oil prices plunged after reports that Saudi Arabia would raise its daily oil output 2 million barrels.

The Saudi move was made as part of an effort to help offset the loss of 4.6 million to 5 million barrels from the United Nations embargo of Iraqi and Kuwati oil invoked in the wake of the invasion.

President Bush told reporters during a flight to his Kennebunkport, Maine, vacation retreat: ''The sanctions are starting to bite.''

Because of the apparent effectiveness of the embargo, a White House spokesman said a naval blockade was ''not necessary now,'' although preparations for a multinational effort continued.

The benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude ended the day on the Merc at $26.23 a barrel, 56 cents higher than Thursday's close. The crude ended the week up $1.77 a barrel even though it lost $2.35 a barrel Wednesday.

On the European cash markets, Dubai light, the key Mideast crude produced by the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and shipped mainly to the Far East, was up 65 cents to $22.45 a barrel, $1.85 higher than last Friday despite Wednesday's $3.95-a-barrel plunge.

Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent crude was up 70 cents to $25.45 a barrel, a gain of $2.05 on the week after losing $3.65 a barrel Wednesday.

The world embargo on exports from Iraq and Kuwait may be tightening world gasoline markets before affecting crude markets, McDermott said.

Kuwait alone has a huge refinery with a capacity of about 500,000 barrels a day, he said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - The United States is sending 48 F-16 fighter jets and about 2,300 troops from the 24th Infantry Division with artillery armored vehicles and attack helicopters to Saudi Arabia, Pentagon officials said Friday.

In addition, the Pentagon said the Navy is sending to the Persian Gulf region its two large hospital ships - the USNS Mercy from Oakland, Calif., and the USNS Comfort from Baltimore - each with 1,000 beds and facilities to treat victims of poison gas.

Meanwhile, Bush administration sources said about 4,000 Marines from the 7th Marine Amphibious Brigade at Twentynine Palms, Calif., were beginning preparations to ship out to Saudi Arabia.

U.S. forces currently in Saudi Arabia include about 2,300 U.S. troops of the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, N.C., 48 Air Force F-15 Eagle fighter jets from Langley Air Force Base, Va., and five AWACS early-warning radar planes.

The Pentagon announced late Friday that Air Force F-16 ''Fighting Falcon'' fighters from Shaw Air Force Base, S.C., and C-130 transport aircraft from Pope Air Force Base, N.C., had begun to arrive in Saudi Arabia.

Defense sources said there were two squadrons of F-16s, a total of 48 jets.

''Elements of the 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), Fort Stewart, Ga., are moving by road today to the port of Savannah, where they will begin loading aboard the U.S. Navy fast-sealift ship, USNS Capella, for deployment to Saudi Arabia,'' the Pentagon said in a statement.

Defense sources said a brigade - about 2,300 troops - were being sent along with artillery, armored vehicles and and tank-killing attack helicopters.

When these F-16s and infantrymen arrive, the United States will have nearly 100 fighter jets on the ground in Saudi Arabia - along with another 160 fighter and attack jets on two nearby aircraft carriers - and a total of about 5,000 ground troops, not counting the 4,000 Marines preparing to go.

President Bush ordered U.S. forces to go to Saudi Arabia Monday night to help deter a possible Iraqi attack, and troops and warplanes began leaving for the oil kingdom Tuesday morning.

The Pentagon officially has refused to disclose the number of U.S. troops on the ground in Saudi Arabia or to confirm the movement of specific units until the forces are in place or well on the way.

Defense officials who asked not to be identified have said that the size of U.S. forces being sent to Saudi Arabia for ''Operation Desert Shield'' could reach 50,000 ground troops within a few weeks.

Others expected to be sent include members of the Army's 101 Airborne Division from Fort Campbell, Ky., and the 1st Marine Amphibious Brigade based on Okinawa.

Combat-ready units from Fort Bliss, Texas, trained in desert warfare, may be deployed to the Middle East, spokeswomen for the Army base said Friday.

Spouses and family members of soldiers in the 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment and the 11th Air Defense Artillery Brigade were briefed late Thursday about the possible departures of their spouses at a moment's notice.

Sources at Fort Bliss said five batteries of the 11th Air Defense Artillery Brigade had already received orders to depart from Fort Bliss. The units include batteries trained in the Hawk, Patriot and Stinger missile systems.

At Camp Pendleton, Calif., Marine officials declined comment on troop movements. But the California Highway Patrol said that large numbers of trucks entering the base backed up morning commuters on I-5 in northern San Diego County.

As the Marines prepared to ship out, an American living in the Saudi capital of Riyadh said by telephone that despite the buildup of U.S. forces, there was no outward sign of the increased American presence, at least in the city.

''It is not visible at all,'' the American, a retired U.S. military officer, said. ''The average person would be unaware.''

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - Former President Ronald Reagan says he was ''shocked by the uproar'' over his trip to Japan last year and the $2 million lecture fee he was paid.

In an interview in this weekend's Parade Magazine, Reagan also said he would have liked to run for a third term, which was barred by the 22nd Amendment to the Constitution.

Reagan called the amendment - pushed by the Republicans after Franklin Roosevelt was elected four times - an ''infringement on the democratic right of the people ... to vote for whomever they want and for as many times as they want.''

Reagan told the magazine, ''I was shocked by the uproar over my trip to Japan. The critics didn't wait to find out that things are a little different with that country. I didn't have a fee; it was their offer. But I have to say this: Yes, it sounds a little out of line, even to me, that that much money was offered.''

But Reagan said he ''wasn't cashing in on the presidency,'' and that if he had returned to making movies, he would have commanded some ''healthy fees.''

The 79-year-old Reagan also said he has gained weight in retirement and built up his chest to 45 inches under his daily exercise routine.

Reagan also said that one of the things he missed the most in the White House was going to church, but the Secret Service told him the danger ''wouldn't just be another assassination attempt against me, but I could be responsible for a lot of deaths from a terrorist bomb.

''I just ... gave up going to church. But now I'm going to church again.''

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AUG. 10) UPI - New Jersey gaming enforcement officials Friday gave a lukewarm endorsement to a restructuring plan submitted by Resorts International Inc., but expressed doubts that the bankrupt casino could make the plan work.

''We have no objections to the plan, but we're cautious about the company's ability to meet its debt payments,'' said Anthony J. Parrillo, director of the state Division of Gaming Enforcement.

The DGE Friday submitted its 130-page recommendation to the state Casino Control Commission, which must decide whether the casino hotel owned by entertainer Merv Griffin can become financially stable. That decision was expected to made next Friday.

Resorts, which has been under Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection since December, is currently awaiting the decision of a federal bankruptcy judge in Camden on the restructuring plan. Judge Rosemary Gambardella was expected to rule on the plan Thursday.

Resorts' bondholders have agreed to a plan that would reduce the company's debt by more than half, from $931 million to $434 million. But the DGE report noted that the key to Resorts' future really hinged on the sale of its casino hotel in the Bahamas. Resorts hopes to get as much as $300 million for its Paradise Island property.

Parrillo said proceeds from the sale of the Bahamas property together with the money Resorts receives in rent from the Showboat casino hotel, which sits on property owned by Resorts, could conceivably pay off the company's entire debt.

The plan also calls for Resorts to sell off millions of dollars in real estate and other assets, sink millions more into upgrading its Atlantic City casino hotel and to revamp its marketing strategy.

Among the assets Resorts has sold or plans to sell are:

- Two helicopters and two airplanes. Resorts sold the aircraft earlier this year for $3 million.

- Chalks International Airline. Resorts said a buyer has agreed to pay $7 million for the airline, which has been losing $1.3 million a year.

- Steeplechase Pier. Severely damaged in a December 1988 fire, Resorts hopes to rebuild the 90,000 square foot ocean pier across from its casino and sell it.

In all, Resorts planned to sell $5 million in assets this year, $10 million next year and $20 million in 1993.

Resorts also has agreed to a series of cost-cutting measures and direct its marketing efforts to low- and middle-class gamblers.

High rollers will no longer be flown in on private jets. The number of managers and casino hosts will be slashed. Resorts is already offering a low-cost buffet dinner to attract low rollers who do not qualify for free drinks and meals at other casinos.

Resorts also will shy away from headline entertainers and feature more revue shows, which the DGE calls ''less extravagant and aimed at the low- to mid-level market.''

Resorts also plans to spend $35 million this year to refurbish the casino hotel. More than $4 million of that is targeted for new slot machines.

The company also hopes to capitalize on Griffin's celebrity status to draw patrons to the casino. Griffin has agreed to sink $26 million of his own money into the casino as part of the restructuring plan.

But the DGE report questions Resorts' ability to carry out its ambitious plan. The report notes that the new measures have so far failed to keep the casino's share of the gambling market from slipping. Resorts' market share dropped from 14.3 percent in 1983 to 8.1 percent in 1989. Through the first five months of this year, it had shrunk to 6.8 percent.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - Iraq will suffer a 40 percent reduction in imports of four key components of food production - wheat, feed grains, rice and soybean meal - under international trade sanctions, the government forecast Friday.

In a pair of reports, the Agriculture Department estimated Iraq was likely to acquire 3.15 million metric tons of wheat, feed grains, rice and soybean meal during the 1990-1991 marketing year. Last month, it was estimated Iraq would buy 5.13 million tons of the goods from suppliers around the world.

''The recent announcement of trade sanctions against Iraq by most of the world's major wheat exporters could result in a sharp decline in shipments to this country which regularly accounts for about 3 percent of the world's wheat trade,'' the department said in a grain ''outlook'' report.

Iraq had been a major customer for U.S. agricultural exports, but the agricultural attache in Baghdad reported last month Iraq was turning to other suppliers because of a U.S. decision to withhold access to export credit guarantees.

In the past 12 months, Iraq bought nearly 2.5 million tons of U.S. wheat, corn, barley and rice.

According to the attache, Iraq was expected to grow 800,000 tons of wheat this year, 1 million tons of barley, 110,000 tons of corn and 260,000 tons of rice. In June, Iraq, which grows only a quarter of the rice it consumes raised its rice procurement price by 60 percent in a step to encourage domestic production.

Iraq was forecast to acquire 1.5 million tons of wheat, down 1.4 million tons from the department's July estimate; 850,000 tons of feed grains, down 350,000 tons; 500,000 tons of rice, down 80,000 tons; and 300,000 tons of soybean meal, down 150,000 tons.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 10) UPI - Here is a synopsis of the 14 counts against Washington Mayor Marion Barry and evidence presented pertaining to the charges, as well as the jury verdicts:

-Count 1 (no verdict), conspiracy to possess cocaine from the fall of 1984 until Jan. 18, 1990. This charge gave the government wide latitude to explore Barry's drug use and personal life.

Ten witnesses testified to using drugs with or supplying drugs to Barry in 20 homes, 15 hotels, four boats and two city government offices. Defense attorney R. Kenneth Mundy said while drugs may have been used by the principal witnesses, no one ever showed Barry headed a conspiracy, adding many of the witnesses involved in the alleged conspiracy did not even know each other.

-Count 2 (no verdict), possession of cocaine in or about November 1987. Restaurateur Hassan Mohammadi said he brought two grams of cocaine to Barry's District Building office Nov. 25, 1987, the day before he, Barry and others went to the Bahamas, where they allegedly used the drugs. Theresa Southerland testified she was one of Barry's lovers and used cocaine with him on the trip.

-Count 3 (acquitted), possession of cocaine on or about Sept. 7, 1988. One of the most contested charges. Drug dealer Lydia Pearson said she handed Barry three bags of crack and a city government employment application at a city office. Mundy contended Barry was not even at the office building on the morning alleged.

-Count 4 (no verdict), possession of cocaine on or about Dec. 16, 1988. The first of seven charges tied to felon Charles Lewis. Lewis testified he and Barry smoked crack cocaine in his Ramada Inn hotel room.

-Count 5 (no verdict), possession of cocaine on or about Dec. 17, 1988.

Lewis said Barry returned to his hotel room, smuggling crack into the room in the cuff of his pants.

-Count 6 (no verdict), possession of cocaine on or about Dec. 19, 1988. Lewis said he and Barry used crack after one of Barry's chauffeurs delivered money to his hotel room. James McWilliams, a city official, said that he saw crack in Lewis's hotel room when Barry was present, saw drugs and paraphernalia in the bathroom as Barry was slumped fully clothed on a toilet, but never saw Barry use the drugs.

-Count 7 (no verdict), possession of cocaine on or about Dec. 22, 1988. Lewis said Barry shared crack with him for a fourth time at the Ramada. On the same day, police began an investigation of Lewis after a hotel maid complained he offered her cocaine for sex.

-Count 8 (no verdict), perjury. In testifying before a federal grand jury Jan. 19, 1989, Barry denied knowledge of Lewis's involvement with drugs. Lewis said he and Barry smoked crack several times; McWilliams said he saw crack in Lewis's Ramada Inn hotel room when Barry was present; and two witnesses from the Virgin Islands said they smoked marijuana with Lewis and Barry on a 1986 boat trip. In Barry's defense, two witnesses said they did not see marijuana use on the boat trip and Mundy probed Lewis and McWilliams for inconsistencies in their testimony.

-Count 9 (no verdict), perjury. Barry denied ever supplying drugs to Lewis. Lewis said Barry gave him money for cocaine in the Virgin Islands, that he brought him crack three times while he was at the Ramada in December 1988, and that a chauffeur of Barry's once brought him money for cocaine.

-Count 10 (no verdict), perjury. Barry denied receiving cocaine from Lewis or receiving cocaine from anyone at the Ramada. Lewis said he supplied Barry with cocaine in the Virgin Islands and he bought crack he shared with Barry at the Ramada.

-Count 11 (no verdict), possession of cocaine on or about Aug. 26, 1989. Darrell Sabbs, a longtime friend of Barry's, said he used cocaine with Barry during a visit in 1989. Sabbs said he was ''confused'' about dates but that he remembered using cocaine with Barry in the Ramada Rennaissance hotel when in town for a high school reunion.

-Count 12 (convicted), possession of cocaine between on or about Nov. 7 and Nov. 10, 1989. Doris Crenshaw, who worked with Barry during the civil rights movement, said she was in Washington in the fall of 1989, but was not sure of the date she used cocaine with Barry at the Mayflower Hotel. Prosecuting attorney Judith Retchin told the jury to ''put the pieces together.''

-Count 13 (no verdict), possession of cocaine on or about Jan. 1, 1990. Bettye Smith said Barry came to her Capitol Hill home sometime between Jan. 1 and Jan. 18 and accepted cocaine from her. Under cross-examination, Smith said it could have been as early as Christmas and that she did not see Barry use the cocaine.

-Count 14, possession of cocaine on Jan. 18, 1990. Barry was videotaped taking two long hits off a crack pipe as former lover Rasheeda Moore paced the floor in the Vista International Hotel room and watched. It is the only possession count for which the government has concrete evidence: the crack he smoked, the pipe he smoked from and drug tests following the sting.

SEATTLE (AUG. 10) UPI - The Boeing Co. Friday announced details of an employee drug-abuse policy that will emphasize rehabilitation and education programs.

Company spokesman Lee Lathrop said Boeing will not implement random drug testing for most of the company's employees, although he said it was considered as an option as the aerospace company's leaders formulated a drug-abuse policy over the past year.

Details of the substance abuse program are still being worked out with the between the company and its various unions, spokesmen said.

However, Lathrop said U.S. Department of Transporation regulations require the company to begin mandatory drug testing for certain job classifications by Dec. 11.

Those jobs include about 3,100 workers in flight operations, mechanics who work on airplanes already delivered to customers, and company drivers traveling on public roads and highways.

Those workers are only a small fraction of the approximately 150,000 employees affected by the new program, Lathrop said. About 10,000 Boeing employees, notably 8,000 in Canada, are not affected by the program because of foreign laws.

Lathrop said the company will reserve the right to test any employee suspected of being under the influence of drugs or alcohol while on the job.

He said employees who voluntarily disclose a drug or alcohol problem or who test positive for drugs will be referred to a program where they can receive counseling, rehabilitation and follow-up care.

Those who voluntarily enter a rehabilitation program but fail a follow-up drug test will be given a second chance for rehabilitation. Those failing further tests may be fired, the company said.

In the earlier stages of designing an abuse-prevention program the company had considered automatic dismissal for employees discovered to have been using drugs on the job.

Boeing said employees caught buying or selling drugs on company property or while on company business will be fired.

The company also said it will continue pre-employment drug screening, which in the past three years has resulted in positive tests on about 5 percent of applicants tested.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (AUG. 10) UPI - Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu said Friday he may nominate both President Frederik de Klerk and black leader Nelson Mandela for the Nobel Peace Prize.

Mandela and De Klerk ''are doing so well that if they keep things up the way they are going, the chances are very good that I would nominate them for the next prize,'' said Tutu, who won the prize in 1984 for his fight against apartheid.

''I believe that (they) will deserve the prize when we get to the point of saying that progress toward a non-racial, democratic form of government is irreversible,'' he said in a statement.

Tutu, as a Nobel laureate himself, has the right to nominate candidates for the prize.

His statement came three days after de Klerk and Mandela agreed to a milestone peace pact between the African National Congress and the government.

The ANC agreed to abandon its 29-year-old armed struggle against white rule in exchange for promises of an extension of the sweeping racial reforms De Klerk launched February.

BIRMINGHAM, AL (AUG. 10) UPI - Wayne Grady, who came within a shot of winning last year's British Open, posted the low round of the tournament

Friday to seize a one-shot lead over Larry Mize and Fred Couples late on the second day of the 72nd PGA Championship.

Grady fired a 5-under 67 over the difficult Shoal Creek Golf Club course, which extracted a high toll from some of the game's giants.

Seve Ballesteros, for instance, shot the highest score he has ever produced in a major championship - an 83 that sent him packing back to Spain.

Nick Faldo struggled to a 75 in his bid to win his third major title of the year and Greg Norman rallied to a 69 Friday that left him seven shots off the pace.

The thick rough and hard greens, meanwhile, proved to be little problem for Grady, who made only one bogey all day to finish his first 36 holes at 5-under 139.

Couples and Mize were at 140 - Mize having birdied three of the last four holes to shoot a 68 - while Tim Simpson was at 4-under with six holes to play.

Billy Mayfair was alone at 3-under after a 71 Friday. Chip Beck was also at 3-under with five holes remaining in his second round. Fuzzy Zoeller, Payne Stewart, Stan Utley and first-round leader Bobby Wadkins were all at 1-under 143.

Wadkins, who opened with a 68, struggled all day Friday and saw his round symbolized when his driver snapped on his backswing at the 17th tee. He shot a 75.

''It's the hardest damn golf course I've ever played,'' said Zoeller after his 1-under 71. ''I don't enjoy golf like this. I think the PGA missed the boat when they set up this golf course.''

Shoal Creek's designer, Jack Nicklaus, also found the going too tough and appeared certain to miss the cut late in his round. Arnold Palmer, with two holes to play, was 9-over for the day - all of those lost shots coming on the back nine.

Faldo and Norman were both at 2-over 146 after their very different rounds. Faldo made only one birdie all day while Norman's round of 69 was highlighted by an eagle at the par-5 third.

Grady began the day at even par, but played the front nine in 4-under 32. He reached the par-5 17th in two and his birdie there gave him the lead. It took a six-foot, par-saving putt at the final hole, however, to keep him there.

''I played well in the practice rounds and I played good yesterday,'' said Grady, who tied Norman and Mark Calcavecchia at last year's British Open before Calcavecchia won in a playoff. ''I think the British Open experience was a plus.

''I felt I held together over the last 36 holes in that tournament and I think I learned that you will hold together in those kinds of situations if you are playing well.''

Mize's only major title to date came at the 1987 Masters when he defeated Ballesteros and Norman in sudden death. After Ballesteros dropped out of the playoff with a bogey, Mize holed a 100-foot pitch shot on the par-4 11th - the second hole of sudden death - to eliminate Norman.

Mize birdied three straight holes beginning with the 15th Friday and then saved par after driving into the long rough at the 18th.

''You can play real well on this course and shoot a 68,'' Mize said, ''and you can play just all right and shoot a 75. Patience is always a key in a tournament, it's more important in a major and it's even more important when the conditions are as tough as they are here.

''Patience was a big part of my game today. Yesterday I could have almost bitten the ball in two because I birdied two of the first three holes and was 2-over after 10.''

Couples shot a 71 despite losing three strokes to par with a bogey at the 11th and double bogey at the 12th.

''I'm having a lot of fun playing this course,'' Couples said. ''A lot of people don't care for the rough on this course, but the rough isn't going anywhere. The best thing to do is stay out of it.

''If the thing to do is hit a 2-iron or 3-iron to keep it in play, that's what I will do.''

NEW YORK (AUG. 10) UPI - Campeau Corp. announced late Friday that the board of directors has not reappointed Robert Campeau as chairman and chief executive officer of the embattled real estate development and retailing company.

No reason for why Campeau was relieved of his duties was disclosed.

In a terse release, the company said the board established an office of the chief executive and appointed director Robert Despres to serve as chairman on an interim basis. James D. Raymond and Gary M. Goodman will jointly occupy the office of chief executive, also on an interim basis, the company said.

The Campeau board has also begun a search to find a permanent chairman and chief executive officer.

The Toronto-based company has been struggling with an extremely heavy debt load since Robert Campeau engineered a handful of costly acquisitions of prestigious U.S. department store chains several years ago.

U.S. retailing subsidiaries Federated Department Stores Inc. and Allied Stores Corp. both filed for Chapter 11 federal bankruptcy protection from creditors earlier this year. Their holding company parent, Federated Stores Inc., subsequently filed for Chapter 11 as well.

NEW YORK (AUG. 10) UPI - The stock market rang up its fourth straight weekly loss this week as the turmoil in the Middle East sent oil prices surging and investors running for cover because of revived inflation fears.

The Dow industrial average plunged 42.33 Friday to close at 2716.58, losing 93.07 points, or 3.3 percent.

Of the broad market indexes, Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 9.34 to end the week at 335.52 and the New York Stock Exchange composite index fell 4.67 to close the week at 184.15.

Declines pounded advances 1,459-501 among the 2,180 issues traded this week. Big Board volume totaled 963,579,960 shares, compared with 1,042,535,030 a week earlier and 1,004,028,870 shares a year ago.

On Monday the index plummeted more than 93 points, its biggest loss since October 1989, the 190-point plunge which has come to be known as the ''mini-crash.'' The loss was also the seventh-biggest in history after a slide of 95.46 on Oct. 14, 1987. The stock market crash came five days later, sending the Dow down 508 points.

The plunge triggered the NYSE ''circuit-breakers'' designed to cushion market declines, among them a new one that went into effect July 31. It requires traders to refrain from using program selling so that the market does not destabilize when the Dow falls 50 points or more.

Trading was very heavy as the market was rocked by escalating tensions in the Mideast and surging oil prices. Crude oil futures for September delivery rose $1.77 on the week despite losing $2.35 Wednesday amid reports that Saudi Arabia was increasing production to make up for the disruption of supplies from Iraq and Kuwait.

At that point Iraqi President Saddam Hussein had told President Bush he would not attack Saudi Arabia and wanted ''normal relations'' with Washington, but he appeared to raise the stakes of war by rounding up 28 Americans and hundreds of other foreigners in occupied Kuwait.

Despite Saddam's assurances, Saudi and U.S. military officials braced for a possible Iraqi attack on the oil rich kingdom and the United Nations imposed harsh economic sanctions aimed at pressuring Saddam to withdraw his troops from Kuwait.

By Tuesday, reports had begun to surface that U.S. troops were headed for the Persian Gulf and when troops began to arrive Wednesday and Thursday, investors seemed to take heart that there was now a ''policeman'' in the conflict, that Saddam would not simply be allowed to have his way with the Arab countries.

Stocks rebounded Wednesday and Thursday, the Dow closing up 24 points each day, but by the time Friday came around, and with the weekend ahead, investors became nervous about how events might unfold and either sold or took to the sidelines, sending prices down sharply but in light trading.

As the week ended, the market heard some tough talk from Iraq, specifically a call by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to the Arab world, to wage a popular uprising against Western intruders in the Middle East. But Arab leaders meeting in Cairo stiffened their opposition to his invasion of Kuwait.

Arab leaders issued a statement calling on Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait and allow restoration of the emir of the oil-rich kingdom, and for the creation of a pan-Arab peacekeeping force to be deployed on the Saudi-Kuwaiti border.

''The Mideast remains the focal point for the market,'' said Alan Ackerman senior vice president at Gruntal & Co. ''There still no clear idea about what will happen there, the U.S. is increasing its military commitment but Iraq shows no signs of backing down. The summit was an attempt at an Arab solution to a complex problem.''

But other analysts, even with the sharp drop Friday, seemed encouraged by how the week progressed.

''I think we panicked early in the week,'' said Don Hays, director of investment strategy at Wheat, First Securities Inc. in Richmond, Va. ''The bottoms of most stocks were made Monday and Tuesday.

''If there's a major catastrophe in the Mideast it could drive us still lower but I think the market is trying to make a stand here,'' he went on. ''Even though we went down 42 Friday, many stocks didn't touch the lows of three days ago.''

Hays noted the surge in gold as the week ended as investors sought a safe haven. Gold futures for August delivery surged more than $11 an ounce Friday to $396.90.

''Even though the situation is still not resolved, we know more than we did when the week began and that has quieted many stocks,'' he said. ''We don't have the same degree of panic we had earlier. And President Bush went on vacation.''

On the trading floor this week, Texaco was the most active issue, off 1 1/2 to 63 1/8 as the rally in oil issues cooled as the week went on.

Alcan Aluminum followed, off 7/8 to 22 1/2. Wal-Mart Stores was third, off 1/2 to 29 7/8 after a lackluster July sales report.

Among the other blue chips, AT&T lost 1 to 35, Philip Morris fell 5/8 to 45 7/8, General Electric tumbled 3 1/8 to 66 5/8, General Motors sank 3 7/8 to 39 1/2, IBM tumbled 4 7/8 to 102, and Exxon was off 1 1/2 to 51 5/8.

On the American Stock Exchange, the Amex Market Value index fell 7.31 to close Friday at 339.32. Declines led advances 614-234 among the 1,010 issues traded.

Amex volume totaled 85,757,990 shares, compared with 80,982,455 traded a week earlier and 82,709,365 traded in the same week a year ago.

Continental Air led the Amex actives, up 1 7/8 to 6 1/2 in the week that saw the resignation of the controversial Frank Lorenzo as chairman and chief executive.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index fell 9.42 to end the week at 408.04.

BOSTON (AUG. 10) UPI - B.F. Skinner, the famed father of behaviorist psychology who is dying of leukemia, presented Friday what is likely to be his last paper, saying the search for a hidden inner self is the ''creationism'' of his profession.

Skinner, 86, whose 1948 book ''Walden Two'' described a Utopian society governed by his theory of ''operant conditioning,'' spoke after receiveing a lifetime contribution citation from the American Psychological Association.

Skinner's paper was delivered as the kick-off event for the four-day convention, a gathering of some 20,000 psychology professionals from around the nation.

The Harvard University professor emeritus has argued over a lifetime that human behavior is a byproduct of the environment, that organisms are capable of little or no ''free will'' but rather react to rewards and punishments.

Skinner's dissertation compared religious creationists to his long-time opponents, the cognitive psychologists, whose search for the inner motive behind behavior he said was a futile search for a non-existent entity.

''I think it's time we realized that the science that will be most helpful to us in the future is not the cognitive searching for the inner mind and self, but rather an understanding of selective consequence,'' the thin, white-haired researcher said.

''In my life, what I've been doing is trying to make that clear,'' Skinner told about 1,000 conventioneers. ''If there is any endeavor that I've been successful in, that is what I'd like to be remembered for.''

The paper, a retrospective on his theories and their future, is expected to be published in a psychology journal.

Conceding his celebrated life is drawing to a end, Skinner nevertheless faces his affliction with the same rationalist spirit that has guided his career.

''It's a very interesting disease I have but as long as I've got enough blood plasma I think I'll be all right,'' Skinner said before the presentation.

''I'm very optimistic for certain kinds of psychology; the kind of behaviorism I practice,'' Skinner said. ''I'm attacking cognitive psychology. That's the usual thing.''

Skinner is best known for his ''Skinner Box,'' which he used to train animals to demonstrate his theories. In one of his best-known experiments, Skinner taught pigeons to play ping-pong.

Skinner's views, although considered groundbreaking in psychology, have been widely criticized as simplistic, likening humans to rats. Some critics charged the philosophy could be abused to try to control society to totalitarian ends.

Although Skinner's work did achieve some applications and spawned the creation of societies modeled on ''Walden,'' his theories have largely been eclipsed by the more emotion-based cognitive approach to psychology.

But Skinner has insisted that understanding behaviorism is the key to world peace and individual contentment.

MOSCOW (AUG. 10) UPI - An explosion on a bus outside the troubled Nagorno-Karabakh region of Azerbaijan killed 17 people Friday and left 15 injured, the official Tass news agency said.

The explosion was the second violent transportion accident in 10 days near Nagorno-Karabakh, a mountainous enclave of Azerbaijan inhabited mainly by Armenians. The two Transcaucasion republics have been fighting over the region for 2 1/2 years.

''At least 17 people were killed and 15 wounded when a bus bound from (the Georgian capital of) Tbilisi to Agdam exploded near the village of Nadel on the Shamkhor-Ganja highway at about 11 a.m. today,'' Tass said. ''The victims included women and children.''

The bus's destination, the town of Agdam, is just outside Nagorno-Karabakh in Azerbaijan.

An Aeroflot Yak-40 plane crashed Aug 1 as it approached Stepanakert, the regional capital of Nagorno-Karabakh, killing all 26 passengers and four crewmembers aboard.

Neither the air crash last week nor the bus explosion Friday had been directly linked to the ethnic clashes over Nagorno-Karabakh, which have left several hundred people dead since they erupted in February 1988.

NEW YORK (AUG. 10) UPI - The Treasury bond market ended what one participant called a ''tumultuous week'' Friday with moderate losses that reflected uncertainty about the outcome of the Persian Gulf crisis and expectations of accelerated inflation stemming from the rise in oil prices.

But a day that began as a rout, with 30-year bond prices dropping by a point, ended in a modest sell-off as Iraq's call for a Moslem holy war was countered by the promise of an Arab League-formed peacekeeping force. Some analysts felt Treasury bonds could rally whenever the crisis eased.

Government trading manager Michael Moore of Continental Bank in Chicago spoke of ''the conclusion of a tumultuous week in the credit markets,'' referring not only to fallout from Iraq's seizure of Kuwait, but also to the U.S. Treasury's $32 billion auction held in ''a volatile atmosphere.''

Even in normal times, Moore said, the end-of-week sell-off could be expected as dealers took profits and lightened portfolios after the round of auctions of 30-, 10- and three-year government securities.

But on top of that, ''The market continues to focus on the possibility of open conflict in the Mideast and the impact that would have,'' he said.

Outright warfare in the Middle East would almost surely drive oil prices even higher and exacerbate U.S. inflation. Bond prices decline on expectations of worsened inflation, which erodes the instruments' fixed returns.

At close of trading Friday, the new benchmark 30-year bond, the 8 3/4 of August 2020, traded at 99 23/32 to yield 8.78 percent, compared with 98 24/32 when auctioned this week with an 8.87 percent average yield. Still, the bellwether bond was off 14/32 from its market levels late the previous day.

But the bond market was showing signs of coming to grips with Mideast perils.

Chief fixed income strategist James Kochan of Merrill Lynch Capital Markets said that with ''the scope of the Mideast crisis becoming clearer, the markets have begun to define yield levels that may be viable.''

''The risk of a military engagement is still considerable,'' Kochan wrote in a newsletter. More likely than that, though, is a prolonged economic blockade of Iraq - which has now been worked into bond prices, he said.

Even more sanguine over the medium term was Philip Braverman, chief economist of DKB Securities Inc., who said that bonds have every reason to rally once a kind of equilibrium is reached in the Mideast situation.

Economic fundamentals point to lower yields and higher prices, he said. There is strong reason to expect a recession - the more so since Mideast turmoil started pushing oil prices up - and that will help bonds.

''The recession will suppress inflation even with higher oil prices, which I think are a very temporary phenomenon,'' Braverman said.

Adding to the prospects of a bond rally, he said, is the likelihood that the Federal Reserve will move to bring short-term interest rates lower as soon as the Mideast situation stabilizes. Lower short term rates push bond prices up, making their fixed returns relatively more attractive.

But he said whatever the Fed does will be ''too little, too late'' to head off ''the worst recession since the Depression'' of the 1930s.

Ten-year Treasury notes ended at 100 19/32 to yield 8.66 percent, against 99 28/32 and 8.77 percent at auction Wednesday. Five-year notes ended at 100 19/32 to yield 8.34 percent, against 101 16/32 and 8.11 percent a week before.

NEW YORK (AUG. 10) UPI - Jurors in their second day of deliberations Friday again watched the videotaped confession of one of three youths on trial for the rape and attempted murder of a woman jogger in Central Park.

Sitting forward in their seats, the 10 men and two women on the jury looked at the screen as a diminutive Antron McCray, 16, recounted the night of violence on April 19, 1989.

In graphic detail, he described how a group of up to 30 teens rampaged through the northern half of the park, attacking nine victims.

Most seriously injured was the fifth victim, a 30-year-old investment banker who was bashed in the head, gang-raped and then left for dead in a mudddy gully.

Prodded along by the questions by Assistant District Attorney Elizabeth Lederer, McCray on the tape recalled climbing on top of the woman but claimed he only simulated sex to impress his friends.

The panel initially asked Justice Thomas Galligan if it could take the video cassette recorder back to the jury room to view the chilling statement in conjunction with maps of Central Park. The jury requested the maps Thursday.

The judge told the jury it would have to watch the tape inside the courtroom, but encouraged the panel to come back to view it as many times as necessary to reach a verdict.

The jury is considering 13 counts each against McCray, Yusef Salaam, 16, and Raymond Santana, 15, in the rampage through a moonlit park.

Deliberations ended for the day at 6 p.m. EDT, after the jury twice asked to hear an explanation of the law concerning second-degree assault and riot. The jury was slated to resume its deliberations Saturday.

Because the youths were under 16 at the time of their arrest, they face a maximum of 5 to 10 years behind bars if convicted of the most serious counts - rape and attempted murder.

Both McCray and Santana gave written and videotaped confessions to police. Salaam made incriminating statements to a detective but never gave a signed statement or made a videotaped statement.

IRVINE, CA (AUG. 13) UPI - Troubled FundAmerica Inc., the buying club which was ordered earlier this week to stop selling memberships, said Friday that it has suspended all marketing operations.

''We are confident that we are delivering an honest and valuable product via an honest, credible and reputable marketing force,'' said Mitchell Blumberg, president and chief executive officer. ''While we don't believe we have violated any laws, we are anxious to put these issues behind us.''

Blumberg replaced financial iconoclast Howard Ruff earlier this week. Shareholders fired Ruff after he disclosed that the company had made $17 million in payments to founder Robert Edwards, who faces criminal fraud charges in Florida.

Ruff had, in turn, replaced Edwards, who faces up to 30 years in prison.

FundAmerica is under investigation for running an alleged pyramid scheme in a number of states and has been hit by a $150 million class-action suit in California. A federal judge has frozen $17 million in its accounts.

Ruff had alleged that Edwards was still in control of the company's shareholders, but Blumberg said that Edwards is no longer associated with the firm.

(AUG. 10) UPI - The Arab League today called on Iraq to get out of Kuwait and restore the nation's emir. The 21-nation group also sought creation of a pan-Arab peace-keeping force to be deployed on the Saudi-Kuwaiti border. It is NOT clear what Arab nations would take part in the force... or whether they would join U-S forces in Saudi Arabia. The statement came after an Arab League meeting in Cairo apparently failed to convince Iraq to withdraw.

President Bush today advised Iraq NOT to ship oil, saying the United States will do ''whatever is necessary'' to enforce an embargo against Iraq. On Air Force One heading for vacation in Maine... Bush said Iraqi oil is NOT totally off the market, but it is diminishing. Bush says he's NOT worried about an Iraqi call for a holy war, but he is always worried about the threat of terrorism.

Gas prices nationwides have dropped- but just barely- for the first time since Iraq rolled into Kuwait. A daily survey of gas stations by the American Automobile Association today said the average price for self-service, UNleaded fuel dropped three-tenths on one percent. That didN'T stop scores of protesters in New York, who marched on Exxon headquarters to protest recent price hikes.

Justice Department officials say a former aide to Attorney General Dick Thornburgh was indicted today on cocaine use and possession charges. A four count indictment was returned against Henry Barr at Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. It follows a 14-month investigation into drug use by former officials in Pennsylvania, where Thornburgh served as governor.

A California coroner has ruled that a lethal mixture of morphine and cocaine commonly known as a ''speedball'' killed Grateful Dead keyboardist Brent Mydland. The 37-year-old Mydland was found dead in his home in the east San Francisco suburb of Lafayette on July 26th.

New York police tell of five days of horror for a Brooklyn woman. They say the woman's boyfriend tied her to a bed while he beat her... burnt her body with a hot iron... shaved her head and shattered her teeth with a hammer. Officers say the 24-year-old woman apparently shook herself from the bed and walked to a nearby police station to report the incident.

(AUG. 10) UPI - Marion Barry, a veteran of the civil rights war who switched to political battles and became mayor of the nation's capitol, now insists his No. 1 priority is the fight against the substance abuse that led to his conviction Friday on one count of cocaine possession.

Barry, who conceded he was an alcoholic in the wake of his Jan. 18 arrest on drug charges in a downtown Washington hotel, has never publicly discussed in detail the cocaine use that America witnessed on the FBI videotape of that sting operation.

Nor has he discussed in detail the voracious appetite for extramarital sex testified to during his trial by prosecution witnesses.

But he has made it a point during public appearances since his return to Washington from seven weeks of substance abuse treatment to cite the number of days of sobriety he has experienced since the night of his arrest.

He said publicly he intended to make his recovery his top priority, and to focus on it even, if necessary, to the exclusion of the duties of office that he said may have distracted him from his duty to himself and his family.

Barry made no public statement Friday after he was convicted on one possession charge and cleared on another by a jury that then declared itself deadlocked on 12 remaining charges, causing a mistrial.

But, standing in front of Barry and speaking for the mayor outside the federal courthouse in Washington, press secretary Lurma Rackley followed the mayor's pattern of focusing on the issue of recovery.

''He is relieved, obviously, and this is his 202nd day chemical-free,'' Rackley said.

Barry was born March 6, 1936, in the small Mississippi Delta town of Itta Bena. His father died when he was 4 and Barry, his mother and two sisters moved to Memphis, Tenn., the next year.

As a youngster growing up poor, Barry made his mark as ambitious and goal-oriented, often working two jobs at a time and becoming a Boy Scout and then one of the first black Eagle Scouts in segregated Memphis.

Barry earned an undergraduate degree at LeMoyne College in Syracuse, N.Y., and a master's in chemistry at Fisk University in Nashville, Tenn.

He was at work on a doctorate at the University of Tennessee when the civil rights movement interrupted his studies.

Barry helped organize the Student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee and in 1960 became its first national chairman. He went to Washington in 1965 to take over SNCC's local office.

In 1967, he co-founded Pride Inc., a non-profit organization aimed at helping blacks better themselves economically.

Barry was elected to the city's Board of Education in 1971 and was its president until 1974, when he won an at-large seat on the City Council. He was easily re-elected in 1976.

In March 1977, Barry was struck in the chest by a ricochet shotgun pellet fired by Hanafi Muslims during their seige of the District Building.

Barry, who was not seriously hurt, upset incumbent Mayor Walter Washington in the 1978 Democratic primary and became the city's second elected mayor.

That same year Barry was married for the third time, to the former Effi Slaughter, and in 1980 they had a son, Marion Christopher.

Barry spent much of his first term battling government inefficiency and a massive budget deficit, a problem his administration is grappling with again, 12 years later.

In 1982, Barry easily won re-election to a second term but soon became mired in drug and contracting scandals.

In April 1984, Karen Johnson, a low-level city employee with whom Barry had a ''personal relationship,'' was jailed after refusing to testify to a grand jury about allegations she sold cocaine to Barry. It was the start of years of public allegations of drug use, which Barry dismissed with outright denials. Asked once why he was often spotted at city nightclubs until the early hours of the morning, Barry replied he was a ''night owl.''

Despite his problems, Barry's approval rating soared to a record 70 percent in 1985 and he was re-elected in 1986 over Republican Carol Schwartz. Seemingly at the height of his power, the CBS news show ''60 minutes'' profiled him as ''Mayor for Life.''

During his three terms, a dozen top city government officials were convicted of crimes in office, but, until his arrest at a Jan. 18 sting, Barry had escaped charges.

His administration also has a deficit of nearly $100 million and a two-year hold on the highest per capita murder rate in the nation. Police blame most of those killings on drugs, especially the crack trade.

PANAMA CITY, PANAMA (AUG. 10) UPI - Panama has gained custody of about 15,000 boxes of documents captured by U.S. troops when they invaded Panama last December, President Guillermo Endara said Friday.

Panama wants the documents to investigate ousted dictator Manuel Noriega. Several government officials have been demanding for months that the United States give the files back to Panama.

The U.S. government has controlled the documents since the December invasion. Federal prosecuters have been poring over them information on Noriega, who awaits trial in Miami on drug trafficking and money laundering charges.

An ad hoc commission made up of Panamanian clergy and a lawyer will decide which documents should be turned over to government ministries for investigations, Endara said at a press conference.

The commission will also determine which documents on private citizens gathered by Noriega's intelligence service will be destroyed.

''These files constitute an illegitimate and unwarranted intrusion into the privacy of Panamanians,'' Endara said of the files on private citizens.

Officials have accused the United States of obstructing the Panamanian justice system by refusing to turn over the documents.

They said the documents belong to Panama and are vital for their investigations of Noriega and scores of his cronies, accused in Panama of murder, human rights abuses and corruption.

The documents will be guarded by the U.S. military at a secret site but controlled by Panama, said Judge Eusebio Marchosky, who heads a team of government auditors investigating Noriega's associates.

''All the documents are going to be put under the custody of Panamanian authorities,'' Marchosky said.

Marchosky said the United States has copied files useful in its case against Noriega and those that could compromise U.S. national security. Defense lawyers for Noriega have also had limited access to the material.

U.S. officials have assured Panama that it has turned over all of the documents, which were captured during the invasion from Noriega's military headquarters and government offices, Marchosky said.

Oil prices rose, but the price of gas dipped slightly at U-S pumps in response to calls for restraint on the part of the U-S oil industry.

A jury today convicted Washington Mayor Marion Barry of one count of cocaine possession... cleared him of a similar count... but deadlocked on 12 other counts. Both charges decided by the panel were misdemeanors. The judge declared a mistrial on the rest. The prosecutor defended his investigation of what he called Barry's ''six-year pattern'' of drug abuse... but put off saying whether he would seek a retrial.

New York prosecutors today said a bomb was placed in the car of the wife of a key witness in a trial of 11 alleged mobsters. A federal prosecutor said the woman received a phone call telling her to ''drive carefully'' and calling her husband a ''rat.'' The woman ran to her car to pick up her son... and found a gasoline bomb. A cigarette fuse had been lit but separated, and the bomb did NOT explode. Prosecutors asked for tighter bail restrictions for the suspects.

(AUG. 10) UPI - Jurors in the trial involving the rape and beating of a jogger in New York today watched a videotaped confession for a second time. The jury asked to see the statement of 16-year-old Antron McCray describing the ''wilding'' rampage through Central Park last year. On the tape, McCray recalled climbing on top of the woman but claimed he simulated sex to impress his friends. McCray and two other teenagers are each charged with 13 counts in the attack.

A report today says the forewoman of a Boston jury that convicted a Christian Scientist couple in the death of their young son charges the judge was biased. Jolyne D'Ambrosio wrote to a superior court justice last month... saying she believed the judge's ''narrow instructions'' gave the jury little choice but to deliver a guilty verdict for involuntary manslaughter.

86-year-old B-F Skinner presented what is likely to be his last paper today at the convention of the American Psychological Association in Boston. The Havard professor emeritus argued again for his behaviorist psychology, comparing cognitive psychologists who search for a motive behind behavior to religious thinkers who espouse ''creationism.''

East Germany's state prosecutor says former communist leader Erich Honecker is under investigation in the deaths of some 200 people killed trying to flee his Stalinist rule. The 77-year-old Honecker- ousted last November- was questioned about the deaths today. As the former chairman of the East German Defense Council, Honecker can be held responsible for the deaths.

LONDON (AUG. 11) - Texaco, which hiked the retail price of its petrol by 9.5 pence a gallon on August 6, announced that it will lower the price by 2.7 pence on Monday, for a net increase of 6.8 pence.

The announcement on Saturday was the first by an oil company dropping its retail price since a flurry of increases this week because of instability on the oil markets after Iraq'a August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Shell had increased its price by 5.5 pence a gallon and Esso by 10.5 pence.

NICOSIA (AUG. 11) - Two Iraqi pilots defected Thursday and landed in Saudi Arabia, an informed U.S. source in the Gulf said Saturday.

The two Iraqi pilots flew down the Gulf and landed on the east coast of the kingdom, the source said.

Official confirmation of the defection could not be obtained from Riyadh.

American and British forces are deploying in Saudi Arabia and the Gulf to help avert a possible Iraqi attack.

NICOSIA (AUG. 11) - Saudi troops fired ground-to-air missiles at two Iraqi reconnaissance planes Saturday that were overflying Saudi territory near Dhahran air base in Eastern Province, a Western diplomatic source said here.

The Iraqi jets were 320 kilometers (190 miles) from the Kuwait border over Saudi territory when Saudi troops opened fire with a dozen missiles in the early afternoon, the source told Agence France-Presse.

The Iraqi planes immediately withdrew, the source said.

These are the first shots fired between Iraq and Saudi Arabia in the gathering Gulf crisis since Iraq invaded Kuwait August 2.

American forces have been deploying at the Dhahran base, where Galaxy transport planes have been unloading men and equipment.

The civilian airport at Dhahran has been closed and flights rerouted to other cities in the Gulf.

NEW DELHI (AUG. 11) - A boat carrying 39 Sri Lankan refugees to India capsized in the narrow Palk Straits early Saturday, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said. Thirty-four of the passengers were feared drowned.

Five survivors told the news agency that they had been rescued by another boat taking refugees from war-torn Sri Lanka to India's southern Tamil Nadu state.

There was no official confirmation in Tamil Nadu, home to some 55 million Indian Tamils, of the incident.

Some 67,000 Sri Lankan refugees, mostly Tamils, have arrived by official Indian count in Tamil Nadu since renewed fighting between Sri Lankan troops and Tamil rebels erupted after Indian troops pulled out in March.

CAIRO (AUG. 11) - Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak said Saturday that there was "no hope of finding a peaceful solution to the Iraq-Kuwait crisis."

In a meeting with reporters, Mr. Mubarak harshly criticized the behaviour of several Arab leaders, notably Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Yasser Arafat, during the emergency Arab summit here Friday.

The summit was convened as a last-ditch Arab effort to find a diplomatic solution to the gathering Gulf crisis after Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

MONROVIA (AUG. 11) - Liberian rebels, pressing forward into the heart of Monrovia, on Saturday ordered the evacuation of a hospital located near several embassies.

Members of the largest of the two forces fighting to overthrow President Samuel Doe are now within a mile (1.5 kilometer) from his downtown Executive Mansion, fighting a house-to-house battle with Mr. Doe's troops.

The rebels of the National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) ordered the evacuation of St. Joseph's Hospital, located in Sinkor district near the embassies of West Germany, Italy, Switzerland and Morocco.

The leader of a 12-member medical team from Medecins Sans Frontieres (MSF) said in an interview that he was approached Saturday by an NPFL officer who asked his team to evacuate the hospital out of fear of retaliatory shelling by government forces.

"We're going to evacuate the women and children first and if it's possible, we'll come back and get the rest," said the physician, Johan Heffinck of Belgium.

The hospital, located near the coastline, was caught in crossfire on Friday. There were 80 bed-ridden patients there, down from nearly 300 at the beginning of the week. Among those were 120 who had been injured when government troops massacred several hundred refugees in the St. Peter Lutheran mission.

"Everyone who can walk has already left," Dr. Heffinck said.

He said the MSF team would use the hospital's 20 remaining vehicles to transfer the patients to a hospital in Gbarnga, about 60 miles (100 kilometers) north of Monrovia, in an area controlled by the NPFL.

Dr. Heffinck said his team had had serious problems with the government troops, which had taken vehicles and killed one of the hospital's Liberian drivers.

BEIJING (AUG. 11) - China's fledgling aerospace industry is set to compete on the international market in the next decade, aerospace industry minister Lin Zengtang said in a report published Saturday.

The official China Daily quoted the minister as telling a recent Shanghai conference that China's Long March 2-E rocket would put two large Australian communications satellites into orbit in 1991 and 1992. The rocket was successfully test launched on July 16.

Mr. Lin said the new generation of Long March rockets would enable China to enter the market for heavy boosters in the 1990s.

He said exports of aerospace products this year are expected to hit a record 294 million dollars, up from last year's 200 million dollars, and that sales were expected to continue to increase.

China will put an ArabSat satellite into orbit with a Long March 3 booster at the end of next year, he said.

The Long March 3 enabled China, for the first time in April, to put a foreign satellite into orbit, with the launch of a U.S.-made AsiaSat 1 satellite owned by a Hong Kong-based consortium.

China is hoping to take advantage of low operating costs to break into a market until now dominated by the United States and France, analysts said. West Europe's Arianespace consortium has accused China of "dumping" in the booster field.

China is also banking on an increase in exports of aero-related products,

Mr. Lin said. The 17-seat Yun-12 aircraft has drawn interest from several Asian countries, the report said.

It is the first twin-engine propellor aircraft that China has been able to sell abroad. The plane's first buyers, Sri Lanka and Laos, recently signed contracts to purchase five more and three other countries have expressed interest in buying 20.

The minister said negotiations were also under way with foreign clients for the purchase of Y-5, Y-7 and Y-8 aircraft.

DHAKA (AUG. 11) - Iraq has taken into custody about 400 Bangladeshis working at Kuwaiti defence facilities, a top official said here Saturday.

Foreign Secretary Abul Ahsan told reporters the government had been in contact with the Red Cross, the United Nations and countries which have workers in Kuwait, such as India, Pakistan and Sri Lanka, to prepare for a possible evacuation "should such a development become necessary."

He said some 400 Bangladeshis working in Kuwaiti defence installations were being kept in camps near Baghdad.

The Iraqi ambassador in Dhaka, summoned to the foreign ministry here Saturday, had promised their early release, he added.

Mr. Ahsan stressed that evacuation of Bangladeshis, estimated officially at 70,000 in Kuwait and another 8,000 in Iraq, "is not an immediate possibility at this stage."

But he said Dhaka wanted to be prepared if it needed to evacuate its citizens from the region, in turmoil since Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2.

Mr. Ahsan said some 1,200 Bangladeshis had fled Kuwait and had entered the Saudi town of Khafzi. About 25 Bangladeshis were at the Bangladesh Embassy in Riyadh or had taken shelter in a Bangladeshi school.

Informed sources said another 2,000 Bangladeshis were heading for Kuwait's border with Saudi Arabia.

Bangladesh had earlier said 61 of its nationals working at a Kuwait air base as civilian technicians, cooks and cleaners were detained by Iraqi troops, and 17 had gone missing.

Mr. Ahsan said Bangladesh had asked Saudi Arabia to provide assistance to its citizens seeking refuge in the kingdom.

Officials said they had lost contact with Bangladesh embassies in Kuwait and Iraq and were waiting for news of Bangladeshis caught up in the Gulf conflict.

Meanwhile, Minister for Labour and Manpower Sirajul Hossain Khan chaired an inter-ministerial meeting Saturday to discuss a possible evacuation plan, BSS news agency reported.

ROME (AUG. 11) - Italian industrial production in June recorded its worst figures this year, dropping 3.6 percent compared with June 1989, official figures released Saturday showed.

The April and May indexes had already indicated a clear slowing in growth to one percent and 0.7 percent respectively.

The statement emphasized that the month of June this year counted only 21 working days while June 1989 had 22, and that the average daily figure actually increased by 0.1 percent.

Nonetheless, production only grew by 1.0 percent during the first half of 1990 in comparison with the first six months of 1989, whereas production for the entire year of 1989 registered an increase of 2.9 percent over 1988.

From January to June 1990, the economic sectors which recorded the strongest increases were petroleum products (+12 percent), pharmaceuticals (+10.5 per cent) and non-automobile transports (+6.8 percent).

Sectors in decline included precision instruments (-7.4 percent), pneumatics (-4.8 percent) and clothing (-3.3 percent), normally a steady gainer.

The national institute of statistics which issued the figures emphasized that this slowdown had been foreseen by experts who had noted a weakening of internal demand over the last several months while exports continued at a healthy pace.

The index for June 1990 was set at 125.2 against a reference of 100 in 1985.

LONDON (AUG. 11) - A group of 40 British citizens escaped across the Kuwaiti border into Saudi Arabia overnight Friday, the Foreign Office announced Saturday.

The members of the group, all of them men, are safe and in good health, a Foreign Office spokesman said.

The men are the first British citizens to successfuly leave Kuwait since Iraqi President Saddam Hussein closed the Iraqi and Kuwaiti borders on Thursday.

Most of the group are presently in Saudi Arabia, but eight of the men have arrived in Bahrain, according to the Foreign Office.

The spokesman refused to give details on the escape.

Some 4,000 British citizens remain in Kuwait, according to official estimates.

The Foreign Office also said that Iraqi troops in southern Kuwait were being reinforced.

MOSCOW (AUG. 11) - The Moscow News on Saturday launched a blistering attack on Iraq, criticised the Soviet Union for selling arms to the Arab state and urged the Kremlin to "bear its part of the burden" in curbing Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

The independent weekly said the Kremlin had been "totally informed of the rivers of blood that flowed through the country during the campaigns, which were unequalled in their cruelty, to exterminate the Kurdish minority and the Iraqi Communist Party, but it preferred to remain shemelessly silent."

In a reference to Mr. Hussein, the newspaper said the Soviet Union knew "unequivocally" who was responsible for the Iran-Iraq war.

"Iraq must pay the highest price for such shameless and unprecedented aggression," the article said, calling on the Soviet Union to reevaluate its relations with "notoriously totalitarian and aggressive regimes inclined toward armed adventure and the annihilation of ther own people."

The newspaper called on the Soviet Union to "assume part of the burden" by cooperating with the United States in a response to Iraq's aggression.

Moscow stopped weapons deliveries to Iraq hours after the invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

Using a similar tone, the union-backed daily Trud said the Soviet Union had to accept responsibility for events in the Gulf having furnished Iraq with weapons, nonetheless accepting the arms trade issue was "not so simple".

Trud called for a debate in the public and in the Supreme Soviet on the morality of Moscow's arms sales overseas.

The paper posed the question: "What attitude should be adopted if the Americans participate in a direct military operation, if the conflict spreads or if American citizens come under threat?"

VIENNA (AUG. 11) - The Gulf crisis is hitting Eastern European economies particularly hard at a time when they are destabilised by efforts to move to a market economy and struggling to cope with reduced Soviet oil deliveries.

"The negative effect has been doubled," said Todor Balabanov of the Vienna-based Institute for Comparative Economics which specialises in Eastern Europe.

These countries had a high level of trade with Iraq, in particular arms exports, and are now facing crippling oil bills as they are no longer able to take Iraqi oil, which in some cases was being offered in part payment of debt.

An international embargo on Iraqi products introduced by a U.N. resolution after Iraq's invasion of Kuwait last week "is creating a difficult trade situation for Eastern European countries," Mr. Balabanov said, "because deliveries of goods were fairly high."

Baghdad owes the Soviet Union some 2.5 billion roubles (4.3 billion dollars), Bulgaria some 1.3 billion dollars and Poland about half a billion, some of which Iraq had pledged to repay by providing 150 million dollars' worth of oil this year.

It also owes Hungary some 145 million dollars, according to press reports in the various countries in recent days.

They were expecting at least part payment in Iraqi oil, but the U.N. embargo decision, applied by Czechoslovakia, Poland and Bulgaria, with Hungary expected to follow suit, has dried up the supply.

The countries are now faced with unpaid debts and huge bills to buy oil elsewhere.

Arms sales to Iraq were the Eastern European countries' main resource in trade with the Gulf.

CHICAGO (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Amoco Oil Company said today it lowered its wholesale gasoline prices in three markets in Ohio. Prices decreased 1.5 cents per gallon in Lebanon and Lima and 1.0 cents per gallon in Toledo. The price decrease took effect at 12:01 a.m. today.

On Thursday, Amoco announced it would freeze its wholesale gasoline and posted distillate and jet fuel prices through August 15, and that it might lower prices in individual markets if market conditions allow.

"Competitive market conditions in these markets have allowed us to make this move," said John C. Bergman, Amoco's east zone marketing vice president. "This price decrease is in line with our pledge to price our products in a reasonable and responsible manner."

The price decrease is reflected in wholesale prices charged to dealers and jobbers in these markets. Amoco dealers and jobbers are independent businessmen and establish their own prices at their outlets.

UPPER SADDLE RIVER, NJ (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Western Union Corporation announced today that it is temporarily replacing the union-represented employees at its central telephone bureaus, computer centers and other principal operating facilities. These facilities will be staffed by temporary replacements until agreement is reached between company and union negotiators on either new union contracts or an extension of the old contracts.

Meanwhile, Western Union is continuing its regular operations, and all of its services are available to its customers on a normal basis.

The company has been in negotiation with the Communications Workers of America bargaining committees representing its bargaining-unit employees since July 23. The old two-year contracts expired at midnight on August 6 but management and union negotiators have continued to meet to try to reach agreement on new contracts. On August 8, management proposed a 90-day extension of the old contracts, which would have allowed orderly negotiations to continue and would have enabled the company to avoid the high cost of retaining temporary employees. However, the unions rejected that proposal.

In addition to wages, the principal contract issues include the extent of the company's rights to use outside contractors, employment of part-time workers, the level of employer/employee cost sharing in the provision of medical insurance, and various job-classification and other proposed productivity improvements.

Western Union services, which are provided through the company's two principal business units -- Financial Services and Business Services, include money transfer and bill payment services, telex, electronic mail, and paper-based message services such as Mailgram and Priority Letter services. Bargaining-unit employees normally engaged in the provision of these services work at the company's central telephone bureaus (located in Bridgeton, Miss., and Reno, Nev.), major computer centers (located in Middletown, Va., and Bridgeton), and at various order-processing, customer-support, telemarketing and other facilities throughout the country. These facilities are now being staffed by a combination of Western Union headquarters personnel and trained temporary replacements hired locally.

The nationwide network of 16,000 Western Union agents, who provide customer access to the company's money transfer and bill payment services, also is operating normally.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 11) UPI - The United States warned Iraq not to ship oil through the Persian Gulf, and rallied behind a pledge by several Arab nations to help defend Saudi Arabia from the threat of invasion.

President Bush sent a clear message Friday to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, saying ''I would advise Iraqi ships not to go out with oil.'' He said the number of Iraqi oil shipments have been reduced, but no details were disclosed.

The president's strong words came as officials crafted plans for a multinational blockade, but with Iraqi oil exports contained, a White House spokesman said the naval restriction did not appear ''necessary now.''

''I'm not prepared to use the word blockade, but I am prepared to say that we will do whatever is necessary to see that the exports from Iraq ... do not go forward,'' Bush said.

U.S. strategy to answer Middle East aggression by Iraq is influenced by the presence of more than 3,000 Americans in Saudi Arabia and 580 in Iraq, including 38 being held in a Baghdad hotel.

The president said he had urged the State Department to issue an unusual warning saying the gulf situation may raise the risk of terrorism directed at Americans overseas.

''Part of any planning has to be about how to protect citizens,'' Bush said. ''We're not helpless, no. But as we see with hostage situations - and I don't think this is one - sometimes it's very difficult.''

Taking note of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on Aug. 2, the president broached the difficulty of dealing with Saddam.

''The troubling thing is we're up against a man who is known for his brutality and irrationality and who has taken a step that, though widely condemned, still has not been reversed,'' Bush said.

While a naval armada formed in the Persian Gulf region, with warships from Australia and Canada soon to join dozens from the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union, Bush notified Congress of his dispatch of U.S. troops to the Saudi Arabia. He said America's involvement in hostilities was not believed ''imminent.''

With several thousand Americans on the ground and more on the way, defense sources said the total U.S. force in Saudi Arabia could reach 50,000 troops.

Published reports Saturday indicated that the level of U.S. troops could reach at least 100,000 within the coming months.

Bush ordered U.S. troops into Saudi Arabia on Tuesday for Operation Desert Shield.

He said their purpose was defensive: to protect the Saudi kingdom from possible Iraqi aggression and to see that oil supplies vital to Western economies are not jeopardized by Saddam's military adventurism.

Bush tried to dodge congressional interference Friday by telling lawmakers no hostilities were expected, but the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee took issue with the statement, saying Congress ''may want to make its own determination.''

''A conflict in the Middle East would involve U.S. forces in the most extensive military operations since the Vietnam War,'' said Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I. ''In such a situation, formal congressional support under the terms of the War Powers Resolution is imperative.''

Bush, meanwhile, pointed approvingly to the high-level maneuvering under way to step up the economic pressure on Saddam.

''I am determined that the economic sanctions that are already beginning to bite at Iraq can be tightened up even more,'' he said.

MONROVIA, Liberia (AUG. 11) UPI - The Hamburger House closed when the rebels arrived. Its plastic seats are nearly lost in the thick grass sprouting from the roadside and its gaudy yellow colors have faded.

An arc of bullet holes cuts across a giant poster nearby advertising Benson and Hedges menthol cigarettes.

The war has shattered Liberia's pride of being a little bit of America. The roadside diners of Monrovia, the sidewalks, the police officers in their New York-style uniforms - all exposed as the empty pretensions of what the country would have liked to be, not what it is.

Reality is the desperate daily search for rice.

Police, silver pistols in fancy holsters, have not been seen since the government fell apart and law fell into the hands of the army, which is dominated by President Samuel Doe's Krahn tribe.

A band of heavily armed Liberian soldiers ambled through the embassy district to the American compound last Tuesday. They sang as they walked, accompanied by a pickup truck with a heavy machine gun mounted on the back.

They spoke in Krahn, and as they approached the embassy, a U.S. Marine with a bullhorn asked them to turn back, although the road is public and leads to the port, controlled by rebels determined to bring Doe down. The soldiers retreated.

Calls for the Marines to help make sense of the more than 6-month-old civil war shows how Liberia views the United States - the country from which the freed slaves came in 1822 to establish the Liberian state.

Prince Johnson, the rebel leader whose forces control half of Monrovia, threatened to take Americans hostage unless the Pentagon sent in a peace-keeping force. He eventually took 46 people captive, including one American. They were quickly released when African countries agreed to send a peace-keeping force sooner or later.

When the U.S. Marines took up posts at the embassy last weekend, they set up protective roadblocks. Johnson threatened to attack the roadblocks if

U.S. troops prevented him from reaching the enemy via the public highway.

''America is the motherland. I will attack the Marines,'' he said, somewhat confusingly.

As the motherland, America should not prevent an end to the war, and the end will come when Doe is overthrown, Johnson reasoned. America would do better to send a force to oust Doe rather than delay his overthrow by the rebels.

But just as the outward signs of American culture have faded as the war has declined into tribalism, the political relationship between the two countries has been proved to rest on pillars of sand.

There have been hints that the role of the Marines could extend beyond simply protecting the embassy and its staff, but there are no signs of that taking place.

As Marines poured off the helicopters sent from ships off the coast of the western African country, they took up positions around the embassy.

Did they really know where they were or what was going on?

''It's Liberia,'' said one soldier.

''Where's that,'' he was asked.

''Africa.''

''Had you heard of Liberia before you came here?''

''No, sir.''

(AUG. 11) UPI - Now there's something you don't see every day.

Two singles hitters took a Hall of Famer deep, an untouchable reliever couldn't find the strike zone, and a part-time infielder's fifth RBI of the season was a game-winner - not exactly your average night in the American League.

Rookie Craig Grebeck and light-hitting Ozzie Guillen were the unlikely longball heroes in the Chicago White Sox's 5-2, 5-1 double-header sweep of the Texas Rangers, as they knocked consecutive pitches from Nolan Ryan out of Comiskey Park.

It was Grebeck's first major-league home run and Guillen's first of the season.

''Hitting your first big-league home run is one thing,'' Grebeck said, ''but when it comes off a guy like Nolan Ryan, a sure bet for the Hall of Fame and probably the best pitcher there's ever been, that's a big thrill for me.''

In the second inning, with runners at first and second, Grebeck smoked Ryan's first offering into the left-field seats for a 3-0 Chicago advantage.

''It surprised me,'' said Grebeck, recalled from the minors only eight days ago.

Guillen followed by lining Ryan's next pitch into the right-field seats. The blast came in his 361st at-bat and was the seventh of his six-year career.

''Both pitches were real poor pitches, right down the middle,'' said Ryan, who fell to 11-6 with his second straight loss since picking up his 300th career victory. ''What happened was I just made bad pitches,'' he said. ''I seem to be in a rut.''

Baltimore Orioles' reliever Gregg Olson hasn't had much experience with ruts this season, or with runs, but a sudden lack of control took care of that.

Olson watched from the bench as the California Angels pinned a 2-1 10 inning loss on him, but he had no one but himself to blame.

Olson, 5-4, simply couldn't find the plate in the 10th. He walked Chili Davis and Lee Stevens to open the inning and then ran the count to 3-0 on Johnny Ray before being lifted for Curt Schilling, who completed the free pass. With one out Kent Anderson stroked a single to right-center over a drawn-in infield for the game-winner.

''I got ahead of the count and when you're ahead of the count, it makes it easier to get your pitch,'' said Anderson, whose RBI was only his fifth in 40 games this season. ''Basically, I was trying to hit a fly ball or a line drive. Fortunately, I hit a line drive.''

Anderson driving in a run was about as common as Olson allowing one.

It was the time the right-hander had been scored upon since July 1, a span of 14 games. Overall, Olson has allowed runs in only six of his 44 appearances this season.

But Friday was a different story.

''Tonight, I just ran out of gas,'' Olson said. ''This outing's not worth talking about. We'd better leave it right there.''

''He just lost it,'' Baltimore Manager Frank Robinson said. ''He didn't have real good control all night. That inning he just couldn't even come close. I felt I had gone as far as I could with him.''

-- AROUND THE AL --

Elsewhere in the American League: Kansas City swept a double-header from Milwaukee, 6-5 and 9-4, Cleveland topped Detroit 5-2, Minnesota slapped Toronto 7-3, Oakland blanked New York 3-0 and Seattle sunk Boston 4-1.

Royals 6, Brewers 5, 1st game
Royals 9, Brewers 4, 2nd game

At Kansas City, Mo., George Brett tied a club record by collecting seven hits in a double-header. Four of Brett's hits came in the opener, including a two-out, two-run double in the bottom of the eighth inning off Dan Plesac, 2-5,that rallied the Royals.

Brett added three more in the nightcap to equal the team mark set by Gerald Perry earlier this year. Kevin Seitzer delivered the big blow in the second game, a three-run triple in the second inning that put the Royals on top 3-0. Storm Davis, 6-7, went five innings. Steve Crawford recorded his first save.

Mainers 4, Boston 1

At Seattle, Ken Griffey Jr. collected four hits and Randy Johnson scattered four hits over eight innings to snap the Mariners' three-game losing streak. Boston maintained its two-game edge in the AL East. Johnson 10-7, won for the first time since July 4 and tied a season-high with 10 strikeouts.

Twins 7, Blue Jays 3

At Toronto, Gary Gaetti and Shane Mack each hit a home run and drove in three runs to support Dave West, 6-7. The twins rallied from a two-run deficit with a six-run seventh inning to pin the loss on John Cerutti, 8-8.

Athletics 3, Yankees 0

At Oakland, Dave Stewart scattered three hits over 8 2-3 innings and Terry Steinbach drove in two runs. Stewart, 16-8, retired 17 batters in a row at one point. Dave LaPoint, 6-8, lasted 4 1-3 innings.

Indians 5, Tigers 2

At Cleveland, Mitch Webster capped a five-run fourth inning with a grand slam and Mike Walker, 1-3, earned his first major-league victory in his ninth career appearance. Doug Jones earned his 30th save.

(AUG. 11) UPI - Thousands of lightning strikes sparked new blazes in the West, even as firefighters were taxed to the limit battling hundreds of wildfires that already have blackened more than 300,000 acres.

The wildfires, many out of control for days, raged through seven Western states Friday, demolishing homes and wildlife habitats and forcing thousands of campers and other visitors out of California's Yosemite National Park.

Some 19,000 firefighters were dispatched to firelines, particularly in the four hardest-hit states of California, Idaho, Utah and Oregon.

California reported nearly 1,000 separate fires, and dozens of other blazes plagued other Western states.

Dry thunderstorms were blamed for starting most of the fires, including as many as 40 new fires in the Wenatchee National Forest in central Washington.

The new burns came after firefighters contained two massive blazes, one near Lake Chelan in the north-central part of the state and the other in Glacier Peak Wilderness.

Oregon forestry officials said an additional 2,000 lightning strikes were reported since noon Friday, but higher humidity and cooler temperatures were expected to end the flurry of electrical storms this weekend.

Most of the Western fires - at least 42 of them considered ''major'' - were pushed by hot, arid winds and devoured valuable timber stands, as well as rangelands and brush left brittle by years of drought.

State and federal forestry firefighters were joined by local firefighters, National Guardsmen, prison inmates, and - in at least one case - employees of a lumber company whose stock was being wiped out by the flames.

In Oregon, 1,000 U.S. Army troops worked with 6,500 other firefighters in blazes in the eastern part of the state, where flames blackened at least 113,500 acres.

In California, the destroyed acreage topped 108,000 late Friday, while in Idaho, five fires burned at least 65,900 acres and seven blazes in Nevada consumed more than 11,225 acres.

In Utah, three blazes blackened some 7,600 acres, while in Washington, more than 1,000 acres were lost. Two fires in Montana scorched 870 acres.

Working against heat and winds Friday, Oregon firefighters made some progress against several wildfires, including one that burned to within a mile of a small town.

The 73,700-acre Bald Butte blaze was triggered by lightning Monday night in the Ochoco National Forest. Some 1,500 firefighters were on the lines Friday night and several nearby communities were prepared to evacuate. Containment was not expected until early next week.

In California, with 15 major fires burning out of control, officials called the situation ''grim.'' After a brief weather reprieve Friday night thunderstorms and high temperatures were predicted for the rest of the weekend.

More than 17,000 lighting strikes have been recorded in California since Aug. 3, when the first widespread dry-lightning storms of the season hit.

A fourth consecutive year of drought and tree-devastating insect infestations were blamed for ''unprecedented areas of extreme fire danger'' across California.

Some 900 firefighters battled more than two-dozen fires in Yosemite National Park, which scorched about 18,000 acres by late Friday. The blazes forced officials to evacuate about 15,000 visitors from the 750,000-acre vacation destination.

Roads into the park were expected to be reopened Sunday, said Capt. Keith Johnson of the California Department of Forestry.

CAIRO, Egypt (AUG. 11) UPI - Spearheading an Arab peacekeeping force in the Persian Gulf, Egypt sent thousands of troops to the troubled region to block Iraqi advances as Baghdad accused Arab nations of bowing to their American ''masters.''

Egyptian government sources declined to provide details of force levels or the troops' destination, but a Western diplomat in Cairo confirmed Saturday ''several thousand'' Egyptian paratroopers were on their way to the Gulf. The Washington Post put the number of Egyptian troops at 5,000.

Egypt's move to immediately make good on an Arab League decision for a pan-Arab force emphasized the growing rift in the Arab world, with President Hosni Mubarak and the Gulf states aligned against Iraq and its supporters including Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Baghdad vowed not to turn back on its annexation of Kuwait and warned the United States not to underestimate Iraqi forces, saying Iraq was not Grenada, the Caribbean island nation American troops easily invaded in 1983.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein on Friday declared a Moslem holy war against the West.

Stepping up his rhetoric against U.S. intervention in the Gulf while attempting to divert attention from Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, Saddam urged Arabs to revolt against traitorous leaders, in particular in Saudi Arabia for their acquiescence to the deployment of U.S. troops.

On Saturday, Baghdad Radio continued the attack and described Mubarak and the oil-rich Gulf states' leaders as ''plotters.''

''They believed, along with their master America that the Arab masses could be deluded into believing that this assembly of evil doers (the Arab League) represented the will of the Arabs,'' Baghdad Radio said.

''The coming days, through the determination of the Arabs and all honorable strugglers, will place them in the impasse they deserve,'' the radio said. ''They will be cursed and defeated after God's damnation befalls them in all their affairs.''

Amid bitter debate, the divided Arab League Friday called for Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait and restoration of the oil-rich kingdom's emir.

The 21-member league instructed its secretariat to finalize within 15 days plans to create a pan-Arab peacekeeping force. Adding to Iraq's economic isolation, the league backed a U.N. Security Council sanction package, paving the way for an Arab economic embargo.

While 12 Arab League members voted for deployment of the force, Libya, Iraq and the Palestine Liberation Organization flatly rejected the move. Six others, including Jordan, expressed reservations or abstained. Tunisia did not attend the summit.

But analysts said Iraq's firm resolve to stay in Kuwait and ignore calls for a withdrawal of its estimated 170,000-strong force make the pan-Arab contingent's main job the security of Gulf states and Saudi Arabia.

Asked if there was a timetable for sending Arab troops to the Gulf, Mubarak said Saturday, ''We are on our way to send some groups to a number of Arab countries.''

''We fear nothing and we are satisfied with our achievements so far,''

Mubarak said at Cairo Airport while accompanying departing Arab leaders. He expressed hope for a peaceful solution to the Gulf crisis, but warned, ''if anybody attacked us, we would be ready for him.''

Foreign Minister Esmat Abdul Meguid met Saturday with U.S. Ambassador Frank Wisner as well as ambassadors from Italy, Ireland and France in an apparent effort to coordinate strategy and discuss the escalating Gulf crisis.

The United States and other Western nations continued beefing up their military presence in the tinder-box region and appeared to be preparing for a blockade of Iraq.

The Washington Post reported Saturday that a force of more than 200,000 U.S. troops, several hundred combat aircraft and dozens of warships, could be deployed to the Gulf by autumn.

NEW YORK (AUG. 11) UPI - A teenage father was charged Saturday with killing his 5-day-old son whose dismembered body was later eaten by the family's German shepherd, police said.

Anthony Radtke, 19, was charged with two counts of second degree murder in the killing of his infant son, Anthony, said police Sgt. Tina Mohrmann.

The father and the child's mother, Linda Boyce, also 19, originally told police the dog seized young Anthony from his crib and ate him while they slept.

But the medical examiner later determined that the infant was already dead when he was eaten. ''The baby was dismembered after it had died,'' said Ellen Borakove, a spokeswoman for the medical examiner. ''The German shepherd then ate some of it.''

After hours of questioning Radtke, police determined the young father, angry because the baby was crying, picked up the child and slammed him to the floor, killing him, Mohrmann said.

The incident happened either late Thursday or early Friday, Mohrmann said.

Officers continued to question Boyce and have not decided whether to charge her, the spokeswoman said.

The couple and an older daughter moved to New York three weeks ago from Alma, Neb.

They initially told investigators they placed the infant in a crib in their room and went to bed about midnight Thursday and that the crib was empty when they awake about 6:45 a.m., Friday, said police Sgt. Peter Sweeney.

The parents said they found some blood and traces of the boy on the floor, the sergeant said.

Police took the 3-year-old pet to an animal medical center where X-rays showed the infant's remains - including some bone fragments - inside the dog's stomach, Sweeney said.

Veterinarians said the baby had been dead a number of hours before the remains were found.

The dog was put to death at the animal center.

CAIRO, Egypt (AUG. 11) UPI - Egypt sent several thousands troops Saturday to the troubled Persian Gulf area as an advance guard of an Arab peacekeeping force to block Iraqi advances, brushing aside Baghdad's charge that Arab nations were bowing to their American ''masters.''

Egyptian government sources declined to provide details of force levels or the troops' destination but a Western diplomat in Cairo confirmed Saturday ''several thousand'' Egyptian paratroopers were on their way to the gulf. The Washington Post put the number of Egyptian troops at 5,000.

Morocco and Syria are reported preparing to send troops to make a pan-Arab force.

Iraqi soldiers Saturday allowed 11 Americans to cross into Jordan, the State Department said. The 11 included 10-year-old Penelope Nabokov of Albany, Calif., who was traveling alone and had been one of scores of Americans detained at a hotel in Baghdad, Iraq, before she was turned over to the U.S. Embassy there. About 3,500 Americans are believed to be detained in Iraq and Kuwait.

Egypt's move to immediately make good on an Arab League decision for a pan-Arab force emphasized the growing rift in the Arab world, with President Hosni Mubarak and the gulf states aligned against Iraq and its supporters, including Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization.

ATLANTA (AUG. 11) UPI - Federal and state health officials are trying to find a field of contaminated tomatoes that may have sickened thousands of people in four Midwest states.

Doctors treated more than 100 cases of salmonella, or food poisoning, in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and Michigan last week, but a health official in Minnesota said there were 6,000 to 10,000 unreported cases in his state alone of people who may have become ill from eating the contaminated tomatoes.

''Only about 1 percent (of these cases) are usually reported,'' said Dr. Oscar Holm, Minnesota state epidemiologist, who is coordinating the four-state investigation with help from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and the Food and Drug Administration.

Holm said in a weekend interview there have been no reported fatalities from the illness but that 14 people in Minnesota remained hospitalized out of the 66 known cases in that state.

The outbreak originally was confined to Minnesota, Illinois and Michigan but Holm said new cases were being reported in Wisconsin.

''A field full of tomatoes was somehow contaminated,'' said Dr. Robert Tauxe, an epidemiologist with the CDC. ''This did not happen in the kitchen.''

Tauxe and Holm said they don't know where the field is and it is not known if the search is confined to the four states.

Holm said the probe of the outbreak that started in July implicated raw tomatoes ''very strongly''.

''It is somewhat unusual to think of salmonella being tranmitted by a vegetable,'' Tauxe said. ''It usually is a problem with raw meat.''

There are about 1,500 varieties of salmonella bacteria but they all cause the same kinds of symptoms - abdominal pain, fever, diarrhea, nausea, vomiting and dehydration.

Salmonella normally is transmitted by ingestion of food contaminated with feces of infected animals; also in eggs and egg products, meat and meat products, and in broiler chickens and turkeys.

More than 40,000 cases of salmonella are reported annually to the CDC and the number has been increasing steadily in recent years, Tauxe said. Many cases never come to the attention of health officials.

Holm said investigators were backtracking the tomatoes and getting closer to a single source. But he said it was not known if the contamination occurred in the shipping or the handling of the vegetable.

''We don't know how they were contaminated,'' Tauxe said. ''We may never know.'' He said consumers could avoid becoming ill by ''washing vegetables very carefully before slicing them up.''

Of those known to have become ill, some ate tomatoes in restaurants while others bought them at stores and consumed them at home.

NEW YORK (AUG. 11) UPI - Jurors began a third day of deliberations in the Central Park jogger beat-and-rape trial Saturday, mulling over the judge's explanation of the charges of assault and riot.

The panel of 10 men and two women returned to the jury room at 10 a.m. to consider the fate of the three teenagers accused of beating and raping a stockbroker during her nightly jog on April 19, 1989.

Late Friday, the jury asked Supreme Court Judge Thomas Galligan for legal instructions to reach a verdict on charges of second-degree assault and riot. The assault charge refers to attacks on two male joggers and the riot to the entire one-hour rampage.

Earlier Friday, the jury reviewed the taped confession of Antron McCray, 16, one of three defendants, and scrutinized enlarged maps of Central Park before recessing at 6 p.m.

McCray's lawyer, Michael Joseph, suggested the jury, in studying the maps and confession, may have been analyzing discrepancies between McCray's account of where the rape took place and the location described by the prosecution.

In his videotaped confession, McCray said the attack occurred near the Central Park reservoir, while the prosecution maintains it took place a half-mile away, at the 102nd St. transverse.

Joseph has argued that because McCray is unable to give a correct location for the attack, jurors should disregard the confession he gave police.

The prosecution has called that argument irrelevant, maintaining that the young men paid little attention to details.

The jury is considering 13 counts each against McCray, Yusef Salaam, 16, and Raymond Santana, 15, in the ''wilding'' rampage through the moonlit park.

Sitting forward in their seats, the jurors Friday looked at a video screen as the diminutive McCray recounted the night of violence.

In graphic detail, he described how up to 30 teenagers rampaged through the northern half of the park, attacking nine victims.

Most seriously hurt was the fifth victim, the 30-year-old investment banker who was bashed in the head, gang-raped and left for dead in a muddy gully.

Prodded by the questions by Assistant District Attorney Elizabeth Lederer, McCray on the tape recalled climbing on top of the woman but claimed he only simulated sex to impress his friends.

The jury twice asked to hear an explanation of the law concerning second-degree assault and riot.

Because the youths were under 16 at the time of their arrest, they face a maximum of 5 to 10 years behind bars if convicted of the most serious counts - rape and attempted murder.

Both McCray and Santana gave written and videotaped confessions to police. Salaam made incriminating statements but never made a signed or videotaped statement.

In a case without a shred of physical evidence linking the defendants to the crime, the statements are the prosecution's most powerful tool against them.

NEWPORT, Tenn. (AUG. 11) UPI - A Tennessee mill has stepped up production of specially designed military uniforms that repel deadly poison gases, intended for use by American troops being sent to the Persian Gulf area.

Officials of Camel Manufacturing Inc., longtime makers of tents for the military and the camping public, say they have been told by the Defense Department to increase production of their chemical-protective suits.

The tailor-made camouflage suits are intended to protect troops from deadly nerve and mustard gases, such as those Iraq used in its war with Iran.

The Defense Department made an urgent appeal Aug. 6 for the company to make as many suits as possible in the wake of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

The news came just as Camel was tapering off production because of the end of the Cold War and subsequent federal military budget cuts.

The orginal Defense Department contract called for 327,000 suits but that was trimmed to 81,000 in July, according to Arnold.

''They called early Monday morning and requested daily updates on quantities produced,'' said Camel Vice-President Chris Arnold. ''We're still trying to produce as many suits as we possibly can.''

Arnold said Camel's 225 workers are putting in overtime to meet the military's demand of 200 chem-suits a day. But he said the plant would be producing 500 daily if its federal contract had not been cut.

The plant has a capacity of 1,200 suits a day.

The hazardous duty uniforms are made with a cotton-nylon material, rubber and laminated charcoal and are meshed together with a heavy-duty sewing stitch.

''That material absorbs the gas agents. It works the same as a home air conditioner filter. When it gets full it has to be replaced.'' Arnold said.

The deadly gas is heavier than air and flows from the disposable suits like rain from a roof and cannot gather in the suit's pockets or creases, according to Arnold.

A Defense Department quality control inspector checks every chem-suit before it is shipped to an Ohio military installation for distribution.

Arnold said the local plant and one in LaFollette, Tenn., will soon begin producing a hood that also filters the gas.

Drawbacks are that the lightweight uniform is hot and adds about 10 degrees to the temperature and that its olive drab color stands out in the 100-degree desert where they are targeted for use.

But Arnold said the U.S. is getting a great deal on the suits at just $61 each.

''The government is certainly getting a good buy. The chem-suit has a higher quality standard than a man's $2,500 suit,'' he said.

SINGAPORE (AUG. 11) UPI - Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew Saturday cited Iraq's invasion of Kuwait as an object lesson in urging China to persuade the Khmer Rouge to honor a U.N.-brokered settlement of the 11-year-old Cambodian conflict.

China arms the Khmer Rouge, the most powerful of the three resistance parties fighting the Hanoi-backed government in Cambodia.

''China should get the Khmer Rouge to undertake to abide by a U.N.-based settlement,'' Lee said.

At a banquet honoring Chinese Premier Li Peng, he also said the move towards free-market economies in Eastern Europe, the easing of tension between the superpowers and the end of the Cold War have led many political leaders in Europe and the United States to assume ''the disappearance of the old order means an era of peace for mankind.''

Noting that most leaders in Asia do not share that view of the future, Lee said they ''were surprised but not shocked when Iraq sent 100,000 troops to occupy Kuwait in less than seven hours.''

''The world can become a safer place only when an aggressor who invades another, especially a weaker country, is punished, not rewarded,'' Lee said. ''This is the lesson the Vietnamese have to learn for their aggression on Cambodia,'' the country they invaded in 1979.

Li, fresh from the restoration of diplomatic relations with Indonesia, met privately with Lee earlier to accelerate normalized ties with Singapore and discuss international and bilateral issues.

Arriving from the Indonesian resort of Bali, Li became the first senior Chinese leader in almost a decade to visit the island republic.

Li said progress has been made in cooperation between the two countries and he hoped his three-day visit would further open up ''a future of better and more comprehensive relations between China and Singapore.''

Lee, who has long maintained Singapore would follow Indonesia in establishing diplomatic ties with China, said the links would be formally adopted ''in the next few months.''

Officials said that meant during the first two weeks of November, before Lee steps down as prime minister of the city-state he has ruled for 31 years.

Lee hailed the restored friendship between China and Indonesia as ''a major turning point in bilateral relations'' after a rupture in 1967 led to more than two decades of enmity.

China, the world's most populous nation with 1.1 billion people, and Indonesia, ranking fifth with 180 million, formally resumed normalized relations last Wednesday, ending a 23-year freeze.

Jakarta broke off ties with Beijing, charging China with complicity in an unsuccessful coup attempt against President Sukarno in 1965, an accusation China has steadfastly denied.

Singapore and the tiny Southeast Asian sultanate of Brunei have lacked relations with China out of deference to Indonesia although business between Singapore and China has flourished, with trade between the two countries growing from $407 million in 1977 to $2.82 billion last year.

Lee confirmed he will visit China this fall and meet Chinese Communist Party chief Jiang Zemin for the first time.

He said both Singapore and Beijing had been able to keep up consultations since his first visit to China in 1976 and the absence of formal ties did not prevented them from cooperating.

The linkage would amount to another diplomatic setback for Taiwan, which is now recognized by about 20 foreign countries. Last month Beijing scored a diplomatic victory by sealing ties with Saudi Arabia. In response, Taipei suspended diplomatic relations with Riyadh but maintained economic and cultural relationships.

It was expected Singapore would follow a similar formula.

SEOUL, South Korea (AUG. 11) UPI - South Korea cancelled Saturday its offer of free travel next week between the divided peninsula to mark the 45th anniversary of the end of Japanese colonial rule.

Two Seoul officials went to the border village of Panmunjom hoping to hand over a list of 61,355 South Korean wanting to visit North Korea next week but the North's representatives was not there, a government spokesman said.

Because of the North Korean refusal to receive and deliver the roster of visitors, the ''grand inter-Korean exchanges of people'' proposed by South Korea to mark the Aug. 15, 1945, liberation will not take place, the spokesman said.

In an unofficial bid to improve contacts with the North, five Roman Catholic priests tried to reach Panmunjom to contact North Koreans but were turned back by police at a checkpoint 5 miles south of the village.

Authorities said they stopped the priests because North Korea was not responding to official contacts seeking to realize free cross-border travel.

The priests had proposed to celebrate mass in the North Korean capital of Pyongyang on Aug. 15. North Korea said it would welcome them to the North along with South Korean dissidents.

CHICAGO (AUG. 11) UPI - The Chicago Bulls Saturday announced the signing of veteran Horace Grant to a three-year contract extension.

The 6-foot-10 forward led the Bulls in rebounding the last two seasons. He has averaged 7.3 rebounds and 11 points per game during his three years with Chicago.

Grant's contract would have expired at the end of next season, but now will keep him with the club through the 1993-94 campaign.

Bulls officials said the agreement came after eight months of negotiations with Grant's agents, Kyle Rote, Jr. and Jimmy Sexton.

''We are happy to have Horace in the fold for several more years,'' said Jerry Krause, Bulls vice president of basketball operations. ''He has developed into a quality player.''

Terms of the deal were not disclosed.

(AUG. 11) UPI - The African National Congress is trying to distance itself from a controversial remark made by Winnie Mandela, wife of Nelson Mandela. Winnie Mandela on Thursday said the A-N-C's suspension of a 30-year war against the South African government did ''NOT mean a cessation of violence.'' The A-N-C responded by saying- ''Many people make mistakes and sometimes misinterpret.''

In Pakistan, leaders of former Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto's party named a panel of legal experts to advise them on whether to challenge the president's dismissal of her government. A spokesman for Bhutto says any challenge will be filed to a high court or Pakistan's Supreme Court. President Khan ousted Bhutto's 20-month old adminstration, charging nepotism and corruption.

A judge in Los Angeles ordered the Justice Department to release a Mexican doctor who was abducted in Mexico for his alleged connection to the 1985 murder of a U-S drug agent. The judge says the doctor's arrest and extradition to the United States violated international law. The Mexican government strongly criticized the man's arrest.

A Seattle man returned home from a month-long European trip to discover the house-sitters he had hired had turned his home into a drug den. He says he opened the front door to find drug paraphernalia throughout the house, including syringes, dirty spoons and small balloons. Police arrested the woman house-sitter on outstanding warrants. The owner says the next time, he'll ask friends to house-sit.

TROPICAL STORM EDOUARD DISSIPATES OVER COLD WATERS OF ATLANTIC OCEAN

MIAMI (AUG. 11) UPI - Edouard, the fifth tropical storm of the Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season, dissipated Saturday over the cold waters of the Atlantic Ocean.

At noon EDT, the remnants of Edouard were centered near latitude 39 north, longitude 22 west, or about 200 miles east northeast of the island of Terceira in the Azores. The system was moving east at about 12 mph, and that motion was expected to continue throughout the day.

''Edouard was just too far north to do anything, because of the cold waters,'' said Lixion Avila, a meteorologist with the National Hurricane Center near Miami.

On Friday, the storm spent its strength lashing the Azores Islands with 45 mph winds.

Eduoard formed from a tropical depression east of the Azores Wednesday.

Diana, the second storm to reach hurricane strength this year, dissipated Wednesday after slamming Mexico's gulf coast with 110 mph winds, killing three people.

Forecasters also were monitoring three tropical waves, one southwest of the Cape Verde Islands off the coast of Africa, another midway between Africa and the Lesser Antilles, and a third that was bringing showers and thunderstorms to the eastern Caribbean.

''The only one that's a little active is the one west of the Cape Verde Islands. It's a strong wave, but so far no development,'' Avila said.

Forecasters also were monitoring remnants of Tropical Storm Cesar. It flared up again Friday in the central Atlantic several hundred miles east of Bermuda.

''There is a broad area of low pressure on the surface and it does make us think it might regenerate. We're not concerned it's going to pop up overnight,but, given a couple of days, it could,'' forecaster Max Mayfield said.

(AUG. 11) UPI - The 21-nation Arab League is ignoring Iraq's call for a ''holy war'' against the West. Arab leaders meeting in Cairo yesterday voted instead to send peacekeeping troops to Saudi Arabia to prevent Iraq from invading the oil-rich kingdom.

Egypt initially proposed the Arab force to be a buffer on the Saudi-Kuwaiti border and to oversee a negotiated withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait. But Baghdad has made it clear that it has NO intention of withdrawing from Kuwait.

If Arab leaders are ignoring Iraq's call for a holy war... the Arab populace apparently is NOT. One official newspaper in Baghdad reports thousands of Libyan, Tunisian, Algerian, Jordanian and Palestinian volunteers arrived to join Iraq's armies.

Washington, D-C, Mayor Marion Barry scheduled a news conference for this afternoon following his conviction yesterday on only one cocaine possession charge from a 14-count indictment. Supporters called it a victory.

About 19-thousand weary firefighters are battling lightning-sparked blazes particularly in the four hardest-hit states of California, Idaho, Utah and Oregon. Authorities say more than 300-thousand acres have been blackened.

In New York, jurors in the Central Park jogger rape trial begin a third day of deliberations this morning. Three of several men accused of attacking and gang-raping a 30-year-old investment banker are on trial.

NASA scored its first success in several months yesterday by placing the Magellan probe safely in its planned orbit around Venus. The map-making probe should start beaming back sharp radar images of Venus in about three weeks.

(AUG. 11) UPI - South African officials say 40 people were killed and scores wounded after four days of arson, rioting and looting. Authorities say police and army troops have restored order in the mixed-race suburbs of Port Elizabeth.

In Johannesburg, Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu says he's considering nominating both President de Klerk and Nelson Mandela for the Nobel Peace Prize. Tutu, as a Nobel laureate himself, has the right to nominate candidates for the prize.

Federal officials in Pennsylvania say a former aide to Attorney General Thornburgh was indicted yesterday on cocaine use and possession charges. A federal grand jury returned a four-count indictment against Henry Barr.

The American Red Cross says it's reorganizing its blood collection system to ensure people who get transfusions are safe from AIDS and other diseases. The announcement comes in the wake of a government investigation.

In California, a coroner's report says a lethal mixture of morphine and cocaine killed Grateful Dead keyboardist Brent Mydland. The 37-year-old Mydland was found dead July 26th in his suburban home outside San Francisco.

The Soviet news agency Tass says 17 people were killed and 15 injured in an explosion yesterday on a bus near the Nagorno-Karabakh region of Azerbaijan . The explosion has NOT been linked to ethnic strife that has plagued the Soviet republic.

Police in Wetzlar, West Germany, say an unspecified number of explosives experts were killed Thursday night while trying to defuse a bomb from World War Two. The bomb was apparently dropped by U-S bombers.

LONDON (AUG. 11) UPI - Kuwaiti resistance fighters are mounting hit-and-run attacks on Iraqi troops in the occupied capital and Kuwaitis in general are not cooperating with the increasing numbers of Iraqi military and political officials, news reports said Saturday.

The Financial Times, a London-based newspaper, said in what it described as an eyewitness report of life in occupied Kuwait that Kuwaiti snipers occasionally harass Iraqi soldiers.

The Washington Post newspaper, in a similar report, said the sound of automatic weapons fire can be heard every night in the capital, even a week after Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion.

Demonstrators - most of them women - have protested the occupation in city streets and posters condemning the invasion have been plastered on buildings across town, both newspapers said.

Anti-Iraqi radio broadcasts have been clandestinely aired over ''This is Kuwait'' radio, praising underground fighters and calling on Iraqi soldiers to surrender their weapons, the report said. It said the Kuwaiti flag still flies over the emir's damaged Dasman Palace.

A member of the Kuwaiti resistance told the Financial Times its fighters were trying to create confusion with their hit-and-run attacks.

Most of the deposed royal family and liberal opposition leaders were in hiding, and Kuwaitis were said to fear an American attack or an Iraqi retaliatory strike against Kuwait if Baghdad is attacked, the newspaper reported.

But many Kuwaitis were reported to have protested after Friday prayers and leaflets and pictures of the emir, the ousted Kuwaiti ruler, were distributed throughout the city center, the newspaper said.

The Washington Post reported Saturday that Kuwait appeared to be without any civil administration. It said Iraqi Baath Party officials were moving into one Kuwait City hotel, but there was no police protection.

The Financial Times said electricity and water service continued, but Kuwaitis were burning garbage in the streets and had not returned to work. Electronics and jewelry shops have been plundered in the center of the city. Roads are littered with burned out armored cars and trucks and dozens of cars abandoned in the panic after the invasion, the paper said.

Banks have been closed and ration cards are being used in some areas. Some shops that have remained open have been required to accept Iraqi currency at a new rate of 1 to 1 for the Kuwaiti dinar. Before the invasion, one Kuwaiti dinar was worth 10 of the Iraqi currency.

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AUG. 11) UPI - President Bush said Saturday he believes the United States now has the authority to stop the movement of Iraqi ships and suggested he would like to see the overthrow of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

Bush said the United States is not preparing to oust Saddam, but expressed hope the Iraqi people may rise up if their leader does not halt his violent ways.

Speaking with reporters on the steps of his seaside home after consultations with his top advisers, Bush also praised an Arab League resolution that condemned Iraq and opened the way for Arab troops to stand should-to-shoulder with U.S. soldiers against Saddam.

''We're not prepared to support the overthrow, but I hope (that the economic pressures and military buildup taken against Saddam) result in an Iraq that is prepared to live peacefully,'' Bush said.

Bush said, ''If this means that Saddam changes his spots, so be it. If not I hope the Iraqi people do something about it so that their leader lives by the norms of international behavior.''

Bush said he believes that some countries are hopeful that there will be an overthrow but refused to specficially say whether the United States is among them.

Bush said he believes the United States, backed up by numerous other nations, has the authority to impose a naval blockade of Iraq under U.N. sanctions approved last week.

Earlier in the day Bush telephoned Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak to congratulate him for rallying Arab nations against a defiant Iraq and for committing Egyptian troops to stand with American soldiers against Saddam.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said that no Iraqi oil is moving through pipelines in Saudi Arabia or Turkey, and confirmed reports that 11 Americans have been permitted to leave Iraq and enter Jordan.

Bush, who began a three-week working vacation Friday, conferred at his seaside home Saturday with Secretaray of State James Baker, who met 24 hours earlier with NATO allies in Brussels, Belgium.

The Atlantic alliance Friday unanimously supported U.S. economic sanctions and military buildup against Iraq for Baghdad's Aug. 2 takeover of Kuwait.

Although NATO said it would not commit troops to the effort, individual member nations may do so. Many have already begun, including Britain, France and Canada.

Mubarak was host to a meeting of the Arab League in Cairo on Friday, during which it passed a resolution that condemned Iraqi aggression and provided a basis for individual Arab nations to commit forces to a multinational force.

Egypt said it was already sending troops. Morocco and Syria were reportedly poised to do so.

Fitzwater said Bush, in his predawn telephone call with the Egyptian leader, ''praised President Mubarak's constructive role in securing passage of the resolution to send Arab troops to participate in a multinational force.''

The press secretary said, ''The president said the Arab League action was very favorable and gives us significant optimism for the future of the mission.''

Fitzwater said Bush Saturday also telephoned Emir Isabin Salman al Khalifa of Bahrain ''to thank him for his efforts'' on behalf of the Arab resolution and planned to call Emir Khalifa bin Hamad al-Thani of Qatar.

''The United States welcomes the participation of so many countries in our joint efforts to fight aggression of Saddam Hussein,'' Fitzwater said.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AUG. 11) UPI - Wayne Grady survived an early trip into the treacherous rough and parred the first two holes Saturday to maintain a one-shot lead over Larry Mize as the leaders began play in the third round of the PGA Championship.

Grady, who lost the British Open in a playoff last year to Mark Calcavecchia, opened the round at 5-under par and stayed there through two holes. He hit his opening tee shot into the rough, knocked his second over the green into the rough again and still made par.

Mize was alone at 4-under through two holes after a pair of pars while Chip Beck, Fred Couples and defending champion Payne Stewart were both at 3-under. Beck started his round with two pars, Couples lost a shot at the first hole and Stewart was 2-under for the day through three holes.

Stewart is trying to become the first player since 1937 to successfully defend his PGA crown.

Ahead of the leaders, meanwhile, Greg Norman was 2-under for the day through six and even for the tournament. Gil Morgan was 1-under for the event going to the 18th tee, having played the first 17 holes in 6-under.

Nick Faldo, trying to become the second player in history to win three major professional tournaments in the same year, played the front nine in 4-over 40 and was 6-over for the tourney.

(AUG. 11) UPI - Egypt is sending thousands of troops to the Persian Gulf as part of an Arab peace-keeping force to block further Iraqi aggression. Egypt's move follows yesterday's Arab League decision to establish such a pan-Arab force. A Western diplomat in Cairo says ''several thousand'' Egyptian paratroopers are headed for the Gulf.

With several thousand American troops already in Saudi Arabia and more to come, the United States continues to talk tough to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. President Bush warns Saddam NOT to try to ship oil through the Persian Gulf and says he supports the Arab leaders' pledge to protect Saudi Arabia.

President Bush says he refuses to be ''held hostage in the White House'' by the Middle East crisis, and yesterday left for a 25-day vacation at his seaside home in Kennebunkport, Maine. The president says he will continue to monitor events in the Middle East and meet with his advisers while enjoying his vacation.

KARACHI, Pakistan (AUG. 11) UPI - Ousted Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto announced Saturday she will petition the Supreme Court to declare unconstitutional President Ghulam Ishaq Khan's dismissal of her government.

Bhutto told a news conference the Central Committee of her Pakistan Peoples Party made the decision at a meeting Saturday, acting on the advice of a team of legal experts.

She said the petition would be presented within the next week.

Ishaq Khan sacked Bhutto's 20-month-old administration last Monday, accusing it of ''corruption and nepotism'' and of failing to control escalating ethnic violence. He then dissolved the National Assembly and declared a state of emergency.

The president scheduled elections for Oct. 24 and set up an interim government headed by opposition leader Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi.

''We will pray the Supreme Court for an early decision and at the same time we will go with full force toward the general elections in October,'' the 37-year-old Bhutto said.

She has charged the army, which has ruled Pakistan for more then half of its 43-year existence, was behind the dismissal move.

She told the news conference the PPP Central Committee unanimously decided to file a writ in the Supreme Court against ''the illegal, unconstitutional and undemocratic action of the president.''

As president, Ishaq Khan has the right to dismiss the government if he believes it has failed to carry out its responsibilities to the nation. But some constitutional experts have said the president may have transcended his powers.

However, some PPP leaders have expressed fears that if they challenge the decision in the courts, the interim government could use their action as an excuse to postpone the elections.

Bhutto also told the news conference she would refuse to apear before any special tribunal set up by the caretaker government, as would any member of her party.

''I will only appear before the normal court of law and not the one chosen by handpicked persons. I am accountable only to the people of Pakistan and the Parliament''.

Jatoi has warned that his interim administration will investigate charges of corruption against PPP legislators and others and ''make them accountable.'' Official sources have said the government is planning to set up special ''speedy trial'' courts for those accused.

Bhutto became prime minister in December 1988 following the first democratic elections in Pakistan in 11 years.

In Islamabad, meanwhile, authorities arrested five Pakistani journalists as they left the home of an Indian diplomat, the newsmen said Saturday.

They said they were arrested late Friday and accused of drinking alcohol, charges they denied. They later were freed on bail.

All are due to appear at a preliminary hearing Aug. 31. Pakistan, as an Islamic nation, forbids the sale or consumption of alcohol. If found guilty, the journalists could receive a maximum sentence of three years imprisonment and a flogging.

Several newspapers have criticized Bhutto's dismissal as prime minister and some journalists interpreted the arrests as an attempt by the caretaker government to intimidate the press.

WASHINGTON (UPI)- U.S. and Saudi officials said Saturday that the window of opportunity for an Iraqi conquest of Saudi Arabia's oil fields has been closed by the rapid international buildup of forces but the danger of war has not passed.

Saudi Ambassador Prince Bandar bin Sultan and other sources confirmed that Egyptian, Syrian, British, French, Moroccan, as well as American forces are already in Saudi Arabia, or will be within the next few hours.

That includes five squadrons of aircraft, made up of U.S. F-15s, A-10 ground attack planes, British Tornados and Jaguars, in addition to a residual force of 60 Saudi F-15s and a number of British Jaguars, as well as five American AWACS early warning and command planes.

Bandar confirmed that the entire Kuwaiti air force of 48 Mirage F-1s and A-4 Skyhawks is in Saudi Arabia and eluded capture by the invading Iraqis.

Bandar said that a deliberate Saudi decision was made to request air power first to meet the imminent threat of invasion by four Iraqi divisions stationed inside Kuwait, astride the only available invasion route into Saudi Arabia.

One diplomatic source said that if the Iraqis had moved before Wednesday, they would have been unstoppable. But, one official said, ''Saddam Hussein would have to be crazy to attack now.''

Bandar, talking to a small group of reporters, said that the unpredictability of the Iraqi president could not be eliminated as a factor in the equation. He said Saddam had given flat assurances to King Fahd of Saudi Arabia, President Bush, Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and other world leaders he would not attack his neighbors.

Bandar said, ''If you had asked me one hour before the invasion of Kuwait what we would do in such a case, I would have laughed and said I wouldn't deal with such a ridiculous hypothetical question.''

Once the invasion was launched on Aug. 2, Fahd tried to reach Saddam to ask him his intentions, but was stalled for 36 hours and he was then assured that Iraq had no designs on Saudi Arabia.

But, by then U.S. and other intelligence had detected seven Iraqi divisions moving south, with four divisions massed just on the other side of the Saudi border in an area described by Bandar as ''a highway for tanks,'' a flat desert with nothing to stop an armored column moving south into Saudi Arabia's eastern province with its vast oil fields.

At that point, last Saturday, when it was clear that Saddam was trying to buy time to build up his forces, Bandar said Fahd called Bush and asked for help. On Sunday Bush made the decision to send U.S. airpower, guarded by ground units.

Bandar said the next phase of the situation may switch the requirement to tanks and anti-tank units, but the prompt arrival of air power has essentially closed the window of opportunity for Saddam.

But, he emphasized, that the military buildup in Saudi Arabia is strictly defensive and therefore does not provide any incentive for Iraq to withdraw its forces from Kuwait.

That will require a full-scale naval blockade of Iraqi shipping, both to stop any oil exports from Iraq to earn income, and any in-bound ships that might be carrying badly needed military spare parts or food.

One source estimated that Iraq has about 2 1/2 months of food supply available and then the food shortage will have political implications for Saddam and his design to become leader of one pan-Arabic nation.

But, the source warned, Saddam is insulated from the general population ''and his refrigerator will be full'' until the last day. But after that he will feel the pressure to pull back from Kuwait.

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AUG. 11) UPI - Eleven of the hundreds of Americans in Iraq and Kuwait, including a 10-year-old California girl who was traveling alone when the Persian Gulf crisis began, were allowed Saturday to leave Iraq and cross into Jordan, the U.S. government said.

Secretary of State James Baker said that negotiations were continuing with Iraq on the remaining Americans and that the U.S. government still does not regard them as hostages of the regime of Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

''We are pleased to confirm that 11 Americans, including Penelope Nabokov, have been able to leave Iraq and cross the border into Jordan,'' White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said in a statement issued from Kennebunkport, where President Bush is vacationing.

''We do not have details on their departure, but it is encouraging that this group has been able to join other Americans in leaving Iraq and Kuwait,'' Fitzwater said.

Nabokov, a resident of Albany, Calif., had been among scores of Americans detained at the Rashid hotel in Baghdad until she was turned over to the U.S. Embassy on Wednesday by Iraqi authorities.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said the 10 Americans who left Iraq with Nabokov were all staff members and dependents from the U.S. Embassy in Baghdad.

The diplomats and their dependents had been turned back Friday in an attempt to leave Iraq, although they had been told by Iraqi officials they were free to leave.

Penelope, the daughter of Peter and Isabelle Nabokov, was taken off a British Airways jet when it landed in Kuwait as the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion was under way.

''My wife, Isabelle, and I are extremely happy, extremely gratified to have this ordeal over with,'' Peter Nabokov said in a prepared statement released from his California home.

Nabokov, an archaeologist, had said earlier his daughter had been visiting her grandparents in France and was flying to join her mother, a graduate student in anthropology who is at a dig in India.

A State Department official said Friday only about 1,600 Americans have been positively identified as being in Iraq and Kuwait and that it is hoped the original estimate of 3,000 is too high.

Some Americans have been able to get into Jordan from Iraq or into Saudi Arabia from Kuwait, according to the State Department, but a spokesman said many more Americans and other Westerners have been turned back at border posts.

Secretary of State James Baker, after briefing Bush in Kennebunkport Saturday on his consultations Friday with NATO allies in Brussels, told reporters that the United States was ''still discussing this matter with the government of Iraq.''

''We're hopeful that we'll be able to resolve the situations,'' Baker said. ''It does, after all, run against all international norms, the fact that American citizens, and other foreign nationals as well, are not permitted to leave Iraq or to leave Kuwait.

Baker said the U.S. government still did not consider Americans in Iraq or Kuwait to be hostages.

''Nothing has been demanded or asked in connection with permitting them to leave the country, for one thing,'' Baker said, ''and we think it would be a mistake to characterize it as a hostage situation, and to use a word like that since we are in discussions with respect to the matter. And, as far as we know, no American citizens have yet been mistreated.''

On Friday, the State Department issued a warning to all Americans, saying the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait may heighten the risk of terrorist attacks against U.S. citizens or installations.

SRINAGAR, India (AUG. 12) UPI - An Indian military unit, enraged by a militant ambush attack that wounded four soldiers, went on a rampage in a northern Kashmir Valley village overnight, killing at least 18 people, police sources said Saturday.

But a police official in Kashmir said he was unaware of the alleged killings of civilians in the village of Panzgam, 70 miles northwest of the state capital of Srinagar. He said 12 militants had been slain by the army during a shootout in the town.

In a separate incident, paramilitary troops torched 41 houses and shops Friday night in the village of Sri Gufwara south of Srinagar, said the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

They said the killings in Panzgam occurred after Moslem separatists ambushed a military patrol outside the village, wounding four soldiers. The militants escaped after the shooting.

Authorities ordered a massive manhunt for the attackers following the ambush. Soldiers entered the nearby Panzgam village and launched a house-to-house search for the militants, the sources said.

Police sources said soldiers ordered the residents out of their homes during the search, angering a number of villagers who began to chant slogans against the Indian army.

Soldiers opened fire on the villagers, killing at least 18 people, the sources said.

J.N. Saksena, the police chief of the Jammu and Kashmir state, denied reports of civilian deaths, saying the military shot dead 12 militants during a gun battle.

''I have no information except that 12 militants were shot dead,'' the police official said.

The second incident occurred in Sri Gufwara, 30 miles south of Srinagar, when rebels of the Jammu and Kashmir Liberation Front, a Moslem militant group leading the separatist campaign, ambushed a two paramilitary vehicles, wounding two soldiers.

Angry paramilitary police launched a retaliatory attack against the village, setting ablaze 41 houses and shops, the police sources and witnesses said.

A spokesman for the Jammu and Kashmir Liberation Front claimed 10 soldiers were killed in the ambush.

''We know that a fire has taken place. We can't say who is responsible for this and an inquiry has been instituted,'' said a senior state government official when asked about the incident.

Secessionist violence has become a daily occurrence in the Moslem-dominated Kashmir region since mid-January, when a 2-year-old secessionist movement flared into a popular uprising against Indian rule.

Since then more than 700 people have been killed in the violence, and tensions have risen between India and neighboring Pakistan.

Both nations claim sovereignty over Kashmir, with India occupying two-thirds of the region and Pakistan in control of the remainder.

India and Pakistan have fought three wars in the disputed region, and New Delhi accuses Islamabad of inflaming the situation in the Kashmir Valley by arming and training the Moslem militants.

Islamabad denies the accusations but acknowledges moral support for the secessionist movement.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 11) UPI - U.S. and Saudi officials said Saturday they believe that the international show of solidarity against Iraq and the rapid buildup of a military forces in Saudi Arabia have deterred an invasion of Saudi Arabia.

But the officials said that a full-press naval blockade to enforce the United Nations and Arab League economic sanctions will be required to force Saddam Hussein to pull his seven armored divisions out of Kuwait and to restore Kuwaiti sovereignty.

The strategy appeared to rule out the possibility of a military attack by the multi-national force or the Saudis against the Iraqis.

As the officials described it, the economic sanctions remain the foundation of the international consensus to stop Iraq. The necessary short-term deterrence against an Iraqi invasion of Saudi Arabia was provided by a rapid international buildup of air power inside Saudi Arabia and aboard aircraft carriers near the Persian Gulf.

But, the officials said, something more will be required to give Saddam an incentive to pull his forces back and to restore Kuwaiti sovereignty. That will have to be a naval blockade.

The officials said that Iraq's pipelines to the outside world - its main source of needed revenue - have now been shut down by Turkey and Saudi Arabia, in accordance with the mandatory economic sanctions ordered by the United Nations, and backed by a majority in the Arab League.

The next step will be a total ban on Iraqi ships, or ships loaded in Iraq, from moving through the Straits of Hormuz.

The Saudi ambassador to the United States, Prince Bandar bin Sultan, said, ''We are not talking about Germany here, with an economy that could survive ten years with a blockade. This is an economy that has been ruined by eight years of war and misrule and is bad to begin with.''

Bandar said, ''You can't have 1 million men under arms without imports. They have to import everything, from spare parts to wheat. We don't think that the invasion was planned out beforehand, and this means that they did not have the necessary stockpiles before they moved into Kuwait.''

Another diplomatic official estimated that Iraq has between two and three months supply of food on hand, with essentially no domestic agricultural industry left to supply the population with food.

But the official warned that the dictatorial Saddam, insulated from the hardships his population might feel by aides who justifiably fear his anger, will be the last to learn that there is an emergency.

President Bush has hinted, in remarks to reporters traveling with him to Maine, that the United States is prepared to move to the next step of a nval blockade, in order to bring pressure on Saddam to pull back from Kuwait.

U.S. and Saudi officials have just begun discussions on how to pay for the expenses of creating an instantaneous military force to guard against further Iraqi agression.

One suggestion, put forward by U.S. officials, is that Saudi Arabia pay the fuel bill for U.S. ships and planes.

One diplomatic source said that Saudi Arabia is inclined to agree. But the Saudis are also anxious to avoid giving the impression that the Americans, and other foreign members of the multinational force, are in Saudi Arabia as mercenaries.

The Saudis and other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries have also begun discussions on how to make up the estimated 4 million barrels of day of oil that will be lost to world markets by the blockade of Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil exports.

Saudi sources that it is inclined to go along with requests for increased production in order to keep prices down but it will also be keeping a close eye on oil companies to make sure that they do not make speculative profits from the current shortage by selling oil, that they bought at $17 a barrel for $21 a barrel because of the gulf crisis.

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AUG. 11) UPI - Two wildfires that scorched over 18,000 acres west of Yosemite Valley spread at a slower rate Saturday as bulldozers built protective lines around a historic grove of giant sequoia trees.

''As long as the winds stay down, we're in pretty good shape,'' said Allison Anzalone, a spokeswoman for the fire bosses. ''The fires have slowed down quite a bit. It's not a big raging flame, like it was earlier.''

Yosemite Valley, a part of the 761,000-acre Yosemite National Park, remained a virtual ghost town following the Friday evacuation of nearly 15,000 visitors. Phone lines into Yosemite have melted in the fires and only cellular phones kept valley rangers and employees linked to the outside world.

The closure of the park Friday fouled travel plans for thousands of tourists from around the world. At least two weddings planned for the valley were canceled.

Fire officials would not estimate when the park, which features groves of sequoias thousands of years old, would be reopened or when the lightning-caused blazes brought under control. Dozens of small lightning strikes burned unattended in the park's high country because of a shortage of firefighters.

Campground and valley hotel refugees who left personal belongings behind were told they could pick them up Saturday at the park's western entrances. Nearby mountain communities flooded with the evacuees reported temporary shortages of gasoline and groceries.

The bigger of the two fires, the so-called ''A-Rock Fire'', was burning in a northeasterly direction and had blackened 13,000 acres along the Merced River Canyon by Saturday morning. Farther south, across the canyon, the Steamboat fire had burned over 5,000 acres.

Bulldozers were used to establish protective lines around the Crane Flat Campground and gas station and the Merced grove of sequoias.

Anzalone said sequoias are naturally fire-resistant, but drought conditions coupled with high winds could damage some of the world's largest trees if the fire jumped the protective line.

The A-Rock fire swept through the Merced River Canyon resort community of Foresta on Thursday. Anzalone said the fire had destroyed 74 cabins and other structures in the village along with 14 vehicles. Only six buildings remained standing.

There were 1,000 firefighters on the lines late Friday with plans to import 1,000 more during the weekend from several Western states.

''Lack of people is our biggest problem,'' U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman Sue Exline said.

Exline said an inversion layer holding the smoke close to the ground continued to hamper air tankers although some flights were made Saturday morning.

The two big fires, about 3 miles apart, were burning easterly or northeasterly toward Yosemite Valley, but officials said the famed valley is in no immediate danger.

(AUG. 11) UPI - Egypt today sent several thousand troops to the troubled Persian Gulf area... the advance guard for a pan-Arab peace-keeping force to block an Iraqi invasion of Saudi Arabia. The Arab League decision to send a multi-national Arab force to the region and enforce U-N sanctions against Iraq produced heated rhetoric in Iraqi media. Baghdad Radio today referred to the Arab League as ''evil-doers'' acting at the behest of what it called ''their master America.''

Egyptian officials declined to provide force levels or destinations, but a Western diplomat in Cairo said ''several thousand'' Egyptian paratroopers were heading to Saudi Arabia. Morocco and Syria also are reported preparing to send troops for the pan-Arab force.

The State Department reported in Washington that at least 11 Americans- including a 10-year-old California girl traveling the world alone- were allowed to leave Iraq and crossed into Jordan today. GROTON, Conn. (AUG. 11) UPI - The submarine USS Kentucky was christened Saturday with a bottle of bourbon instead of the traditional champagne as peace activists denounced the missile-firing boat as ''a floating anachronism.''

About 70 people protested outside the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics, where Navy brass and dignitaries from Kentucky gathered under steady rain for the christening of the Trident submarine.

Ten people were arrested on minor charges during the peaceful demonstration for attempting to block entrances to the sprawling Thames River shipyard, police said. All were released by mid-afternoon.

''At this time, when war in the Mideast is so imminent, the group gathered to remind those of Connecticut and the United States of the danger of nuclear war that we still face,'' said Stephen Kobasa of the group Witness for Disarmament.

''We say the Cold War is over, but we go on building the weapons,'' Kobasa said of the Kentucky, which will be equipped to carry 24 Trident II nuclear missiles.

The group Greenpeace Action mocked a decision to have a bottle of Kentucky bourbon smashed across the bow instead of the traditional bottle of French champagne.

''The Navy should sober up. Instead of kicking the habit, they are going for the hard stuff,'' said Carol Bellin, who is active in the Greenpeace Action Nuclear Free Seas campaign.

''The Trident system was sold to Congress in the late 60's and 1970's as a product of the Cold War. It's already obsolete, it's a floating anachronism,'' Bellin said.

The Kentucky is the first submarine and third naval ship to carry the name. The first Kentucky was a confederate transport captured by the Union Navy in 1862.

The second Kentucky was an early battleship that also was used during World War I for training. Construction of an Iowa-class battleship that would have carried the name was stopped in 1947 before the ship was commissioned.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 11) UPI - President Bush's call for a multinational military force to protect Saudi Arabia from a possible Iraqi attack had by Saturday produced concrete responses from a number of countries, including Britain, Egypt, Australia, France, Canada and Germany. The Soviet Union also had forces in the region the Kremlin said it would consider contributing. Italy will decide in a few days whether to send military units.

Here is a summary of the forces committed to the region, en route or offered under various circumstances.

United States

U.S. sources say the total U.S. ground force in Saudi Arabia for ''Operation Desert Shield'' could soon reach 50,000. The Washington Post reported Saturday 200,000 American troops could be deployed by this fall.

Nine cruisers and frigates comprising the Navy's Joint Task Force-Middle East were in the Persian Gulf. The 80-plane aircraft carrier USS Eisenhower was in the Red Sea leading a battle group that includes at least three other warships and two supply vessels. A second battle group led by the the carrier USS Independence was in the Northern Arabian Sea, accompanied by four other warships and two supply ships. The carrier USS Saratoga was en route to the Mediterranean with a third battle group made up of at least eight warships and a number of supply ships.

The United States is sending 48 F-16 fighter jets and about 2,300 troops from the 24th Infantry Division with artillery, armored vehicles and attack helicopters to Saudi Arabia.

In addition, the Navy is sending to the Persian Gulf region its two large hospital ships - the USNS Mercy from Oakland, Calif., and the USNS Comfort from Baltimore - each with 1,000 beds and facilities to treat victims of poison gas.

About 4,000 Marines from the 7th Marine Amphibious Brigade at Twentynine Palms, Calif., were preparing to ship out to Saudi Arabia.

U.S. forces currently in Saudi Arabia include about 2,300 U.S. troops of the 82nd Airborne Division from Fort Bragg, N.C., 48 Air Force F-15 Eagle fighter jets from Langley Air Force Base, Va., and five AWACS early-warning radar planes.

The Pentagon said Air Force F-16 ''Fighting Falcon'' fighters from Shaw Air Force Base, S.C., and C-130 transport aircraft from Pope Air Force Base, N.C., are now arriving in Saudi Arabia.

Defense sources said there were two squadrons of F-16s, a total of 48 jets.

''Elements of the 24th Infantry Division (Mechanized), Fort Stewart, Ga., are moving ... to the port of Savannah, where they will begin loading aboard the U.S. Navy fast-sealift ship, USNS Capella, for deployment to Saudi Arabia,'' the Pentagon said.

Defense sources said a brigade - about 2,300 troops - were being sent along with artillery, armored vehicles and and tank-killing attack helicopters.

When these F-16s and infantrymen arrive, the United States will have nearly 100 jet fighters on the ground in Saudi Arabia - along with another 160 fighter and attack jets on two nearby aircraft carriers - and a total of about 5,000 ground troops, not counting the 4,000 Marines preparing to go.

Others expected to be sent include members of the Army's 101 Airborne Division from Fort Campbell, Ky., and the 1st Marine Amphibious Brigade based on Okinawa.

Combat-ready units from Fort Bliss, Texas, trained in desert warfare, may be deployed to the Middle East, spokeswomen for the Army base said Friday.

At Camp Pendleton, Calif., Marine officials declined comment on troop movements. But the California Highway Patrol said that large numbers of trucks entering the base backed up morning commuters on I-5 in northern San Diego County.

(AUG. 11) UPI - Secretary of State Baker is headed to Kennebunkport, Maine, to update President Bush on the Persian Gulf crisis and his meeting with NATO allies in Belgium. Baker is expected to arrive at the Bush summer home at noon, E-D-T... accompanied by national security adviser

In the Middle East, several thousand Egyptian troops are headed to the Persian Gulf area, with Morocco and Syria also reportedly preparing to send troops. Egypt's move to immediately make good on an Arab League decision yesterday to form a pan-Arab force emphasizes a growing rift among Arabs.

The National Weather Service says that what once was a tropical storm is now just a tropical depression... and it is expected to dissipate. PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 12) UPI - Five young men were sentenced Saturday to life in prison for the death last summer of a 17-year-old boy in a racially motivated attack.

The Common Pleas Court jury deliberated less than two hours before sentencing Juan Gonzales, 18, James Sanders, 21, James Martinez, 18, Rafael Droz, 20, and Alexis Rodriguez, 20. All are residents of Philadelphia.

The panel began its deliberations about 11:30 a.m. Saturday. The jury Wednesday convicted the five of first-degree murder in the May 1989 killing of Sean Daily, the white son of a Philadelphia police officer.

Family members of the defendants, all of whom are Hispanic, reacted emotionally as the life sentences were read by the jury foreman in the packed sixth-floor courtroom.

One woman screamed and ran down the hallway, and another woman fainted. The mothers of all defendants had made passionate appeals for mercy earlier in the proceedings.

After the sentences were announced, members of the Puerto Rican Justice Defense Coalition blocked the hallway so reporters and photographers could not talk to or take pictures of family members or others involved in the case.

Outside City Hall, protestors chanted ''No justice, no peace'' and ''Defendants don't worry. The community is with you.'' as the defendants were led into a van for the trip to Holmesburg Prison.

Protestors, who have been outside City Hall almost every day of the eight-week trial, also called the news media and Judge Lynne Abraham ''racists.''

The judge had placed a gag order on everyone involved in the case. The order expired when the verdicts were announced.

Defense attorneys vowed to appeal the verdicts.

''There are many issues including the judge's decision not to sever the case that could be grounds for appeal,'' said attorney Joseph Armenti.

Prosecutors had asked for the death penalty because of the savagery of the attack on Daily, who was beaten with baseball bats and then shot to death.

The attack was in response to an attack one week earlier by a group of whites against Droz, the leader of the attack on Daily.

Testimony in the case indicated that the five went to the city's Port Richmond section from their neighborhood to exact revenge. Daily, who was not involved in the earlier fight, was attacked as he and friends sat outside drinking beer.

The trial has sparked protests throughout the city's Hispanic community, and concerns over tensions generated by the trial have led to unprecedented courthouse security.

Nearly 40 deputy sheriffs and a large contingent of city police officers were on hand when the verdict was read.

Two other men - Bezaliel Hernandez and Edwin Desamour, both 18 - were convicted of third-degree murder and will be sentenced at a later date.

Three other youths involved in the attack - Mark Rivera, Daniel Sanchez and Aidan Soto - pleaded guilty to third-degree murder before the trial began and testified for the prosecution.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 12) UPI - Mayor Marion Barry asked city residents Saturday for forgiveness ''for any hurt I may have caused,'' a day after his conviction on one of the 14 cocaine and perjury counts against him.

But in his first public statement since the abrupt end to his 10-week trial, Barry also asked the U.S. Attorney's office to ''examine its conduct'' after the case ended with a hung jury on 12 of the counts and acquittal on another.

U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens said he will announce at a Sept. 17 court hearing whether Barry will be retried, but the mayor called on Stephens to let the jury's ruling ''be our last judgment.''

''Just as I've examined my conduct and changed my outlook, the United States government must examine its conduct ... must realize we are a democracy,'' Barry said. ''American citizens should not have to walk around in fear that their constitutional rights and civil liberties are being eroded and trampled, and Big Brother is all powerful and all knowing.''

Barry admitted the trial had exposed ''deep divisions and racism in our community,'' but called on residents of Washington to unite.

''I ask all of you, young or old, black or white, Jew or gentile, rich or poor ... I ask you to forgive me for any hurt I may have caused,'' Barry said in his most apologetic public statement since his Jan. 18 arrest as part of an FBI sting operation.

''I hope that any of you who feel or harbor resentment and vengeance can let go. Let go of the past, let go of the hate,'' Barry said. ''I'm praying that my strongest supporters can join hands with my strongest detractors and lay our burdens down.''

Barry, who announced two months ago he would not seek a fourth term in office, did not discuss his political plans. He has until midnight Monday to switch parties were he to run as an independent candidate for mayor or for an at-large seat on the City Council in the Nov. 6 general election. The date for filing as a Democrat has passed.

Barry's attorney, R. Kenneth Mundy, warned Stephens: ''We stand ... ready to release the dove of peace, or if necessary to rearm our arsenal of war.

''I would ask the government to be measured and careful in its thought about whether it wants to inflict further upon this community a retrial or regurgitation of all that we've been through,'' Mundy said.

In beginning his speech to several hundred supporters, Barry touched on a religious theme, saying: ''Amazing grace, how sweet the sound, that saved a wretch like me. I once was lost, but now I'm found, was blind, but now I see.'' The crowd gave him a two-minute standing ovation.

In a moving 15-minute speech at which he talked often of God, Barry also referred to repeated testimony in the trial of his extramarital affairs, and cried while thanking his wife, Effi.

''I was behaving in a way that was not in keeping with the vows I had made to my wife, not in keeping with the way God expected me to be. ... I've asked my wife for forgiveness, and she has granted it. Thank you, Effi, so much,'' Barry said, biting his lower lip as he cried.

Barry was convicted Friday on one misdemeanor cocaine possession count and acquitted of another by a federal jury that declared itself hopelessly deadlocked on 12 other drug and perjury charges. U.S. District Judge Thomas Penfield Jackson declared a mistrial on the 12 counts.

With the conviction on the single count, Barry faces a maximum sentence of one year in prison and a $100,000 fine. But as a first-time offender in the eyes of the court, Barry is not expected to receive a prison sentence.

Under city law, he would be precluded from holding office only if jailed after a felony conviction.

Had he been convicted of all charges, Barry could have been sentenced to 26 years in prison and fined $1.85 million.

Outside court Friday, Stephens defended the government's probe of Barry's ''six-year pattern of drug and cocaine abuse.''

Ten government witnesses during the trial testified Barry used cocaine or obtained the drug dating back to 1983, and an FBI videotape of the Jan. 18 sting showed Barry taking two long puffs of crack cocaine.

Mundy argued that the most damaging witnesses were compromised by plea agreements or grants of immunity, and said the government entrapped Barry.

CAIRO, Egypt (AUG. 12) UPI - Iraq's invasion of Kuwait has ripped open several Arab alliances, placing Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein and Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak at the head of separate camps competing for influence in the Arab world.

Mubarak's strongest partner in his efforts to stifle Saddam is Syrian President Hafez Assad, whose relations with Egypt until last year were in disrepair because of Damascus's opposition to the Camp David peace accord with Israel.

At the same time, however, Iraq has since the invasion of Kuwait started making overtures to Syria, its longstanding ideological foe.

In the first official visit to Damascus by a high-level Iraqi official since the two countries broke relations in 1980, the Iraqi oil minister discussed the possibility of opening an unused pipeline through Syria to counter the shutdown of Iraq's oil flow across Saudi Arabia and Turkey.

Jordan's King Hussein is faced with trouble each way he turns. Iraq and Jordan have strengthened their alliance in the recent year, prompting Israel to warn against any closer military cooperation or placement of Iraqi troops on Jordanian soil.

But the Jordanian monarch cannot ignore the rising prominence of Moslem fundamentalists and the growing Palestinian population in his country. Since the U.S. deployment of troops in Saudi Arabia, Jordan has been a focal point for fierce pro-Iraqi demonstrations and strong calls for Hussein not to backtrack on support for Saddam.

Despite his political longevity and skill for survival - the king marked his 38th year on the throne Saturday - Hussein faces a tough test as Jordanians and Palestinians view Saddam as a national hero and defender of the Arab nation.

One longstanding alliance, that includes Egypt, Iraq, Jordan and Yemen and is know as the Arab Cooperation Council, perhaps may never regain its footing.

While Yemen abstained from the Arab League's call for an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and a pan-Arab force, hundreds of pro-Iraqi demonstrators broke into the Saudi Arabian Embassy in Yemen Saturday and tried to storm the American and Egyptian missions.

Another alliance shaken by the Iraqi invasion was the Gulf Cooperation Council of Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Bahrain, Qatar, Oman and the United Arab Emirates, which lacked the backbone and military might to make good on its pledge to defend any council member under attack.

Despite its non-aggression treaty with Iraq, Saudi Arabia's fears that it was next on Saddam's hit list allowed the introduction of U.S. forces onto Saudi soil.

In his escalating war of words against the West and his Gulf state neighbors, Saddam incited Arabs to rise up against ''corrupt'' leaders he described as the servants of America.

Saddam's only outright supporters at the emergency Arab summit were Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization, echoing the Iraqi call to toss out U.S. and foreign forces in the Persian Gulf.

PLO chief Yasser Arafat's estrangement from Cairo has been developing over the last few months, with Egyptian newspapers criticizing Arafat despite Mubarak's efforts at trying to bring about Israeli-Palestinian talks.

A wild card in the Middle East is non-Arab Iran, Iraq's tough enemy in its eight-year war.

Iran has not sided specifically either with its old foe or Egypt in the new crisis, but is attempting to sound moderate in both calling for a withdrawal of Iraqi force while opposing foreign intervention.

LONDON (AUG. 12) UPI - Dozens of British citizens have escaped from Kuwait despite Iraqi's closure of the border, the Foreign Office said Saturday.

At least 45 Britons, including several children, made their way across the desert to Saudi Arabia in several convoys Friday, a spokesman said.

The government said it was still continuing to advise its estimated 4,000 citizens in occupied Kuwait not to attempt to leave because the journey is not safe.

The British Broadcasting Corp. reported that 500 cars were waiting at the Kuwaiti-Saudi Arabian border and occasionally some were allowed to leave.

(AUG. 11) UPI - The lines drawn in the Persian Gulf are being backed up by a growing number of troops. French, Australian, German and Soviet military vessels are taking up positions in and near the Arabian peninsula... where U-S troops and military machines are already stationed. Arab nations are forming a force of their own... with Egypt sending thousands of troops to guard against possible Iraqi advances into Saudia Arabia, and Morocco and Syria are expected to follow suit.

A backlash against Saudi Arabia and the Egyptian and U-S actions against Iraq is gathering steam. In Yemen today, about one-thousand demonstrators broke into the Saudi Embassy while others tried to storm the U-S and Egyptian missions. A Western diplomat says the skirmishes involved ''a rent-a-crowd mob, mostly of unemployed youths'' and caused minor damage and injuries. But the diplomat warns that the demonstrations are getting ''larger and more violent.''

President Bush is on vacation, but he is NOT taking a complete break from the crisis in the Persian Gulf. QUITO, Ecuador (AUG. 12) UPI - At least six people were killed in an earthquake that struck the capital and neighboring cities, officials said Saturday.

The quake had an intensity of 6 on the Mercalli scale in the town of Pomasqui, 12 miles north of the capital. In Quito, the intensity was put at 5 on the Mercalli scale by the Geophysical Institute.

The Mercalli scale, as opposed to the better known Richter scale, runs from 1 to 12 and gauges the intensity of an earthquake at a specific location.

The quake struck about 8 p.m. Friday and lasted 25 to 30 seconds.

A Fire Department spokesman said from Pomasqui, a city of 10,000 people, the bodies of six people were recovered from under the ruins of homes.

(AUG. 12) UPI - Moslems in the Middle East took to the streets Saturday a day after Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein appealed for a popular uprising against pro-Western Arab leaders and a holy war against U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia.

Pro-Iraqi demonstrations, which had occurred for days in Jordan, spread to Yemen, Libya, Algeria and the Israeli-occupied territories. An estimated 5,000 people turned out again in Jordan in support of Saddam and against the Egyptian and Saudi leadership for cooperating with the United States.

There were no immediate reports of demonstrations supporting Iraq outside the Middle East region. A leader of the 40,000-strong Arab community in Venezuela said Moslems in that oil-producing Latin American nation vowed there would be no violence ''against anyone.''

In a direct call to the Moslem masses, Saddam Friday urged Arabs to revolt against rulers ''who do not know sense of honor'' and rise up in a jihad, or holy war, against the Western presence in Saudi Arabia, site of Islam's holiest shrines.

By issuing the impassioned appeal, Saddam went over the heads of Arab leaders who were struggling to find a diplomatic way to end the Persian Gulf crisis, triggered by Iraq's conquest of its neighbor Kuwait.

Hours after Saddam's appeal, the Arab League agreed to create an Arab military force to defend the region against Iraq. Egypt sent its troops into Saudi Arabia Saturday as other Arab armies prepared for deployment alongside U.S. forces to defend the kingdom against a possible Iraqi invasion.

''One cannot play with fire,'' a French Islamic leader, Hadj Halili, said in a French radio interview. ''There is a non-Moslem foreign power in the holy land. It's a site that must remain holy and pure.''

Pro-Iraqi demonstrators Saturday broke into the Saudi Embassy in Yemen and tried to storm the U.S. and Egyptian missions, causing minor damage and injuries in skirmishes with security personnel, a diplomat said.

The diplomat said the worst clashes occurred at the Saudi mission, where about 1,000 youths chanting statements of support for Saddam, tried to break into the compound.

Some participants succeeded and climbed over walls into the mission to attack vehicles and damage property, before baton-wielding Yemeni security personnel overpowered the group.

About 400 demonstrators also marched on the U.S. Embassy in Yemen where they hurled rocks, breaking one window, before being dispersed, the diplomat said, reporting a similar protest occurred outside the Egyptian embassy.

The U.S. State Department confirmed there were demonstrations at the U.S. Embassy and ''in other places'' in Yemen, although it was not certain they occurred at the Saudi Embassy. A spokeswoman said there were approximately 500-600 demonstrators'' and Yemenese security forces did disperse them.''

Signs of popular support for the Iraqi leader and his defiant stand against the United States grew in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

In Nablus, the largest West Bank city, several hundred Palestinians shouting pro-Iraqi and anti-American slogans held two marches, while in Gaza City Arab youths burned tires and shouted, ''Saddam, Saddam, attack and end imperialism in the Middle East.''

Graffiti praising Iraq and denouncing the United States appeared overnight on walls along with a few pictures of Saddam.

Since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, support for Saddam has grown among Palestinians who view him as a strong Arab leader capable of standing up to the Western powers and united the Arab world.

The Libyan news agency JANA said Arab residents in Libya marched in Tripoli to protest U.N.-endorsed sanctions against Iraq and to denounce foreign intervention in the region.

The demonstrators delivered a statement to the U.N. mission in Tripoli, announcing their ''readiness to die and to confront the U.S. and Zionist intervention,'' the news agency said.

Libya and the PLO are the only two Arab League members siding with Iraq in the crisis.

Demonstrations involving about 5,000 people in support of Saddam were reported in Jordan Saturday with particularly strong turnouts at Palestinian refugee camps.

Rejecting the outcome of the Arab League summit, the demonstrators carrying posters of Saddam assailed Saudi King Fahd and Egypt's President Hosni Mubarak as ''traitors'' and echoed the Iraqi leader's call to fight against ''imperialism in the region.''

LONDON (AUG. 12) UPI - A British aeronautics firm said Saturday it was preparing to give anti-chemical warfare suits to its 3,000 employees working in Saudi Arabia.

British Aerospace, which earlier this week evacuated about 600 staff and dependents from the country, said the protective suits were among several measures it is taking to deal with Iraq's threatened use of chemcial weapons.

David Kamiya, a spokesman, said the company was preparing to issue the suits and provide the training to the use them. The company is also reviewing options for evacuating employees if chemical weapons are used in the gulf conflict.

The firm's employees in Saudi Arabia are at six bases working on a major defense contract, which is part of a multi-billion-dollar deal with Britain. Most are technicians and engineers working on the British-made Tornado aircraft used by the Royal Saudi Air Force.

British companies manufacturing the suits are being inundated with requests and questions, according to The Independent newspaper.

Charcoal Cloth Ltd. told the newspaper it had been ''swamped'' with inquiries from ''people in the Middle East region desperate for equipment.'' One from an unspecified client was for an order for between one and two million gas masks, the newspaper said.

''The difficulty we have it that this stuff is just not instantly available,'' a company spokesman said.

The suits, designed to protect against nuclear, biological and chemical warfare, have an outer layer covered with a repellant and a chemical-absorbing inner layer of charcoal. They cost between $93 and $372.

(AUG. 11) UPI - Some of the world's Moslem communities are rallying behind Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. The judge says he'll announce September 17th whether Barry will be retried on the UNdecided charges.

STOCKHOLM (AUG. 12) - Sweden is preparing for an evacuation of its embassy in Kuwait following Iraqi demands that foreign embasssies in Kuwait be moved to Baghdad, Swedish Foreign Minister Sten Andersson said Sunday.

"We understand that we are risking expulsion and we are therefore preparing an evacuation. There are many things which must be hidden and must not fall into their (Iraqi) hands," the minister told the Swedish news agency TT.

Declining to comment on reports that the Iraqis have advanced the deadline for embassies to transfer to Baghdad from August 24 to August 14, the minister said the reports by the BBC "had not been confirmed."

Mr. Andersson would not say if the evacuation preparations at the embassy in Kuwait meant that it would close the embassy, but said he hoped a solution would be found so that they would not have to leave Kuwait.

NICOSIA (AUG. 12) - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein on Sunday called on his countrymen to observe austerity in the face of an international blockade and make sacrifices at home in the event Iraq is drawn into war.

In an appeal on Iraqi radio monitored here and addressed primarily to women, Mr. Hussein urged them to counter sanctions against Iraq by not over-stocking on personal purchases and cut down on their food intake.

"Every family can go without buying clothes for a year," he said in his appeal, adding that families accustomed to buying 10 kilograms (22 pounds) of meat a month should halve their consumption.

The president's speech comes two days after he called on Moslems and Arabs worldwide to wage a holy war against the West and Arab states that have deployed troops in the Gulf to protect Saudi Arabia in the wake of Baghdad's invasion of Kuwait on August 2.

In the speech read by an Iraqi spokesman, Mr. Hussein also urged women and children not to hoard supplies. "Everybody is required not to stock more than he requires."

"Iraq's bounties are plenty. We have ample food supplies," he insisted.

He is expected to address the nation again at 1530 GMT "to discuss past and future circumstances in the region," the official Iraqi news agency INA reported.

"O glorious one (woman), yours is a jihad (holy war) sacrificial role transcending all others," he said in a broadcast monitored here. "You have a leadership role in all walks of life."

"You must prepare yourself and your family to move from one lifestyle into another," Mr. Hussein said. "The foreigner threatens the nation and the future."

Through their sacrifices, Iraqis must take part in the holy war to break through the blockade aimed at destroying the Iraqis' will, the president said.

"By so doing we will hit the Americans in the heart of sanctions, in defense of our nation," he added.

He said that Iraq had succeeded in defeating the United States, Britain, France and the Netherlands through oil sanctions in the 1970s. "We defeated all attempts to impose sanctions against us in our war with Iran " he said.

"If Iraq's will is defeated, an American-Zionist era will be established and be void of all religious values...The Arab nation will miss the opportunity to build a strong base to free itself from hunger, slavery and will be unable to free Jerusalem, the Ka'aba, the Prophet's (Mohammad's) tomb and free itself from foreigners' armies," he said.

On Friday, Mr. Hussein called on Arabs and Moslems worldwide to deliver Islam's holy sites in "occupied" Saudi Arabia by waging a holy war.

"Save Mecca and the tomb of the Prophet Mohammad (in Medina) from occupation," he said.

The Iraqi leader's diatribes were directed at the Saudi royal family under whose jurisdiction the holy sites fall.

His speech Friday was reported as Arab leaders held an emergency summit in Cairo in an 11th-hour attempt to defuse the Gulf crisis which has escalated since the Iraqi invasion.

It also came amid a military buildup in the Gulf, where Western and Arab powers have dramatically bolstered their air and naval power for fear of an Iraqi attack on Saudi Arabia after Baghdad invaded and annexed Kuwait.

"We are all equals in the battle trenches," he said Sunday.

Mr. Hussein affirmed that Iraq would be victorious in its battle. "Defeat is certain for the aggressors. We shall defeat their air forces and useless navies."

ABIDJAN (AUG. 12) - The last chance of survival for Liberian President Samuel Doe lies with the swift intervention of an African peace force before the rebel onslaught on Monrovia renders it redundant.

Mr. Doe urged on Saturday, in what amounts to a desperate plea to save his skin, that the West African troops "move in as soon as possible".

Rebels troops have unleashed their final assault on the capital and correspondents believe the end of the Liberian bloodbath is nigh, although the massacres of recent weeks might pale before the final reckoning.

Mr. Doe renewed an offer to relinquish his powers to an interim government set up under the peace force of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS), according to a statement released by the Liberian embassy in Lagos.

But he has been unable to exercise those powers since the start of July when the National Patriotic Front (NPFL) began their siege of the Liberian capital.

And rebel leader Charles Taylor has stepped up the battle to ensure that ECOWAS does not frustrate his grab for the presidency now that after seven bitter months he is within sight of Executive Mansion, the seat of power overlooking the sea in central Monrovia.

He has warned the West Africans, led by Nigeria, that the NPFL will fight intervention to the last man and is seeking to mobilise more than 300,000 men.

Any foreign force "will have to kill everybody", Mr. Taylor has threatened ominously.

Even worse for Mr. Doe, the components of the peace force, known by the name Monitoring Group (ECOMOG), are still being assembled and several more days looks an optimistic assessment of a date for intervention.

MONROVIA (AUG. 12) - A man plodding along a road in Liberia's capital is pushing a wheelbarrow in which he has installed his aged father, who is propped against two bags, his legs dangling down.

Behind the old man's head is balanced a large radio set. Two children are trotting alongside.

This family, or what remains of it, is one of hundreds fleeing fighting here as rebels of the National Patriotic Front led by Charles Taylor inch towards the Executive Mansion.

The man, his two children and father abandoned their home and nearly everything else in the semi-residential district of Sinkor early Saturday, on the advice of rebel soldiers.

The National Patriotic Front fighters, who entered the capital from the east and are advancing steadily towards downtown Monrovia, on Saturday reached St. Joseph's hospital and ordered it evacuated.

They were moving steadily forward towards the tiny James Spriggs Payne airport, about four kilometers (2.5 miles) from the Executive Mansion where President Samuel Doe and his guards are holed up.

The first rebel commandos have gotten past the airport and reached the Lutheran church, 1.7 kilometers (about a mile) from the center of town.

It was there that government troops massacred several hundred Liberians who had gathered seeking refuge.

Witnesses who have been able to reach rebel lines said corpses left from the slaughter two weeks ago still lie around the mission grounds.

Meanwhile, hundreds of civilians each day converge on the University of Fendell campus, about 20 kilometers (12 miles) from downtown Monrovia.

The campus has become a transit ground for more than 200,000 Liberians, according to one rebel commander. The refugees are living there without water or electricity and their numbers are swelling daily.

PERTH, Australia (AUG. 12) - The Western Australian Health Department is providing support payments to a small number of AIDS-infected prostitutes on condition they stop working, officials said Sunday.

State Director of Disease Control, Dr. Charles Watson, said taxpayers were subsidising "less than five" HIV-positive prostitutes by up to 100 Australian dollars (79 U.S.) a week to keep them out of brothels and off the streets.

The payments, lasting up to four weeks, were meant to support infected male and female prostitutes while they were retrained for other work, he said.

"We normally see the process as extending for a few weeks when someone with a pretty high income -- 500 to 1000 dollars (395 to 790 U.S.) a week -- drops down to nothing," Dr. Watson said.

Former sex-clinic doctor, Dr. Leo Laden, criticised the health department, saying their policy was "naive" if it assumed human immunodeficiency virus (HIV)-positive prostitutes would not have sex if the government paid them.

"I've treated 100,000 veneral disease patients in my time and in my experience, the vast majority of what they say isn't true," Dr. Laden said.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome (AIDS) is a deadly disease which robs the body of its ability to fight infection.

JERUSALEM (AUG. 12) - Palestinians in the Israeli occupied territories continued sporadic demonstrations Sunday in support of Iraqi dictator Saddam Hussein and in condemnation of Israel, the United States and Saudi Arabia.

The East Jerusalem daily A-Shahab reported that in recent days hospitals have seen a noticeable increase in the number of Palestinian new-borns being named Saddam - apparently out of respect for the Iraqi leader.

Prominent Palestinians in the West Bank published Sunday a leaflet condemning Saudi Arabian policies as ''treacherous'', and calling on Hussein ''to burn the ground'' under the feet of the traitors.

Demonstrations in which portraits of Hussein were raised alongside those of Plo leader Yassir Arafat, and the Iraqi flag flew next to the Palestinian standard took place in a number of cities. The largest gathering was reported in Hebron.

MANILA (AUG. 12) - The Philippine government is to evacuate tens of thousands of its nationals from Iraqi-occupied Kuwait with Baghdad's approval, officials said here Sunday.

Iraqi ambassador to the Philippines Ali Sumaida informed Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs Manuel Yan on Saturday that Filipino workers could leave Kuwait and Iraq except for those employed by the Iraqi government, the official Philippine News Agency (PNA) reported Sunday.

President Corazon Aquino said in a statement that Labor Secretary Ruben Torres, currently in Saudi Arabia, has informed her that the Philippine Embassy in Riyadh would implement an "emergency evacuation plan."

Mr. Torres has recommended that "all Filipino workers still in Kuwait must be brought back to the Philippines," she added.

She did not say how the estimated 60,000 Filipino workers would be evacuated. Officials here have previously balked at the idea of repatriating them all by plane, which they said would take 167 flights at the cost of 41 million dollars.

Mrs. Aquino said that as a United Nations member, the Philippines "joins the U.N. Security Council" in its call for a worldwide trade, financial and arms embargo against Iraq, but did not say which sanctions Manila would impose on Baghdad which supplies part of its oil imports.

There are about half a million Filipino workers in the Middle East, contributing one billion dollars a year to the Philippine economy. About 60,000 are in Kuwait and 5,000 in Iraq, according to official figures.

Mrs. Aquino also advised dependents of Filipino workers in the eastern region of Saudi Arabia to "move to safer areas within the kingdom," and said those leaving Kuwait could do so by way of Jordan or Turkey.

Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus said Sunday that Amman has assured Manila that Filipinos leaving Iraq would be given safe passage through the kingdom, PNA reported.

Spokesmen for the Philippine foreign department and the Iraqi mission here were unavailable for comment Sunday.

Ninety Filipino workers arrived here Sunday from Kuwait via Saudi Arabia, journalists at Manila airport said. Fewer than 1,000 have been able to return to the Philippines since the Iraqi invasion on August 2.

The Philippine leader, who has not condemned the Iraqi invasion, noted the "intense anger all over the world of the Iraqi invasion of its neighbor Kuwait, especially those countries which are campaigning for world peace."

Kuwait provided 13 per cent of the Philippines' oil imports last year while Iraq provided five per cent, official figures show.

Mrs. Aquino denied published reports here that the Philippine Central Bank has banned banks from buying the currencies of Kuwait, Iraq, Saudi Arabia and Bahrain.

She said local banks have been given the freedom to decide on transactions involving these currencies.

She said the government was ready to respond to a possible constriction of oil supply, but added that Manila was ready to cope with the Gulf crisis by tapping other oil-exporting countries.

But she said "prudence dictates that we embark on a more serious energy conservation effort."

KHARTOUM (AUG. 12) - The Sudanese military leader, General Omer Beshir, said Sunday that Khartoum would try to end the Gulf crisis.

''I will personally or through high-ranking envoys start new efforts to bridge the viewpoints of brotherly Arab states. I want to avoid the current danger that threatens the Arab region,'' General Beshir told editors of national newspapers here.

The Sudanese leader was quoted by the official Sudan News Agency (Suna) as saying: ''Sudan's efforts, coupled with that of other Arab states, will succeed in coming out with a viable solution to the Gulf crisis despite the gloominess of the situation.''

Sudan was one of the four countries which expressed its ''reservation'' over the Arab summit's decision on Friday to condemn Iraq for invading Kuwait August 2 and to send forces to protect Saudi Arabia and the Gulf emirates.

He also ordered the opening across Jordan of military training centers for the country's people's army, which was set up in 1980 and formed of Jordanians aged 18 to 50, television said.

The report came after officials quoted the monarch as saying that U.S. troop deployments in Saudi Arabia to protect the oil-rich kingdom against any Iraqi attack after its invasion of Kuwait was unacceptable to Arabs.

FREETOWN (AUG. 12) - West African peace-keeping forces gathered in Sierra Leone Sunday, preparing to intervene in the bloody Liberian civil war as early as Monday, informed sources said here.

Five hundred soldiers from Sierra Leone were ready to leave for Liberia, officials said, while a similar number of Nigerians also had arrived here to spearhead a West African force eventually expected to number 2,500.

One thousand Ghanaians were due to arrive here aboard three ships Monday, in addition to 105 Gambians, and an unknown number of Guineans, Malians and Togolese, diplomats said.

Together they will form a peace-keeping force set up by seven members of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS).

However analysts in Abidjan said Saturday that Liberian rebels appeared likely to overcome President Samuel Doe's government soldiers in Monrovia before the peace-keeping force can enforce a cease-fire and install a provisional government.

The decision to send the peacekeeping force to Liberia was made Tuesday at a mini-summit of the ECOWAS mediation committee on Liberia during which an appeal was launched for a cease-fire after nearly nine months of civil war.

Because of Liberian rebel leader Charles Taylor's opposition to the peace-keeping force, the Nigerian government officials have decided to be very discreet about Nigeria's role in the ECOMOG cease-fire monitoring group, informed sources in Lagos said.

The official Nigerian radio said Sunday the Nigerian airlift would end Monday.

While the Nigerian Government said emphatically its troops were not going into Liberia to fight, a military source said "it is imprudent to disclose all our strategies."

Nigeria might have rescinded its earlier plan to send about 2,000 troops to the war-torn country, observers said.

The biggest black African nation would be contributing between 800 and 1,000 troops to the monitoring group, which would be transported by air and sea to Monrovia, the sources added.

General Mohamed Tarawallie, commander-in-chief of the Sierra Leone army, is expected to address West African troops assembled here Monday.

JERUSALEM (AUG. 12) - Israel on Sunday categorically rejected a call by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw from occupied Arab territory as part of a peace settlement in the Gulf.

"These are cheap propaganda statements," said Avi Pazner, spokesman for Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

Mr. Hussein, in a statement broadcast over Baghdad Radio, had called for Israel's "immediate and unconditional withdrawal from Palestine, Syria and Lebanon" as part of "an initiative to settle the Gulf crisis".

The Iraqi president also called for a pullout of U.S. troops from the Gulf, the withdrawal of Syrian troops from Lebanon "a withdrawal between Iran and Iraq and the laying down of arrangements for the case of Kuwait."

Mr. Hussein, whose remarks were broadcast by official Baghdad Radio, demanded in exchange that an Arab force, excluding Egyptian troops, be deployed in the Gulf and that the international community lift sanctions imposed on Iraq following its invasion August 2 of neighbouring Kuwait.

"Saddam Hussein is manoeuvering in order to provoke the withdrawal of the multi-national intervention force stationed in the Gulf and to escape from the economic blockade imposed on him," Mr. Pazner said.

ISLAMABAD (AUG. 12) - Pakistan's caretaker government said Sunday that elections will go ahead as scheduled October 24, but that deposed Premier Benazir Bhutto and her party should answer charges of corruption at special tribunals.

Information Minister Abida Hussain said holding the judicial processes of accountability along with the elections did not mean the caretaker government was trying to exclude Bhutto and her Pakistan People's Party (Ppp) from the electoral contest.

She told reporters after a cabinet meeting that the government only desired to set in motion a process of accountability of public representatives.

About a dozen Ppp members, buisnessmen and officials have already been detained in Sindh, Bhutto''s home province, for a month.

Among them were Pakistan Narcotics Control Board official Agha Sikandar, businessman Fauzi Kazmi and the director of a government loaning agency, D. M. Talpur, who are said to be business associates of Bhutto's allegedly corrupt husband, Asif Zardari.

Talpur was leaving the country when he was taken off the plane and arrested.

BANGKOK (AUG. 12) - A mine planted by ethnic Kachin rebels exploded under a passenger train in northern Burma on Sunday, wounding five people, state-run Rangoon Radio said in a broadcast monitored here.

The radio said three men and two women were seriously wounded after the landmine, planted by the Kachin Independence Army, exploded in Kachin state, 770 kilometers (462 miles) north of Rangoon.

Two carriages were derailed and damaged in the attack, the radio said.

The radio in another dispatch said 36 insurgents, including five pro-democracy students, surrendered to Burmese troops last month.

It said the five students, members of the All Burma Students' Democratic Front, and the 31 ethnic rebels from five separate insurgent factions gave themselves up to authorities with their weapons in July.

Thousands of Burmese students have fled Rangoon and other cities for fear of persecution by the military government since it seized power in a September 1988 coup to crush a nationwide pro-democracy movement.

Some of the students have sought shelter and training from ethnic guerrillas in isolated border areas.

About a dozen ethnic insurgent groups, allied under the National Democratic Front, have been fighting for autonomy from Rangoon since Burma gained independence from Britain in 1948.

BAGHDAD (AUG. 12) - Any bid by the United States to intercept Iraqi oil tankers in the Gulf would be considered an "act of aggression against Iraq " Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz said here Sunday.

"The interception of Iraqi tankers (in the Gulf) by the United States constitutes an act of aggression on their part and falls within the framework of a blockade, which was not decided by the United Nations," he told a press conference.

Mr. Aziz was referring to an announcement by U.S. Secretary of State James Baker that Washington had agreed to a Kuwaiti request to ensure that a U.N. embargo against Iraqi and Kuwaiti exports is respected and will subsequently take the "necessary and proportionate" measures.

(Mr. Baker, who declined to use the word "blockade," did not say how U.S. forces deployed in the Gulf, including troops and aircraft carriers, would "interdict" exports from Iraq or Kuwait.

(But he told a television interview in the United States that a request by the deposed Kuwaiti government provided the United States and other nations, under Article 51 of the U.N. charter, a legal basis to halt oil exports.)

Last week the U.N. Security Council approved a resolution calling for an embargo of trade, finance and arms against Iraq to protest its August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Mr. Aziz also warned the member countries of the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries against their "participation in a blockade imposed by the United States against Iraq."

"Any attempt on the part of any OPEC member to facilitate the boycott (of Iraq) would be considered an aggressive and tendentious act," he said.

SYDNEY (AUG. 13) - Australian Treasurer Paul Keating must play Scrooge and deliver a tough budget next week to allow cuts in interest rates to ease pressure on the battered manufacturing and retail sectors, economists say.

A tight-fisted budget would restrain overall economic growth and provide scope for easing Canberra's tight monetary policy.

Keating last year boosted official cash rates to about 18 percent as a cure for Australia's perpetual current account deficit, huge foreign debt and inflation woes.

Cash rates -- the bellwether interest rates charged for overnight loans -- have been lowered to 14 percent this year as the economy slowed.

But many economists say the interest rate cuts might not be enough to avoid a recession and Keating must come up with a budget surplus of up to nine billion Australian dollars (7.1 billion U.S.) in his Aug. 21 budget presentation.

Last year Canberra had an eight billion dollar budget surplus (6.4 billion U.S.), below the surplus forecast of 9.12 billion dollars (7.3 billion U.S.).

"Some sectors of the economy are really in a bad way and we need some further reductions in interest rates," Bob Graham, chief economist at Westpac Banking Corp., said Thursday.

Graham said he believed Keating would be willing to announce a surplus of about eight billion dollars (6.4 billion U.S.) despite the obvious public backlash if it was achieved through unpopular social welfare cuts.

"They still have a couple of years before the next election," Graham said.

Keating is also deputy prime minister in the Labor government which was re-elected in March.

Phil O'Sullivan, economist at Barclays de Zoete Wedd (Australia) Ltd., said Thursday's employment figures, which showed strong job growth, suggested the economy was too robust.

"We need a surplus of at least nine billion dollars," he said, adding that such a surplus would allow another half a point easing in the cash rate before the end of the year.

David De Garis, senior economist at ANZ Banking Group Ltd., said that despite the federal government's surplus last year, the public sector had posted a small deficit, largely due to spendthrift state governments.

"There has certainly been a slippage in fiscal policy and that has put all the more pressure on monetary policy to slow the economy," De Garis said.

Jeff Schubert, economist at Hongkong Bank Australia Ltd., said even a tough budget might not produce interest rates cuts.

"There is a 5050 chance that interest rates have bottomed.

"They are down to a reasonably low level," he said. "Economic growth will probably be picking up again."

The way the government achieved the surplus was important, Schubert said, adding that cutting expenditure on social welfare programmes was better than reducing infrastructure investment.

He forecast a current account deficit of 16 billion dollars (12.8 billion U.S) for the financial year ended June 30 compared to last year's outcome of 21.2 billion dollars (16.9 billion U.S.).

Inflation will probably fall from 7.7 percent to about 7.0 percent, after allowing for some oil price rises due to the Gulf crisis, he said.

Economic growth should be about 1.5 percent during the year and unemployment will settle at around 7.5 percent, Schubert said.

TOKYO (AUG. 13) - Japanese Premier Toshiki Kaifu postponed Monday a planned five-nation Middle Eastern tour scheduled to start Wednesday, government spokesman Misoji Sakamoto said.

The official announcement ended days of speculation about whether Mr. Kaifu would go ahead with the 12-day tour to Turkey, Saudi Arabia, Oman, Jordan and Egypt despite the ongoing Gulf crisis sparked by Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The Kyodo news service reported earlier that Mr. Kaifu would instead send his foreign minister, Taro Nakayama, to the region.

BEIJING (AUG. 13) - China plans to make light industry one of the priorities of its eighth five-year plan and hopes to see the sector grow by eight percent from 1991 to 1995, the New China News Agency (NCNA) reported.

If all goes according to plan, total production in the sector in 1995 should be 338 billion yuan (71 billion dollars) -- an increase of more than 46 percent over 1990, NCNA said, quoting Zheng Boxia, an official of the ministry of light industry.

The sector has shown "remarkable development" in the 10 years since China launched its economic open door policy, Zheng told an industrial conference Sunday night.

It grew by 4.1 percent in July, compared with only 1.8 percent for heavy industry, according to official statistics.

The official said the special economic zones China set up along its coast encourage the creation of companies dealing with this is type of production, particularly in the form of joint ventures with foreign firms.

Zheng said China encouraged the development of capital goods, raw materials and basic goods.

Chinese light industries should put an estimated 10,000 new products on the market during the next five-year plan as Chinese living standards improve, he said.

KUALA LUMPUR (AUG. 13) - Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad said the state-owned Perusahaan Otomobil Nasional (Proton), which makes Malaysia's best-selling car, will go public in less than a year, newspapers reported Monday.

Dr. Mahathir said Sunday that Malaysians would be offered shares in the company in recognition of their support that has made the Proton Saga the best-selling car in the country since 1985.

He said would be listed on the Kuala Lumpur Stock Exchange "as soon as we get all the paper work done." The prime minister was speaking at the launching of Proton's 12 valve-engine model.

Proton is 70 per cent owned by the Heavy Industries Corp. of Malaysia, set up by the government to spearhead Malaysia's industrialisation drive. Japan's Mitsubishi Corp. and Mitsubishi Motor Corp. hold the remaining stake.

The company reported profits of 159 million dollars (59 million U.S.) on a turnover of 1.4 billion dollars (518 million U.S.) in the year ended March 31.

This compares with profits of 32 million dollars (11.8 million U.S.) and turnover of 820 million dollars (304 million U.S.) the previous financial year, the first year it turned in profits.

Proton cars have cornered 63 per cent of the domestic car market and more than 13,000 units have been exported to Britain, its biggest foreign market.

MANILA (AUG. 13) - The Philippines' annual inflation rate could average 15 percent in 1990 because of domestic problems and the Gulf crisis, the Business Star newspaper said Monday.

Polling government and private economists, the daily said the inflation rate, currently approaching 13 percent, was forecast to reach 17 to 19 per cent in the second semester, further dampening economic growth.

President Corazon Aquino's government, which recently launched a set of major economic reforms, had hoped to bring inflation below 10 percent by the end of the year.

The inflation forecasts took into account the depreciating peso, an impending power rate hike, the effects of the massive July 16 earthquake in Luzon island, rising world crude oil prices and tariff reforms, the Star said.

Mrs. Aquino ruled out new wage increases Saturday amid fears of spiraling inflation, opting instead for price regulation of basic goods.

Local oil firms are seeking a 30 percent increase in retail prices.

Economic Planning Secretary Cayetano Paderanga said Thursday the 4.7 per cent growth forecast for gross national product in 1990 would not be reached because of the earthquake and the Gulf crisis, but gave no new estimate.

The Philippines imports most of its oil from the Middle East, where an estimated half a million Filipino workers send home one to two billion dollars in remittances, easing the country's foreign-exchange problems.

MEXICO CITY (AUG. 13) EFE - A total of 80 bodies have been pulled from the rubble of buildings and swollen rivers in eastern Mexico following torrential rains brought by Hurricane Diana, which hit the country five days ago, authorities said Sunday.

Rescue services said some 100,000 houses had been destroyed by the hurricane, with the eastern state of Hidalgo worse hit -- 56 bodies have been recovered from towns, villages and rivers in the state.

Hurricane Diana originated in the Caribbean and arrived in the Gulf of Mexico last Tuesday, where it swept across southeastern Mexico before petering out late Thursday.

However, most of the damage has been caused by the heavy rains that came in the wake of Hurricane Diana, and which still persist in the eastern states.

BOGOTA, Colombia (AUG. 12) UPI - The third-ranking leader of the cocaine-trafficking Medellin cartel was killed Saturday in a firefight with police, news reports said.

Gustavo Gaviria Rivero was killed when police raided a fortified building in the city of Medellin, 160 miles northwest of Bogota, Bogota radio stations reported.

Gaviria is the cousin of Pablo Escobar, the cocaine kingpin who heads the Medellin cartel. He is considered the No. 3 man in the cartel, which supplies much of the world's cocaine supply.

Gaviria was killed at about 4 p.m. in a building that had bullet-proof windows, the radio reports said.

BOSTON (AUG. 12) UPI - Half of all American priests have broken their vow of celibacy with a partner and 80 percent have committed sexual mortal sins in the eyes of the Catholic church according to a newly released study.

The 25-year study conducted by A.W. Richard Sipe, a psychologist and former priest, involved 1,000 priests and 500 of their lovers or victims, the Boston Sunday Globe reported.

Sipe told a gathering at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association in Boston Saturday that the 800-year-old celibacy requirement has repressed the Catholic church's view of human sexual nature, leaving it ''quite literally underdeveloped and immature.''

''In all sexual matters, the whole muscle tone of Roman Catholic moral authority has been enfeebled,'' said Sipe, a Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine teacher. ''As a result, the credibility of priests as a moral authority on sexual matters has been irreparably assailed.''

Only 2 percent of the priests in Sipe's study attained true celibacy, the chosen attempt to serve others productively by living without direct sexual gratification. Another 46 to 48 percent of those included practiced celibacy ''sufficiently well enough to be called celibate,'' Sipe told the Globe.

The study revealed 20 percent of those interviewed had homosexual relationships and 6 percent were involved with children. Although it is a mortal sin in the Catholic Church, 80 percent masturbated. Masterbation was not considered a violation of celibacy, the study said.

The Rev. Kenneth Doyle, a spokesman for the U.S. Catholic Bishops, told the newspaper the survey was not accurate because of the bias of those involved.

Doyle said the majority of the priests interviewed came into contact with Sipe because they needed counseling for problems involving their sexuality.

Sipe responded, saying half came to him for counseling and the remainder got involved through workshops and seminars. He said he believed the information gleaned from the study came from a representative group of clergy from 1960 to 1985.

MORELAND, OK (AUG. 12) UPI - The solar-powered aircraft Sun-Seeker flew 245 miles Saturday, nearing the halfway point of its cross-country journey a spokesman said.

Pilot Eric Raymond lifted off from Littlefield at 12:05 p.m. CDT and planned to fly his 195-pound craft about 180 miles into the southwest corner of Oklahoma. Instead, the craft reached Moreland, in northeast Oklahoma, after flying for 6 hours, 50 minutes. said project spokesman Jack Whitehouse.

The Sun-Seeker flew 140 miles Friday from Carlsbad, N.M. on its often-delayed solar-powered journey across the country, landing after nearly seven hours in Littlefield, about 30 miles northwest of Lubbock, Texas.

The craft Saturday caught a thermal updraft, which allowed it to remain aloft, about five minutes after take-off. The plane uses thermal updrafts for propulsion during flight, normally relying upon the solar-powered motor only for takeoffs and landings.

Raymond has completed nearly 1,000 miles of his 2,500-mile journey to Kitty Hawk, N.C. - the site of the Wright brothers' 1903 historic first flight - closing in on the trip's halfway mark, Whitehouse said.

Whitehouse said Raymond hoped to reach Springfield, Mo., Sunday.

Raymond wanted to complete the trip, which began Aug. 2 in California, within 10 days, but Whitehouse said the pilot may not reach the East Coast until Aug. 16.

The 33-year-old champion hang glider embarked on the flight to draw attention to the uses of alternative power. He took off from Desert Center Calif., Aug. 2, but was forced to land a few hours later after becoming ill.

Because of weather problems, the plane was grounded or daily flight segments were abbreviated several days this past week in New Mexico and Texas.

The plane, which has 700 solar cells on its skin, needs at least 20 minutes of direct sunlight to recharge the batteries that power its 3-horsepower motor.

(AUG. 12) UPI - Both Saudi Arabia and Iraq deny reports that Saudi anti-aircraft gunners shot at Iraqi reconnaissance planes flying over Saudi territory. Reports of the incident broke while thousands of Egyptian troops arrived Saturday in Saudi Arabia to fight alongside a U-S-led multi-national force in case of an Iraqi invasion. Observers say Egypt's move to make good on an Arab League decision for a pan-Arab force is proof of the deep split in the Arab community.

Egypt is catching fire for supporting the West in its stance against Iraq. Demonstrators faithful to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein took to the streets in several Mideastern nations Saturday to answer his call for a popular uprising against Egyptian President Mubarak and other pro-Western Arab leaders. In Yemen, protesters broke into the Saudi Embassy and stormed the U-S and Egyptian missions... causing minor damages during skirmishes with security guards. One diplomat described the protesters as a ''rent-a-crowd mob mostly made up of UNemployed youths.''

Washington, D-C, Mayor Marion Barry is asking his black supporters and white critics to set aside their differences and forgive him for getting involved with drugs. In an emotional speech Saturday, Barry conceded his drug and perjury trial racially polarized the city, but urged his constituents to ''let go'' of the past. The mayor is awaiting word on whether prosecutors will re-try him after his trial Friday ended in a hung jury on 12 of 14 charges.

(AUG. 12) UPI - Wildfires burned throughout six western states Saturday, giving little respite to an armada of firefighters who set backfires to try to keep the flames from expanding beyond the 350,000 acres destroyed in the past week.

The wildfires forced the first-ever complete closure to the public of California's Yosemite National Park, where about 15,000 acres burned in two separate blazes at the west end of the park. A small army of more than 1,140 firefighters had one fire 30 percent contained and the other 20 percent contained late Saturday.

''We have fireproofed the giant sequoias with fire retardant,'' said Ann Tisei, a spokeswoman for the National Park Service, who said electricity was restored to El Portal, one of two small mountain communities cut off by the fires. Foresta, the other town, remained off-limits to the public.

''The problems have been erratic winds and steep terrain,'' said Tisei, who added that 66 structures and 14 vehicles have been destroyed by the fires, which totally devasted a two-mile stretch of land inside the park.

Some 19,000 firefighters were dispatched to the firelines, particularly in the hardest-hit states of California, Idaho and Oregon. Additional fires were reported in Washington, Nevada and Utah.

In California, flames destroyed more than 160,000 acres in 15 major fires, many caused by lightning strikes. More than 17,000 lighting strikes have been recorded in the state since Aug. 3.

More than 2,300 firefighters battled the state's worst blaze in Lassen National Forest, which ballooned from 64,000 acres Friday night to 110,000 acres by late Saturday. The fire was 40 percent contained.

A National Guardsman hurt in the crash of a water-bearing helicopter Friday evening was released from the hospital after treatment for back injuries, officials said.

Three other Northern California fires consumed about 15,000 acres.

In central California, a blaze near Kernville grew to 23,000 acres but a strategically set back fire, along with calm winds and light rainfall, slowed its pace. It was 10 percent contained late Saturday, a U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman said.

Washington officials imposed bans on outdoor burning in six counties Saturday, while dozens of lightning-caused fires burned more than 1,000 acres in Wenatchee National Forest.

Lightning started some three-dozen forest fires, the worst a 50-acre blaze in the scenic Alpine Lakes Wildnerness, where a month of intense sun and soaring temperatures parched the ground cover.

A 10,800-acre fire in northeast Oregon threatened to merge with another 9,100-acre blaze following a fifth straight night of lightning strikes in timberland in eastern Oregon's Malheur National Forest. Gusting west winds pushed the larger fire, the Snowshoe Basin Fire, toward the smaller Sheep Mountain complex blaze.

More than 6,500 firefighters were on the lines of 113,500 acres of Oregon blazes in various stages of containment. An additional 1,000 Army personnel were expected to join the battle Monday or Tuesday.

The largest fire in Oregon, the Bald Butte in Ochoco National Forest, was 50 percent contained Saturday at 73,700 acres. Fire crews hoped to contain the blaze by Tuesday night. Officials estimated the cost to fight the wildfire had reached $2.25 million.

Another 16,450-acre fire, the result of smaller fires merged by erratic winds, burned out of control elsewhere in the Ochoco National Forest.

In Idaho, five fires burned at least 65,900 acres. In the southern part of the state, crews hoped to contain the 65,000-acre Thorn Creek fire north of Gooding.

Meanwhile, lightning snapped across the Payette National Forest, touching off more fires, but widely scattered rain helped curb the blazes.

Firefighters Saturday had the upper hand on smaller blazes in Utah and Nevada. Seven blazes in Nevada consumed more than 11,225 acres. In Utah, three blazes blackened some 8,600 acres. Two Montana fires scorched 870 acres.

TOKYO (AUG. 12) UPI - U.S. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter Sunday urged Japan to liberalize rice imports, a traditionally non-negotiable issue which is now showing signs of compromise as consumers complain of sky-high prices for the staple.

The request came during a 30-minute meeting between Yeutter and Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu, according to the Kyodo News Service.

Kyodo, quoting government sources, said Kaifu reiterated that Japan's food security policy banning rice imports will remain unchanged and stressed that Japan already is a major importer of farm products.

Yeutter arrived in Tokyo Friday en route to a swing through Thailand, Malaysia and Hong Kong. He is scheduled to return to Tokyo Friday for a one-week visit to continue negotiations on the rice issue with Japanese leaders.

Liberalization of farm trade is a major pending issue in the current Uruguay round of multinational talks aimed at freer world trade under the Geneva-based General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

Japan has been under mounting pressure to open up its rice market to pave the way for a successful conclusion of the negotiations by the end of this year.

Japan bans rice imports to protect domestic farmers, who are a major source of support for the conservative ruling Liberal Democratic Party. The LDP, of which Kaifu is president, has been in power without interruption since its founding in 1955.

Yeutter is scheduled to engage in full-scale talks on the rice issue with the government and ruling party leaders, including Agriculture Minister Tomio Yamamoto and Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama, when he returns to Tokyo later this week, government officials said.

Resolutions passed by the Diet, Japan's parliament, in 1980 and 1984 called for the government to continue restrictions on rice imports and pursue a policy of self-reliance on rice supply.

A later resolution in September 1988 urged the government to resolutely oppose U.S. pressure on Japan to remove a ban on rice imports.

Despite the parliamentary action, some senior officials of the LDP recently advocated a partial and phased liberalization of rice imports.

The Komeito, the political arm of Japan's largest Buddhist organization Soka Gakkai and second strongest opposition party, resolved to support gradual liberalization of rice imports.

Recent newspaper polls also showed that more than half of Japanese consumers favor an easing of rice import curbs.

According to Japanese estimates, rice in Japan is priced 6.5 times higher than in the United States while a U.S. survey found it is eight times higher.

The United States says the price gap is equivalent to a tariff as high as 700 percent.

(AUG. 12) UPI - The Cincinnati Reds' recent slide has cost them in the standings, but Saturday a Giant slide might have cost them even more.

The Reds dropped a 4-2 decision to the San Francisco Giants Saturday night and in the process saw their NL West lead cut to 4 1-2 games and their All-Star shortstop cut down at second base.

Barry Larkin, who drove in the tying run to knot the score at 2-2, was injured when Will Clark smashed into him at second in the fifth inning breaking up a double play.

Larkin was forced to leave the game an inning later with what was diagnosed as a mild to moderate hyperextension sprain of the left knee. He will be reexamined today to determine the full extent of the injury.

''Clark didn't slide, though he said he did,'' Larkin said. ''I looked at the replay and he didn't slide.''

Was he unhappy with the way the play went?

''Very,'' replied Larkin.

''The ball was behind second base and I was trying to beat the play there '' said Clark, who was out on the play. ''(Mariano) Duncan flipped the ball to Larkin and it wasn't a solid flip, because he left Larkin hanging. I slid right over the base and I got him.''

On his way off the field, Larkin stopped to speak to Clark at first.

''I told him the same thing I'm telling you,'' said the Giants first baseman.

''It looked like a roll block of sorts, but I couldn't tell,'' said Reds Manager Lou Piniella. ''Larkin felt good after the game, so perhaps he'll be okay.''

Ron Oester, who took over at second base when Duncan moved to Larkin's spot at shortstop, saw nothing wrong with the play.

Cincinnati starter Jose Rijo, 8-5, doesn't like the way his team has been playing the game lately.

''We complain too much,'' Rijo complained. ''We should be playing hard the way they (the Giants) do. We complain too much on balls and strikes and different plays.''

--- AROUND THE NL ---

Elsewhere in the National league: Chicago downed New York 6-3, St. Louis edged Pittsburgh 3-2, Los Angeles topped Atlanta 6-4 in 10 innings, Montreal nipped Philadelphia 5-4 in 12 innings, and San Diego clipped Houston 6-3 in 10 innings.

Cubs 6, Mets 3

At New York, Shawon Dunston slammed a two-run homer in the second inning and Ryne Sandberg added a two-run triple. The Mets remained in first place in the NL East, a half-game ahead of Pittsburgh. Steve Wilson, 4-7, was the winner, relieving starter Mike Bielecki in the first inning and lasting 6 2-3 innings.

Cardinals 3, Pirates 2

At Pittsburgh, Craig Wilson went 3-for-4 and Joe Magrane notched his third straight victory to give St. Louis its third straight win and hand the Pirates their fourth loss in a row. Barry Bonds homered for the third straight game for Pittsburgh.

Expos 5, Phillies 4, 12 innings

At Montreal, Andres Galarraga singled home the winning run in the 12th inning helping the Expos extend their winning streak to four games. Errors by second baseman Tom Herr, his first in 50 games, and shortstop Dickie Thon set up the game-winning hit.

Padres 6, Astros 3, 10 innings

At Houston, Joe Carter's two-run triple highlighted a three-run 10th inning to lift San Diego. Carter now leads the majors in RBI with 92. With two straight losses to the Padres, the Astros dropped their first series at home since May 17-20.

Dodgers 6, Braves 4, 10 innings

At Atlanta, Kal Daniels belted a two-run homer with two out in the 10th inning to lift Los Angeles. It was his 17th on the season and made a loser of Marty Clary, 1-10. Dave Justice clubbed his 14th homer for the Braves.

(AUG. 12) UPI - The first time Dwight Evans faced Seattle reliever Mike

Schooler Saturday night, he struck out looking. When Evans returned for another try in the 14th inning, Schooler was the one left looking.

Evans blasted a two-out two-run homer to lift the Boston Red Sox to a 4-2 victory over the Mariners and help his team maintain a two-game lead over Toronto in the American League East.

''This is I think the first hit I've gotten off of him (Schooler),'' Evans said. ''I was frustrated from my last at-bat, but it just made me more aggressive.''

With one out in the 14th, Schooler, 1-4, gave up an infield single to Luis Rivera. One out later, Evans lofted an 0-2 pitch into the left field seats for his 11th homer of the season.

The Red Sox had tied the score 1-1 in the seventh when Mike Greenwell belted a 2-2 pitch from Seattle starter Billy Swift for his seventh homer of the season. Of Greenwell's seven homers, five have tied the game or put Boston ahead.

The homer was just the third allowed by Swift in 94 innings and snapped his22-inning scoreless streak.

Boston went ahead 2-1 in the 11th when, with one out, Carlos Quintana hit a bases-loaded grounder to force Greenwell at second and score Wade Boggs. But Seattle added a run in the bottom of the inning on a Scott Bradley RBI single.

Boston manager Joe Morgan was ejected after arguing that reliever Jeff Gray had struck out Bradley before his game-tying hit.

Rookie right-hander Daryl Irvine, 1-0, hurled the final two innings to notch the victory in his second major league appearance. He retired all six batters he faced.

Irvine, who was called up from Triple A Pawtucket August 4, gave up three Oakland runs in one inning in his first outing with Boston on April 28.

Swift, starting as scheduled after being struck by a Gary Gaetti line drive Sunday, went 7 1-3 innings. He allowed five hits, walked one and struck out two.

--- AROUND THE AL ---

In other AL action, Toronto downed Minnesota 7-4, Texas dropped Chicago 7-5, Oakland pummeled New York 10-1, Cleveland pounded Detroit 13-4, Milwaukee routed Kansas City 11-5, and California slaughtered Baltimore 12-4.

Blue Jays 7, Twins 4

At Toronto, Dave Stieb and Tom Henke combined on a five-hitter and Kelly Gruber hit a two-run homer during a seventh-inning rally to lift Toronto. Stieb, 15-4, allowed five hits over 7 2-3 innings and Henke collected his 24th save. Terry Leach, 2-4, took the loss.

Rangers 7, White Sox 5

At Chicago, Jeff Huson's RBI single and right fielder Sammy Sosa's two-run error keyed a four-run second inning, pacing Texas. Charlie Hough, 10-7, won his third straight decision while Kenny Rogers gained his 12th save. Melido Perez, 10-10, went 7 2-3 innings for the loss.

Athletics 10, Yankees 1

At Oakland, Curt Young, 7-4, pitched 5 2-3 shutout innings as Oakland increased its 1990 mark against New York to 8-0. Yankees rookie Kevin Maas hit his 13th home run of the season. Maas has reached 13 homers faster than anyone in major-league history. He owns 13 homers in 110 at-bats.

Indians 13, Tigers 4

At Cleveland, Candy Maldonado and Chris James hit solo home runs and Mitch Webster added a three-run shot helping Cleveland. Greg Swindell, 8-7, overcame a shaky start to win for the sixth time in his last eight decisions. Colby Ward earned his first major-league save. Dan Petry, 9-8, took the loss.

Brewers 11, Royals 5

At Kansas City, Mo., Rob Deer capped a four-run first inning with a two-run homer and Gary Sheffield drove in three runs to lead Milwaukee, snapping the Royals' four-game winning streak. Winner Ron Robinson, 6-3, survived blowing a four-run lead to pitch his second consecutive complete game.

Angels 12, Orioles 4

At Anaheim, Calif., Chili Davis hit a three-run homer to cap California's seven-run fourth inning and rookie Kent Anderson went 4-for-4. Chuck Finley, 15-5, lowered his ERA to 2.36, second-best in the American League. Brian Downing collected two doubles and a solo homer for the Angels.

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AUG. 12) UPI - Tamil separatist rebels wielding automatic weapons, straight razors and knives coated with cyanide attacked three villages in eastern Sri Lanka and killed at least 105 Moslems, military officials said Sunday.

In a separate incident, armed Moslems killed 40 Tamils in an attack Sunday on a Tamil refugee camp in the village of Sammanthurai, about 24 miles south of the eastern provincial capital of Batticaloa, military sources said.

The sources said the attack was staged in retaliation for the killings of seven Moslems earlier Sunday by the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam.

More than 2,000 people have been killed since hostilities between government forces and the Tamil Tigers began in mid-June, when rebels staged simultaneous attacks on four military camps in eastern Sri Lanka.

The Tigers have been fighting for an independent Tamil homeland in the north and east of the country since 1983, but the violence of the past few months came after a year of relative calm.

The Tiger rebels claim that Sri Lanka's minority Tamil community, which is mostly Hindu, needs a separate nation because of years of discrimination by the majority Sinhalese, who are predominantly Buddhist.

In the attack on three adjacent fishing villages near Erovur, about 12 miles north of Batticaloa, Tiger rebels killed at least 105 Moslem villagers, authorities said.

Brigadier Daya Wijesekara, chief spokesman for the Defense Ministry's operations headquarters, said the attacks began Saturday evening and ended about 3 a.m. Sunday.

Wijesekara said Tiger rebels stabbed some of their victims with knives coated with cyanide.

Alavi Mowlana, an official of the Colombo-based Moslem Refugee Organization, said representatives of his group working in the villages told him Tiger rebels also used grenades, automatic weapons and straight razors to attack villagers.

''Groups of Tiger rebels went around with a public address system asking villagers to remain indoors,'' Mowlana said. ''Later, small groups of Tigers ordered men, women and children to come out of their homes. Some were lined up and shot. Hand grenades were hurled into houses where the occupants refused to come out. They also used barber razors to slash some of the victims.''

Military sources said at least 54 survivors were airlifted by Sri Lankan Air Force heliciopters to government hospitals.

One of the survivors was M. H. Habeeba, a 10-year-old girl, who said in a telephone interview from Polonnaruwa Government Hospital that rebels ordered her and her family to stand in a line before the guerrillas opened fire.

''I lost my father, mother, sister and elder brother,'' she said. ''They were lined up in a row and were shot dead. I fell down along with them and surfaced after the attackers left.''

The girl was later found by villagers and evacuated by a government helicopter.

ATHENS, Greece (AUG. 12) UPI - Iranian President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani said Sunday that Iranian forces were capable of policing the gulf region and called U.S. troops a destabalizing factor.

The moderate Iranian president made the remarks in a speech the day after Iran declared it recognized the government of Kuwait ousted by Iraq, its foe in the bitter 8-year gulf war.

Rafsanjani blamed Iraq for starting the current crisis when it invaded Kuwait, but said U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia had made the situation worse.

The United States sent thousands of troops to the gulf last week in order to help Saudi Arabia should Iraqi troops massing along the Kuwaiti border invade the oil-rich kingdom.

Tehran Radio, in a dispatch monitored in Athens, quoted Rafsanjani as saying Iranian forces were capable of providing security in the gulf and would consider it their duty to do so.

The radio report said U.S. analysts had determined Iranian troops could have defeated Iraq in the 1980-88 gulf war if the United States had not come to the assistance of Iraqi President Saddam Husein.

The United States reportedly made contact with Tehran last week, seeking assistance in its effort to drive Iraq out of Kuwait.

There were no immediate reports that Iran was backing up its words by deploying forces along the Iran-Iraq border or in the waters of the gulf.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 12) UPI - Secretary of State James Baker announced Sunday that the United States, acting on a request from the exiled government of Kuwait, will begin blocking shipments from Iraq to enforce a U.N.-ordered trade embargo.

''Those sanctions have to be implemented. We now have a formal request from the legitimate government of Kuwait to take measures to implement those sanctions, and we intend to do that,'' Baker said on the ABC program ''This Week with David Brinkley.''

Declining to give any kind of timetable for the operation, Baker said the measures the United Sates will take, perhaps in concert with other foreign forces in the Middle East, ''will be those measures that are necessary and proportional under the circumstances.''

The United Nations approved the Chapter 7 sanctions against Iraq after Iraqi troops stormed into Kuwait Aug. 2 and took control of the oil-rich emirate.

With receipt of the formal request from the Kuwaitis, whose ruling family for the past 250 years was ousted by the Iraqi invasion, Baker said the military quarantine could begin ''almost instantly.''

Made under Article 51 of the U.N. Charter, Baker said the request gives the United States and other countries ''a legal basis for stopping the export of oil and that sort of thing.''

''Let's not use the word blockade,'' Baker said. ''Let's simply say that we now have the ability - the legal basis - for interdicting those kinds of shipments.''

The development came as the reported approach of an Iraqi ship to a Saudi port raised the specter of a showdown over enforcement of the sanctions. President Bush said Saturday that he considered the U.N. resolution on sanctions to be sufficient legal authority for the United States to stop and search ships suspected of carrying prohibited products to or from Iraq or Kuwait.

Earlier Sunday in Baghdad, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein called on his nation to get prepared for a trade embargo and international sanctions imposed in retaliation for the invasion of Kuwait.

Before Baker made the disclosure, Abdul Amir al-Anbari, the Iraqi ambassador to the United Nations, predicted his country would be able to withstand the embargo and asserted ''the whole world, including the United States, will suffer due to higher oil prices.

Interviewed as well on ABC, al-Anbari said the United States, now flirting with recession, could well soon ''face depression'' from higher prices and charged, ''You are endangering the whole world, really, in a crisis which is the sole respnsibility of the United States.''

Baker said, ''The government of Kuwait, the legitimate government of Kuwait, has just requested of us and of other nations support for enforcement of the U.N. economic sanctions.''

Baker went on to say ''there's no reason why it shouldn't begin fairly quickly now that Kuwait has made the request.''

MOSCOW (AUG. 12) UPI - President Mikhail Gorbachev has given illegal armies in the Soviet Union an additional two months to surrender their weapons, the government newspaper said Sunday.

Gorbachev extended his July 25 decree, which ordered the breakup of vigilante bands, amid reports that it was being widely ignored in the country's 15 republics and after he met with the new president of Armenia, the decree's chief target.

''I declare the prolongment for a term of two months the period of voluntary disarmament of illegal military units equipped with weapons, explosive materials and combat vehicles,'' Gorbachev said in a follow-up decree published in Izvestia, the official newspaper of the Soviet government.

The original decree authorized Interior Ministry and KGB forces, aided by regular army soldiers if necessary, to disarm vigilante groups that failed to turn in their weapons by Aug. 9, but the deadline passed Thursday with no offensive action by Soviet troops.

Gen. Vladimir Ovchinnikov, chief of staff for Interior Ministry forces in the Nagorno-Karabakh region of Azerbaijan, told Soviet television Saturday evening that Interior Minister Vadim Bakatin had sent him an order outlining steps to enforce Gorbachev's decree.

''All those measures have been taken with our troops,'' he said. ''The equipment, arms and personnel have been prepared.''

Ovchinnikov accused Armenian extremists of exacerbating tensions in their 2 1/2-year drive to pry Nagorno-Karabakh from the neighboring republic of Azerbaijan, which has controlled the region since 1923 despite its mainly Armenian population.

Levon Ter-Petrosyan, the Armenian nationalist elected president of his republic's parliament on Aug. 4, told visiting U.N. Deputy Secretary-General Yasushi Akashi on Saturday that the ''just settlement'' of the Nagorno-Karabakh problem was one of his highest priorities, the official Tass news agency said.

The Armenian Parliament rejected Gorbachev's decree shortly after he issued it. At a meeting initiated by the Soviet president, Ter-Petrosyan told Gorbachev last week that he could oversee the disarming of Armenian vigilante bands if given more time.

BOSTON (AUG. 12) UPI - Despite a federal ban on subliminal advertising and claims that a subliminal message on a rock album caused two deaths, there is little evidence that such messages influence behavior, psychologists said Sunday.

Although scores of articles have been written and debates waged about the propriety of exposing people to messages in words or pictures that they are not aware of, studies have yet to turn up any solid evidence that these hidden influences work, members of a panel of researchers said at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association.

In the largest study of its kind to date, Anthony Greenwald and colleagues at the University of Washington in Seattle had 240 people listen to self-help audio tapes, some of which were supposed to contain buried messages and some which did not.

The tape makers claimed that subliminal messages they had included helped to increase the self-esteem, improve the memories or help weight reduction efforts among listeners, Greenwald said.

But when researchers compared people who had listened to tapes with the subliminal messages and those who did not, they could find nothing to support the claims, Greenwald said. In fact, tapes without the hidden messages seemed to have a greater effect on study participants than those with them, he said.

The ability of subliminal messages to affect behavior has been at the center of a trial in Reno, Nev., in which lawyers for the families of two young men who shot themselves in 1985 claimed that they were spurred to do it by words buried in the soundtrack of an album by the British rock group Judas Priest.

In a product liability case against the band and CBS Records, lawyers representing the families of James Vance and Ray Belknap have tried to prove that the words ''Do it, do it'' were hidden under the music.

Their families have said it was this message that led Vance and Belknap to go to a playground in Sparks, Nev., on Dec. 23, 1985 and shoot themselves with a 12-gauge sawed-off shotgun. Belknap, 18, died instantly and Vance, who was then 20, died in 1988 from complications stemming from his injuries.

In arguments before Washoe District Court Judge Jerry Carr Whitehead, defense lawyers claimed last week that Vance and Belknap, both high school dropouts with drug use histories, were spurred to suicide by their troubled lives, not by any hidden message on the Judas Priest album. A decision in the case is expected shortly.

One member of the psychologists' panel, Philip Merkle of the University of Waterloo in Ontario, Canada, said his laboratory analysis of audio tapes that were supposed to contain subliminal messages did not detect any identifiable speech underlying the soundtrack.

In addition, he said listeners could not discern any difference between tapes that allegedly had hidden messages and those that did not.

''On the basis of these results, the only reasonable conclusion is that these audio cassettes do not contain any embedded subliminal message that could conceivably influence behavior,'' he said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 12) UPI - Amid objections from environmentalists, Interior Department wildlife experts have concluded that Australian kangaroo populations are healthy and in no need of U.S. endangered species protection.

In a report released by the Interior Department's Fish and Wildlife Service last week, the experts said protective legislation in Australia has kept the population of kangaroos abundant, despite commercial operations that kill millions of them every year for food and leather.

Animal protection groups charge the new report by the Fish and Wildlife Service is misleading and that kangaroos are on their way to becoming an endangered species.

The groups also vowed to organize a boycott this autumn against corporations that sell shoes and other sports items made from kangaroos. Among the companies included in the boycott are the Addidas Corporation, the Burton Manufacturing Company Inc., Puma and the Nocona Athletic Goods Company.

The federal experts went to Australia in response to a petition from environmental groups asking that a U.S. ban on kangaroo products be re-imposed. Twenty-one members of Congress also asked for reinstatement of the ban.

The ban was put into effect in 1975 because of dwindling kangaroo populations. It was lifted in 1981 after the Australian government presented the Interior Department with studies that found the animal had recovered.

The new report by the Fish and Wildlife Service confirms Australian claims saying kangaroo populations are more abundant today than before Europeans arrived to settle Australia.

The report estimates the current kangaroo population to be about 18 million, up from the early 1980's, when populations were depleted because of severe drought in several areas - not over-exploitation.

The experts also found Australia has effective laws protecting the kangaroo and that government officials have successfully managed commercial use of the species as well as hunting.

Australian law limits the yearly take of kangaroos to 4 million and provides for steep financial penalties for illegally killing or exporting kangaroos.

The Interior Department experts said if commercial use of kangaroos in Australia is stopped, farmers would probably resort to large-scale poisoning of kangaroos to protect their crops. The report estimates Australian farmers lose about $200 million per year as a result of kangaroos damaging crops and denuding grazing areas reserved for livestock.

Marian Newman, director of the International Wildlife Coalition, said the report is inaccurate because it is based on false information from Australian farmers, businesses and government officials intent on preserving kangaroo operations.

''If the Interior Department caves in once again to the pressure from the Australian government to continue the harmful trade in kangaroo products, the result will hasten the extinction of Australia's legendary kangaroos, all for the short-term profits of a few greedy individuals who care nothing about their country's irreplaceable wildlife,'' said Newman.

Leilani Anderson, a wildlife expert for Greenpeace, said that even if the report's estimate of 18 million kangaroos is correct, the animal still needs U.S endangered species protection.

Anderson said poor kangaroo management in Australia is allowing the animal to be over-exploited. She noted the current commercial quotas in Australia allow almost one quarter of the reported population of kangaroos to be wiped out each year.

The commercial quotas, Anderson said, do not take into consideration outside forces that could reduce kangaroo populations such as floods and disease. Further, the quotas were set without an understanding of how kangaroo populations affect the ecosystems in Australia.

AMMAN, Jordan (AUG. 12) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein demanded Sunday that U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia be replaced with a U.N.-supervised Arab force, that Israel pull out of occupied territories and an international trade embargo be lifted.

Saddam's demands were contained in a so-called initiative read by an unnamed spokesman on Baghdad radio, monitored in Amman.

The Iraqi leader, who has ordered his nation to prepare for war amid indications that U.N. economic sanctions were working, threatened the use of force if the West did not accept his demands.

''If America and its allies will not accept this initiative, we will resist by force,'' Saddam said through his spokesman, according to a translation provided by Cable News Network. ''We the chosen of the Arab world, with all the evil action against us, we will be victorious.''

There was no immediate reaction to the demands. The world community, including the United States, the United Nations and the 21-member Arab League, has demanded an unconditional Iraqi pullout from Kuwait.

Under the ''initiative'' read on Iraqi TV and radio, the Iraqi president demanded the unconditional withdrawal of Israel from the occupied territories and Lebanon.

He asked for the U.N. Security Council to oversee the armed forces in Saudi Arabia and have the other nations, particularly the United States, withdraw and leave an all-Arab force in the kingdom.

Finally, he demanded the lifting of economic sanctions imposed by the United Nations against Iraq for its Aug. 2 invasion and conquest of neighboring Kuwait.

The latest statement came hours after the Iraqi president, again through his spokesman, told his citizens to cut back on consumption of food and other essentials in an apparent indication that the trade embargo was working.

Also Saturday, the Iraqi News Agency reported that pilots had offered to carry out suicide missions against U.S. naval vessels in the Persian Gulf in the spirit of Jules Jamal, a Syrian who staged a suicide attack against British and French ships in 1956.

''In a cable received by ... Saddam ... the group affirmed its determination to obtain martyrdom in defense of Iraq, as well as the sanctities of the Arab and Islamic nation,'' the news agency reported.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 12) UPI - Members of the 82nd Airborne Division who flew to Saudi Arabia's vast desert last week were somber and professional, but worried their gas masks would be useless against Iraqi chemical weapons, a pilot said Sunday.

Chris Taylor was flight engineer on a DC-10 World Airways jet that transported 246 elite soldiers on Aug. 9 to Dhahran, a Saudi city sandwiched between the waters of the Persian Gulf and the sands of the desert, about 200 miles from the Kuwaiti border.

Taylor said he watched as the exhausted troops piled onto trucks at the airport and were driven off into the wasteland, where, he was told, they would be housed in bunkers built underground to shelter them from the searing sun.

''They loaded onto trucks and they just disappeared in the horizon,'' Taylor said in a telephone interview from his home outside of Washington, D.C. ''They went off into the desert.''

''They were stressing they were afraid of the chemicals,'' Taylor said of the soldiers. ''They all had gas masks, but there was a knowledge, a fear, that that was not going to be enough.''

Iraq is believed to have a considerable arsenal of internationally outlawed chemical weapons that President Saddam Hussein used against civilian populations during the eight-year Iran-Iraq war.

Back in the air, Taylor said he scanned the Saudi frontier and across to what he believed to be Kuwait, but saw no evidence of the Iraqi military buildup on the border that has left the world preparing for war.

''It was just desolate. Sand looks like sand,'' he said. ''But this was early in the operation.

''The airspace between Spain and Brussels was just full of military aircraft, though,'' he said. ''It was just an unbelievable amount of military traffic.''

The Military Airlift Command - ordered to send American troops into Saudi Arabia in case Iraqi troops massing in occupied Kuwait invade the oil-rich kingdom - chartered two World Airways DC-10s to transport members of the 82nd Airborne from Pope Air Force Base in North Carolina to Dhahran.

Taylor, a sort of hired gun in the world of transport, had been flying Malaysian Moslems to Mecca in Saudi Arabia for the Hajj, the venerated trip to the holy city of Islam that all Moslems hope to make at least once in their lifetimes.

Taylor, who joined the plane in Belgium, said the U.S. troops were in full combat gear and spent much of the flight being briefed with maps and charts projected on the plane's movie screen.

''The mood was very professional, and well-organized,'' he said. ''There didn't seem to be a lot of younger guys. They were the elite.''

Taylor said one of the commanders came into the cockpit during the flight and used the radio to order more mines and extra trucks to be sent to Dhahran.

There were few Saudis at the Dhahran airport, which serves both military and commercial planes, Taylor said. American officers directed the operation from an air-conditioned headquarters building that had advanced communications equipment and soda machines.

''It was a well-oiled operation, very well-thought out, very professional '' Taylor said.

''No one was ready to fight,'' he said of the troops, tired after their long flight. ''They basically looked beat.''

From his experiences with the Hajj, Taylor knew the Saudis did not allow photographs, so he had a fellow crew member shield his camera while he took pictures of the U.S. troops in formation, poring over maps and loading onto trucks. He sold the photographs to United Press International when he returned to the United States the following day.

Taylor said World Airways, a struggling airline with 10 DC-10 charter planes, was scheduled to fly in more of the estimated 50,000 troops the United States is deploying to Saudi Arabia.

''My overall view was that it was desolate,'' Taylor said. ''It's going to be rough going for those poor guys.''

SINGAPORE (AUG. 12) UPI - Chinese Premier Li Peng said Sunday Beijing was against superpower involvement in Iraq's invasion of Kuwait but respected Saudi Arabia's right to invite U.S. military forces to help maintain its safety.

After two days of talks aimed at accelerating diplomatic ties with Singapore, Li also told a news conference Beijing will stop arming the Khmer Rouge when others cease their assistance. He expressed the hope of normalizing relations with Vietnam once the 11-year-old Cambodian conflict is resolved.

On the Middle East, Li noted that China supported U.N. Resolution 660 and will not sell arms to Iraq.

But he said China ''opposes big power military involvement because that will only further complicate the situation which is complicated enough.''

Thousands of U.S. military personnel, a naval task force and air armada are already deployed in and around Saudi Arabia.

The Soviet Union, Britain, France, West Germany, Canada, Australia and Belgium have also committed forces in response to the invasion.

Li said the Arab League provides the proper framework for nations in the region to work toward a solution. Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak has ordered 5,000 paratroopers to deploy in Saudi Arabia as a Pan-Arab defense force following the league's failure to persuade Iraq to leave Kuwait.

''Saudi Arabia is a sovereign state,'' Li said. ''If it wants to invite U.S. armed forces to help maintain its safety out of security considerations, then we respect the decision.''

Meanwhile, with both Singapore Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew and President Suharto of Indonesia urging Li to convince the Khmer Rouge to abide by a U.N.-based settlement of the bloodshed in Cambodia, Li said he backed the formation of a Supreme National Council comprising all the warring parties prior to free elections under U.N. supervision.

China will halt arms to the Khmer Rouge, the most powerful of the resistance factions fighting the Vietnam-backed Phnom Penh government, ''once a comprehensive agreement is reached and others cease their assistance,'' Li said.

The Soviet Union bankrolls Hanoi, and the United States provides non-lethal aide to the non-communist guerrillas.

''China would like to normalize relations with Vietnam after a settlement of the Cambodian'' conflict, Li said.

He criticized the recent U.S. policy shift withdrawing diplomatic recognition of the resistance at the United Nations as long as it includes the Khmer Rouge, blamed for the deaths of 1 million Cambodians from 1975 through 1979.

''The seat should not be vacated,'' Li said. ''That would not work in the interest'' of peace.''

After successfully normalizing relations with Indonesia last Wednesday following a 23-year freeze, Li said he and Lee ''have reached a wide agreement without any major problems'' toward establishing diplomatic ties.

Li, the first senior Chinese leader in almost a decade to visit Singapore, said the process would be completed ''as expeditiously as possible.''

Officials expect ties to be formally normalized during the first two weeks of November, before Lee steps down as prime minister of the city-state he has ruled for 31 years.

Singapore and the tiny sultanate of Brunei have refused to normalize relations with China out of deference to Indonesia although business between Singapore and China has flourished, with two-way trade growing from $407 million in 1977 to $2.82 billion last year.

While normalizing relations with Singapore would amount to another diplomatic feather in Beijing's cap, it would be a setback for Taiwan, now recognized by about 20 foreign countries. Last nonth Beijing sealed ties with Saudi Arabia. In response, Taipei suspended diplomatic relations with Riyadh but maintained economic and cultural relationships with Saudi Arabia.

It was expected Singapore would follow a similar procedure.

NEW YORK (AUG. 12) UPI - Jurors began their fourth day of deliberations Sunday in the attempted murder and rape trial of three youths accused of attacking a woman jogger in Central Park.

The 10-man, two-woman jury resumed discussions at 11 a.m. in state Supreme Court in Manhattan.

Raymond Santana, 15, Antron McCray, 16, and Yusef Salaam, 16, are on trial for the brutal beating and gang rape of a 30-year-old female investment banker during a random crime spree in Central Park on April 19, 1989.

The three are also charged with assaulting two male joggers - 41-year-old schoolteacher John Loughlin and 31-year-old banker David Lewis - and robbing Loughlin of a portable radio.

On Saturday, the three teens on trial chatted and smiled as the jury filed into the courtroom at state Supreme Court to hear legal instructions on reaching a verdict on robbery charges.

The jury also listened to a videotaped confession by Santana, the only one of the youths to talk about the robbery of a radio headset from a male jogger in the park.

In their videotaped confessions and in interviews with detectives, the youths admit to being part of a gang of up to 30 teens who went into the moonlit park to go ''wilding'' - randomly beating and robbing people.

The jury of 10 men and two women, in its sixth note since the start of deliberations, Saturday asked Justice Thomas Galligan to explain again the law concerning first-degree robbery and two counts of second-degree robbery. The charges are part of a 13-count indictment against each of the youths.

Galligan told the jurors that to convict on first-degree robbery, the jury must find the youths used a dangerous instrument during the course of the robbery.

The youths confessed the gang used a piece of wood - possibly a tree branch - to beat Loughlin into unconsciousness. Loughlin later stumbled upon a police officer in the park, and the officer testified Loughlin looked like he had been ''dumped in a bucket of blood.''

The judge explained that a conviction on the first second-degree count required a finding of physical injury. The second count required a finding that the person aided someone in a robbery or was aided by others in a robbery, the judge said.

With the instructions fresh in their minds, the jurors filed out of the courtroom without glancing at the teens as they passed the defense table.

ANKARA, Turkey (AUG. 12) UPI - The Turkish Parliament met in an emergency session Sunday to discuss the Persian Gulf crisis amid reports that the government will seek special powers to declare war.

The Istanbul newspaper Hurriyet quoted President Turgut Ozal as saying the government of Prime Minister Yildirim Akbulut would introduce a bill asking for special powers to declare war in case of an emergency.

Under the constitution, only Parliament has the right to declare war.

The Parliament, which was in its summer recess when the crisis erupted with the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, was called into special session on request of the Social Democratic Populist Party, the main opposition group.

Turkey saw itself being drawn into the gulf conflict when it closed twin Iraqi oil pipelines passing through its territory after the U.N. Security Council imposed economic sanctions on Iraq.

Iraqi forces have since been reported building up near the Turkish border, and Turkish warplanes were reportedly on exercises in the region.

TUNIS, Tunisia (AUG. 12) UPI - Tunisian President Zine el Abidine Ben Ali moved a step closer toward Iraq by condemning Western military intervention in the Persian Gulf conflict, but stopped short of giving direct support to President Saddam Hussein.

Ben Ali, in a televised address Saturday night, distanced himself from other Arab leaders such as Hosni Mubarak of Egypt who have joined the multinational force opposing Saddam's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Although Tunisia has long been considered among the more moderate Arab states, Ben Ali appeared to be yielding to increasing political pressure from supporters of Saddam's call for a ''holy war.''

In a direct call to the Moslem masses, Saddam Friday urged Arabs to revolt against rulers ''who do not know sense of honor'' and rise up in a jihad, or holy war, against the Western presence in Saudi Arabia, site of Islam's holiest sites.

By issuing the impassioned appeal, Saddam went over the heads of Arab leaders who were struggling to find a diplomatic way to end the Persian Gulf crisis, triggered by Iraq's conquest of its neighbor Kuwait.

Libya and the PLO are the only two Arab League members siding with Iraq in the crisis.

Although the Tunisian leader had apparently been seeking to remain neutral in the conflict, he has been under pressure from pro-Iraqi opposition groups feeding off popular sentiment.

These groups sought to organize an anti-American rally last Friday in Tunis but were denied permission by the government. Pro-Iraqi demonstrations, which had occurred for days in Jordan, spread during the weekend to Yemen, Libya, Algeria and the Israeli-occupied territories.

Fundamentalists in Tunisia, including the unauthorized Ennahda party, have been critical of Western intervention but have stopped short of taking sides against Saudi Arabia, which provides them with financial aid.

''As an Arab and Moslem nation, Tunisia refuses to confer an imaginary legitimacy on the foreign intervention in the affairs of the Arab world,'' Ben Ali said.

''That does not serve Arab interests nor the interests of peace and security in the region, but only further complicates the matter by internationalizing it and pushing the principal parties in conflict to greater obstination.''

Tunisia boycotted Friday's Arab summit after seeking a delay in the Cairo meeting, and up to now had been noncommital on the growing conflict.

Ben Ali said in his address that the rushed atmosphere of the meeting made it doomed to failure.

He also said he had asked for a delay so could have time to travel to Baghdad ''to convince Saddam Hussein of the necessity of reaching an agreement that takes into account the interests of the conflicting parties and preserves the unity of the Arab nation.''

MIAMI (AUG. 12) UPI - A dolphin protection activist has asked the FBI to pursue attempted murder charges against private Navy contractors whose boats allegedly ran over two protesters trying to halt an explosives test off the Florida Keys.

''I think the charge should be attempted murder on the high seas. It was very clearly deliberate and malicious,'' said Ric O'Barry, one of the two injured protesters.

The FBI confirmed Sunday it was investigating Friday's incident, but would not disclose details.

''The FBI is in the process of conducting an investigation to determine if there were any violations of any federal criminal statutes,'' FBI spokesman Paul Miller said.

O'Barry, who trained dolphins for the Flipper television series, and Russ Rector, said they were run over by two boats Friday while swimming near the test area. They were trying to halt the detonation of a 1,200-pound charge.

The Navy was using the underwater explosives to test new submarine parts near the Dry Tortugas, 85 miles west of Key West. The protesters said the test could endanger dolphins in the test area, a charge the Navy denied.

O'Barry suffered a concussion and several bruises. Rector, 42, of Orlando, suffered back and hip injuries and a dislocated shoulder. They were rescued by the Coast Guard and treated at Florida Keys Memorial Hospital.

The boats involved, a tugboat and a 16-foot Boston whaler, were run by civilians under contract with the Navy, O'Barry said.

''The ships actually chased after us and repeatedly tried to kill me,'' said O'Barry, who later learned that the explosives had already been detonated and the test was over.

''It was over and they were on their way home. All they had to do was leave. They were not hired as security officers. Why were they even chasing us?'' he said.

O'Barry, who was back home in Miami Sunday, said he was questioned by an FBI agent from his hospital bed. He said he and Rector had volunteered to take lie detector tests.

The official in charge of the testing, Dan Probert, head of the Naval Air Development Center in Key West, could not be reached for comment Sunday. He said earlier that the protesters and the boats collided when the protesters tried to swim under the boats to the test site.

O'Barry had delayed the test for a day Thursday by clinging to a buoy over the explosives.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 12) UPI - As Saddam Hussein took to Middle Eastern airwaves Sunday warning that ''many will burn'' if war breaks out, President Bush went to a shaded New England road for a relaxing 20-minute jog.

While Saddam proposed tough conditions for the withdrawal of his troops from conquered Kuwait, including the removal of U.S. forces from the oil-rich Persian Gulf, the White Houe declined any immediate comment and Bush went fishing.

Later Sunday, with the international screws tightening on the Iraqi leader Bush made time for golf, confident he had Saddam where he wanted him - in a corner of global isolation.

''You're doing a good job, Mr. President,'' a man screamed out as a beaming Bush entered St. Ann's Episopal Church for a morning service.

Bush, on a three-week working vacation at his summer home, was clearly pleased Sunday with the mounting international condemnation of Saddam, underscored with growing global muscle.

For his part, Saddam demanded Sunday that U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia be replaced with a U.N.-supervised Arab force, that Israel pull out of occupied territories and that an international trade embargo be lifted.

The Iraqi president's demands were contained in a so-called initiative read by a spokesman on Baghdad radio. Saddam, who has ordered his nation to prepare for war amid indications that U.N. economic sanctions were working, threatened the use of force if the West did not accept his demands.

Just hours earlier Sunday, Bush telephoned Syrian President Hafez Assad to thank him for committing troops to a multinational force against Saddam.

''I told him I am very pleased that we are looking at this in the same way '' Bush told reporters in relating his call to Assad.

The president said he also told Assad that ''we are determined to fulfill the obligations that we have'' to enforce U.N.-backed economic sanctions against Iraq.

''He (Assad) told me that he was pleased that we're together on this,'' Bush said.

After days of increasingly strong hints, the administration stated flatly Sunday that U.S. forces would interdict any Iraqi ship seeking to leave port.

Secretary of States James Baker made the announcement during an appearance on ABC's ''This Week with David Brinkley.''

Baker said the United States was taking the action on the request of the exiled government of Iraqi-occupied Kuwait.

As Baker spoke, Bush jogged.

Asked by reporters about the secretary of state's remarks, the president said, ''I didn't hear him.''

Asked about intercepting Iraqi ships, he said, ''We felt (U.N) Chapter 7 (economic sanctions) gives us broad authority, working in conjunction with others, to do what is necessary to see that no (Iraqi) oil goes out.''

He then climbed in his black limousine and headed back to his summer home to prepare for an afternoon of recreation - while half way around the world Saddam felt the heat.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 12) UPI - As American military might poured into the Persian Gulf region, the fate of an uncertain number of American civilians hung over the U.S. war of nerves against Iraq like an ominous question mark.

Barred by Iraqi authorities from leaving, as many as 3,500 Americans in Iraq and Kuwait have emerged as pawns and possible bargaining chips in the tense showdown President Bush has engineered with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

In a bid to avoid any further inflammation of an already explosive situation, U.S. officials have taken pains to not sound unduly alarmed about their safety or raise the specter of another Middle East hostage crisis.

Abdul Amir al-Anbari, the Iraqi ambassador to the United Nations, said on the ABC News program ''This Week with David Brinkley'' that all foreigners were being detained for ''quite understandable'' reasons with his country on a war footing.

''We are in a state of emergency,'' he said, ''and we have to make sure that everyone is not only safe, but to know what was he doing there. But eventually they will be all released.''

That was only the latest in a series of ambiguous signals from the Iraqi government since the Americans, like tens of thousands of other foreigners found themselves stranded by the Aug. 2 Iraqi takeover of Kuwait.

For their part, U.S. officials have underscored Bush's determination to protect Americans lives, a commitment that on three previous occasions has driven him to send American troops into crisis situations, while being careful to not lay down specific markers for action.

National security adviser Brent Scowcroft acknowledged on the CBS News program ''Face the Nation'' that hostages ''have been a neuralgic issue in American politics on previous occasions'' - first in Iran and later in Lebanon - and said, ''We're trying to handle it in a way that it does not become that.''

''It may,'' Scowcroft said of the current confrontation, ''but I don't want to forecast that, nor say how we will respond.''

Secretary of State James Baker said on ABC that prohibiting the Americans from leaving ''runs against all international behavior norms,'' but drew a certain degree of encouragement from the fact that U.S. citizens had been treated the same as other foreigners.

''They've not been permitted to leave, but they haven't been mistreated,'' he said, ''and no specific demands or requests have been made for permission for them to leave.''

Eleven Americans, including a 10-year-old California girl, were allowed to cross the Iraqi border into Jordan on Saturday after several unsuccessful attempts. Except for the the girl, Penelope Nabokov, they were all staff members or dependents from the U.S. Embassy in Baghdad.

Despite reports of counter-terrorist forces in place along with other American troops in and near the Persian Gulf, U.S. officials held out hope the waiting game being played out against a backdrop of a massive buildup of military forces along the Saudi-Kuwaiti border will lead to freedom for the Americans and other foreigners under Iraqi control.

Complicating the situation was the lack of a precise estimate of how many Americans may be involved. Although U.S. officials thought there were 3,000 Americans in Kuwait and more than 500 in Iraq in the immediate aftermath of the Iraqi invasion, the State Department was able Friday to confirm the presence of only 1,600.

A reported deal Sunday for the release of most of the 8,700 Soviet citizens in Iraq and Kuwait raised questions about any conditions the Soviet government may have met and what, if anything, the development could mean for the trapped Americans.

Scowcroft, however, doubted the Soviets would mute their criticism of the Iraqi invasion or back away from a U.N.-ordered trade embargo. The Soviets ''have been very supportive'' of the U.S.-led campaign against Iraq, he said, ''and we see no reason that should change.''

MANILA, Philippines (AUG. 12) UPI - The Philippines, which has about 70,000 workers in the Persian Gulf region, will not join the any military moves against Iraq, Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus said Sunday.

In a statement, Manglapus said, ''The Philippines has no plans of participating in any military action in the Middle East and that its paramount concern is the safety and welfare of the hundreds of thousands of Filipinos working in that region.''

Manglapus also announced Baghdad is allowing Filipinos to leave Iraq and Kuwait and that Amman was allowing Philippine nationals to leave through Jordan.

There are about 60,000 Filipino workers in Kuwait and another 5,000 in Iraq.

Manglapus said Philippine officials in Saudi Arabia had been instructed to prepare for the evacuation of the workers.

Some 200 Filipinos who escaped from Kuwait have returned to Manila by commercial flights, paying their own fare.

President Corazon Aquino, meanwhile, in her weekly radio talk show called on Filipinos to conserve energy.

''In the face of the possibility of a protracted war which would inevitably affect the price of oil it is but timely that we become aware of the value of this scarce resource,'' Aquino said.

Aquino said her government had arranged for Iran to fill in oil exports from Iraq and that negotiations were underway to purchase oil from China and other countries outside the Middle East.

NEW YORK (AUG. 12) UPI - More than 5,000 hoofers, from enthusiastic children to elderly vaudeville veterans, packed a Manhattan street Sunday to form the world's largest tap-dancing line.

This year's version of ''Tap-O-Mania,'' sponsored by the Macy's department store chain, drew 5,271 dancers, enough for a world record, Macy's said.

The old Guinness book record tap line, they said, was 4,877, set last year in the annual Macy's event.

For 30 minutes, tappers clad in bright orange T-shirts and wearing styrofoam boaters packed 34th Street in front of the entire length of the flagship Macy's store, tapping to ''Candy Man'' and ''If You Could See Me Now,'' tunes made popular by the late Sammy Davis Jr.

Mechanical guns spewed multi-colored discs onto the cheering crowd lined up in untidy rows outside the mammoth store. Tap ''captains'' marshaled 20-member teams into a semblance of order.

Gina Riley, 15, a dancer since age 4, said most participants seemed to know what they were doing, or at least had learned the steps during a morning practice that began at 8 a.m.

''Most of them don't know how to tap,'' she said. ''But today it wasn't that hard, just some basic steps.''

''It's like a puzzle with a million different pieces,'' added a companion, Andrew LeMin, 17. ''Once you put it all together, it becomes like a universal step, and you can do anything.''

Susan Rosenblatt and Gertrude Schnur said their young daughters convinced them to make the trip into midtown Manhattan from Queens.

''I love to dance, but you don't have to know how to dance,'' said Rosenblatt, 40. ''Some people were really into it. But no matter how much you fumble during rehearsals, when the music starts, you just go 'oomph.'''

Shnur, 65, said the dancing exhausted her.

''Our feet were burning, aching,'' she said. ''But now I feel better.''

(AUG. 12) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein issued demands today through a spokesman that he says the West must accept or face resistance from his country, which he calls ''the chosen of the Arab world.'' The Iraqi leader is also calling for Israel and Syria to pull out of the Israeli-occupied territories.

There was NO immediate reaction to Saddam's demands which were UNveiled as the United States indicated it was stepping up its action against Iraq. LOS ANGELES (AUG. 13) UPI - Though gasoline prices average a dime a gallon higher than three weeks ago, retailers are not gouging customers and have lost nearly a cent of profit margin since the invasion of Kuwait, an industry analyst said Sunday.

Gasoline prices are up because of Iraq's attack on its neighbor and its affect on the spot gasoline market, said Trilby Lundberg, director of the Lundberg Survey.

Based on a survey Friday of more than 13,000 retail gasoline outlets nationwide, the weighted average price for a gallon of gasoline was 127.94 cents, up 10.2 cents from the last survey July 20, Lundberg said.

She said it was the highest weighted average price in the survey since September 1982, when the price was $1.28 in the wake of high crude oil prices and increased oil exploration efforts.

Lundberg said the higher average price does not indicate widespread price gouging, as some consumers have said. In fact, she said, oil retailers have taken slightly lower profits in recent weeks, when wholesale prices increased an average of .8 cents more than the average increase in retail prices.

One of the most significant results of the Iraqi move on Kuwait and the subsequent halt of U.S. imports from those two countries was a leap in the gasoline spot market, she said.

Lundberg said most U.S. oil companies do not have enough gasoline capacity in their refineries to keep up with demand in the peak driving months of July and August, so they have become heavily reliant on the gasoline spot market to augment their own supplies.

On the spot market, where response to the Mideast crisis was quick, oil companies were forced to pay much higher prices than normal for gasoline imported from foreign refineries or gasoline that had already been traded between a number of suppliers.

''The U.S. refining industry has a reliance on spot market gasoline it did not have in previous periods of crisis, like crunch in the 1970s,'' she said.

In addition to regular spot market purchases to keep pace with summertime demand, oil companies may have bought more spot gasoline in anticipation of even higher prices should a gas shortage happen, Lundberg said.

But, she said, the price hikes seen in the 3-week period since the July 20 survey also reflect other factors.

''Some of the changes were already destined to be because crude oil prices had already turned,'' she said. International market prices and the meeting of OPEC leaders in late July also influenced the domestic pump prices.

She said the spot gasoline market saw slight price declines at the end of last week and, if that trend continues, consumers may see a dip in the pump prices again.

''We cannot know what crude oil supplies and prices will do, ... but we know on the gasoline side after August the consumption pull will drop, so refiners will require fewer extra barrels (from the spot market),'' she said.

She said retailers should respond quickly to a significant drop in the spot market.

''They will need to compete for sales, particularly if they have been posting high prices,'' Lundberg said. ''They will need to compete for customer loyalty.''

According to the survey, the price per gallon for the most popular gasoline, self-service regular unleaded, was 116.40 cents, including tax. Self-service premium unleaded cost 133.59, and regular leaded cost 117.22.

At the full-service pumps, the price for regular unleaded was 140.30 cents a gallon, for premium unleaded, 153.93, and for regular leaded, 137.63.

The survey also checked prices on the home heating-oil market and found an overall weighted average price of 101.82 cents a gallon, an increase of 15.8 cents, Lundberg said.

BIRMINGHAM, AL (AUG. 12) UPI - The PGA trophy headed Down Under Sunday in the hands of a likeable fellow who serves as yet another symbol of the worldwide assault on what were once American golfing strongholds.

In a tense duel between two men trying to elevate their golfing careers to a new level, Australian Wayne Grady withstood the pressures brought on by the harrowing hazards of Shoal Creek.

Fred Couples did not.

''This was a day,'' said Couples, ''when I really felt I let myself down.''

Four straight bogeys by Couples beginning at the par-3 13th handed the championship to Grady, who had played around the world in relative obscurity for a decade before he emerged as the near winner of last year's British Open.

''If I don't seem too excited, believe me I am,'' said Grady, who won by three shots thanks to the basic ability of avoiding the thick rough which drew waves of protests from this week's participants.

''This is the longest day of my life - absolutely. I lost the lead early on the back nine to Freddie and I started having bad thoughts.

''I told myself to keep playing safe because this course can jump up and grab you. And then Freddie helped me out.''

In winning the PGA, Grady made 1990 the worst year in the history of the four major championship tournaments for American golfers.

Since the inception of the Masters in 1934, except during World War II when the major championships were not held, American players have won at least two of the four majors every year.

This year, however, the Americans could win only one - that coming from Hale Irwin at the U.S. Open. England's Nick Faldo won the Masters and British Open and the PGA was won Sunday by the first non-American to capture the title since Australian David Graham in 1979.

Grady shot a 1-under 71 Sunday for a four-day total of 6-under 282 - equaling the highest winning total in this tournament since it switched from match play to medal play in 1958.

He earned by far the biggest paycheck of his career - $225,000 out of a total purse of $1.35 million.

Couples, who played the first 12 holes in 4-under Sunday, finished with a 72 for a 285 total that was good fore $135,000.

''I got off to a great start,'' Couples said. ''I had some pressure on myself, then I put it on Wayne. Then I gave out. The pressure began on the first tee and it was exciting. Now it is a letdown.

''The bogeys I made happened so fast. It's sickening.''

A shot back of Couples after an even-par 72 was Gil Morgan, who came within two shots of the lead after 12 holes before suffering a double bogey that ended his threat at the par-3 13th.

Bill Britton finished alone in fourth at 1-over 289 with Chip Beck and Billy Mayfair tying for fifth at 290. Back in the pack, meanwhile, came Payne Stewart - the defending champion who began the day two shots out of the lead and had hopes of becoming the first player since 1937 to defend his PGA title. Stewart, however, shot a 79 Sunday for a 292 total.

Also far back was Faldo, who shot the best round of the day at 3-under 69 but who still missed out on his attempt to become the second player in history to win three professional majors in the same year. Faldo finished 13 shots behind Grady at 295.

Grady, whose only previous win on the American tour came at the 1989 Westchester Classic, vaulted into prominence last year when he led the British Open by a shot going into the final round.

He played well in the fourth round at Troon, but eventually was tied at the end of 72 holes by Mark Calcavecchia and Greg Norman - Calcavecchia winning the playoff.

''I was very disappointed at the British Open last year,'' Grady said.

''I'm very fortunate to have won this time.

''I think today was a lot tougher because of the memory of Troon (the British Open site) last year.

''I hope this will help me in other tournaments because it shows me I can play in difficult circumstances on very hard golf courses. It will be great to see my name on this trophy will all the great names that are on it. My name is on it now and they will never scratch it off.''

Sunday's round began as if Grady would run away with the title.

He made a 60-foot birdie putt at the opening hole and survived a potential disaster at the second when his tee shot hit a tree and traveled only 50 yards.

But he escaped with a bogey and then made birdie putts of 10 and 35 feet at the third and fourth holes.

That opened a three-shot lead over Couples, who quickly replaced the struggling Stewart as the chief challenger.

Couples closed to within two shots with a birdie at the par-5 sixth and was still two shots behind when he went to the par-5 11th.

At that hole, Couples reached the green in two and two-putted for a birdie. Couples then birdied the tough, par-4 12th hole and climbed in front when Grady bogeyed the same hole.

But things then turned sour for Couples, who three-putted from the back fringe at the 13th, missed a four-foot par putt at the 14th and missed another four-footer for par at the 15th. A wild tee shot at the par-3 16th set up another bogey and made things easy for Grady - who wound up making pars on the last six holes to cruise home.

''I wish I could have done better in that stretch,'' Couples said, ''but that's the way it goes. I'm past the stage when I say this is a learning experience. The putts I missed were not gimmies, but a lot of people make them. Today, I missed them.''

''I'm just glad it's over,'' said Grady, who did the best job all week staying away from the thick rough which brought cries of protest from the players. ''If we had to play any more, I don't think I could have made it.

''Payne (Stewart, who served as Grady's playing partner Sunday) wore green and gold today and those are Australia's colors. I thought that was a good sign.''

Grady's victory brought an end to a controversial tournament which gained publicity during the past month because of the exclusionary admission policies of Shoal Creek.

Then, when the players finally arrived at the site, they protested loud and long about the rough and the hard greens - protests which continued until the end.

When Faldo finished his round Sunday, he was asked if he would like to see Shoal Creek as the site of some future U.S. Open.

''Sure,'' he said, ''as long as it's after I've retired. This is the most frustrating tournament I've ever played.''

MASON, OH (AUG. 13) UPI - Top-seeded Stefan Edberg proved Sunday why he deserves to be the top ranked player in the ATP with a convincing 6-1, 6-1 victory over No. 4 seed Brad Gilbert in the finals of the $1.3 million Thriftway ATP Championship.

Earlier this week Edberg unofficially became the No. 1 player in the ATP computer rankings when he defeated Michael Chang in a third-round match. The ranking will become official Monday.

On Sunday the 24-year-old Swede dominated Gilbert from the start.

''He (Edberg) did everything well,'' Gilbert said after the loss. ''Usually, when I play him, I can rely on getting some points off his forehand. The difference was he was thumping his volleys.''

Edberg took advantage of Gilbert's weak service return, charging the net on nearly every serve and repeatedly returning perfect volleys.

The final match, which only lasted 51 minutes, was the second shortest final of the year in the ATP. (The shortest was Gilbert over Christo Van Rensberg in the finals at Orlando in April.)

Sunday's loss was the worst defeat Gilbert has suffered in his professional career.

''The guy thoroughly beat on me,'' Gilbert said. ''That's the bottom line. He just beat on me today.''

Edberg won the first four games of the match before Gilbert was able to hold serve for one game to make the score 4-1. But Edberg continued to dominate Gilbert's serve and easily won the first game 6-1 in 26 minutes.

It didn't get any better for the Oakland, Calif. native in the second set. Edberg once again jumped to a quick lead, winning the first three games. Gilbert managed to hold serve in the fourth game, but lost the following three games to lose the second set and match.

Edberg felt he had to play Gilbert strong from the start.

''I've played Brad quite a few times and we've had a lot of tough matches '' Edberg said. ''He's a guy who hits a lot of balls back, and you really have to stay on top of him.''

It was the 12th meeting between Edberg and Gilbert and Edberg's first win over Gilbert in a final.

Edberg lost to Gilbert last year in the finals of the Thriftway ATP Championship and the Nabisco Grand Prix finals in Memphis in 1986.

Edberg won his third consecutive tournament title, winning last week at Los Angeles, and before that, at Wimbleton.

''In the last month-and-a-half, I've been playing very good tennis,'' Edberg said. ''I've had three tournament wins in a row, now, which is probably more than I've ever had before.''

Edberg collected $170,200 for his victory and Gilbert received $89,600 as runner-up.

In doubles play Sunday, No. 7 seeds Darren Cahill and Mark Kratzmann, both of Australia defeated unseeded Neil Broad of England and Gary Miller of Los Angeles in the doubles final 7-6 (10-8), 6-2.

(AUG. 12) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein says he'd be willing to consider withdrawing from Kuwait if- among other things- Israel gives up the occupied terrorities. Hussein's conditions also call for U-S troops to get out of Saudi Arabia and for the U-N to lift its mandatory sanctions against Iraq. The White House rejected the suggestion... while Israel labeled the proposal ''cheap propaganda.''

The man in charge of the U-S military effort in the Middle East says the deployment of American forces is running ahead of schedule and that Iraq would- in his words- ''pay the price'' if it attacks Saudi Arabia. Lieutenant governors say states will have to shoulder the burden of paying for educational reform since the federal government is NO longer willing to spring for the tab. Officials at the National Conference of Lieutenant Governors, which convened today in Des Moines, Iowa, focused on ways to improve educational resources. One official says educational reform may be helped by the federal debt crisis, which forces schools to re-think teaching strategies.

Hypnotic tapes that claim they will help you lose weight or stop smoking are NO better than tapes without the hidden messages. That was the word from psychologists who reported today at a meeting in Boston. A study was made of 240 people by University of Washington psychologists. They said people who heard tapes without subliminal messages actually changed their behavior more.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - The U.S. Army has awarded Litton's Guidance & Control Systems (LIT) division a $15.4 million contract to produce 220 more attitude and heading reference sets for AH-64A Apache and OH-58D Kiowa Warrior helicopters.

The Littion equipment is installed in all of the Apache and Kiowa Warrior aircraft. More than 585 AH-64A and 165 OH-58D helicopters have already been delivered to the Army by McDonnell Douglas and Bell Helicopter Textron respectively. The Army plans ultimately to buy more than 800 Apache and 240 Kiowa Warrior helicopters for its own use and for sale to foreign governments.

An attitude and heading reference set provides a continuous measure of direction of flight and the pitch and roll motion of the aircaft. Data from the Litton equipment are fed to a cockpit display and to on-board functions such as sensor stabilization, fire control, autopilot reference and navigation.

The Litton systems are produced at Guidance & Control Systems division facilities in Grants Pass, Ore., and Salt Lake City, Utah. The division, a world leader in aircraft navigation systems, is based in Woodland Hills, Calif.

Litton is a technology-based company providing advanced electronic and defense systems, resource exploration services and industrial automation systems to U.S. and world markets.

SANTA CLARA, CA (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - First-round financing has been obtained by Crosspoint Solutions Inc., a start-up semiconductor company that has invented a unique approach to field-programmability in gate-array logic devices used widely throughout the electronics industry.

According to Orlando Gallegos, president of Crosspoint, the company has signed an agreement for $6 million in equity funding, sufficient to complete product development and market introduction. Gallegos indicated that Crosspoint expects a second round of financing late in 1991 to carry the company to profitability.

Crosspoint's leading investor is ASCII Corp., a diversified high-technology company in Japan involved in LSI semiconductor components, computer software, publishing and communications. ASCII Corp. has helped fund a number of successful high-technology companies in the United States including Chips & Technologies and NexGen Microsystems.

Crosspoint's new approach gives it significant competitive advantages over other field-programmable logic implementations, according to Gallegos. A proprietary cell and routing architecture, coupled with a unique interconnect technology, will enable Crosspoint to meet the performance and density demands of the mainstream CMOS gate array market.

The company is also designing its computer-aided engineering tools to fit into the existing gate array design environment.

Crosspoint Solutions Inc. was incorporated in November 1989 in California. Its founding team consists of experienced industry veterans from Silicon Valley:

-- Orlando Gallegos, president and chief executive officer, most recently a vice president of Samsung Semiconductor Inc.

-- Laurence Cooke, vice president of engineering, a founder and former vice president of engineering for Integrated CMOS Systems.

-- William Ingram, vice president of technology development, most recently director of process technology for National Semiconductor Inc.

-- William Becker, director of hardware design, a veteran ASIC design expert formerly with VLSI Technology, AMCC, Synertek and AMI.

-- Michael Levis, director of business planning, most recently manager of microprocessors and microcontrollers for Samsung Semiconductor Inc.

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Sun Microsystems' SPARC-based computer workstations and servers have been selected as the standard product for all GE Aerospace divisions.

Sun was chosen after a competitive selection process that was part of GE Aerospace's ASSIST (Aerospace Support for Systems, Integration, Software and Test) program. The major goal of ASSIST is to develop standard hardware and software systems for engineering use throughout GE Aerospace divisions.

Workstation vendors were evaluated on technical qualifications and on the basis of long-term commitment to act as a strategic partner to GE Aerospace. As sole supplier of engineering workstations to the aerospace giant, Sun expects the relationship to yield as much as $100 million in revenue over the multiyear span of the contract.

GE Aerospace is one of the 13 business units that are part of General Electric Co. In May, this parent company selected Sun as the strategic supplier of UNIX-based workstations and servers for its business units, which also include such organizations as NBC, Kidder Peabody, GE Medical Systems and GE Aircraft Engines.

All products are based on the SPARC/RISC architecture and the UNIX operating system. In addition to workstations and servers, Sun will provide networking products, graphics enhancements and, through Sun's third-party partners, software engineering tools for ECAD, MCAD, systems engineering and CASE users.

This new GE Aerospace standard system and software development platform is based on a distributed client/server model of computing. Technical requirements included scalable workstations, international design standards, standard graphical interfaces, and the ability to share information easily with peers, regardless of the physical location or computer they use.

''We view Sun as a strong partner in our Engineering Process Improvement (EPI) program,'' said Charles Wise, GE program manager for ASSIST. ''This equipment will help make our individual engineers more productive.''

The systems will be used for all electronic and mechanical design automation and software engineering applications within the GE Aerospace divisions.

Sun Microsystems Inc., with headquarters in Mountain View, is a leading worldwide supplier of network-based distributed computing systems, including professional workstations, servers and UNIX operating system and productivity software.

GE Aerospace is a world leader in the design, development, management and integration of advanced electronic systems and equipment for defense, space and aviation. -0-

ANAHEIM, CA (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Datum Inc. (NASDAQ:DATM) Monday announced its sales for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, were $7,658,000, a 16.5 percent decline from sales of $9,174,000 for the corresponding quarter of 1989.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, sales were $15,485,000, a decline of 12.5 percent when compared with the prior year's first-half sales of $17,704,000.

On these lowered sales, the company incurred a loss of $234,000, or 9 cents per share, as compared with the prior year's net income of $327,000, or 12 cents per share. For the six months ended June 30, 1990, Datum incurred a loss of $164,000, or 6 cents per share, as compared with the prior period's net income of $540,000, or 20 cents per share.

Louis B. Horwitz, the company's president, commented: ''These results constitute the company's first quarterly loss in over six years. The decline in business due to the slowdown in defense procurement, on which we have been commenting for several quarters, has created insufficient sales to cover the company's current level of fixed expenses.''

Horwitz continued: ''While this is not a permanent condition, we have, throughout our various operations, been selectively adjusting our payroll downward. Although bookings are showing a decidedly improving trend, we anticipate the third quarter will also remain under pressure.''

Datum designs and manufactures precision frequency products and timing instrumentation for military, industrial, space and commercial applications. FREMONT, CA (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - At this year's NetWorld Dallas show, Accton Technology Corp. will unveil a new, cost-effective alternative for network users who want to migrate to 10BASE-T.

The TransPair-T pocket-sized transceiver will allow network users to connect their existing workstations to 10BASE-T networks without having to install a new network interface card.

Accton's TransPair-T external transceiver is smaller than a business card, measuring only 2 3/4 by 2 3/16 by 7/8 inches. The TransPair-T connects to the 15-pin AUI port of any network interface card, providing output to an RJ-45 port for 10BASE-T. The new Accton transceiver is a totally passive device that requires no external power supply.

''We believe that Accton's superior design and manufacturing capabilities puts us in a strong position to make an impact on the 10BASE-T market,'' said Accton General Manager Frank Chan. ''We believe that to compete in the crowded 10BASE-T market, we must deliver a higher quality product at a competitive price. By applying our expertise in surface-mount manufacturing, we can deliver high-quality, low-profile 10BASE-T devices like the new TransPair-T pocket-sized transceiver.''

The TransPair-T transceiver is scheduled to ship in September. It carries a list price of $119.

DENVER (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Aspen Exploration Corp. president R. V. Bailey has announced the successful completion of a second well in the Pearsall Field, Frio County, Texas.

Aspen owns 2.25 percent working interest, equivalent to 1.6875 percent net revenue interest, in this well, the Ira Corbin No. 1-A, which is producing from the Austin Chalk formation and confirms production from the first well, the Ira Corbin No. 1.

The new well came on line July 29, 1990, and produced 2,300 barrels of oil in a five-day period for an average rate of 460 BOPD. The well has high gas volumes, indicating favorable reservoir energy. Aspen's independent engineers estimate total oil reserves for the well of 237,000 barrels of oil and 200,000 MCF gas.

The first well in which the company participated in this field, the Ira Corbin No. 1, began production in mid-May, producing 11,400 barrels of oil from May 15 to June 3, 1990, for an average of 570 BOPD.

Aspen is further pleased to announce that the company's acquisition in the Lustre Field, Valley County, Mont., has paid out after only 12 months of production. The field still contains 56,000 barrels of oil and undiscounted future net revenues of $437,000 net to Aspen, using an average constant oil price of $14.50 per barrel for Williston Basin sour crude.

Aspen's independent engineering report for the fiscal year ended June 30 has now been completed and shows that the company's net proved producing oil reserves increased by 45 percent, from 126,000 BO at July 1, 1989, to 183,000 BO at July 1, 1990, excluding the Ira Corbin No. 1A well.

Current oil prices of approximately $25 per barrel are expected to favorably impact cash flow for the company.

WESTLAKE VILLAGE, CA (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Consolidated Energy Systems Inc. (OTC) announced its purchase of three cogeneration projects, the hiring of a cogeneration sales specialist, and the dismissal of all counts alleged against it in a previously announced civil lawsuit.

Consolidated acquired three cogeneration facilities from a California partnership, ABA Associates. The purchase includes a system at the Hotel San Maarten in Laguna Beach, Calif., and two systems operating at commercial laundries.

The purchase price includes 45,000 shares of the company's common stock and a five-year note for the balance of the purchase price to be determined by a contract formula based on future net cash flow actually produced by the projects. The contract calls for a six-month due diligence period during which any of the projects may be severed from the transaction by Consolidated, with corresponding adjustments to the purchase price.

Consolidated has successfully obtained the full-time services of Edward Borray as vice president, sales to lead the development of larger-scale cogeneration projects. Borray, who received his master's degree in Urban and Regional Planning from the University of Southern California, has extensive experience in energy sales.

Following several years of government service in strategic planning and marketing of energy systems, Borray has for over a decade developed, designed and operated private sector power systems for such clients as the Walt Disney Co.'s Queen Mary/Spruce Goose complex, Sheraton Hotels, Burger King Restaurants and over 750 energy projects serving over 2,800 apartment units.

On July 8, 1990, on a motion made by Consolidated, the Federal District Court in San Diego dismissed all 18 counts of a civil suit filed against Consolidated and other defendants. The suit alleged the company had somehow permitted its former securities brokers to commit civil violations or otherwise act fraudulently.

Twelve of the counts were permanently dismissed, but the Court conditionally allowed the plaintiffs to seek to refile six other counts. Rich Abruscato, chief executive officer and president of Consolidated, reiterates that there is absolutely no merit to any of the allegations as they pertain to Consolidated.

''We are extremely gratified that the court confirms this suit should not have been filed against Consolidated and that all counts were dismissed against the company,'' said Abruscato.

Consolidated Energy Systems, founded in 1984 and publicly traded since 1987, is a diversified company with emphasis on developing cogeneration and energy conservation projects.

GREEN BAY, WI (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Fort Howard Corp. today announced financial results for its second quarter ending June 30, 1990.

For the second quarter, Fort Howard's tissue sales increased 10.8 percent to $292,029,000 compared to 1989 second quarter sales of $263,578,000. As a result of special charges accrued during the second quarter of 1990, the company reported relatively flat operating income of $62,316,000 for the second quarter of 1990, compared to $62,431,000 for the same period of 1989.

Excluding the special charges, operating income grew at 13.8 percent and 14.8 percent, respectively, for the second quarter and first six months of 1990. Net losses for the quarter amount to $26.83 million versus $19.28 million for the same quarter last year. For the first six months, net losses amounted to $56.07 million as compared to $54.95 million in the same period last year.

First-half 1990 sales were $558,939,000, an increase of 9.1 percent over 1989 sales of $512,229,000 for the same period. After the special charges, operating income was $122,660,000 for the first half of 1990, 7.2 percent higher than operating income of $114,473,000 for the first half of 1989.

Operating income for the second quarter and first six months of 1990 was negatively impacted by special charges totaling $8,750,000. The charges relate to an employee stock compensation plan and to costs tied to the terms of an agreement entered into with the company's former chairman and chief executive officer. Approximately $8 million of the charges involve amounts payable after 1990.

On July 31, 1990, Donald H. DeMeuse was named Fort Howard's new chief executive officer, replacing Paul J. Schierl who resigned. DeMeuse (pronounced de Meese) has been Fort Howard president since 1984.

He joined the company in 1967 and has held various executive-level management positions. He was elected a Fort Howard vice president in 1977 and executive vice president in 1979. DeMeuse has been a member of the company's board of directors since 1978.

DeMeuse was employed by General Motors Corp. and Kimberly-Clark Corp. prior to joining Fort Howard. He is currently chairman-elect of the Wisconsin Paper Council.

In connection with the company's previously announced divestiture of its cup operations, Fort Howard changed its accounting for the cup operations to the equity method during the third quarter of 1989.

''During the past year, we have been working at improving gross margins and, in turn, profitability,'' said Chairman and Chief Executive Officer William R. Gage. ''These efforts have come to fruition, as seen by the increase in SBE's record operating income.

''Reduced R&D expenses during the quarter, in part due to the closing of our Alcyon subsidiary, were a factor as well.

''Throughout the third quarter we continued expansion of our sales area, which we have been moving from manufacturers' representatives to direct sales,'' said Gage. ''Direct sales efforts from regional sales offices, located across the United States, will help SBE expand its customer base and better serve its clients.''

The third quarter was highlighted by the announcement of SBE's two new Token Ring communications controllers. ''With the IBM-backed Token Ring local area networking protocol finding increasing acceptance in the marketplace, demand for our new, high-performance VME and Multibus I Token Ring communications controllers has been strong,'' said Gage.

''The next few months will see continuation of the development of SBE's family of high-speed VME products that offer our customers the hardware/software solutions they need to reduce the time to market of their products,'' said Gage. ''We are also continuing to develop for new technologies in the future.''

SBE designs, manufactures and markets high-performance standard and custom-designed communications products for OEMs and systems integrators. Products include high-speed communications controllers, 680x0-based single-board computers and semi-custom ICs for VMEbus and Multibus I applications.

SAN JOSE, CA (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - SEEQ Technology Inc. (NASDAQ:SEEQ) announced that its MM28C010 -- 1024K EEPROM passed government test requirements for near space fligths and will be the main memory in NASA's Orbital Acceleration Research Experiment (OARE).

KMS Fusion recently completed development of OARE for NASA Johnson Space Center. The KMS OARE, an approximately $6 million instrument package, will be installed on the Shuttle Orbiter Columbia scheduled for launch in December 1990. Once in orbit, the OARE will measure near space and reentry atmospheric condition to be used in designing future near space vehicles.

Ten missions of the shuttle are scheduled to include OARE instrument.

OARE instrumentation includes an ultrasensitive accelerometer package, signal processing and power conditioning electronics, a precision calibration platform, specialized mission and control software, and onboard solid state memory storage.

The critical element comprising the OARE's 4 M Byte main memory is SEEQ's MM28C010 CMOS 5V only, 128K x 8 EEPROMs. The million bit memory device consists of four 28C256 (32K x 8) CMOS EEPROMs and a two- to four-line decoder in Leadless Chip Carrier packages, mounted and interconnected on a ceramic substrate.

The MM28C010, available in a 32-pin module package, is ideal for applications requiring low power consumption, non-volatility and in-system reprogrammability. In the OARE application, 16 of the 32 pin modules were mounted on each of two printed circuit boards.

Performance of various memory devices used in near-to-deep space radiation intensive environment present many challenges for system and quality/reliability engineers. SEEQ Technology Inc. a leading manufacturer of CMOS nonvolatile memories, manufactures CMOS EEPROM devices that exhibit reliable performance during and after exposure to radiation.

This includes charged particles encountered in the near space environment where the experiment will take place. Tests simulating the decreased atmosphere and increased gamma rays of near space demonstrate the ability of SEEQ's CMOS devices to withstand higher radiation levels than other EEPROM devices.

SEEQ Technology Inc., is a leading designer and manufacturer of electrically erasable programmable read only memeories (EEPROMs), Flash EEPROMS, military UVEPROMs, ethernet data communications products and electrically erasable programmable logic devices.

JERSEY CITY, NJ (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Bel Fuse Inc. (NASDAQ:BELF) Monday reported net earnings for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, of $41,000, or 1 cent per share, on revenue of $9,433,000.

Net earnings for last year's second quarter were $11,000, or less than 1 cent per share, including a $291,000, benefit from the utilization of tax loss carryforwards, on revenue of $7,663,000.

President Elliot Bernstein said that the solid revenue and earnings performance recorded by Bel's Far East division in the quarter was masked by continued losses at the company's domestic hybrid circuit division that included severance expenses associated with layoffs announced in May and start-up costs incurred in connection with expanded European operations.

He added that second-quarter results also reflect a reversal of the remaining inventory reserve established in the fourth quarter of 1989 due to the bankruptcy of a Far East division customer.

Overall, Bernstein said that operating profits for the second quarter rose to $276,000, compared with an operating loss of $252,000, last year as the gross margin reached 30 percent vs. 25 percent in the second quarter of 1989.

He said that because of this success in mainland China, Bel has decided to double the size of its plant there from 25,000 to approximately 50,000 square feet during the next few months.

Company-wide backlog increased to about $11,480,000, at June 30, 1990, from $11,056,000, at March 31, 1990, and $9,253,000, at June 30, 1989. As of the end of the second quarter, Bel Fuse reported working capital of $10,800,000, a current ratio of 2.6-1, only $138,000, in long-term debt and stockholders' equity of $27.9 million, or $5.78 per share.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, net earnings were $140,100, or 3 cents per share, compared with a net loss of $123,000, or 3 cents per share, that included benefits from loss carryforwards of $713,000, for the first half of 1989. Revenues were $18,543,000, up 30 percent from revenues of $14,273,000, for the prior year.

Bel Fuse and its subsidiaries are primarily engaged in the design, manufacture and sale of electronic components. The company operates facilities in Jersey City; Mt. Carmel, Ill.; Camby, Ind.; Hong Kong; mainland China; and Macau, and has recently begun operations at its new facility in Waterford, Ireland.

HOUSTON (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Plains Resources Monday reported a net loss of $672,000, or 12 cents per share, on total revenue of $8,567,000 for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, as compared with net income of $1,516,000, or 32 cents per share, on total revenue of $6,086,000 for the second quarter of 1989.

Operating cash flow for the quarter was $1,316,000 as compared with $2,849,000 for the corresponding quarter in 1989. Plains said that the sharp contrast in its quarter-to-quarter comparison of net income and operating cash flow primarily reflects the one-time effect of its settlement of certain natural gas contract litigation during the second quarter of 1989.

During the second quarter of 1990, Plains' oil production increased 183 percent to nearly 82,000 barrels from 29,000 barrels in the prior year's second quarter, despite the temporary loss of production from certain fields during the quarter due to flood conditions in southeast Texas and Louisiana.

The substantial increase in Plains' oil production resulted primarily from work performed since the beginning of the year on properties acquired during the latter half of 1989, Plains said. Plains' gas production also increased 20 percent during the quarter to 1.2 billion cubic feet from about 1 billion cubic feet in the prior year's quarter, the company said.

Although its oil and gas production increased significantly during the quarter, Plains said that the oil and gas prices realized for its production registered sharp declines from the prior year's level. The average price received by Plains for its oil production fell to $16.73 per barrel, down $2.50 from the $19.23 barrel received in the prior year's quarter.

Plains' average gas price for the second quarter declined 37 percent to $1.76 per Mcf from the prior year's second quarter level of $2.79 per Mcf which included the effects the company's settlement of gas contract litigation.

For the first half of 1990, Plains recorded a net loss of $865,000, or 17 cents per share, on total revenue of $15,894,000. This compares with net income of $741,000, or 7 cents per share, on total revenue of $10,258,000 for the same period in 1989. Operating cash flow for the first six months of 1990 was $3,152,000 as contrasted with $3,719,000 for the comparable period in 1989.

ST. LOUIS (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Invitron Corp. (NASDAQ/NMS:INVN) announced Monday revenues of $1.4 million and a net loss of $4.2 million, or 27 cents per share, for the second quarter of 1990.

This compares with $3.1 million of revenues and a net loss of $3.3 million or 21 cents per share, for the second quarter of 1989.

Invitron had revenues of $2.7 million for the first half of 1990, as compared with $7.9 million for the comparable 1989 period. The net loss for the first half of 1990 was $9.5 million, or 61 cents per share, vs. $4.7 million, or 31 cents per share, for the comparable 1989 period.

Revenues from companies other than SmithKline Beecham Corp. increased from $.5 million during the first quarter of 1990 to $1.1 million during the second quarter. During the comparable 1989 periods, non-SmithKline revenues were $.7 million and $.8 million, respectively.

In February 1990, SmithKline announced that it was directing its AIDS research away from a product being produced for it by Invitron, towards other AIDS treatment candidates. The $1.1 million of quarterly revenues represents the largest amount of revenues from companies other than SmithKline and G.D. Searle, which was Invitron's major customer until 1987.

Total operating costs and expenses for the first half of 1990 included $0.3 million in expenses in connection with the previously announced termination of approximately one-third of the company's work force which took effect in late April. Other steps to reduce Invitron's cash operating expenses have also been taken.

As a result, as of May 1, 1990, the company is spending approximately $1.25 million per month for cash operating expenses, a reduction of approximately $0.6 million per month as compared to 1989.

Invitron continues to hold preliminary and informational discussions with several pharmaceutical companies in efforts to seek additional funds for the company through one or more of the sale of equity or debt, the establishment of licensing and manufacturing relationships, or other financing alternatives.

Such efforts to date have not been successful. In addition, as previously announced, because of the desire of Monsanto Co. to sell its holdings in Invitron, such a transaction could also include the acquisition of all or a portion of Monsanto's holdings in Invitron. Monsanto Co. is Invitron's largest shareholder and directly and indirectly owns 58 percent of Invitron's stock.

Invitron Corp. is engaged in the discovery, development and production of biopharmaceuticals. The company employs a broad array of skills in the production of mammalian cell-derived biopharmaceuticals for itself and others. The company is developing potential proprietary biopharmaceuticals principally in the areas of wound healing, neurological disease and autoimmune disease. Fourteen products have been produced by Invitron for its customers for use in human clinical trials.

HAYWARD, CA (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Kenneth E. Anderson, president of Monitek Technologies Inc. (NASDAQ:MTEK), Monday announced operating results for the first quarter of fiscal 1991.

Net income for the first quarter ended June 30, 1990 rose to $4,411, compared with $1,952 reported in the like period a year ago. Net sales for the quarter were $1,834,952 compared with $1,848,488 in fiscal 1990.

In reviewing operations, Anderson indicated that the company's relatively flat sales during the first quarter was primarily a result of lower export sales which were offset by price increases which averaged approximately 4 percent for all product lines.

He indicated that the decline in first-quarter export sales is not cause for alarm since historically there have been large fluctuations in sales volume on a quarterly basis, depending upon the size and timing of large contracts (in excess of $50,000), of which there are generally five or six per year, he said.

Anderson stated that the outlook for the company during the balance of fiscal 1991 is positive as a result of an anticipated increase in domestic and export sales, introduction of new products and continued worldwide penetration of targeted markets and applications.

Anderson sited as an example of an exciting new product, enhancing an already proven technology, being the company's newest version of Micro Pure Oil-In-Water Analyzer. This Real-Time Measuring Instrument allows for automating various water recovery processes used in the oil industry for production enhancement.

In addition, it is an effective tool for monitoring effluents from various types of processing facilities to assure minimum environmental impact. This, along with the recently introduced ''Cell Density Analyzer'' for biotechnology and pharmaceutical applications, is expected to increase sales.

Monitek Technologies is a rapidly growing, technologically advanced instrument manufacturer at the forefront of the liquid monitoring industry. Utilizing optical, magnetic, ultrasonic and accoustical technologies, the company can analyze and measure liquids used in industrial and waste water environments.

DALLAS (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - The Southland Corp. Monday reported that its earnings from continuing operations before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization (EBITDA) for the quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990, were $90.9 million and $122.4 million, respectively.

Revenues for the two periods were virtually unchanged from the prior year at $2.15 billion and $4.09 billion, respectively. The company reported net losses of $58.1 million and $127.5 million for the quarter and six months, respectively. Results for the six months include the recognition of an extraordinary credit of $52.0 million representing the tax benefit from the utilization of net operating loss carryforwards.

This benefit is available as a result of the recognition of the tax gain from the sale of the company's remaining 50 percent interest in Citgo Petroleum Corp. during the first quarter.

During the second quarter and six months, the company's 7-Eleven and other convenience stores increased average merchandise sales per comparable store month by 2.50 percent and 3.04 percent, respectively. Total merchandise gross profits increased 1 percent for the six months and declined slightly for the quarter.

Total retail gasoline gross profits declined for both the quarter and the six months due to fewer gasoline locations and lower per-gallon margin that more than offset increases in average gallons sold per store.

On July 16, Southland announced a revised plan to restructure its outstanding public debt and preferred stock. The plan calls for Ito-Yokado and Seven-Eleven Japan, two longstanding Southland business partners, to make a cash infusion of $430 million into Southland in exchange for 70 percent of new Southland common stock.

Bondholders and preferred shareholders will receive a total of approximately 25 percent of Southland's common stock, and Southland's existing shareholders will retain approximately 5 percent of the common stock, subject to the consummation of the exchange offers.

Southland is the world's largest convenience retailer, with approximately 6,800 7-Eleven and other convenience units supported by the five Southland Distribution Centers, as well as the Southland Foods Division's six food centers. In addition, area licensees and affiliates operate almost 6,100 7-Eleven stores in the United States, Guam, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and 18 foreign countries.

MENLO PARK, CA (AUG. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Zycad Corp. Monday reported a net loss of $17,330,000, or $1.14 per share, on revenues of $4,972,000 for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990.

The net loss included restructuring charges and asset write-down of $10,528,000, or 70 cents per share. For the comparable period ended June 30, 1989, the net loss was $66,000, or 1 cent per share, on revenues of $7,612,000.

For the six month period ended June 30, 1990, the net loss amounted to $18,672,000, or $1.23 per share, on revenues of $14,203,000, compared with net income of $504,000, or 3 cents per share, on revenues of $16,162,000 for the comparable period in 1989.

Phillips W. Smith, president and chief executive officer who recently joined Zycad in June 1990, stated: ''The loss from operations and the restructuring charges in the second quarter are directly attributable to the transition from marketing older generation products to our price competitive new products, the System Evaluator (SE) and the XP100.

''The SE, which was first shipped in March 1990, will spearhead the market penetration in the traditional 'High End' major systems design market, while the XP100, which was successfully introduced at the June Design Automation Conference, is targeted for penetrating the ASIC market.''

As a result of this new marketing focus and actions taken to lower operating costs, Zycad is now better positioned for profitability in the second half of 1990.

Zycad Corp. designs, manufactures and markets high-performance logic simulation, design verification and test-generation tools for the computer-aided engineering (CAE) industry.

Zycad's simulation products consist of integrated simulation software, simulators based on VHDL (IEEE 1076) hardware description language and very high speed, special-purpose computers. Zycad products are used to substantially increase engineering productivity in the design, development and test of sophisticated electronic systems and integrated circuits.

VENTURA, CA (AUG. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Benton Oil and Gas Co. (OTC:BNTN) Monday announced results of operations for the quarter ended June 30, 1990 and a major acquisition.

Revenues for the second quarter were $359,429 compared with $91,533 for the same quarter of 1989. Second-quarter expenses were $812,133 for 1990, compared with $275,085 for 1989. The net loss for the quarter was $452,704, or 11 cents per share, compared with a 1989 second-quarter loss of $183,552, or 8 cents per share.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990 revenues were $473,534, compared with $42,302 for the same period of 1989. Six-month expenses were $1,343,418 for 1990, compared with $389,630 for 1989. The net loss for the first half of 1990 was $680,530, or 20 cents per share, compared with a corresponding 1989 period loss of $285,730, or 19 cents per share.

Revenues and expenses for the second quarter and first half of 1990 were considerably larger than the comparable periods of 1989 because of the enhanced level of operations of the company. The second quarter of 1989 was the first complete quarter of operations after its initial public offering.

The company's oil sales were impacted by seasonal downward adjustments in prices during the second quarter. The average price for oil production at its Pershing Field declined from approximately $21.40 in January to approximately $16.06 in June.

In addition, the company announced the acquisition of an additional 16.4 percent working interest in the West Cote Blanche Bay Field. The company now controls a 19.1 percent working interest in the West Cote Blanche Bay Field.

Its acquisition costs have been approximately $7.5 million. In addition, the company anticipates developing additional reserves of approximately 5 million barrels of oil and 7 billion cubic feet of natural gas for an estimated cost of $18.3 million.

These cash flows, along with the company's share of drilling and development costs during the period, were deducted from the acquisition costs as reflected in the company's balance sheet. Future results of operations will include the results from West Cote Blanche Bay.

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Solitec Inc. (NASDAQ:SOLI) reported that revenues for the third fiscal quarter ended June 30 were $2,429,000 compared to $3,565,000 for the third fiscal quarter of the prior year.

The company had a net loss of $848,000, or 12 cents per share, in the third fiscal quarter of 1990 compared to a net loss of $898,000, or 18 cents per share, in the comparable period of the prior year.

Revenues for the first nine months of 1990 were $8,303,000 compared to $13,694,000 for the first nine months of 1989. The company reported a net loss of $1,506,000, or 21 cents per share, for the first nine months of 1990 versus a net loss of $778,000, and 15 cents per share, for the like period in 1989.

Joseph J. McDowell, president, said that revenues fell due to an industry slowdown, and that the nine month loss included approximately $75,000 of severance expenses, approximately $70,000 of expenses related to the company's S-1 registration, and a non-cash charge of $86,000 as a debt conversion expense.

The company also announced that its temporary reduction of the exercise price for its Class B Warrants had ended on July 31, and that 7,000 warrants had been exercised during the offering period.

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Maxim Integrated Products reported record revenues of $16,129,000 for the fourth quarter of fiscal '90, a 38 percent gain over the $11,681,000 of the like period a year ago.

Fourth quarter fiscal '90 net income was $2,160,000 (or 16 cents per share) -- the 17th consecutive increasingly profitable quarter for Maxim.

Revenues for the fiscal year ended June 30 were $55,960,000, a 33 percent increase over the $42,063,000 of fiscal 1989. Fiscal '90 net income increased 39 percent, to $7,603,000 compared with $5,458,000 in fiscal '89. Earnings per share for fiscal 1990 increased to 58 cents per share from 44 cents in fiscal 1989.

Operating income was 19.1 percent of sales, continuing to be one of the industry's highest. Return on equity for fiscal 1990 was 23 percent. Gross margins for the year were 50.4 percent.

Jack Gifford, president and chief executive officer, commented, ''Although the company invested operating capital in a major wafer fabrication facility and grew sales by a record amount, we were able to produce positive cash flow of $2.2M for the fourth quarter.

''In fact, this effort had no negative effect on Maxim's earnings and negligible effect on liquidity. Few companies in the history of our industry have installed such a facility without accumulating excessive inventories, draining cash or negatively impacting income. We expect significant future benefits from this facility in the form of increased productivity, lower costs, higher quality and accelerated new product development.''

Gifford continued, ''During the fourth quarter we announced 11 new products, four short of our '15 products per quarter' goal. We missed six due to foundry delivery delays, two more because of problems with test engineering software and three because the ICs didn't work well enough to announce.

''We expect to rebound to our target level in the coming quarters. Of the 11 announced, several were outstanding and should significantly contribute to revenues in the coming years. For example, our new 12-bit A/D converter, the MAX174, offers major speed, power and size improvements over the industry standard 574A -- without a price premium.

''We estimate the market for this product currently exceeds $15M per year. And our new MAX743 DC-DC converter offers major performance and cost advantages over existing power supplies widely used in industrial equipment design.

''Sixty-one products were announced in fiscal '90, exemplifying our commitment to developing proprietary and second source devices of importance to our customers. Our current total of 371 products remains the most introduced by any analog company over the past seven years.

''Of these, 169 are proprietary products. Maxim's proprietary products now account for 70 percent of revenues, contributing healthy gross margins and serving to solidify Maxim's position in what has historically been a recession resistant analog industry.

''Our reputation as a technological innovator is growing, as evidenced in a recent industry survey by Electronic Engineering Times placing Maxim 8th in technological innovation among all semiconductor companies and first among analog companies.

''We believe that following the course we've laid out for Maxim will enable us to become a major factor in the precision analog business.''

Maxim Integrated Products is a leading supplier of quality analog products for applications that require real world signal processing.

#90225b0621 08/13/1990 ~Business Wire

PISCATAWAY, NJ (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - If a picture is worth 1,000 words, it could be worth many thousands of lines of computer code.

That's the principle behind a new Bellcore software prototype that can translate the source code of large and complex computer programs into easy-to-understand maps and pictures.

Now programmers who maintain and enhance software to improve reliability of such systems can literally see at a glance how the various parts work together and how they are related to each other.

Before a programmer can make any changes, he or she needs to know exactly how the system is structured and how the various segments of code communicate with, and are dependent upon, each other, Matthews said.

This assessment often requires a tedious and time-consuming search through a system's source code (the complex collection of algorithms that make up the system) and accompanying documentation, Matthews added.

Bellcore based the graphical display capability of HEAVENS on technology developed by Microelectronics and Computer Technology Corp. (MCC), the Austin, Texas research consortium of which Bellcore is a charter member. That technology, MCC's GERM (Graphical Entity Relationship Modeler), is a prototype tool for graphically organizing, browsing and retrieving information.

HEAVENS uses the capabilities of its GERM technology to translate the software into a visual map, with each component, or module, represented as a picture, or icon.

Using HEAVENS, programmers load the ''C'' language source code of the system they wish to change onto a graphics-based computer workstation. (''C'' language is widely-used in major software systems.) HEAVENS automatically converts the source code into visual representations which can be customized by the programmers themselves. Straight lines link one icon to another to better show relationships among pieces of information. Programmers can get additional information - in the form of text or graphic detail - by pointing to an icon or the connecting link.

Either the diagrams or the source code can then be ''edited'' to redefine relationships among various segments of a program, eliminate duplicaiton and simplify the overall system.

HEAVENS can also be used to support object-oriented design systems, particularly those using the C++ programming language, Matthews added. HEAVENS diagrams the way various modules in large software systems relate to each other and in so doing, it interprets the program design documentation and the C++ code -- a feature unavailable in traditional programming environments.

Bellcore is currently making the HEAVENS prototype software available to its owners.

Bellcore provides research and other technical support to the telephone companies of Ameritech, Bell Atlantic, BellSouth, NYNEX, Pacific Telesis, Southwestern Bell Corp. and U S. WEST, as well as Cincinnati Bell and The Southern New England Telephone Company.

Although this is primarily attributable to the increased number of restaurants, comparable system restaurant sales figures (which compare sales for units in operation during the full second quarter of 1989 to the same restaurant's sales for second quarter 1990) were $31,122,673 in 1990 vs. $30,274,166 in 1989, a gain of 2.8 percent.

Further details will be contained in the Form 10-Q to be filed by the company with the SEC within the next few days.

In reporting a profit for the second consecutive quarter, the company also announced that there were 137 restaurants (19 company and 118 franchise) in the Applebee's system at the end of second quarter 1990, compared to a total of 85 restaurants (17 company and 68 franchise) at mid-year 1989.

ROCHESTER, NY (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Hampshire Instruments Inc. and McDonnell Douglas Electronic Systems Co. (MDESC) Monday announced an agreement spanning 5 years, for the joint design and manufacture of Diode Pumped Laser systems to be used in Hampshire's line of x-ray lithography systems.

Laser manufacturing will take place at Hampshire's Rochester, N.Y. headquarters while Diode Pumping subsystems will be produced by MDESC in St. Louis. MDESC also has facilities in California, New York and Virginia.

Hampshire Instruments produces the Series 5000 X-Ray Stepper system used in the manufacture of leading edge integrated circuits including DRAMs, high speed SRAMs and GaAs devices. SALT LAKE CITY (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Research Industries Corp. (NASDAQ:REIC) Monday reported record earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, of $1,414,224, or 25 cents per share, a 79 percent increase over the prior year's earnings of $790,537.

Earnings per share increased to 25 cents, a 56 percent increase over the prior year's 16 cents per share, reflecting last year's private equity placement.

Earnings for the three-month period ended June 30, 1990, increased 30 percent to $401,682, or 7 cents per share, compared to $307,959, or 6 cents per share in last year's corresponding period. The fourth quarter's earnings performance includes the cost of resolving a long-standing legal action.

''We are particularly pleased with this year's record earnings increase of 79 percent, as it follows a 61 percent earnings increase for fiscal 1989 '' said Gary L. Crocker, president. ''Our results in the first month of fiscal 1991 are above our internal projections, reflecting the ongoing growth of our open-heart circuitry cannulae and expanded line of cardioplegia devices,'' Crocker added.

Total 1990 revenues were $10.880 million, a 42 percent increase over last year's $7.640 million. Revenue increases were generated in every segment of the company's business. Total quarterly revenues increased to $4.536 million, a 92 percent gain over the prior year's $2.362 million. This large increase in quarterly revenues reflects a significant real estate transaction of $1.9 million in 1990.

The company's after-tax profitability in the 12 months ended June 30, 1990 benefitted from a marked improvement in health care gross profit margins, which increased to 65 percent from 61 percent. The gains in net income also resulted both from a significant reduction in interest costs and a reduction in general, selling and administrative expenses as percentage of total revenues.

Due primarily to the company's operating performance and cash flow improvements, it eliminated its remaining long-term bank debt and is now essentially debt-free for the first time in over 10 years.

The company is a diversified biomedical firm specializing in the development, manufacture and sale of hospital disposable products for open-heart surgery and specialty pharmaceuticals. Research Industries' common stock is traded over the counter, NASDAQ, National Market System, with the symbol REIC.

MENLO PARK, CA (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Liposome Technology Inc. (NASDAQ:LTIZ) (LTI), a California-based pharmaceutical company, Monday announced results from its second fiscal quarter ended June 30, 1990.

The company reported a net loss for the quarter of $1,648,000, or 18 cents per share, a decline of 25 percent from a net loss of $2,193,000, or 32 cents per share, in the second quarter of the prior year.

Research and development expenditures were $1,985,000, an increase of 19 percent over the like period in 1989. General and administrative expenses were $463,000, an increase of 25 percent over the second quarter of the prior year. Total expenditures for the quarter were $2,485,000, compared to $2,722,000 in the comparable quarter of 1989.

The increase in R&D expenses is due to expenditures for the clinical development of LTI's amphotericin B colloidal dispersion (ABCD) product, while the increase in G&A for the quarter is attributable primarily to year-end reporting expenses shifting from the first to the second quarter.

Allocated occupancy costs for facility modifications required for the company's Stealth oncologicals development program also contributed to the increase in both R&D and G&A expenses for the quarter.

LTI reported total revenues of $837,000 for the second quarter as compared to $529,000 for the like period in 1989, with the increase attributable to an increase in research revenues.

During the quarter, the company entered into a strategic alliance with Erbamont N.V. for the development of liposomal epirubicin, Erbamont's proprietary anticancer drug. In addition, LTI successfully completed a Phase I clinical trial of ABCD and prepared for Phase II studies.

The company is continuing to explore financing opportunities, including the sale of equity, new strategic alliances, and other funding sources, as required to commercialize its proprietary products and fund the pharmaceutical development of additional products in the pipeline.

Located in Menlo Park, LTI currently is developing injectable liposomal doxorubicin and epirubicin for anticancer therapy, injectable ABCD for systemic antifungal treatment, and inhaled liposomal albuterol to treat asthma and bronchitis.

The company's second-generation product focus is on utilizing LTI's proprietary Stealth liposomes to target injectable oncologicals to tumors and to deliver therapeutic proteins and peptides.

PARIS (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - LVMH Moet Hennessy Louis Vuitton (NASDAQ:LVMHY), the Paris-based luxury products group, Monday reported consolidated net sales of FF 8,823 million ($1,577 million) for the first half of 1990, a 2 pct. increase over the comparable period of 1989.

On a constant exchange rate basis, however, sales would have increased by 13 pct.

First half consolidated sales were affected by the simultaneous decline of the US dollar and Japanese yen exchange rates vis-a- vis the French franc, by 11 pct. and 22 pct. respectively, from average FF 5.5945.

By segment of activity, net sales broke down as follows:

Champagne & wines	329	1,840	1,846	--	+6 pct.

The impact of currency exchange rates on the Group's net income should be more limited, reflecting in particular LVMH's systematic currency hedging policy. As announced at the June 1990 Annual Shareholder Meeting, net income growth is expected to amount to 15 pct. for 1990 as a whole.

NEW YORK (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - S&P lowers its rating on the commercial paper program of SCA Capital Corp Inc. to 'A-2' from 'A-1' and removes it from CreditWatch where it was placed June 25. The commercial paper is issued under the guarantee of the company's Swedish parent, Svenska Cellulosa AB.

Although the UK1.0 billion (around $1.8 billion) mainly debt-financed acquisition of Reedpack is consistent with Svenska Cellulosa's long-term goal of reducing its vulnerability to commodity-based forest products by extending the group's higher value-added product lines, the sharply increased debt and interest obligations will limit its flexibility to weather the anticipated cyclical downturn in the paper and forest products industry.

In the near term, net debt to capital is expected to stay at around 60 percent, up from around 34 pc at year-end 1989, while net interest coverage will be around 3.0 times.

The rating action recognizes that, while a large proportion of the group's activities are in noncyclical consumer-orientated businesses, these businesses, namely fibre-based hygiene and tissue products, continue to face intense competition from major U.S. companies like Procter & Gamble, Scott Paper and James River.

The addition of Reedpack will enhance the group's already strong competitive position in the European packaging industry by providing the group with the leading share of the United Kingdom and Netherlands markets as well as bolstering its hitherto insubstantial recycled paper activities. SCA also benefits from its well integrated operations and its extensive forest and hydroelectric energy resources, S&P said.

REDWOOD CITY, CA (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Advanced Polymer Systems Inc. (NASDAQ:APOS) Monday announced revenues of $755,000 for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, compared with $1,252,000 for the same period last year.

The prior year's revenues included a one-time milestone payment of $750,000 from a corporate partner. The net loss for the quarter was $1,127,000, or 12 cents per share vs. $950,000, or 10 cents per share in 1989.

Excluding the milestone payment last year, revenues in the quarter grew by 50 percent and the net loss narrowed by 34 percent.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, revenues were $1,315,000 compared with $1,776,000 last year. The net loss of $2,050,000, or 21 cents per share was 17 percent below the $2,459,000, or 26 cents per share loss incurred during 1989.

Excluding the milestone payment included in the prior year's results, revenues grew by 28 percent and the net loss was reduced by 36 percent.

In the second quarter, revenues from cosmetics supply agreements together with sales from the company's Analytical Standards business grew more than 100 percent from the prior year. On a year-to-date basis, cosmetics product supply and Analytical Standards sales increased 65 percent over last year.

The significant decrease in operating expenses for the quarter and the six months when compared to last year was attributable to planned reductions in outside administrative services and reimbursement of research and development expenses by Dermik-APS Partners, the company's joint venture with with Rhone-Poulenc-Rorer's dermatology subsidiary.

The company also noted that during the quarter, it had been notified of the holder's intent to call for payment, as of Dec. 1, 1990, the $3 million of Industrial Revenue Bonds guaranteed by the company.

These bonds had been used to finance the company's Louisiana manufacturing facility. The company is presently negotiating the refinancing of the bonds with several financial institutions.

Advanced Polymer Systems develops and manufactures patented Microsponge(R) delivery systems which allow for the release of active ingredients in a programmed or ''controlled'' manner.

The company presently has major projects under development in a wide range of areas, including pharmaceutical, cosmetic, food and industrial applications for a number of companies, including Scott Paper Co., Wm. Wrigley Jr. Co., Mobil Chemical Co. and Pfizer Inc. Specialty Chemical Group.

1989, on 7,677,517 shares outstanding.

Jeffery L. Stanich Sr., chairman of Compliance Recycling Industries Inc. made the announcement saying, ''The loss in our first quarter was greater than had been initially anticipated as a result of the delay of bridge loan financing.'' Stanich noted that the company had expected a bridge loan to be in place prior to June 30, which would have allowed the company to deliver already sold equipment during the first quarter.

Stanich stated that bridge financing came through on July 8, and has allowed the company to deliver $208,050 worth of equipment sales during the month of July, 1990. He added, ''Our total revenues for the month of July were in excess of $266,000, and we were profitable during the month.''

Stanich went on to report that indications are that for the month of August, 1990, the company will continue to sell and deliver equipment at a rate comparable to July, 1990 sales.

''We are still anticipating second quarter sales of some $700,000 with earnings of approximately $100,000,'' Stanich said.

Compliance Recycling Industries Inc., is a service-oriented hazardous waste treatment company whose product, The Compliance System, effectively removes toxic heavy metals and cyanides from water and allows these metals to be recycled into raw materials for use in industry. The company manufactures, sells and services its product line from Regional Operations Centers in the Philadelphia and Denver areas.
Headquartered in Denver, the company will soon relocate its corporate headquarters to Chicago, at which time a Regional Operations Center will be opened to service clients in the Midwest.

LOS ANGELES, CA (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Leisure Technology (NYSE:LVX) announced Monday that it has closed a joint venture partnership with a subsidiary of a Tokyo-based company to develop the final 335 homes at Leisure Village Ocean Hills, an active adult community in Oceanside, Calif., where Leisure Technology has developed and sold approximately 1,300 homes since 1984.

Leisure Technology has sold land to the partnership for $15 million in cash, of which approximately $10.5 million was applied to secured borrowings and expenses of the transaction.

''We view this transaction, together with the secured interim financing closed in June, as a vote of confidence in Leisure Technology, especially in light of the difficulties encountered by the company and other home builders in the hostile economic environment facing the industry today,'' said Michael L. Tenzer, chairman and chief executive officer.

A wholly-owned subsidiary of Leisure Technology will be general partner with responsibility for development, construction and marketing of the 335 homes to be developed by the new partnership. The partners anticipate revenues in excess of $110 million from sale of the homes.

Tenzer also announced that the company will make the next interest payment of approximately $1.8 million on its 13-5/8 percent senior subordinated notes due 1996, as scheduled on Sept. 1. He added that the company will not make the Sept. 1 dividend payment on its $2.25 cumulative convertible exchangeable preferred stock.

Leisure Technology, founded in 1957, is the largest publicly-owned nationwide developer of active adult communities and is currently developing active adult, single-family or full- service retirement communities in New Jersey, New York, Florida, Illinois and California.

TOKYO (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T of the U.S., Kokusai Denshin Denwa (KDD) of Japan, and the Directorate General of Telecommunications (DGT) of the Ministry of Posts and Telecommunications of the People's Republic of China (PRC) have signed an agreement to provide new international communications facilities linking the PRC to the U.S. and Japan.

The facilities will make possible international digital, satellite-based services to two Chinese cities in 1991. The agreement also provides for the construction of a digital fiber-optic submarine cable between the PRC and Japan by 1993.

These systems will improve the quality, capacity and reliability of international communications with the PRC in addition to providing digital voice, data and video capabilities.

The agreement, which builds on the long-standing relationships between AT&T, KDD and DGT in international long distance services, specifies two distinct phases. In the first phase, satellite links will be established to the U.S. and Japan from major office buildings in Beijing and Shanghai.

These links will provide digital business services for voice and data traffic via satellite earth stations in both cities interconnected with the U.S. and Japan using Intelsat satellites.

In the second phase, an 800-mile, digital fiber-optic submarine cable will be constructed between Japan's Kyushu Island and the Chinese coast near Shanghai. The cable, the first fiber-optic submarine cable system to the PRC, is expected to have the capacity to carry about 35,000 calls. It will connect to the Worldwide Intelligent Network, which AT&T is constructing in cooperation with its telecommunications partners around the world.

Major elements of this network, which are already in operation in the Asia/Pacific region, include fiber-optic cables between the U.S. and Japan Guam, Taiwan, the Philippines, Hong Kong, and Korea. The Worldwide Intelligent Network connects to Europe and to four locations in the Caribbean and South America.

PALO ALTO, CALIF (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Frontline Systems Inc. announced that WHAT-IF SOLVER, its new backsolving and optimization add-in will support Lotus's new 1-2-3 Release 3.1 on first customer shipment.

Released in July 1990, WHAT-IF SOLVER provides problem-solving capabilities analogous to the ''Solver'' utility in 1-2-3/G for users of DOS-based spreadsheets.

Priced at just $199.95, the WHAT-IF SOLVER package contains add-ins for 1-2-3 Release 2, 2.01, 2.2, 3.0, and Symphony 1.1, 2.0, 2.2, running DOS on computers with as little as 640K RAM and one floppy disk. The version for 1-2-3 Release 3.1. will be supplied free upon request to registered users.

Frontline Systems also announced that it signed an agreement with Addison-Wesley Publishing Co. under which Addison-Wesley will publish a Student Edition of What-If Solver aimed at colleges and universities, especially MBA programs. Addison-Wesley publishes the Student Edition of Lotus 1-2-3.

''Lotus is pleased to see add-ins, like What-If Solver, coming to market for 1-2-3 Release 3,'' said Paul McNulty, Lotus' director of marketing for 1-2-3 Release 3. ''What-If Solver will allow 1-2-3 Release 2.2 and Release 3 users to extend the functionality of their Lotus spreadsheets in new and more powerful ways.''

''Solver technology represents a real breakthrough for spreadsheet users '' said Dan Fylstra, Frontline's president. ''It helps you get more and better answers from a spreadsheet model you've already built, with very little extra effort.'' Works with Existing Spreadsheets

WHAT-IF SOLVER makes advanced analytical methods for goal seeking (or backsolving) and optimization accessible to the average spreadsheet user. The add-in will answer questions like: What product price or promotion mix will maximize profit? How do I live within the budget? How fast can we grow without running out of cash? In place of ''what if'' guesswork, WHAT-IF SOLVER finds the optimal solution -- which often translates into big dollar savings over the ''status quo''.

To solve a problem with WHAT-IF SOLVER, a user simply builds a spreadsheet model, or loads an existing spreadsheet. With simple add-in menu choices the user then selects ''what if'' cells whose values should be found; ''constraint'' cells whose values must satisfy goals or fall within certain limits; and optionally an ''optimum'' cell to be maximized or minimized. When the user selects ''Go'', WHAT-IF SOLVER finds the optimal solution and places those values into the ''what if'' cells.

Applications in Many Fields

WHAT-IF SOLVER has applications in marketing, finance, investments, personnel, manufacturing, distribution, and many engineering disciplines. Examples included in the WHAT-IF SOLVER manual and on diskette show the user:

o How to maximize interest income from working capital (by ''rolling over'' CDs or other short-term investments) while meeting company cash requirements

o How to minimize shipping costs from plants to regional warehouses or other locations, while meeting demand from each location and not exceeding supplies at each plant

o How to schedule employees to minimize payroll costs while meeting demand for key services (e.g. in hospitals, police departments, restaurants) which varies over time

o How to construct an ''efficient portfolio'' of securities which maximizes return for a given level of risk, or minimizes risk for a required rate of return

o How to allocate advertising dollars across the year to take optimal advantage of seasonality -- and how to choose the optimum overall ad budget in a situation with ''diminishing returns'' from increased advertising Power Beyond Goalseeking and Linear Programming

WHAT-IF SOLVER can solve all the problems handled by add-ins which do ''goalseeking'' and ''linear programming'', plus a much broader spectrum of problems which exceed the capabilities of such methods. In fact, WHAT-IF SOLVER can find feasible or optimal solutions to almost any spreadsheet model. And users don't need a knowledge of linear programming or other mathematical methods to use WHAT-IF SOLVER.

For example, allocating advertising dollars, choosing an ''efficient portfolio'' of securities, and minimizing shipping costs in the presence of volume discounts are beyond the scope of linear programming and require the full power of WHAT-IF SOLVER. The only other spreadsheet product with this type of problem solving capability is the Solver utility in 1-2-3/G.

NEW YORK (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Results of market evaluation studies of the ACTV (NASDAQ:IATV) interactive television system in Springfield, Mass. indicated a highly favorable response from subscribers.

The study was conducted in conjunction with Continental Cablevision, the nation's fourth largest cable company, which serves the Springfield market.

In the study conducted by Malarkey-Taylor Assoc. Inc., 72% of the consumers polled said that ''ACTV would enhance the value of cable TV to their household.'' Equally encouraging was that ''47% of subscribers said they were 'definately' or 'probably' interested in subscribing to ACTV if it was available today as a premium cable TV service, and another 24% said 'maybe'''. According to the independent researchers, ''these numbers are significantly higher than comparable numbers for other new cable services which tend to register 20 to 30 percentage points lower than ACTV.''

When prices were mentioned, the strong favorable reaction continued with ''37% of ACTV test homes 'definitely' or 'probably' willing to pay $7-$9 per month to receive the service and 23% 'definitely' or 'probably' willing to pay $10-$12.''

Brian Lambert, a vice president/district manager for Continental Cablevision stated, ''Customer reaction exceeded my expectations. With a cable system in a moderately sized urban market such as Springfield, customer reception to new products has generally been mild. In ACTV's case, response was overwhelming.'' Continental's Springfield cable system serves 46,000 subscribers.

Among other results of the survey was the finding that on average ACTV programming was watched almost four days per week, for over two hours per day. More than a third of the respondents said the aspect of ACTV they liked the best was the ability to ''participate in the programming.'' They said they liked the ability to ''play along'' and ''speak to the TV.'' In fact, most people polled (64.3%) said they wanted more interactivity in ACTV programs.

ACTV has developed a unique interactive televsion system whereby viewers can change camera angles while viewing a live sports event, play blackjack against a Las Vegas dealer who will obey hit or stand commands, allow children to learn through give-and-take questions and answers from their favorite TV character, select the specific music videos they wish to view, design a personalized exercise workout tailored to a viewers' specific desires and tastes, select from a menu of movies or the start time of a favorite movie, receive commercials that are specifically attuned to personal interests and tastes, and much more.

JERUSALEM (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Teva Pharmaceutical Industries Limited (NASDAQ:TEVIY), Israel's largest pharmaceutical company, Monday reported that net income for the three months ended June 30, 1990 increased seven percent on an eight percent increase in sales.

Sales for the quarter reached 145,849,000 Adjusted New Israeli Shekels (NIS) ($70,187,000 US) compared with 135,679,000 Adjusted NIS in the prior year. Operating income rose slightly to 16,864,000 Adjusted NIS ($8,115,000 US) from 16,764,000 Adjusted NIS in 1989. Net income was up seven percent to 7,784,000 Adjusted NIS ($3,746,000 US), or 0.35 Adjusted NIS, 0.32 fully diluted, ($0.17, $0.15 US, respectively) per American Depository Receipt (ADR) with two percent more shares outstanding than in the prior year. Last year's second quarter net income amounted to 7,288,000 Adjusted NIS, or 0.33 (0.30, fully diluted) Adjusted NIS per ADR.

''Our increase in sales and profits was achieved despite a slowdown in Israel's economy and a decrease in purchasing of the General Health fund which held back local sales because sales abroad increased substantially in the second quarter,'' said Eli Hurvitz, Teva's President and Chief Executive Officer.

Pointing out that sales abroad in the quarter increased almost 13 percent to $32 million (US), he reported that ''sales abroad were 46 percent of second quarter sales and 45 percent of total sales for the first six months of 1990.''

''Profitability for the quarter was held back by increased marketing expenses and the 3.3 percent devaluation of the NIS since June 30, 1989 while the Consumer Price Index rose 17.7 percent which resulted in rising local costs (primarily payroll),'' he added. Commenting on a 12.6 percent and 14.1 percent increase in net research and development expenses for the second quarter and first six months of 1990, respectively, Mr. Hurvitz said ''The $7.4 million (US) we have invested in R&D (before deductions of grants and participations) in the first half of this year reflects the success we are having with our research efforts. In fact, we may increase these costs further as our COP-1 and Osteo-D products continue in their advanced clinical trials.''

In discussing results at TAG Pharmaceuticals, Teva's jointly owned U.S. subsidiary, Mr. Hurvitz said ''TAG's consistent improvement in sales and substantial improvement in year-to-date profits occurred at a time when the Food and Drug Administration held back approvals for new generic products. This, of course, continues to have an adverse impact on the entire U.S. generic drug industry.''

Reflecting on Teva's on-going global diversification strategy, Mr. Hurvitz reported that "We continued to invest in our Western Europe marketing infrastructure, which in concert with our U.S. marketing system, will create an enhanced international marketing channel for our innovative products. To intensify our international sales growth, we are also actively exploring potential investments and strategic alliances in Eastern Europe."

Teva Pharmaceutical Industries, Ltd. (NASDAQ:TEVIY) develops, manufactures and markets human pharmaceuticals, pharmaceutical chemicals, medical disposables, veterinary products, baking yeast and alcohol. The largest supplier of such products to Israel's public and private healthcare markets, the Company has manufacturing facilities in Israel, Western Europe and the United States and markets its products in 50 countries.

MISSISSAUGA, ONTARIO (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Lawson Mardon Group Limited announced Monday it has approved the purchase of the sheet-fed paper label producing assets of San Francisco-based H.S. Crocker Co., Inc.

The deal is expected to close within 30 days.

Lawrence G. Tapp, president and chief executive officer, said the acquisition, which will become a part of the group's graphics division, North America, will make Lawson Mardon one of the largest label producers in North America.

''Success in the 1990s requires a marketing strategy with a North American perspective,'' said Tapp. ''The Crocker acquisition will enable Lawson Mardon to become a major competitor in the U.S. $1.25 billion-a-year North American labels market.''

The assets purchased by Lawson Mardon are two state-of-the-art Crocker plants serving the food and beverage industries -- one in Sparks, Nevada; the other in Baltimore, Maryland -- and 10 sales offices in the United States, according to Lauren Madden, executive vice president and chief operating officer of Lawson Mardon's graphics division. These plants will be operated in the U.S. under the name LMG-Crocker.

''These facilities, combined with Lawson Mardon's Canadian operations, which produce labels primarily for the beverage and food processing markets from plants in Montreal, Quebec, Leamington, Ontario and Richmond, British Columbia, give Lawson Mardon a strong presence in the key eastern and western markets of North America,'' said Madden.

He said the acquisition will also enable Lawson Mardon to expand its production capabilities, increase operating efficiencies and reduce costs through greater purchasing power.

''Since the signing of the Canada-U.S. free trade agreement, our market has become a North American market,'' said Madden. ''In addition to establishing our strong presence in the U.S., this new acquisition will also enable us to strengthen our leading position in domestic markets.

''I look at this as part of a program that will establish Lawson Mardon as a significant supplier to the total North American food and beverage industry,'' he said.

''The acquisition of the two Crocker plants - working in conjunction with our Canadian operations and combined with our technical and manufacturing capabilities, our established supplier positions, and our extensive market knowledge -- will allow Lawson Mardon to establish leading competitive positions in major market segments and areas,'' Madden said.

H.S. Crocker will continue the independent operation of its three plants in Huntley, Illinois, and Lionville and Norristown, Pennsylvania producing pharmaceutical folding cartons and labels, pressure sensitive labels and portion-pak lidding materials. These plants are not involved in this transaction.

Lawson Mardon Group Limited is one of the world's leading packaging and printing companies with 1989 sales of almost $1 billion Canadian and operations in Canada, the United States, Britain, Ireland, France, and West Germany.

HERTFORDSHIRE, United Kingdom (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - After two years of start-up losses, Avton Communications & Entertainment Inc., the fledgling, film and media company which owns a $6 million film library of past hits and production rights to three Wilbur Smith titles, has made a sharp reversal into profitability and forecasts a 5c dividend payment next year.

Audited profits for the year to October 1989 show a swing from a loss of $140,000 to a surplus of $210,697 after tax, but this figure does not include $355,128 of income received by Avton during the year under review.

''This $355,128 is profit received from ongoing film contracts. In the United Kingdom for instance, it would go straight through to profits but Avton's accountants Deloitte & Touche in Los Angeles feel that under American audit practice this money has to be shown as deferred profit and therefore a liability until the contracts are completed. It's a technical accountancy safe-guard.

The main source of profits for the year was Avton's film library which contributed distribution income of $604,357. The library includes participation in films like Gold, The Confessions Series and Get Carter. Many of these films were made by Michael and Tony Klinger or were bought by them for their income potential. The directors of Avton value the film library at 10 years earnings -- or some $6 million.

One of these is a contract with Longmans, Europe's largest international publisher of educational books, to produce a series of exam revision videos for students. The one-hour videos starring Nicky Campbell of B.B.C. fame will be sold through major retail outlets, and will include interviews with top examiners on a variety of subjects, taking students through the course and giving them advice on how best to revise and which areas to do it in.

Another Avton success has been its instructive''You Can'' videos on a wide range of past-times and pursuits like modelling, crochet, the art of massage, self-defence and making lace.

The first videos in the series were marketed at the end of last year and sales have been growing fast.

But perhaps Avton's most exciting prospect is the making of its first major film, Eagle in the Sky, from a major international best selling book written by author Wilbur Smith. Japanese and American backers have raised $17 million to make the film and final contract negotiations are currently taking place.

He says the turn around in Avton's fortunes has been made against a background of a deteriorating economy and high interest rates, both in the United States and the United Kingdom. In spite of this income from distribution has shown an increase from the 1988 level and should continue to rise steadily over the next year. In contrast, expenses have been cut back by approximately 10 percent.

NEW YORK (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - The Horn & Hardart Company (AMEX: HOR) Monday reported a net loss for the fiscal second quarter ended June 30, 1990, of $1,510,000, or 11 cents per share, compared to a loss of $1,528,000, or 11 cents per share, in the prior year, which included a non-recurring favorable litigation settlement of $1,461,000.

Revenues for the second quarter increased 15 percent to $163,903,000 from $142,460,000 reported in the comparable 1989 period.

The Hanover Companies, Horn & Hardart's direct marketing group, reported the highest revenue and profit ever for a second quarter. Hanover Companies' revenue increased 26 percent to $128,560,000 from $101,987,000 in the same year-ago period. Hanover's operating profit was $6,005,000 compared to $5,589,000 a year ago.

''Hanover's strong results were achieved despite an ambitious program to increase Hanover's customer base that involved a 24 percent increase in catalog circulation,'' said Donald Schupak, Horn & Hardart's chairman and chief executive officer.

''Although in accomplishing our objective, we sacrificed pre-tax profit margins in the short-term, the approximately 350,000 new customers that have resulted from this program to date will have a long-term positive impact on the company. Once again, Hanover's strong results supports our plan to focus Horn & Hardart's future in the direct marketing industry.''

International King's Table (IKING), Horn & Hardart's West Coast restaurant operation, reported a 3.7 percent increase in revenue in the second quarter to $22,864,000 from $22,047,000 reported a year ago. Its operating profit was $12,000 compared to a loss of $203,000 reported in the 1989 second quarter, and a $724,000 loss in the 1990 first quarter. ''IKING's turnaround plan included a broad-based upgrade of operations and training, and repositioning as a value concept,'' said Schupak. ''Although we're not out of the woods yet with IKING, we have made substantial progress and we expect this to continue.''

ATLANTA (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - The Portman Companies have begun a plan to provide all of their unsecured lenders with a security interest in certain assets.

This plan is in response to a recent tightening of federal bank guidelines by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC), which virtually eliminated unsecured lending to the real estate industry.

''Our discussions with lenders are ongoing, are not unusual in today's market and will have absolutely no affect on our tenants, customers, employees, partners or suppliers,'' said John C. Portman Jr.

''Contrary to recent newspaper reports, there is no significant refinancing or restructuring of our mortgages that are secured by real estate. This plan is the commercial equivalent of a home equity loan, namely using equity value to provide short-term lenders with long-term security.''

The Portman Companies control a diverse portfolio of ''blue chip'' properties, including seven hotels, 17 office buildings and five mart buildings. The organization's primary holdings are in Atlanta, but it has properties in various cities around the world, including San Francisco, New York and Shanghai, China.

''Our equity is this vast portfolio is more than adequate to provide security positions to our currently unsecured lenders and to meet the new more stringent federal guidelines,'' added Portman.

The Portman Companies' debt of about $1.6 billion in Atlanta represents about 14 million square feet in developments. The unsecured portion of the company's debt is a small amount of its total debt.

''Far from causing concern about The Portman Companies' financial situation, this plan of securing all our lenders significantly reduces any perceived risk to our line of credit and unsecured lenders,'' said Portman. ''It is business as usual at The Portman Companies.''

JACKSONVILLE, FL (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - AT&T and Universal Bank Monday announced that the AT&T Universal Card has set an industry growth record and vaulted into eighth place on the ''Top 10'' list of most popular bank credit cards in the United States.

AT&T said the achievement signals continuing strong demand by consumers for the dual-purpose credit card, demand fueled by a large amount of word-of-mouth advertising.

AT&T said 2.7 million AT&T Universal Card accounts have been opened since the card was introduced March 26, 1990. Paul Kahn, president of AT&T Universal Card Services Corp, said that nearly 4.6 million consumers are using the AT&T Universal Card for dining, shopping, travel and to place AT&T long-distance telephone calls domestically and around the world.

In conjunction with the continuing success of the AT&T Universal Card, AT&T and Universal Bank simultaneously announced the introduction of a new variation of the card with more features than any current AT&T Universal Card. Consumers now will be able to sign up for all the benefits of an AT&T Universal Card-Gold MasterCard, which becomes the newest AT&T Universal Card available to consumers. ''Our continuing success in the marketplace is a sign that consumers are delighted with the advantages offered by the AT&T Universal Card,'' said Kahn, whose AT&T Universal Card Services Corp. is the affinity partner with Universal Bank of Columbus, Ga., the issuer of the AT&T Universal Card.

AT&T said consumers already have used the AT&T Universal Card to make more than 11 million long-distance calls and purchases and to date have charged more than $750 million in transactions.

Using figures compiled by Credit Card News, a trade publication covering the credit card industry, Kahn pointed out that the AT&T Universal Card became the eighth most popular bank credit card in the United States in only 140 days from its introduction. AT&T announced its one millionth account June 12, 1990, 78 days after launching the AT&T Universal Card. Today's announcement of an additional 1.7 million accounts comes 62 days later.

Kahn said he expected strong consumer demand for the company's newest card version, the AT&T Universal Card-Gold MasterCard, which is the first Gold MasterCard nationwide to feature a completely new design from MasterCard International.

Kahn said the AT&T Universal Card-Gold MasterCard will offer consumers a wide variety of features associated with the combined long-distance calling card and general purpose credit card. Among the benefits are the fact that the AT&T Universal Card is free for life for consumers who sign up in 1990 and use the card at least once a year thereafter; a 10 percent discount for AT&T calls charged to the card; an unparalleled service guarantee; and emergency legal, medical and roadside automobile assistance. In addition, the AT&T Universal Card-Gold MasterCard offers auto rental collision/loss damage insurance, automatic travel accident insurance and purchase security and extended protection program benefits.

Consumers interested in applying for the AT&T Universal Card may do so by calling 1-800-66-APPLY (1-800-662-7759).

SALT LAKE CITY (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - McDonnell Douglas has selected two Utah manufacturing companies to supply components for use in the MD-80 McDonnell Douglas' popular twin-engine jetliner.

Alfred J. Egbert, general manager of the McDonnell Douglas facility in Salt Lake City, said a contract is being awarded Monday to Metalcraft Technologies Inc., Cedar City, and another has been awarded to Central Utah Tool, Provo.

The contract with Metalcraft, valued at more than $700,000, calls for fabrication of aluminum sub-components for MD-80 floor assemblies. This contract brings to more than $1.2 million the value of work awarded to Metalcraft by McDonnell Douglas.

Under a separate contract valued at nearly $100,000, Central Utah Tool will provide brackets for beams used on floor assemblies.

Egbert said, ''In letting these contracts, McDonnell Douglas continues to endorse locally owned and operated Utah businesses. Our relationships with Utah companies have been mutually beneficial, and we are pleased to participate in the business community in Utah.''

The McDonnell Douglas plant in Salt Lake City manufactures major sub-assemblies for the MD-80 twin-jet series of aircraft. These sub-assemblies are shipped to Long Beach, Calif., where they are used in final assembly of the short-to-medium-range aircraft by the Douglas Aircraft Co. division of McDonnell Douglas.

FLORENCE, AL (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - AlaTenn Resources Inc. (NASDAQ:ATNG), Monday announced substantially higher earnings for the second quarter and six-month period ended June 30, 1990, compared with year-earlier results.

Other highlights of the second quarter included a 14 percent increase in natural gas pipeline throughput and the repayment of existing debt under the company's revolving credit facility.

AlaTenn's net income for the second quarter increased to $731,000 or 32 cents per share versus earnings of $115,000 or 5 cents per share in the same period last year. The year-earlier results included a loss of approximately $298,000 or 13 cents per share related to the operations of End Devices Inc., which were discontinued as of Dec. 31, 1989.

As a result of the sale of Colony, revenues for the second quarter were below those of the same period last year. Total revenues for the period were $19.1 million compared with $26.3 million in the second quarter last year.

However, Colony accounted for approximately $12.7 million of the revenues reported for the prior-year period. Disregarding the revenues contributed by that subsidiary, the company's revenues in the second quarter of 1990 from core pipeline operations increased 41 percent over the comparable amounts for the second quarter last year.

For the first half of 1990, AlaTenn's earnings rose 114 percent to $1,492,000 or 65 cents per share compared with $698,000 or 31 cents per share in the same period last year. The year-earlier period included a loss from discontinued operations of $605,000 or 26 cents per share.

Total revenues for the first half declined 43 percent reflecting the recent sale of Colony. Revenues from the company's other operations, excluding Colony, rose 43 percent in the first half of 1990 compared with the same period of 1989.

In particular, he noted that the company had recently completed construction of an intrastate gas pipeline in the Tennessee Valley, which provides natural gas service to a new energy cogeneration facility, as well as higher volume to other industrial and to resale customers.

AlaTenn Resources Inc. is an energy holding company with interest in natural gas gathering, transmission, distribution and marketing. The company's common stock is traded on the National Market System under the HOUSTON (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - American Exploration Co. (AMEX:AX) Monday reported net income of $92,000 or break-even per share, for the second quarter of 1990, as compared to net income of $3,076,000, or 12 cents per share, for the comparable 1989 period.

For the first six months of 1990, American Exploration reported a net loss of $622,000, or 4 cents per share, as compared to net income of $2,570,000 or 9 cents per share, for the comparable 1989 period.

Revenues generated during the second quarter of 1990 totaled $13.5 million or about flat with the 1989 period. Mark Andrews, chairman and CEO, said ''oil and gas revenues increased from $8.2 million to $10.7 million, or 30% in the second quarter of 1990 compared to the same period last year. However, revenue associated with closing of institutional programs was $2.3 million for the second quarter of 1990 vs. $4.5 million for the same period last year due to timing of program closings.''

For the second quarter of 1990 crude oil production was 3,320 barrels per day, compared to 2,470 barrels per day for the same period last year, or an increase of 34%. Natural gas production in the second quarter of this year was 37,470 Mcf per day, an increase of 35% from the second quarter of 1989 production of 27,730 Mcf per day.

Production from properties acquired during 1989, primarily the property interests acquired from Oryx Energy Co. in Nov. 1989, contributed significantly to the increase in production. This year's second quarter average crude oil price was $16.87 per barrel vs. $17.30 per barrel for last year's second quarter, or a decrease of 2%. Average natural gas price this period was $1.64 per Mcf vs. $1.71 per Mcf last year.

Production and operating costs for the second quarter of 1990 as a percentage of oil and gas sales were 37%, up from the 1989 level of 30%. Higher operating costs reflect additional workover projects which occured during the 1990 period.

Increased production was the principal reason that depreciation, depletion and amortization (DD&A) increased to $4.7 million from $3.7 million. On an equivalent barrel basis DD&A was $5.40 in the second quarter of 1990 compared to $5.70 in the second quarter of 1989.

Total revenues for the first six months of 1990 were $28.4 million vs. $24.1 million for the same period of 1989. For 1990, oil and gas sales were $24.3 million compared to $16.4 million for the same period of 1989, or an increase of 48%. The primary reason for the increase was a 30% increase in crude oil production and a 45% increase in natural gas production in 1990 compared to 1989. Revenues in 1990 also reflected the absence of $1.2 million of gas contract settlement income that was recognized in 1989.

Total costs and expenses for the six months of 1990 were $28.9 million compared to $21.6 million last year. Production and operating costs increased to $8.8 million in 1990 from $5.6 million last year primarily due to higher production levels and workover projects in 1990. Depreciation, depletion and amortization also increased due to higher production levels.

Cash flow from operations was $9.2 million for the first six months of 1990 and $11.6 million in the six months of 1989, a decrease of 21% primarily due to lower property conveyance related revenue due to timing of programs closings and reductions in trade liabilities during the first six months of 1990.

American Exploration Co. produces and sells oil and gas, principally in Texas, New Mexico and the mid-Continent region. The company also acquires oil and gas properties with funding from institutional investors and seeks to add reserves to its properties through efficient operation and development drilling.

MELVILLE, N.Y. (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Miltope Group Inc. (NASDAQ:MILT), the nation's largest independent (non-OEM) manufacturer of militarized and ruggedized computer peripheral equipment for defense and derivative commercial applications, Monday reported sales and earnings for the second quarter six months periods ended June 30.

For the 1990 second quarter Miltope reported record net sales of $28,563,000, a 17 percent increase over year-ago second quarter net sales of $24,465,000.

Net earnings in the second quarter of 1990 were $840,000, or 14 cents per share, compared to $1,172,000, or 20 cents per share, reported for the comparable 1989 second quarter. Per share results were computed on the basis of 5,864,000 and 5,862,000 average shares outstanding in the 1990 and 1989 periods, respectively.

Miltope reported net sales of $52,721,000 for the first half of 1990, representing a 25 percent increase over net sales of $432,115,000 in the corresponding 1989 period. 1990 first half net earnings were $1,178,000, or 20 cents per share, compared to earnings of $1,262,000, or 22 cents per share, reported for the year-ago period. Earnings per share for the periods are based on 5,864,000 and 5,866,000 average shares outstanding in the 1990 and 1989 periods, respectively.

Improvements in net sales in the 1990 second quarter and six months were attributable primarily to a higher level of shipments of the company's military disk and printer product lines, as well as systems for the U.S. Army Tactical Command & Control System, Common Hardware/Software Program (ATCCS/CHS). ATCCS/CHS sales amounted to $10.4 million in the second quarter, compared to $6.1 million in the comparable year-ago quarter.

Richard Pandolfi, president and chief executive officer, stated, ''Our second quarter results demonstrate the continuing positive impact of management initiatives to improve manufacturing efficiency and reduce selling general and adminstrative expenses both in absolute terms as well as a percentage of sales. Compared to our 1990 first quarter results, second quarter net sales increased 18 percent, operating income increased 65 percent and net income more than doubled.

''Our second quarter results, compared to a year ago, reflect generally the impact of a less favorable product mix in both military and commercial industry segments, as well as shipments on programs that provide little or no margin contribution in the quarter. Non-recurring costs to complete specific customer demands on these programs were charged against 1989 year-end results. In addition, Miltope experienced an increase in traditionally lower margin ATCCS/CHS volume, relative to total shipments.

''Miltope acts as a system integrator for ATCCS/CHS, whereby manufacturing costs value added is contributed primarily by its subcontractors. On ATCCS/CHS sales, gross profit percentages are lower than the company's traditional military products, but its selling general and administrative expenses, as well as its research and development costs, as a percentage of sales, are lower.''

In the 1990 second quarter Miltope received $29 million in orders, including an $8 million production contract from the U.S. Navy for militarized rigid disk systems and $12.6 million in incremental orders for the ATCCS/CHS program. These orders replenished production in the quarter and brought the company's contract backlog level to $87 million as of June 30. This compares to an order backlog of $86.5 million at the end of the 1990 first quarter and a $113 million order backlog at June 30, 1989.

Miltope Group Inc., through its wholly owned subsidiaries, Miltope Corp. and Miltope Business Products Inc., is engaged in the design, development, manufacture and testing of microcomputer and computer peripheral equipment for military, rugged and other specialized applications requiring operations in severe land, sea and airborne environments. The company provides disk mask memories, high speed printers, digital magnetic tape products, bubble memories, transportable microcomputers, and a complete line of ruggedized Hewlett Packard 32-bit computers and related peripherals.

This compares to the same period a year ago when revenues were $22.3 million, net income was $866,000, and earnings per share were 11 cents.

For the six months ended in June revenues totaled $43.5 million vs. $42.2 million for the same period in 1989; net income was $67,000 compared to $1.2 million in 1989; and earnings per share were 1 cent vs. 15 cents for the same period in 1989.

Included in the previous year's earnings per share were two non-recurring events which contributed $.06 of the reported $.15. These events were an accounting change to conform to FAS96, Accounting for Income Taxes, and the proceeds from the sale of the assets of a subsidiary company.

For the second quarter of 1990, revenues for the commercial business decreased by 4 percent from the same period a year ago. For the government business, revenues were down 1 percent from the same period in 1989.

''Our Point of Sale business in the second quarter was less robust than expected,'' said Dr. John Sammon, CEO and chairman. He also noted, ''We believe it is a result of lower volume of business in the fast food chains which in turn impacts capital purchase decisions for store equipment such as our products.

''Our government business is holding up quite well in spite of the pressures on the Department of Defense (DoD) to reduce expenditures,'' stated Dr. Sammon. ''Most importantly, I am very pleased to announce a major contract award to one of our subsidiary companies, Rome Research Corp., for Systems Integration, Technology Evaluation and Support (SITES) services with the Rome Air Development Center (RADC), Griffiss Air Force Base, Rome, New York.

''The four year contract ceiling of $22.5 million is the largest single government contract ever received by PAR,'' said Dr. Sammon. Rome Research Coporation President, ALbert Lane Jr., estimates 20 new technical positions will be created in the Rome, N.Y. area as a result of the new contract.

Rome Research Corp. has also been advised of other impending awards totaling approximately $5.1 million dollars.

Dr. Sammon was also pleased to announce the award to PAR Government Systems Corp. of a systems engineering technical assistance contract with the potential revenue of $4.5 million from the Army Engineering Topographic Labs at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

PAR is a supplier of transaction processing information systems to the food service and convenience store industries and to the Computer Integrated Manufacturing market and a contractor providing computer based system design and development services to the Federal Government.

DALLAS (AUG. 13) BUSINESS WIRE - Abatix Environmental Corp. (NASDAQ: ABIX) Monday announced record sales for the second quarter and first half ended June 30, 1990.

Sales for the second quarter of 1990 increased 27 pct. to $2,580,307 from $2,028,432 one year earlier. Net income for the second quarter of 1990 fell slightly to $82,862 or $.03 per share from $96,780 or $.05 per share in the second quarter of 1989.

For the first half of 1990, sales increased 24 pct. to $4,638,874 from $3,728,382 in 1989. Net income was $94,445 or $.04 per share, down from $184,870 or $.10 per share for the first six months of 1989.

Gross profit margins for the second quarter and the six months ended June 30, 1990 increased to 27 pct. from 26 pct. for the comparable periods in 1989.

Earnings per share calculations for the second quarter and first half of 1990 are based on 2,380,293 and 2,295,994 weighted average shares outstanding, respectively, an increase of 14 pct. and 24 pct. from 2,081,418 and 1,842,468 weighted average shares outstanding, respectively, for comparable periods in 1989. The increase in the weighted average shares outstanding principally resulted from the Company's issuance of 289,483 shares upon exercise of warrants completed May 1, 1990.

According to Terry W. Shaver, president, ''The increase in revenues was principally attributable to continued growth in the West Coast market. Also, we are pleased with the improving contribution to revenues from out Houston facility opened earlier this year.

''We are particularly pleased with our continued success in increasing revenues and improving gross profit margins in a very competitive and slower growing asbestos abatement market. Although earnings for 1990 continue to be impacted by opening expenses and overhead for the Houston facility and expansion expenses for the Hayward, California facility, we substantially improved our operating performance in the second quarter as revenues increased $521,740 and net income increased $71,279 over the first quarter of 1990.

''In response to current indications that the asbestos abatement industry will continue to grow at a slower pace, and with the proceeds from the recent warrant exercise, the Company is expanding its distribution services to include the hazardous materials (haz-mat) industry. As we develop our product lines and increase our customer base, haz-mat sales are expected to become a significant part of total revenues.''

Shaver concluded, ''Abatix's strong financial position and improving operating performance will enable us to meet the challenges of the asbestos abatement industry while seeking additional opportunities in the haz-mat market. Importantly, the Company is strategically positioned to achieve higher levels of revenues and profits in the quarters ahead.''

Abatix Environmental Corp. is a distributor to the asbestos abatement, hazardous materials and industrial safety industries. Lines include personal safety and protection products and durable and non-durable equipment and supplies. The Company has distribution centers in Dallas, and Houston, Texas and in Hayward, California and a sales office in Nederland, Texas from which it services customers throughout the Southwest Midwest and Pacific Coast including asbestos abatement contractors, and toxic waste remediation, chemical, petrochemical and general industrial companies.

MOSCOW (AUG. 13)- Iraq's attitude is "not constructive", a Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman said here Monday, adding that Baghdad's conditions for the withdrawal of its troops from Kuwait were unlikely to be met.

Speaking of the Iraqi president's "so-called initiative" for the withdrawal of its forces from Kuwait, Yuri Gremytskikh said: "The main thing is to see whether the conditions put forward by Saddam Hussein are attainable".

"At the moment, it is clear that realisation of such proposals is unlikely " he told a news briefing.

Mr. Hussein Sunday issued a three-point plan to end the Gulf crisis, including "an immediate and unconditional withdrawal of Israel from the occupied Arab territories, in Palestine, Syria and Lebanon, withdrawal of Syria from Lebanon, withdrawal between Iraq and Iran and laying down of arrangements for the case of Kuwait".

The Soviet Union "is keeping in contact with Iraq at all levels, including at the top so that Iraq understands that its way of acting is not constructive", Mr. Gremytskikh said.

"One must continue diplomatic efforts so that United Nations resolutions are implemented," he added.

Asked about the United States dispatch of troops to Saudi Arabia, the spokesman said: "We have accepted the fact that the troops are considered defensive forces, that it is a temporary measure and that at the first opportunity they will be withdrawn".

The United States are "responsable for their decisions and are conscious that the level of their troops is not superior to the critical level for this region," he said.

On the presence of two Soviet warships in the Gulf region, Mr. Gremytskikh said their role was to protect Soviet merchant shipping rather than "control or inspect other ships. That is our current approach," he said.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Government newspaper Izvestia reported Monday that a combined military operation by the Soviet Union and other nations "had not been envisaged by the chiefs of staff".

Soviet military advisors currently in Iraq did not play any part in assisting the Iraqi president or his armed forces in the current operations, Izvestia also said, quoting the Defence Ministry.

Meanwhile, a special commission set up by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev in connection with the Gulf crisis is now coordinating plans for the evacuation of Soviet citizens from the region, Tass news agency reported Monday.

The commission, headed by deputy Prime Minister Igor Belusov, and which includes officials from the Foreign Ministry, is working on evacuation routes, the provision of Soviet citizens with transport and food and security issues, the Foreign Ministry told Tass.

Mr. Gremytskikh said for his part: "There are talks in progress" with Baghdad on the evacuation of Soviet citizens, notably from Kuwait.

Asked about the possible arrival of an Iraqi emissary here, the spokesman simply said that he too "had heard of such rumors".

Iraqi officials have assured the Soviet side through diplomatic channels that Soviet citizens are under "no direct threat" in the crisis zone and have promised a correct and considerate attitude towards them during the evacuation, Tass said.

Baghdad is currently stopping West Europeans and U.S. citizens from leaving Iraq and Kuwait.

On Saturday, Tass reported that Moscow was taking "concrete measures" to evacuate the 880 Soviet citizens in Kuwait and the 7,830 in Iraq in accordance with an agreement with Baghdad.

LONDON (AUG. 13) - Eurotunnel, the Franco-British consortium responsible for building the Channel tunnel between England and France, said on Monday that it was having serious difficulties in raising two billion pounds (3.74 billion dollars) required to complete the project.

The financing is due to be completed in August, but so far only 1.1 billion pounds has been raised, the consortium said. Eurotunnel informed the British and French stock market authorities on Monday that completion of the financing package might have to be postponed until September.

The banks handling the financing of the tunnel had asked the banking syndicate to put back the deadline for completing the package, Eurotunnel said. Of 210 banks involved in negotiations, 93, representing 31 percent of loan financing for the project, have so far declined to participate and 26 banks covering 11 percent have not replied to the request.

If the money is not raised by the beginning of September, a 500 million pound (925 million dollars) rights issue planned for October would be delayed, the consortium said.

Eurotunnel chairman Andre Benard said that the consortium would have to ask for amendments to the conditions of the original loan if financing the new borrowing were delayed.

"Although the progress of banks in the syndicate has not been as fast as we had hoped during the annual holiday period, they are doing all in their power to enable us to go ahead with the rights issue in October," he said. The banks are to guarantee the rights issue, on condition that the new financing has been found.

"It is a matter which is in the hands of the syndicate, and I remain convinced that the banks want the project to succeed, but I am also aware that this is a matter where things are not going as quickly as planned," Benard said.

News of the latest hiccup in the financing of the project came as tunnellers from the British and French sides of the Channel were only five kilometers (three miles) apart, and were expected to meet up under the sea in November.

The cost of the project has soared, with the total cost being revised in April to 76.6 billion francs (almost 13.7 billion dollars,) against an initial figure of 50 billion (nine billion dollars).

MOSCOW (AUG. 13) - The Soviet Union Monday described Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's peace plan of the day before as lacking realism.

Saddam proposed linking an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait to an Israeli pullout from the West Bank and Gaza and a Syrian withdrawal from Lebanon.

''As far as this statement is concerned, one should consider how realistic the fulfulment of the conditions in it is,'' the deputy spokesman of the Soviet foreign ministry, Yuri Gremizkich, told reporters.

He said it was plain that the conditions could not all be fulfilled at once. He reiterated that Moscow favoured a ''peaceful political solution''.

Soviet foreign ministry spokesman Yuri Gremitskih said later that Soviet military advisers in Iraq were not involved in military plans.

''To my knowledge, there are no Soviet advisers in Iraq who participate in mapping out any concrete military plans,'' he said.

He repeated a Soviet defence ministry statement justifying Moscow's military cooperations with Baghdad. The statement said the cooperation was never directed against a third country.

BERLIN (AUG. 13) - East German Disarmament and Defence Minister Rainer Eppelmann said here Monday, on the 29th anniversary of the construction of the Berlin Wall, that the wall will have disappeared by early December.

Mr. Eppelmann, a pastor and member of the small centre-right Democratic Renewal party, was talking to journalists at a commemoration ceremony for the 80 East Germans shot dead by security guards while trying to escape the country by climbing over the wall.

At the site where the East Germans were killed, Mr. Eppelmann placed in the ground a cement slab from the "anti-fascist defence wall", painted by East German soldiers and on which was fixed a Kalashnikov machine gun.

LONDON (AUG. 13) - A hulking Iraqi circus strongman specializing in destroying cars and throwing tree trunks quit his job Monday as a performer in the Archaos Circus and was returning to Iraq to join the army a spokesman for the circus said.

The strongman, 23-year-old Zanouk el Habib who towers six feet nine inches off the ground and weighs an authoritative 380 pounds, was returning to Iraq because he was worried about his family and wanted to fight in the Iraqi Army if it should go to war, spokesman Mark Borkowski said.

"He was a very big part of the show," he added. "We suffer from injuries and this is one more thing."

The Archaos Circus, which features a mock chainsaw massacre and kamikaze ropemen, was due to perform on Tuesday at the Edinburgh International Festival. Mr. Borkowski said the show would go on.

ISLAMABAD (AUG 13) - The Iraqi army has arrested some 200 Pakistanis in Kuwait and transported them to Baghdad, official sources said here Monday.

Another 100 Pakistanis who crossed over to Saudi Arabia and Jordan from Kuwait and Iraq reached home over the weekend.

Meanwhile, worried relatives of the more than 150,000 expatriate Pakistani workers continued to besiege the Pakistani foreign ministry and the embassies of Iraq and Kuwait for information.

Iraqi diplomats in Islamabad say all Pakistanis are free to leave but are unable to provide any information about them.

The Kuwaiti embassy has regretted that it has no contact with the country and so cannot help.

SANAA (AUG. 13) - The Yemeni Government said Monday it will provide Iraq with any assistance it needs in defiance of a U.N. Security Council resolution imposing sanctions against Baghdad, saying it could not starve an Arab state.

Yemeni Foreign Minister Abdel Karim al-Iriani also told a news conference that his country backed a three-point Iraqi initiative for a "comprehensive settlement" to the Gulf crisis.

The initiative announced Sunday in Baghdad by President Saddam Hussein calls for an "immediate and unconditional" Israeli withdrawal from Arab occupied territory as well as a Syrian troop pullout from Lebanon.

Iraq also called on the United States to remove its troops from Saudi Arabia and said they could be replaced by an Arab force -- excluding Egypt -- chosen by the U.N. Security Council and in coordination between Baghdad and Riyadh.

The Iraqi president also proposed the"laying down of arrangements for the case of Kuwait", which his troops invaded on August 2 and annexed one week later, and asked in exchange that international sanctions against his country be lifted.

Mr. Iriani said the Iraqi initative provided a "global solution for all the problems in the region."

The Yemeni foreign minister -- whose country abstained from a U.N. Security Council vote on August 6 to impose sanctions against Iraq -- said Sanaa will not respect the U.N. vote.

"Yemen will not hesitate to supply any assistance at Iraq's request," he said, adding that his country could not "starve an Arab."

These remarks come as the United States and Britain vowed to take specific action to enforce the blockade against Iraq to ensure that oil exports from Iraq and Kuwait do not leave the region and that no food and supplies reach them.

An unnamed U.S. official quoted in the Washington Post on Monday Washington said American troops would "open fire on a ship if it did not stop".

In London, Foreign Office Minister William Waldegrave said the British Navy will board vessels in the Gulf travelling to Iraq with food and supplies in defiance of the international sanctions.

JERUSALEM (AUG. 13) - The Palestinian fundamentalist group Hamas on Monday urged Baghdad to order an attack on central Tel Aviv if Iraq were attacked by Western military powers.

A statement distributed in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip appealed to Arabs to take their battle to Israeli soil and called on Iraq to "strike the heart of Tel Aviv" in retaliation for any possible Western aggression.

It also called on Arabs to attack U.S interests across the world and said all forms of dialogue between Arab states and Washington should cease.

Hamas, which is the acronym for the Islamic Resistance Mouvement, ordered Washington to pull out U.S. troops sent to Saudi Arabia in the wake of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

The group also called on inhabitants of the occupied territories to observe a general strike on Wednesday "in support of Iraq and to protest against the American occupation of Moslem states."

Palestinians in the occupied territories have been holding anti-U.S. and pro-Iraqi demonstrations since the first U.S. troops were deployed Thursday in Saudi Arabia to protect the kingdom against any Iraqi attack.

BERLIN (AUG. 13) - East German Defence Minister Rainer Eppelmann and the mayors of East and West Berlin marked the 29th anniversary of the Berlin Wall on Monday by honouring victims killed in escape bids.

Eppelmann unveiled a plaque in commemoration of the Berlin Wall victims and described it ''a symbol of victory against division and threat''.

The plaque, on which a broken Soviet-made Kalashnikov submachine-gun is mounted, was in memory of Peter Fechter, who was shot dead by East German border troops while trying to flee across the wall in 1962.

It was the first commemoration ceremony attended by mayors from the two halves of the city.

East German border troops killed 80 would-be escapers between 1961, when the wall was built, and 1989, when East Germany's communist government collapsed.

Large sections of the wall have been pulled down since the beginning of the year and it is expected to disappear altogether in time for German unity projected for December.

HARBEL, LIBERIA (AUG. 13) - The leader of the National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL), Charles Taylor, Monday accepted an invitation to go to Banjul from Gambian President Dawda Jawara, an NPFL communique released here said.

The communique said that Mr. Taylor had accepted the invitation and would meet with President Jawara in a few days. No precise date for the visit was given.

Mr. Taylor will also "be communicating" with Nigerian President Ibrahim Babangida, Ghanaian President Jerry Rawlings and the Chairman of the Organisation of African Unity (OAU) Yoweri Museweni, the NPFL communique said.

Nigeria, Ghana, Guinea, Sierra Leone and Gambia will form a peacekeeping force being assembled by the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS) to bring an end to the civil war that has ravaged Liberia for eight months.

Mr. Taylor has denounced foreign intervention in the Liberian civil war on several occasions, insisting that the conflict remains an internal matter.

But Mr. Taylor' decision to go to Gambia for talks suggests a softening of his stance against any form of intervention by other African states.

"It is the president's (Mr. Taylor's) considered view that ECOWAS has a role to play, and an even wider one for the OAU. He is convinced that a meaningful solution can be worked out," the communique said.

BEIRUT (AUG. 13) - Units of the Syrian army stationed in Lebanon have been recalled to Syria ahead of plans by Damascus to send troops to the Gulf, reliable sources said here Monday.

Witnesses meanwhile said that Syrian troops were seen Monday leaving mostly Moslem west Beirut and the Shouf mountains southeast of the capital in convoys of armoured vehicles.

But neither the reliable sources nor the witnesses were able to say how many troops were involved in these operations and the Syrian military command in Beirut was unreachable for confirmation.

Earlier, an influential newspaper close to both Syrian and Moslem circles said that Syria had decided to send a "symbolic force" to Saudi Arabia in keeping with an Arab League resolution endorsed Friday by 12 of the League's 20 members.

As-Safir newspaper, citing an unnamed senior Syrian official, said the decision underlines a Syrian wish to give the Arabs a role in any settlement of the Gulf crisis triggered by Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The semi-official Egyptian daily Al-Ahram said over the weekend that Syria would send troops to Saudi Arabia and President Hosni Mubarak, whose country has committed troops to the Gulf, later hinted that Damascus would join an Arab force.

Syria has not denied or confirmed any of these reports. Damascus was among the 12 Arab states to approve the deployment of an Arab force in the Gulf.

CAIRO (AUG. 13) - Egyptian Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel-Meguid Monday called Iraq President Saddam Hussein's proposals to solve the Gulf crisis unclear, the Egyptian Mena news agency reported.

Saddam proposed Sunday that Arab forces replace U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia as a first step in defusing the crisis. But he linked the proposals to the solution of ''all issues of occupation'' in the Middle East, including an immediate Israeli withdrawal from the occupied territories, a Syrian pullout from Lebanon and the removal of Western and Egyptian troops from the Gulf.

Abdel-Meguid said Cairo insisted on an immediate Iraqi troop pullout from Kuwait, which Baghdad annexed, following its invasion on August 2. Saddam had failed to clarify his proposals sufficiently, the minister said.

Kuwaiti Minister of State for Cabinet Affairs Abdel-Rahman al-Awadi rejected the Iraqi proposal. Emerging from a meeting with Meguid, al-Awadi said the Palestine issue could not be compared with the occupation by another Arab country of Kuwait.

Saddam's proposal was designed only to provoke Arabs, he said. He had hoped that the Palestinians had not accepted the occupation of Kuwait. Such a stance amounted to an acceptance of the Israeli occupation of Palestine, Al-Awadi added.

Al-Awadi called for a stepping up of pressure on Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait.

He called on Iraqis to come to the aid of Kuwait. The annextation of his country was the worst case of tyranny ever committed by an Arab against a fellow Arab, he said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 13) - The United States, which has announced its forces will enforce a U.N. economic embargo against Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, Monday carefully avoided using the word "blockade" -- which legal experts said could be considered an act of war.

Washington on Sunday termed its actions regarding Iraqi shipping an "interdiction."

In Baghdad, Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz warned that any bid by the United States to intercept Iraqi oil tankers in the Gulf would be considered an "act of aggression."

"Let's not use the word 'blockade'," Secretary of State James Baker said in announcing the U.S. decision Sunday.

"No point getting into all these semantics," President George Bush said a short while later from his vacation home in Kennebunkport, Maine.

But semantics are becoming a weapon in the intensifying U.S. war of words with Iraq, as it was in 1962, when U.S. forces "quarantined" Cuba to block the delivery of Soviet missiles to that Caribbean island nation.

This time, Mr. Baker used the term "interdiction," whose usage in a military scenario was unfamiliar to military experts questioned.

He said a request from the Kuwait's deposed government provided the legal basis -- under Article 51 of the U.N. charter -- for the United States and other nations to halt Iraqi exports.

Article 51 recognizes the inherent right of U.N. members to engage in individual or collective self-defense when a U.N. member state is subject to armed aggression.

The U.N. Security Council on August 6 unanimously approved a trade and arms embargo against Iraq and occupied Kuwait, which Iraq seized August 2.

Friday, Mr. Baker told journalists at the headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) in Brussels that there was not necessarily a unanimity of opinion among the allies on enforcing the U.N. sanctions.

"It is the view of some of us that we have the legal authority necessary to institute such an embargo or blockade, provided that the request comes from the legitimitate government of Kuwait," he said.

AMMAN (AUG. 13) - Jordan officially asked the U.N. Security Council to examine the negative effect the endorsement of international sanctions against Iraq would have on its economy, a reliable source said Monday.

(In Israel, military officials quoted by the newspaper Davar charged that Jordan was allowing supplies to enter Iraq through the Red Sea port of Aqaba while Israeli television on Sunday broadcast footage of what it said were trucks moving off vessels at Aqaba.)

Jordan is arguing that Article 50 of the U.N. charter stipulates that any country, whether or not it belongs to the United Nations, can appeal to the Security Council for help with financial problems engendered by respect for U.N.-sponsored sanctions.

According to the source the Jordanian Government is currently considering the effect of an embargo on Iraq and initial indications are that it would result in "enormous" losses to Jordan's economy.

Iraq owes Jordan 360 million dollars, but instead of reimbursing its debt Baghdad supplies Jordan with most of its oil needs.

Iraq also grants Jordan considerable financial aid, said to amount to 50 million dollars in 1990 alone, and Baghdad reimburses Amman 144 million dollars a year in foreign currency, the source said.

Jordanian industry depends largely on the Iraqi market, its top trade partner, with sales receipts totalling 25 percent of Jordan's overall exports.

King Hussein said on Wednesday that his country was examining ways of implementing sanctions against Iraq, two days after the U.N. Security Council overwhelmingly passed a resolution imposed trade and arms embargo

Analysts have said that for the sanctions to be effective they should be respected by all countries, regardless of whether they are members of the United Nations.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 13) - The United States said several ships in the Gulf region which had been about to load or deliver Iraqi cargo turned back Monday before reaching their ports of destination, in accordance with the United Nations-imposed embargo against Iraq.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, speaking at President George Bush's holiday home in Kennebunkport, Maine, gave no details about the ports involved, the types of cargo or the ships' countries of origin.

In one case, he said, Saudi port authorities had refused to provide tugs for an incoming ship.

He did not reveal whether this was the Iraqi ship which tried to load oil at Yanbu in the Red Sea, terminal of the Iraqi oil pipeline through Saudi Arabia.

On Sunday, the ousted Kuwaiti government had asked the U.S. and other countries to stop the vessel.

According to Fitzwater, American naval vessels so far have not stopped any ships in the region.

He underlined however that the Bush administration was determined to ''intercept'' all sea transports to and from Iraq.

Saying that the embargo so far had worked ''excellently'', Fitzwater expressed hope that Jordan would also fully support the sanctions.

There have been fears in the U.S. that the embargo might become ineffective if shipments are made through the Jordanian port of Aqaba.

The White House spokesman said several Americans in the past few days had through their own initiative managed to leave Kuwait or Iraq.

However, the ban imposed by Iraq on Western foreign nationals leaving the country appeared to remain in force. On Monday, a convoy of automobiles carrying U.S. citizens was stopped before the Saudi border.

President Bush planned to interrupt his three-week holiday on the Atlantic seashore on Tuesday and Wednesday for budget consultations in Washington.

On Tuesday his schedule called for talks with advisers on the tight budget situation and upcoming negotiations with the oppositional Democrats on the 1991 budget.

Among the factors to be considered are the costs of the U.S. military involvement in Saudi Arabia.

A day later Bush planned a Pentagon briefing on the progress of the U.S. troop deployment.

AMMAN (AUG. 13) - Two hundred Indian Moslems, who had been trapped in Iraq since its August 2 invasion of Kuwait, arrived Monday in Jordan, the Indian consulate said.

The Indians were among a group of 700 Shiite pilgrims who had been visiting Moslem sites in Iraq, the consulate said.

They left Iraq by road and and entered Jordan at the Roweished border post, 270 kilometers (167 miles) east of Amman.

Indian Minister of Energy Mohammad Aref Khan was expected here later Monday aboard a special plane to repatriate the pilgrims.

The government in New Delhi has meanwhile asked Jordan's national carrier Royal Jordanian to charter three planes for the other 500 Indians expected to arrive here from Iraq in the next few day ahead of their return home, a spokesman for the airlines said.

The Polish charge d'affaires Marian Dabrowski said 13 Polish nationals had also come by road from Iraq.

"They are fine and have not met with any difficulties along the way," said Mr. Dabrowski, adding that he accepted more Polish nationals since many are working in Kuwait and Iraq.

Algerian diplomats also said that 12 of their nationals had arrived Monday in Jordan from Kuwait and Iraq and were waiting to catch flights home.

Iraq said Sunday it would "facilitate" the travel of foreigners from Kuwait city but it was not clear if this meant they would be able to leave the country or just travel inside Iraqi and Kuwaiti territory.

Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2 and annexed it one week later.

Some foreigners trapped there, most of them diplomats, have been able to leave overland through Jordan and Saudi Arabia, which also shares borders with Iraq.

ACCRA (AUG. 13) - Ghana's head of state Jerry Rawlings on Monday appealed for international support for the Economic Community of West African states (ECOWAS) in its efforts to bringing peace to war-torn Liberia.

He said most West African countries faced economic problems and the operation in Liberia would stretch their budgets. He added that this did not mean that they should shy away from their reponsibility of assisting a fellow African country.

The Ghanaian leader said some countries have committed men and equipment to the ECOWAS monitoring group (ECOMOG) set up last week to keep the peace in Liberia. Others in the sub-region that have not been called on to provide men should help out financially to stop the carnage, he said.

Ghana, Nigeria, Sierra Leone, Guinea and the Gambia are contributing some 2,500 troops to ECOMOG.

Flight Lieutenant Rawlings, who was among seven ECOWAS leaders who decided to form ECOMOG last Tuesday indicated that the United Nations may help ECOMOG.

ECOMOG, under Ghanaian Lieutenant General Arnold Quainoo has been gathering in Sierra Leone to move into Liberia.

ISLAMABAD (AUG. 13) - Pakistan declared Monday it would participate alongside forces from other Islamic states in defending Saudi Arabia following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

The foreign ministry said Pakistan "had decided, in principle, to accede to the Saudi request for joining the Islamic contingents being sent to Saudi Arabia for its defence."

"The details of this assistance will be worked out expeditiously in consultation with the government of the kingdom of Saudi Arabia," the announcement said.

The decision followed talks here between a special envoy of Saudi King Fahd and President Ghulam Ishaq Khan and interim prime minister Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi.

Egypt has already started despatching troops to the kingdom and there were indications that Morocco and Syria would follow suit. Troops from the United Arab Emirates, Qatar, Oman and Bahrain are part of a Gulf Cooperation Council force reported to be already based in Saudi Arabia.

The Pakistani announcement came only a week after the abrupt ouster of Benazir Bhutto, who was replaced by a caretaker prime minister.

The Saudi envoy, who was not named, conveyed to the Pakistani leaders a message from the Saudi monarch "asking for Pakistan's assistance in this moment of peril," the foreign ministry statement said.

The statement said the "grave situation" in the Gulf was reviewed Monday at a high level meeting at the military high command headquarters. The meeting was attended by Mr. Ishaq Khan, the prime minister, the foreign minister and the chiefs of the army, navy and air force.

It said the "growing concern" of the government and the people of Pakistan about the "threat posed to security of Saudi Arabia by the concentration of Iraqi troops on its border" was recently conveyed to King Fahd.

In his message to King Fahd, "custodian of two holy Moslem shrines, Makkah and Medina," the president had expressed "Pakistan's solidarity with the fraternal kingdom of Saudi Arabia."

The foreign ministry statement said the Pakistan cabinet would be meeting shortly in special session to "consider further the serious implications" of the Gulf situation for regional peace and stability in the wake of Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Pakistan took the decision to assist the kingdom, "keeping in mind the time-honoured friendship between Pakistan and Saudi Arabia" and resolutions issued by the U.N. Security Council, the Arab League and the Islamic Conference of foreign ministers, the statement said.

LAGOS (AUG. 13) - The airlift of Nigerian troops under the aegis of the Economic Community of West African states (ECOWAS) monitoring group ended here Monday, sources at the airport told AFP.

The airlift started last Saturday following the approval of the Armed Forces Ruling Council (AFRC), the nation's highest decision-making body, which met here last Thursday and Friday.

This last batch of Nigerian troops were airlifted in an Air Force Hercules C-130 plane to Freetown, the sources said.

Although the total number of the contigent is not known, it is estimated that 700 Nigerian troops, made up of soldiers and air force servicemen are involved in the peace-keeping exercise.

The operation, supervised by top military officers, including the head of the brigade of guards, the elite unit of the army, started last Saturday with the airlift of 300 troops in three Nigerian Air Force Hercules C-130 which were assisted in the exercise Sunday by a DC-10.

The troops left with rifles, crates of weapons, barbed wire, daggers, shovels and food provisions, journalists at the airport said.

Before the first batch departed at the weekend, the troops had already been briefed on the nature of their assignment and the international regulations guiding peace-keeping operations, sources in the presidency here said.

A top military source said that Nigerian armed forces were familiar with peace-keeping opearations, adding that they had performed with credit during the past 20 years in similar assignments in Lebanon, Congo and Chad and were currently being used as observers of the Iran-Iraq ceasefire.

The dozen Nigerian journalists accompanying the troops have all been selected from the government-owned media, which observers said could be intended to ensure that only government-approved version of the force's activities are reported.

ABOARD THE USS INDEPENDENCE IN THE GULF OF OMAN (AUG. 13) - U.S. fighter pilots from this aircraft carrier have not sighted any Iraqi aircraft since they began missions over the Gulf three days after the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, a U.S. Navy officer says.

Captain Jay Yakeley, commander of the Navy Air Wing 14 aboard the Independence, said his pilots had had "no close encounters" and in fact had not seen any Iraqi planes.

He made the remarks to a visiting Pentagon regional media pool whose report was released Monday. The pool earlier visited the USS La Salle, the command ship of the nine-vessel U.S. naval task force on station in the Gulf.

The Independence and its escort of six ships are on station in the Gulf of Oman where they arrived after breaking off exercises at the U.S. naval base on the Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia, 4,000 kilometers (2,500 miles) south.

Capt. Yakeley said his pilots -- who average about 18-20 years old -- were flying F-14 jet fighters equipped with three types of air-to-air missiles, including the top-secret Phoenix which can hit an opponent at "long distance."

They can perform missions lasting four hours and remain aloft indefinitely if refueled by U.S. Air Force KC-135 and KC-10 tanker planes now based in Saudi Arabia, he added.

Of the Iraqi pilots, Capt. Yakeley said: "Many of them are combat-tested against Iran, we know that. We know the type of training they have. They probably have some real good pilots and some that are not so good."

An officer in the carrier's combat information center said P-3 Orion surveillance aircraft from the Iranian Air Force were spotted in the area.

"But they don't get too close. They are very friendly. We talk to them and they talk to us," he added.

Rear Admiral William Fogarty, commander of U.S. forces in the Gulf and the north Arabian and Red Seas, told a briefing that U.S. forces were outfitted with protective gear, masks and antidotes to deal with chemical warfare.

Pentagon officials have noted that the Iraqis used mustard and nerve gas in their 1980-88 war against Iran and even against their own Kurdish minority.

"The fact that they do have chemical weapons is disturbing to everybody...But we are a trained force, if they happen to employ them," said Rear Adm. Fogarty.

On the Independence, Rear Adm. Jerry Unruh said the chances of such an attack were "very, very slim."

PARIS (AUG. 13) - A plane carrying French-made gas masks left here for the Gulf state of Qatar on Monday, and similar deliveries will follow soon, officials said.

French President Francois Mitterand recently said he would support Gulf states, who fear a possible war in the region, involving the use of chemical arms.

Tension has been rising in the Gulf, following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait on August 2 and the subsequent deployment of U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia in order to deter Iraq from attacking the kingdom. Iraq possesses a large arsenal of chemical weapons.

FREETOWN (AUG. 13) - The British Government has donated 200,000 pounds (375,000 dollars) to help Sierre Leone Government cope with the influx of refugees from the Liberian civil war, a senior Western diplomat said here on Monday.

The amount will be paid to the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees headquarters in Geneva. He said this was in addition to the quarter of a million U.S. dollars which the British Government had already donated to the general appeal launched by the UNHCR to aid all refugees to Liberia's neighbours, Ivory Coast, Guinea and Sierra Leone.

According to Sierra Leone's armed forces commander, Major Heneral Mohamed Tarawallie, the number of refugees in Sierra Leone now stands at 70,000.

AMMAN (AUG. 13) - Authorities in Saudi Arabia Monday turned back Jordanians who tried to cross by land and stopped renewing residence permits for Jordanians working in the kingdom, a Jordanian official confirmed.

He said that despite an official Saudi denial of any new measures against Jordanians, ''we have information that they (the Saudis) have, at least now, stopped renewing residency permits and that some Jordanians have been harassed by Saudi citizens and officials.''

The official said the government was seeking clarification from Saudi Arabia on reported clashes between Jordanians and Saudis in the kingdom.

Jordan, a close ally of Iraq throughout the 8-year Gulf war, has refrained from joining Saudi Arabia and Gulf states in condemning the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. Instead, Jordan rejected the principle of acquisition of land by force and refused to recognise the Iraqi annexation of Kuwait.

Amman also abstained and refused to join 12 other Arab states who voted at the Cairo summit Friday in favour of sending Arab forces to join an international force stationed in Saudi Arabia.

Diplomatic souces said the Saudi government was ''disturbed by the Jordanian position'', which was that Amman would send troops only to replace foreign forces in the Gulf.

MOSCOW (AUG. 13) - President Mikhail Gorbachev has restored the rights of all victims of political repression from the 1920s to the 1950s in a decree published Monday by TASS news agency.

The decree covers the lifting of all accusations against farmers during the collectivisation program introduced under Joseph Stalin, and restores the political rights of all citizens condemned for "political, social, national, religious and other reasons."

The restoration of rights does not apply to those "justly" found guilty of "crimes against the state or Soviet citizens" before, during and after World War II, the decree stated.

The decree also denounces Stalinist repression beginning in the mid-1920s, apparently drawing a distinction between the Stalinist period and the Soviet Union under Lenin, who died in 1924.

While many of the better known victims of Stalinist repression have been rehabilitated little by little since 1985, it has not been the same case for the innumerable and anonymous victims of Stalin's farm collectivisation program.

Experts have been unable to agree on the number of people who died because of the forced collectivisation of farms in the 1930s, with estimates varying between three million and 13 million dead.

Mr. Gorbachev called on the Soviet government and the governments of the republics to put forward proposals that would "reestablish the rights of citizens that suffered from repression.

Supervision of the rehabilitation of victims of repression will be confided to the presidential council, one of two bodies, one along with the Federation Council, recently created to help the president make major decisions.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 13) - A saudi official dismissed Baghdad's proposed settlement Monday as ''a manoeuver'', and said the Iraqi invasion has shattered Arab unity.

Prince Bandar bin Sultan, Saudi Arabia's ambassador to the United States, said the offer should have been put in more positive terms if Iraqi President Saddam Hussein meant it to show flexibility.

''It is a manoeuver that will not succeed, and it is unfortunate,'' Bandar told reporters. ''Why should Israel withdraw from the West Bank and Gaza to save Kuwait, when the Arabs aren't willing to save Kuwait?''

''We want to liberate the Palestinian people in the West Bank, Gaza, East Jerusalem, and the Golan Heights. We are supporting their cause. But this is not the way to serve their cause,'' he said.

The prince disparaged the fact that the Iraqi invasion had divided the Arab world and made Arabs guilty of the same things that they have criticized Israel for doing.

Arabs were no longer on the ''moral high ground'', chastising Israel for its occupation of neighboring territories, he said, because an Arab state is now behaving the same way.

Bandar said Riyadh was ''very disillusioned'' and ''hurt'' by Jordan's unwillingness to back the country in its time of need, and by reports that Jordan might allow Iraq to use its port of Aqaba.

The ambassador, who said his country did everything it possibly could to resolve the situation before calling for U.S. help, said Saudi Arabia will build up its defences in the future so that it will be capable of handling future crises alone.

BRUSSELS (AUG. 13) - Two Belgian minesweepers and a command and support ship will take part in the international operation to enforce sanctions against Iraq, the Belgian Government announced Monday.

The ships will be dispatched to the Mediterranean, prior to a meeting of the Western European Union (WEU) next week that will decide whether to send WEU ships to the Gulf and how to coordinate their operations, it said in a communique.

The WEU comprises nine European members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO). The meeting, comprising defence and foreign ministers, will be held in Paris either next Monday or Tuesday.

The communique, read by Foreign Minister Mark Eyskens after a cabinet meeting, pledged Belgium's support for "ending Iraq's aggression against Kuwait and its annexation of that country."

But it also stressed "the importance of continuing European-Arab dialogue" and the search for a diplomatic solution that would avoid bloodshed. "All parties concerned must show great self-restraint," the communique said.

The command and support ship will be the Zinnia, listed as a 23-year-old 2,685-ton vessel equipped with 40-mm guns and a helicopter, the communique said.

The three ships, with about 180 men on board, should be ready to sail by late Wednesday, but would take nearly three weeks to reach the Gulf, Belgian officials said.

They will "join the forces that have already been deployed by other countries, although their future mission and effective role in the effort of solidarity will determined after the WEU meeting," the communique said.

Eyskens and Defence Minister Guy Coeme said the government had decided to wait for the WEU meeting because it wanted close coordination between naval forces in the Gulf and good protection for the Belgian ships.

The WEU, the sole all-European defence organization, comprises Britain, France - which have already sent ships to the Gulf - the Benelux countries, Spain, Italy, West Germany, and Portugal.

The organization pledges mutual defence among its members in case of attack. But its military functions were superseded by NATO and, politically, the WEU has remained dormant throughout most of its 41-year existence.

Belgium sent a similar naval force to the Gulf under WEU auspices from November 1987 to November 1988 to help in anti-mine cooperations. The three ships identified and exploded five mines.

The Flemish Socialist Party, one of the five parties in the Belgian coalition government, said the ships should only be sent under United Nations flags, reliable sources said.

But Eyskens argued against this, they said. He pointed out that a U.N. decision would require unanimity in the Security Council and China was indicating its opposition, they said.

GRASSE, France (AUG. 13) - A child was possibly steering a speed boat which was involved in a fatal accident with an inflatable dinghy in the Mediterranean two years ago, passengers on the dinghy said Monday.

The speed boat's owner, Briton David Morris, is currently in detention here charged with manslaughter in connection with the accident off Antibes which left one person dead and another injured.

The witnesses were quoted by lawyer Michel Barreau, representing the family of Thomas Difava who was killed in the collision.

Mr. Morris maintains that he was steering his boat but that a motor boat dragging a "ski bus", or dinghy, pulled in front of his craft. He says that he was unaware of any accident.

A reconstitution of the accident is to be staged next month.

DAMASCUS (AUG. 13) - U.S. envoy John Kelly arrived here Monday on his second visit to Damascus in five days after missions to Saudi Arabia and Cairo for talks on the Gulf crisis.

The U.S. Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs was met by senior officials from the Syrian Foreign Ministry as well as U.S. ambassador Edward Peter Djerejian, officials here said.

It was not immediately clear what brought Mr. Kelly back to Damascus and whether he will be having more talks with Syrian officials on the situation in the Gulf following Iraq's invasion and annexation of Kuwait.

But Mr. Kelly's second visit to Syria in less than a week comes one day after U.S. President George Bush announced that he had had a "good talk" by telephone Sunday with Syrian President Hafez al-Assad on the need to impose sanctions on Iraq.

Mr. Kelly first visited Syria on Thursday and then left after three days for Saudi Arabia and Cairo.

The Syrian President on Monday received the deposed prime minister of Kuwait, Crown Prince Saad al-Abdallah al-Sabah.

Sheikh Saad delivered a message from Kuwaiti emir, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah, the official Syrian news agency SANA reported.

DHAKA (AUG. 13) - Some 200 Bangladeshi students demonstrated Monday for the withdrawal of U.S. forces from the Gulf.

The students, from the Swadin Jubo Andolon (Free Youth Movement), marched to the U.S. Embassy in Dhaka chanting slogans such as "Americans get out from Islam's holy land" and "break the black hands of American imperialists."

Police detained several protestors but released them after several hours.

The anti-American demonstration came a day after some 500 students belonging to the rightist Jamaat-e-Islami political party protested outside the Iraqi embassy against Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Bangladesh has deplored the Iraqi invasion and backed the United Nations Security Council resolution on mandatory sanctions against Iraq and other

NEW YORK (AUG. 13) - The U.N. Security Council met briefly in New York Monday to review the Gulf situation and there was agreement to speak with one voice on the military measures taken by the United States, according to Canadian U.N. Ambassador Yves Fortier.

''We are definitely not talking about a blockade,'' Fortier said, adding, ''Whatever differences in the council exist, we still speak with one voice.''

He reported that a supervisory committee installed by the Security Council to monitor the economic and trade sanctions against Iraq has started to operate and would meet toward the end of this week. Its objective is to find out whether the sanctions are being complied with.

Fortier said the entire situation in the Gulf was reviewed and that several countries explained their positions. A u.S. representative explained to the council the measures which U.S. Secretary of State James Basker had outlined Sunday.

U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar had earlier on Monday opposed the use of the word ''blockade'' in regard to joint actions by the United States and other countries in the Gulf.

''Only the United Nations, through its Security Council resolutions, can really decide about a blockade. That's why I think we have to avoid the word 'blockade''', he said.

Meanwhile in Kennebunkport, Maine, where U.S. President George Bush is spending his vacation, one of the White House spokesmen said the United States would use force to press the sanctions imposed by the United Nations against Iraq.

''We'd use force if necessary,'' said Douglas Davidson after consultations among members of the administration. He gave no further details.

Earlier, White House Spokesman Marlin Fitzwater in the daily press briefing had underlined in general terms the determination of the Bush administration to prevent goods shipments by sea from Iraq and into Iraq.

The Washington Post quoted a U.S. official, whom it did not identify, as saying: ''We will fire on a ship if it won't stop... We'll do the usual things - warn them off, fire a shot across the bow. But if it comes to that, there is no question what we will do.''

Meanwhile, a dispute has surfaced as to whether the sanctions imposed by the Security Council warrant a military blockade by the U.S. of imports and exports to and from Iraq.

Bush has ordered U.S. vessels stationed in the area to stop ships that may try to violate the embargo, but his position does not agree with the positions taken by France and Perez de Cuellar.

The U.S. government, while in fact imposing an embargo, prefers to use the term ''interdiction''.

OSLO (AUG. 13) - The Norwegian state oil company, Statoil, reported Monday mid-year profits of 5.52 billion crowns (894.6 million dollars) before extraordinary items, well up from 2.79 billion crowns (452.2 million dollars) in the same period last year.

The improved results are due to a drastic cut in operating costs, higher oil production and reduced debt payments, Statoil said. In the last 18 months Statoil has reduced long-term debts by eight billion crowns, thereby cutting interest payments by 635 million crowns.

Statoil launched a money-saving program last year which, in two years, should reduce costs by two billion crowns and cut personnel by 15 percent.

Due to the present situation in the Gulf, Statoil, Norway's biggest oil company, is expecting output to increase in the next six months. With a price level of 20 to 23 dollars a barrel, the result in the second half of 1990 is likely to in line with or somewhat better than the first half year the company said. Statoil stressed that prospects are very uncertain.

This year's preliminary result is the best since the record year of 1985 when the price of oil exceeded 30 dollars a barrel, Statoil head of information Arild Steine said. So far this year, the reference price has averaged 17.90 dollars compared to 18.22 for the whole of 1989.

Statoil-operated fields in the North Sea account for around 1.0 million barrels a day of Norway's total oil production of 1.7 million barrels. The main Statoil fields are Statfjord, Veslefrikk and Gullfaks.

JOHANNESBURG (AUG. 13) - As South Africa draws closer to the end of over three centuries of exclusive white rule, the state's powerful security legislation has been identified as one of the main obstacles to the negotiation of a post-apartheid constitution.

Anti-apartheid activists headed by the African National Congress (Anc), the black liberation movement with which the government is currently engaged in preliminary peace talks, have identified the Internal Security Act (Isa) as a major stumbling block to constitutional reform.

According to the independent Human Rights Commission (Hrc), the Isa ''embodies virtually all of the elements perceived as negating and stultifying free political expression''.

The organisation describes the Isa as an anachronism ''completely out of step'' with the Groote Schuur Minute, the historic accord reached between the government and the Anc in the first round of ''talks about talks'' in Cape Town on May 4 this year.

Enacted in 1982, the Isa consolidated a host of its progenitors, including the Suppression of Communism Act, the Riotous Assemblies Act and the Terrorism Act.

The result, according to the Hrc, was ''the last word in security legislation, a monument to over 30 years of experience in drafting statutes which could defend apartheid security against its many opponents''.

It provides for detention without trial, and its notorious Section 29 allows for a detainee to be held in solitary confinement without access to lawyers, family, friends or anyone other than state officials ''until all questions are satisfactorily answered''.

In terms of the Isa police may ban political opponents, preventing them from communicating with people and restricting their movements. Organisations may be declared unlawful and thus be rendered useless.

DHAKA (AUG. 13) - Labour and Manpower Minister Sirajul Hossain Khan said here Monday that Bangladesh was seeking employment for its nationals displaced to Saudi Arabia following the invasion of Kuwait to keep up foreign exchange earnings.

Mr. Khan said he would discuss the issue with the Bangladesh Association of International Recruiting Agencies Tuesday and ask it to look for employment for Bangladeshis who fled to Saudi Arabai after Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The Gulf conflict is costing Bangladesh millions of dollars in lost remittances from an estimated 70,000 Bangladeshis working in Kuwait until the invasion, the minister said.

Mr. Khan said remittances from Kuwait during the first four months of this year stood at 32 million U.S. dollars, with more than 10 million dollars in January alone.

Officials said more than 300,000 Bangladeshis are employed in the Middle East and their remittances are a major source of foreign exchange earnings for Dhaka.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 13) - President George Bush Monday lifted restrictions on the total number of Soviet business people allowed to work and reside in the United States.

Mr. Bush said the lifting of the long-standing ceiling was "an expression of our policy to build a more normal economic relationship" with the Soviet Union.

In a statement released while the president was vacationing here, Mr. Bush recalled that at the June U.S.-Soviet summit in Washington, the superpowers signed four landmark economic accords "that expanded and deepened our economic relationship."

"We now place special emphasis on technical economic cooperation to help institutionalize lasting market-oriented economic reforms in the USSR," he said.

However, Mr. Bush emphasized that the United States would reconsider its decision if there were evidence that "this opportunity is being misused for intelligence-gathering or other inappropriate activities."

He said he believed Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev "shares my view" and will ensure "reciprocal improvements in the climate for American business in the USSR."

LAGOS (AUG. 13) - As the West African Ecowas ceasefire monitoring group (Ecomog) prepared to set out on its peace mission to Liberia, the Ecowas secretariat in Lagos warned Monday that members of its peace-keeping force were under instruction to retaliate against any act of aggression by any of the warring factions.

The executive secretary of Ecowas, Abbas Bundu, said in a statement: ''The last people they (the combatants) should touch are foreigners in Liberia, because no country will stand idly by and see its citizens being slaughtered''.

He said the reported attacks on foreign missions including those of Nigeria and Guinea and threats of attack on members of the peace-keeping force by some of the warring factions in civil war-torn Liberia were ''the height of savagery''.

The victims, by taking sanctuary in their embassies, had declared their neutrality in the liberian crisis, he said.

In Accra, the commander of the West African peace-keeping force for Liberia, Lieutenant General Arnold Quainoo of Ghana said Monday that his troops would not use military force to contain the situation.

The duty of the five-nation Ecomog would be to play a mediatory role in finding a solution to the crisis which has claimed thousands of lives, he said.

Quainoo, 51, was speaking to reporters here shortly before he flew to Freetown, Sierra Leone, to assume duty.

He said the troops would be carrying guns but they were not being carried to intimidate or subdue the people. The guns were for their own personal protection.

''We are going there as friends of the Liberian people and I believe that the way we approach our job, the way and manner we handle our mission will determine their reaction to us.''

Ghana, Nigeria, The Gambia, Guinea and Sierra Leone are contributing between them about 2,500 troops for the exercise. the troops are gathering in Freetown from where they will move into Liberia.

Ghana's head of state Jerry Rawlings called Monday for international assistance to foot the 50 million-dollar bill for the Ecomog effort.

JERUSALEM (AUG. 13) - Saudi Arabia has refused to renew the work permits of 1,500 Palestinian workers and will soon expel them and their families to Jordan, a leading Palestinian lawyer said Monday.

Shahabi al-Zaeem told Agence France-Presse that the Saudi decision will affect a total of 5,000 Palestinians residing in the oil-rich kingdom.

"Palestinians in Saudi Arabia are seen as enemies because of the support the Palestine Liberation Organisation gives Iraq," the lawyer from the occupied Gaza Strip said.

He said 300,000 Palestinians lived in Kuwait and 250,000 in Saudi Arabia.

The Israeli authorities had issued a six-month visa renewal to some 15,000 Palestinians from Kuwait currently visiting relatives in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The Israeli Arab Democratic Party meanwhile praised Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait saying it was the first step towards "Arab unity."

"This is a positive act even if it was accomplished through force. Italy and the United States also used forced to achieve their unity," said party MP Abdel Wahab Darousha.

Several Palestinian figures, including the President of the Journalists' Union Radwan Abu Ayash, hailed proposals by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein linking a solution to the Gulf crisis to an Israeli withdrawal from the occupied territories.

"The Iraqi proposal is the only one capable of saving the Middle East from war," Mr. Abu Ayash told a press conference in Jerusalem.

Leading Palestinian nationalist Faysal Husseini on Sunday said the Iraqi plan announced that same day by President Saddam Hussein could help "set up a global plan to end all occupations in the Middle East."

He refused to say what Robles' chances of recovery were. The bull-fighter was taken to nearby Montpellier hospital for further examinations and surgery.

NEW YORK, UNITED NATIONS (AUG. 13) - United Nations Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, seeking to clarify the semantics of who is doing what in the Gulf, said Monday that only a U.N. Security Council resolution can declare an international embargo.

"I understand that the word 'blockade,' from a United Nations point of view, is not the right one," Mr. Perez de Cuellar said before returning to a Security Council consultative meeting.

The council's resolutions 660, 661 and 662 -- condemning the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, calling for a total embargo against Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, and rejecting Iraq's annexation of Kuwait -- do not mention "blockade," diplomats here said.

"What we are seeing is that, in agreement with the governments of Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, some decisons have been taken by the United States, France, Britain and other countries, and even Arab countries, but not in the context of the United Nations resolutions," Mr. Perez de Cuellar said.

So far, the Security Council has used only some of the provisions of the U.N. Charter's Article 41, because some of those provision call for a break of diplomatic relations, which has not been voted on.

But the charter's Article 42 explicitly states that if the Security Council deems the measures outlined in Article 41 inadequate, it can order the use of military force or any other action deemed necessary to maintain or reestablish international peace and security.

Article 42 says such action can include blockades or other operations executed by air, naval, or land forces of U.N. member states.

Thursday, during a Security Council vote on Resolution 662 declaring Baghdad's annexation of Kuwait null and void, U.S. Ambasador Thomas Pickering said that the United States was ready to seek another council session aimed at achieving the withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait.

But diplomatic sources said it was unlikely the United States would request such a meeting because it could break the unanimity with which the council has passed three resolutions against Iraq concerning the invasion.

In Paris Monday, sources said France had decided that any blockade of Iraq would need U.N. approval and questioned the U.S. position according to which a request from Kuwait gave foreign forces the right to intercept ships in the Gulf.

The sources said that France saw a clear distinction between the notion of "embargo" voted last week by the U.N. Security Council in response to the invasion, and a "blockade" considered by Paris to be an act of war which would require a fresh U.N. vote.

So it appeared likely that the United States would, for now, abide by the narrow interpretation of the U.N. Charter's Article 51 to justify its decision to interdict exports to Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, sources here said.

Article 51 recognizes the inherent right of U.N. members to engage in individual or collective self-defense.

JEDDAH, SAUDI ARABIA (AUG. 13) - King Fahd on Monday warned Iraq against attacking Saudi Arabia and demanded the "immediate and unconditional withdrawal" of Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

The monarch, addressing a rally in this Western Saudi city, also stressed that a three-point Iraqi plan for a settlement of the Gulf crisis "further complicated" the situation and was "inapplicable."

"The initiative should have focused on the current developments (the invasion of Kuwait)," said King Fahd in statement carried by the official Saudi Press Agency (SPA).

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein proposed Sunday a three-point initiative for a settlement of the Gulf crisis, calling for a U.S. troop withdrawal from Saudi Arabia, an Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territory and a Syrian pullout from Lebanon.

He also suggested the "laying down of arrangements for the case of Kuwait" but did not specify what these could be and called in exchange for the lifting of international trade and arms sanctions against Baghdad.

The Iraqi president, who said an Arab force could replace American troops in the Gulf region, warned of resistance if Washington "and its allies" rejected his offer.

In an apparent reply to this warning King Fahd said: "We will not tolerate anyone launching an attack against any part of our territory. We will never become the prey of expansionists or aggressors."

He also called for an "immediate and unconditional" Iraqi withdrawal from neighbouring Kuwait and demanded the restoration of the Kuwaiti government led by deposed emir, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah.

King Fahd was speaking several hours after Saudi authorities prevented an Iraqi tanker from loading oil at the Red Sea port of Yanbu, amid efforts by the United States to tighten international sanctions against Baghdad.

Saudi Arabia has allowed U.S. troops to be deployed on its territory as part of a multi-national force after Washington warned of an "imminent threat" by Iraq against the oil-rich kingdom in the aftermath of Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Egypt has also sent troops to the kingdom while several Western nations and the Soviet Union have hurried forces to the Gulf.

Iraq -- which has massed troops along the Kuwait-Saudi border -- has said it planned no attack against Saudi Arabia citing a non-aggression treaty signed with the kingdom in 1989.

FREETOWN (AUG. 13) - A visit by Pope John Paul II to Sierra Leone, Guinea and Liberia, scheduled for January 1991, has been postponed because of the conflict in Liberia, according to a statement read in all Roman Catholic churches here.

Roman catholic sources told AFP that they were notified by the Vatican Wednesday about the postponement and that no new date has been fixed.

According to the original program, the pope should have spent a day each in Freetown, Conakry, capital of predominantly Moslem Guinea, and Monrovia.

Church leaders here said the postponement will be a blow to the government of President Joseph Momoh whose administration was mapping out an ambitious program for the pope's visit.

COPENHAGEN (AUG. 13) - Denmark would take part in an international maritime blockade against Iraq if organized under United Nations auspices and "if necessary send ships from its fleet into the Gulf," Foreign Minister Uffe Ellemann-Jensen said.

In a television interview Sunday, Mr. Ellemann-Jensen praised the United States for taking the initiative in sending forces to defend Saudi Arabia from possible Iraqi aggression.

"It's almost shameful that we Europeans come limping behind," he said.

He said international forces, under the auspices of the United Nations, could play the "role of policeman" in the Gulf to enforce a U.N. trade embargo against Iraq.

He repeated that Denmark would not close its embassy in Kuwait, for to do so would legitimize the Iraqi annexation of the country.

An opinion poll whose results were televised Saturday showed 51 percent of Danes opposed to committing Danish troops to the Gulf, with 37 percent in favor, and 12 percent undecided.

MONROVIA (AUG. 13) - Embattled Liberian President Samuel Doe hopes to cling to office ''for at least a year'' even after West African peacekeeping forces arrive, according to a spokesman quoted in a report from the war-torn capital.

Liberian troops would go on a rampage were Doe to leave any time soon, the spokesman told a group of journalists, according to the Bbc report.

The stance indicates a change of mind by Doe, who earlier favoured a West African plan for a truce involving his relinquishing power.

The journalists, two Britons and an American, reportedly had been arrested and taken to the presidential mansion on suspicion of being spies. The three newsmen, said to be the only remaining Western journalists in Monrovia, were roughed up and held for two hours before receiving an apology and being allowed to go, the Bbc said.

The spokesman reportedly told them Doe had no intention of stepping down, despite a call by the West African economic alliance Ecowas for a ceasefire and an interim government which would not include representatives of either the Doe government or rebel forces.

''The best thing would be for Doe to stay,'' the spokesman was quoted as telling the newsmen. ''If he decided to leave tomorrow morning there would be a bloodbath. The soldiers would go on a rampage.''

The first contingent of a planned peacekeeping force of 2,500 men began arriving in Sierra Leone Sunday.

Thai government officials said on Monday that the talks were aimed at trying to make up the shortfall of 30,000 barrels a day, about 15 per cent of Thailand's total oil imports, normally bought from Iraq and Kuwait.

Since 1986 Thailand has bought a total of 4.9 millions barrels of oil from Iran which now supplies about five per cent of Thailand's oil needs.

JERUSALEM (AUG. 13) - Jordan is working to undermine a United Nations-approved economic and military embargo on Baghdad by allowing supplies to enter Iraq via the Red Sea port of Aqaba, Israeli military officials have charged.

"Jordan is trying to mask its support for Iraq but is in fact serving as an intermediary and spokesman for it with the Arabs," said one official in an article appearing here Monday in the newspaper Davar.

"Amman has even tried to convince Syria to allow Iraqi oil to pass through its territory."

He said the Jordanian port of Aqaba had become Iraq's principal supply point in defiance of an international embargo, approved by the United Nations Security Council Agusut 6 to protest Baghdad's invasion of Kuwait four days earlier.

Israeli television on Sunday broadcast footage of what it said were trucks moving off vessels in Aqaba and heading toward Iraq.

Jordan, where Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is proving to have substantial popular support, has distanced itself from Arab condemnation of the invasion.

Amman voted against an Arab League ministerial resolution denouncing the operation and calling for an immediate and unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait.

At an emergency Arab summit in Cairo last Friday Jordan abstained from a vote that condemned the invasion and called for Arab troops be deployed in Saudi Arabia, which the United States says is now threatened by Iraqi units in Kuwait.

STOCKHOLM (AUG. 13) - Swedish researchers are looking into the possibility of using the controversial RU-486 abortion pill as a contraceptive which could be taken once a month.

According to Dr. Marja-Liisa Swahn, who has written a thesis on the subject, the RU-486, if taken just after ovulation, could prevent conception without disrupting the normal menstrual cycle.

The active ingredient of RU-486 is a steroid which triggers an abortion by countering the action of the hormone progesterone, the normal function of which is to fix the fertilized egg in the womb.

Dr. Swahn said the steroid's properties might also give it a contraceptive function if used at the right moment.

Marc Bygdeman, who is in charge of the research project, said the pill should be taken the day after ovulation to avoid excessive bleeding and maintain a normal cycle.

The team from the Karolinska Institute in Stockholm will start six months of tests in the autumn on some 30 women volunteers.

Up to now France is the only country to have authorized the RU-486 which was developed by a French scientists. However Britain, the Netherlands and the Scandinavian countries are expected to authorize its use during the next few months.

IMJINGAK, SOUTH KOREA (AUG. 13) - South Korean riot police Monday blocked dissidents here from going to unprecedented meetings in North Korea, but a pro-government group was allowed to rally at this post near the border.

The Seoul government had said it would allow the dissidents to go only if Pyongyang guaranteed their safe return at an official meeting at the border truce village of Panmunjom four kilometers north of here.

But three South Korean liaison officials who went to Panmunjom to receive the official guarantees waited in vain as North Korea refused to send anyone to meet them, South Korean officials said.

Riot policemen here prevented dissidents from going to Panmunjom for talks with North Koreans on preparations for a Pyongyang-organized "pan-national rally" there starting Wednesday. The dissidents returned to Seoul.

Wednesday is the anniversary of Korea's liberation from Japanese colonial rule and the beginning of the division into a communist North and a capitalist South.

President Roh Tae-Woo said on July 20 that North and South Koreans would be allowed to cross the border for the first time for five days starting Monday. North Korea had said earlier that it would open its side of Panmunjom for three days starting on August 15 to allow dissidents to attend its rally.

Both sides have however issued conditions that the other side has rejected, making the border crossings doubtful.

Three of the dissidents arrived at this tourist rest stop outside the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) dividing the two Koreas and waited for a government representative, sitting in front of a line of riot police for about a half hour before desisting.

North Korean radio called for the same three dissidents from the "Launching Committee of the Pan-National Rally" to again try to come to Panmunjom at 2:00 p.m. Tuesday, according to reports from the state-run Naewoe Press in Seoul.

The radio again repeated that there was "no need" for the South Korean government to send liaison officials to Panmunjom, according to Naewoe.

A group of seven priests from an outspoken Roman Catholic Association also went back to Seoul after they were turned around by police.

The police took away seven of nine student radicals who arrived here to enter the DMZ for a separate meeting with North Korean students at Panmunjom, which is located inside the DMZ.

They chanted slogans calling for unification with the North before being taken away by police, witnesses said.

But 700 Koreans who fled the North during the 1950-1953 Korean War and before, as well as their descendants, were bussed here and staged a rally, waving paper flags and listening to speeches denouncing the North for not accepting Seoul's conditions.

They mailed some 4,000 letters to their relatives in seven special mail boxes erected here for the rally.

North and South Korea have not had mail or any other type of exchange since they were divided and organizers said the letters would be held until mail links are possible.

A group of the elderly North Korean-born residents, who sympathize with the Seoul government's approach to the reunification question, entered briefly into the heavily-fortified DMZ after cutting a hole in a wire fence earlier in the day, but were pushed back by soldiers, witnesses said.

One of the dissident delegates, Cho Sung-Ock of the umbrella coalition Chunminyon, said they had informed the government that they planned to go to Panmunjom and had expected government officials "so we could explain our situation."

But "only riot policemen are here," he said.

Mr. Cho said the contact between liaison officials was "unnecessary," accusing Seoul of its inconsistency in its policy toward the North.

The dissidents began their trek toward the border at a poorly attended rally at Yonsei University in Seoul.

Chunminyon delegate Lee Hae-Hak told a press conference there: "We firmly believe that this meeting will provide a turning point in the unification movement."

The dissident ceremony at Yonsei, attended by some 150 people, marked the start in the South of the inter-Korean "pan-national conference."

In the North, a "grand march for peaceful unification" began from Mount Paikdu, Korea's highest mountain on the border with China, local press reports said.

About 1,000 North Koreans would march from Mt. Paikdu down to Panmunjom for the beginning of the mass rally on Wednesday.

TOKYO (AUG. 13) - Japanese stock prices tumbled 4.2 percent to their lowest level in 28 months Monday amid worsening tension in the Middle East, which led Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu to postpone a tour to the region.

The decline, the market's sharpest since Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2, came in extremely light trading and was matched by renewed selling of government bonds, exerting further upward pressure on interest rates.

But the fall in Japanese stock and bond prices was accompanied by only a modest weakening of the yen against the dollar. The U.S. unit rose by almost one yen from Friday's close to settle at 150.65 yen in light trading volume.

The Nikkei Stock Average dropped 1,153 points to close at 26,176 following a 286-point loss Friday.

The decline, the seventh-sharpest on record, took the Nikkei to its lowest level since April 1, 1988, and was dominated by program selling by foreign securities firms.

Losses led gains by 934 issues to 70 with stocks in food and shipping companies among the hardest hit along with machinery and paper-pulp issues. Turnover shrank from 317 million shares to an estimated 250 million shares.

The unusually low turnover coincided with the first day of Japan's traditional summer holiday period when many businesses close down for a week.

Brokers added that instability in the Gulf and its effect on oil prices, inflation and interest rates, had also driven investors to the sidelines.

"Unless there is a sign of improvement in the Middle East situation, investors can hardly come out buying," said Yamaichi Securities Co. Ltd. stock manager Takashi Kanasaki. "They are waiting for changes in external factors."

Japanese government bond prices also fell, with the yield on the benchmark 10-year bond jumping one-tenth of a percentage point to almost 8.09 percent. Short-term interest rates also ended the day higher.

Mr. Kaifu's decision to postpone a tour to the Middle East due to start Wednesday offered little enthusiasm to investors.

"The government has decided that Mr. Kaifu should remain in Japan to coordinate from Tokyo the Japanese contribution to peace and stability in the Gulf region," Chief Cabinet Secretary Misoji Sakamoto said Monday.

Foreign Minister Taro Nakayama is to undertake the trip instead.

LONDON (AUG. 13) - The Briton who was shot dead by Iraqi soldiers in Kuwait Sunday had stopped to help push the cars of fellow refugees out of sand at the Saudi border, it was learned here Monday.

The Foreign Office called the shooting a ''barbaric crime'' and demanded that those responsible be brought to justice by Iraqi authorities.

The man, identified as Douglas Croskery, a printing executive who had been in Kuwait only a few weeks, was among a number of Britons and Kuwaitis fleeing in cars towards the Saudi border, the Foreign Office said.

He was helping three Kuwaiti families push their cars out of sand just five kilometres from the border when Iraqi soldiers arrived on the scene and fired shots, hitting him three times.

Croskery collapsed in the sand, where he bled to death as the troops looked on, according to Kuwaiti Ambassador to London Ghazi Al-Rayes. The Kuwaitis were ordered to proceed on foot across the border, said the ambassador of the toppled government.

HONG KONG (AUG. 13) - Tokyo is still the world's most expensive office market, followed by London and Hong Kong, according to an international office rentals survey published here Monday.

While Paris appeared set to overtake Hong Kong, Singapore has made a dramatic leap to fifth place from its 10th ranking in December, said Richard Ellis's half-yearly world rental report on 30 commercial cities.

The rankings were based on total annual office accommodation costs -- mainly rents, but including service charges, rates and property taxes measured in U.S. dollars per square metre (yard) -- as of June this year.

Tokyo headed the list at 2,045 dollars. London's West End was second at 1,764 dollars followed by Hong Kong at 1,110 dollars.

Annual office occupation costs in Paris stood at 963 dollars per square metre, up 12 percent from December, the report said.

It noted that the gap between Hong Kong and Paris had narrowed to about 14 percent, from 30 percent at the end of 1989.

Singapore scored a near-30 percent jump in the value of its office leases in the six months to June, to 741 dollars per square metre.

Other Asian-Pacific money hubs covered by the report included Sydney, in 13th place at 568 dollars, and Bangkok, in 29th place at 278 dollars.

RIYADH, Aug 13 (AFP) - King Fahd of Saudi Arabia has received a message from Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez, the Saudi Press Agency reported Monday.

The note, the contents of which were not disclosed, was handed to the Saudi monarch on Sunday by Venezuelan Foreign Minister Reynaldo Figueredo during a meeting in Jeddah.

The session was also attended by the Saudi ministers of foreign affairs and oil, Prince Saud al-Faisal and Hisham Nazer.

Both Saudi Arabia and Venezuela are members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Venezuelan oil sources have said their country would be able to replace U.S. imports of Iraqi and Kuwaiti crude, which were embargoed by Washington to protest Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Prior to the operation, the United States was importing 700,000 barrels a day from Iraq and 70,000 from Kuwait.

Venezuela has a production capacity of 2.7 million barrels a day but is turning out some two million barrels a day at present.

Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates also have the capacity to compensate for the loss of Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil, according to oil experts.

LONDON (AUG. 13) - Higher bunker prices due to the Middle East conflict prompted a rise in charter rates over the past week on the dry cargo market, brokers said.

The Baltic International Freight Futures Exchange (BIFFEX) index gained 52 points during the week, to 1,232 points.

Although the index now stands 176 points above its summer low of 1,056 points, posted on July 11, it still remains well below its year-ago level of 1,394 points, brokers said.

Some warned that although charter rates were expected to rise further in the short term in line with bunker prices, longer term prospects were not so bright as the shipping industry would be adversely affected by a rise in inflation worldwide, induced by higher crude oil prices.

A lot of business was done on a private and confidential basis during the week.

Among confirmed fixtures, a 52,000 ton carrier obtained 20.9 dollars per ton on the key U.S. Gulf to Japan grain route, against 19.15 dollars the previous week. Unconfirmed rumours said that a similar fixture was also concluded at 21 dollars.

On the U.S. Gulf to Europe grain route, a 55,000 ton was paid 12 dollars a ton against 11.25 dollars the previous week.

Smaller sizes also fared well in the grain sector, with a 20,000 ton getting 12 dollars a ton on the U.S. Gulf to Venezuela route, against 11 dollars the previous week.

The coal sector was also firmer. A 90,000 ton vessel obtained 5.20 dollars per ton from the U.S. Atlantic coast to Europe, against 4.95 dollars a ton the previous week.

A 120,000 ton ore carrier was fixed on the Brazil to Japan route at 11.75 dollars per ton, one dollar more than the previous week.

In the fertilizers sector, West Indian charterers paid 19.5 dollars a ton for a 15,000 ton cargo, against 18.75 dollars for the previous similar fixture at the end of May.

In the time-charter sector, rates firmed to 8,500 dollars per day from 7,750 dollars the previous week for 50,000-70,000 ton vessels on round voyages between Japan and Australia.

But they slipped from 8,000 to 7,500 dollars per day for similar-sized vessels on round voyages between Europe and the U.S. Gulf.

For longer periods (7-14 months), rates eased to 8,750 dollars a day from 9,500 dollars.

A health official said was reported as saying the outbreak has ravaged three villages in Ende district over the last three weeks.

Dr. Derven Johanes Lada also said there were some 1,500 other villages in the district and nearby areas which might soon fall victim to the disease unless medical supplies could be brought to the remote area soon.

JEDDAH (AUG. 13) - Saudi Arabia denied Iraqi reports on the nationalities of the multi-national forces deployed there Monday after Iraq claimed Israelis were masquerading as U.S. pilots.

Riyadh also dismissed as ''untrue'' Jordanian reports that 10 Saudis were killed by U.S. troops deployed in Saudi Arabia.

A saudi official source, denying the ''allegations as untrue and baseless '' did not further specify the Iraqi report. But Radio Baghdad had earlier said Israeli air force pilots had been given U.S. identification documents and had painted their planes to resemble U.S. fighters.

The Jordanian reports quoted passengers arriving in Amman from Saudi Arabia as saying U.S. troops had fired on and killed 10 Saudis.

The Saudi official, referring to one such report published in Jordan's Voice Of The People, said it was part of a campaign ''to harm'' Saudi Arabia for seeking to bolster its security.

LONDON (AUG. 13) - The chairman of electronics, textiles and food group Polly Peck International says he plans to launch a bid to buy the group, in which he and his family hold a 26 percent stake.

Asil Nadir, who has headed the British giant since 1980, released the news at a special board meeting Sunday, surprising both board members and the City.

The move will cost at least 1.2 billion pounds (2.2 billion dollars), market analysts said.

Nadir gave no reason for his decision to try to buy up the group, but has frequently complained in the past that the group's stock market capitalization was below its value.

Barclays de Zoete Wedd estimates that Polly Peck could be worth 2.9 billion pounds, which would give it a value of 687 pence a share, although the stock has not risen above the 462 pence level this year.

The Gulf crisis has depressed the stock, because of Polly Peck's interests in Turkey and the Middle East, where it makes some 35 percent of sales.

But on Monday morning it was boosted 30 pence to 423 in early trading.

In the space of 10 years, Polly Peck has developed from a small textile operation to a major diversified international group with interests ranging from pineapple to personal computers.

Last year it bought U.S. fruit and vegetable concern Del Monte for 1.4 billion dollars and took control of Japanese electronics group Sansui Electric.

Its 1989 taxable profit totalled 161.4 million pounds (304 million dollars) and market analysts expect it to rise to 227 million pounds (428 million dollars) this year.

If Nadir's bid is successful, he will join a list of British business leaders who have bought up their companies and taken them off the stock market which includes Virgin records boss Richard Branson and musicals composer Andrew Lloyd Webber.

Polly Peck said that Nadir would not take part in major group decisions pending clarifications of his move, and that the publication of the group's interim results was being brought forward from Sept. 26 to Sept. 6.

TOKYO (AUG. 13) - Public servants in oil-poor Japan will be among the first to feel the heat from energy-saving measures enforced by the Japanese government Monday in response to the deepening Gulf crisis.

They will have turn down office air-conditioners and sweat it out in summer heat as part of the package which was adopted by vice ministers from different government ministries and agencies led by the Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI), the government announced.

"If the conflict is prolonged and measures including a ban on oil imports from Iraq and Kuwait should be prolonged, it might affect the supply and demand of oil and eventually affect the livelihood and economic activities of the nation," the announcement said.

Japan, which depends on Iraq and Kuwait for 12 per cent of its oil needs or 440,000 barrels a day, has halted trade and financial links with Iraq and occupied Kuwait to join Western nations in punishing Baghdad for the invasion.

If the situation in the Gulf worsens, the government will consider stricter energy-saving measures, including a ban on neon lights and gas station services on holidays, an official said.

"This is the first time that such measures are taken since the 1979 oil crisis," a MITI official said. "It is a bold estimate but the measures could save oil worth eight days of consumption after a year."

Japan has stockpiles of oil to last 142 days and officials say the package of measures could save as much 4.7 million kiloliters (29.6 million barrels) of crude oil, or 4.4 per cent of Japan's industrial use of oil.

According to the announcement, public offices must keep the temperature of their air-conditioned rooms to about 28 degrees centigrade (82.4 Fahrenheit) and advise their employees to dress lightly.

The annoucement said the offices must turn off some electric lights in areas close to windows and in corridors while advising that all lights be turned off during lunch breaks.

The measures also call for an efficient use of elevators and official cars. "Use stairs when you go to nearby floors," the announcement said.

It recommended that private companies and offices conserve oil, electricity and other energy resouces "as much as possible" and follow the measures for public offices.

"In particular, offices, stores, hotels and public transit vehicles are advised to keep the air-conditioned room temperature at appropriate levels and economize the use of lighting," it said

Home owners were also urged to turn down air-conditioners and holiday-makers to use public transport rather than private cars which should run at "economical speeds" or "approximately 80 kilometers (50 miles) per hour".

MOSCOW (AUG. 13) - A Russian nationalist charged with inciting racial hatred against Jews is on trial again here, while police maintained a high profile at the court to keep the peace between his supporters and anti-racist intellectuals.

Konstantin Ostashvili, 56, considered the leader of the nationalist Pamiat movement, is being charged in connection with an anti-Semitic raid in January by some 60 Russian nationalists on a meeting of the Writers' Union. A verdict is expected Friday.

On January 18, The April Association, a group comprising the most progressive writers in the union was holding a "small party" when about 60 Pamiat members allegedly stormed in shouting, "Send the Jews to Israel, we are the masters here."

Mr. Ostachvili's trial has triggered hostilities inside and outside the court between writers and Pamiat supporters. About 20 Interior Ministry security officers with police dogs have been brought in to ensure order, checking people as they enter the courtroom.

One writer said "a hundred Pamiat members" tried to prevent him from entering the courtroom.

Stella Wolkenstein, one of the writers at the "April Association" reception and a witness at the trial, said Mr. Ostashvili was among those who descended on the writers' meeting.

Mrs. Wolkenstein, who filmed the scene on video, said she was seated in a waiting room and had to lower her voice each time someone wearing a badge featuring the dragon-slaying St. George, Pamiat's emblem, came rushing through the room.

"We were insulted and called 'Jewish freemasons' ", Mrs. Wolkenstein said.

She said the Pamiat militants warned: "You don't have much time to get out of here. We're coming back, and this time we'll be armed."

Members of the Writers' Union say charges against Mr. Ostachvili are insufficient and are calling for a trial of the entire Pamiat organisation.

Supporters of Mr. Ostashvili were outside the courtroom distributing leaflets claiming he was the victim of a "smear campaign in the press, on the radio and on television."

The Pamiat members said Mr. Ostashvili is a "honest father and family man."

One Pamiat member present, a bearded man in his thirties named Andrei, said: "Why hide it?. We don't want democracy. Russia is a separate state. Democracy is like totalitarianism -- it leads to chaos."

The Soviet Union counts some 100 different ethnic groups, including Jews, many of whom live in the autonomous republic of Birobijan in the Soviet far east.

SEOUL (AUG. 13) - Thousands of South Koreans took to the streets throughout the country Monday to give vent to their disappointment after the eagerly-anticipated opening of the border with North Korea fell through over last-minute difference between the two countries.

Pyongyang Monday turned down a Seoul compomise to allow South Korean dissidents to participate in the event.

The Seoul government Sunday accused North Korea of making the opening conditional on ''impossible'' demands, including contact to imprisoned dissidents, and abolition of South Korean security laws.

More than 60,000 Koreans, mainly elderly, had been issued with special visitors' visas over the past few days ready for the five-day period due to begin Monday of the border being opened.

In a move of civil disobedience, some 1,000 South Koreans with relatives in North Korean Monday posted letters to their relatives in defiance of a 45-year-old ban on all contacts by mail and telephone between the two Koreas.

ISLAMABAD (AUG. 13) - Ousted Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto will not renounce politics and quit the country as part of an alleged deal offered by the interim government to drop corruption charges against her family, her close aide said here Monday.

An independent daily The Nation, quoting "highly placed sources" in Islamabad, said President Ghulam Ishaq Khan, the week old caretaker government of Prime Minister Ghulam Mustafa Jatoi and the army had offered Ms. Bhutto "a way out" from a series of graft charges already prepared against her.

She could leave the country with her family but would have to publicly renounce politics, the Lahore-published daily said in a front page report.

Tariq Rahim, minister for parliamentary affairs in Ms. Bhutto's government termed the report "concocted and baseless". No such offer was made and Ms. Bhutto would "never ever accept such a deal", Mr. Rahim said.

An interim government official here also rejected the report as part of a disinformation campaign mounted by Ms. Bhutto's Pakistan Peoples Party.

"Why should there be any deal to undermine a free and fair judicial process" of accountability of her 20-month rule, said the official on condition of anonymity.

Mr. Jatoi succeeded Ms. Bhutto a week ago after President Khan sacked her government on charges of corruption and abuse of power, dissolved parliament and imposed a state of emergency.

Ms. Bhutto alleged that the army intelligence engineered a "constitutional coup" against her government and that the charges of abuse of power were biased.

The Nation claimed that Ms. Bhutto was under pressure from her family and the clan of her husband Asif Ali Zardari to accept the reported package. But she had assured the party faithful that she would stay on in Pakistan.

Mr. Zardari, a Karachi businessman, is dubbed by the former opposition the principle figure in alleged corruption scandals involving millions of dollars.

The new government in Ms. Bhutto's home province of Sindh has already arrested at least half a dozen close friends of Mr. Zardari in a police crackdown launched this weekend.

CAIRO (AUG. 13) - Cooperation between Egypt and the United States to secure an immediate Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait is vital, U.S. Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs John Kelly said here Monday.

"It is normal and vital for us to coordinate because we share the same goals: the immediate withdrawal from Kuwait and the restoration of the legal government," he said referring to Kuwait's deposed emir, Sheikh Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah.

Mr. Kelly, who met Egyptian Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel Meguid, said Egypt had been "at the forefront of international and Arab efforts to respond to the situation."

Egypt has dispatched troops to Saudi Arabia to help protect it and other neighboring Gulf states in the wake of Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The decision to send troops -- estimted at 3,000 according to the Egyptian daily Al-Goumhouriya -- conformed to a resolution passed Friday by the Arab League to deploy Arab forces in Saudi Arabia.

The deployment coincides with a Western military buildup in the Gulf.

On Sunday, Mr. Kelly met with Sheikh Jaber at an unspecified location and delivered a message from U.S. President George Bush, the Qatar News Agency

(QNA) said.

Mr. Kelly visited Saudi Arabia following a three-day visit to Syria for talks with officials there before proceeding to Cairo.

Sheikh Jaber fled to Saudi Arabia after Iraq invaded Kuwait.

JAMMU, INDIA (AUG. 13) - Thirty-two people were reported killed in India's troubled Kashmir state on Monday as authorities continued a house-to-house sweep for Moslem separatists that has already led to hundreds of arrests.

Indian army troops shot dead 27 Moslem militants on the border of India-held Kashmir as they slipped in from neighboring Pakistan early Monday, defence officials said here in the northern state's winter capital.

The militants were in a curfew-bound "disturbed area" when they were killed, the officials said.

Police also found five bullet-riddled bodies on the streets of Kashmir on Monday, a defence spokesman said. The victims were said to be suspected police informers gunned down by Moslem separatists.

Violence linked to the militant-led independence campaign in Kashmir, India's only Moslem majority state, has claimed 1,140 lives this year.

Troops and paramilitary forces on Monday continued a massive house-to-house hunt in Srinagar and throughout the Kashmir valley for Moslem rebels and hidden arms.

More than 700 members and supporters of Moslem groups battling for a free Kashmir were arrested earlier to foil plans by hard-line Moslem rebels to disrupt India's annual independence day celebrations on Wednesday.

Kashmir authorities here said the Moslems tried to mark Pakistan's independence day Tuesday by hoisting Islamabad's flags on government buildings in Srinagar.

India and Pakistan, which have fought two wars over Kashmir, were freed from British colonial rule and divided in 1947. India's independence day falls August 15, and Pakistan's a day earlier.

The authorities have already sounded a top security "red alert" in Kashmir, and banned gatherings of four or more people throughout the picturesque state until after independence day.

Officials also reported nine brief but intense gunbattles between Moslem militants and security forces across the Kashmir valley Monday that left 12 people wounded, including seven paramilitary troopers.

HABUR, TURKEY (AUG. 13) - At the last open checkpoint on the Iraq-Turkey border here and at an air force base half-way across the country where U.S. fighter-bombers are training, the atmosphere remained surprisingly relaxed on Monday, AFP correspondents on the spot reported.

Here in Habur, despite evidence of increasing activity on the Iraqi side of the 170-mile (250 kilometer) border, officers said the military border posts were not on a state of alert.

In Incirklik, near the southern Turkish city of Adana, security was so lax at an air base that journalists were able to penetrate the first barbed-wire perimeter to photograph unmarked F-111 swing-wing fighter-bombers roaring off the runway in groups of four.

In Habur, "Everything is calm for the moment but we must remain vigilant," said a Turkish colonel on Sunday evening, just as the Great National Assembly was granting the government war-making powers against Iraq.

Iraq has indicated it intended to close Habur on Monday despite Turkish pleas to keep it open so Turkish tanker trucks and foreigners can go through what was said here to be Iraq's last open border crossing.

The border, which roughly parallels the old Silk Road, is populated mostly by Kurds, who in interviews expressed deep fears of an Iraqi invasion. Many remembered with bitterness seeing Iraqi Kurds fleeing a chemical-weapons attack two years ago this month.

Since then, Iraq has driven out all inhabitants living within 12 miles (20 kilometers) of the border on the Iraqi side.

Because of the persecution of Iraqi Kurds, military officials in the area stressed that the Turkish Kurds would fight an Iraqi invasion with particular vigour.

In Incirklik, on Monday, as on Sunday, when base personnel could be seen jogging around the base, there were no particular controls outside it or unusual activity inside.

A U.S. military spokesman said the F-111s now on the base were the fourth squadron to spend a month training there since March. All four came from U.S. bases in Britain. He said each squadron had between 14 and 24 planes and that they were doing routine excercises.

The spokesman stressed that there was no state of alert at the base.

AMMAN (AUG. 13) - Jordanians by the tens of thousands are signing up to defend Iraqi President Saddam Hussein against "the new Crusaders" seen as threatening the Arab world.

Some 80,000 Jordanians, outraged at the deployment of U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, have volunteered to fight alongside the Iraqi army if Iraq is attacked, a group representing the volunteers said here Monday.

The Popular Jordanian Committee to Support the Iraqi Arab People said conscription offices had been opened recently in Amman and elsewhere in Jordan and that an average of 10,000 volunteers a day had been signing up in the past two days alone.

The committee includes legislators and heads of trade associations.

The announcement came amid rising tension in the Gulf sparked by Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on August 2 and after Jordan abstained from an Arab League vote last week denouncing Baghdad for the operation.

The League resolution also called for the deployment of Arab troops in Saudi Arabia, which the United States maintains is now threatened by Iraqi forces in neighboring Kuwait.

The volunteer movement was spurred by a U.S. decision last week to deploy air and ground forces in Saudi Arabia, denounced by militants here as "new Crusaders from the West on Arab soil."

At the same time the United States, France, Britain, Australia and Canada have taken steps to bolster their naval presence in the Gulf.

In the gathering tension, Jordan's King Hussein on Sunday ordered that civil defense and first aid centers be set up in residential neighborhoods nationwide.

The king also warned that the Gulf crisis had "reached, with the formidable military buildup, the threshhold ... of an all-out explosion."

In a televised speech, the king stresed "Arab refusal of any (foreign) hegemony" over the Gulf and said Jordan remained determined to find "an Arab solution" to the crisis.

Jordanian forces -- numbering over 85,000 troops -- have been on a state of partial alert since the Iraqi invasion and leave for all officers has been suspended.

While glued to their radios and televisions, Jordanians have also been stocking up on basics such as rice, sugar and oil, despite daily media appeals for calm.

The three commodities have all but vanished from food store shelves.

LONDON (Aug. 13) - State-owned Kuwaiti oil concern Kuwait Petroleum International (KPI), which watches over Kuwaiti oil interests abroad, has said it is negotiating with Gulf Cooperation Council (GCC) member countries to buy crude for its European refineries. KPI president Nadar Sultan said in an interview published in the Financial Times newspaper on Monday that the negotiations included Saudi Arabia.

The Financial Times said this was one of the first solid indications that Saudi Arabia is prepared to defy Iraq and boost production to compensate for Iraqi and Kuwaiti supplies lost to the market due to an international embargo imposed after Iraq invaded Kuwait on August 2.

"We will see the results" of the talks this week, Sultan said. He also said that oil tankers carrying a total 15 million barrels of oil had left Kuwait before the invasion and would be unloaded normally.

LONDON (AUG. 13) - Foreign nationals can travel from Kuwait to Baghdad but are still being prevented from leaving Iraq, the British Foreign Office said Monday.

A spokesman said the foreign office had been informed through diplomatic channels by the Iraqi Foreign Ministry that "so far as they Iraqi officials knew" foreigners were not permitted to leave Iraq.

It was not clear whether the term "foreigners" applied to all non-Iraqi nationals or only citizens of Western countries, the spokesman added.

The foreign office was "urgently seeking clarification" of the Iraqi statements which were described by a spokesman as "clearly unsatisfactory."

There have been steady reports since the Iraqi invasion on August 3 that the ban on travel for foreigners was being enforced arbitrarily and that nationals of some Arab countries were free to cross Iraqi borders.

On Sunday Iraq hinted that it may allow foreign nationals to leave the country, saying it would "facilitate" travel over Iraqi borders for some foreign nationals.

"We are mobilizing the international community to bring renewed pressure to bear on Iraq to let foreigners leave both Kuwait and Iraq in safety," the spokesman said.

He also reiterated the British Government's "indignation and horror" at the killing of a British tourist, Douglas Croskery, who was shot dead this weekend by Iraqi troops as he tried to flee from Kuwait to Saudi Arabia.

"We look to the Iraqis to take steps to find and punish the culprits whose actions have flouted international law," the spokesman said.

JOHANNESBURG (AUG. 13) - South Africa is heading for a major catastrophe as a result of AIDS -- with alarming projections of some 10 million South Africans having AIDS in 10 years' time, analysts said.

Economic analyst Edward Osborn warned Monday that the threatened magnitude of the AIDS epidemic "is such that it must play a fundamental part in all forward thinking and planning".

In an article in the Nedcor Group Economic Unit's latest "Guide to the economy", Mr. Osborn said the accuracy of AIDS projections may be in doubt "but there would appear to be no doubt about the inevitability of a major catastrophe".

Government figures released last month show that the number of AIDS cases in South Africa has soared from only two in 1982 to 430 as of June 21 this year. At least 206 of the AIDS patients have died, leaving 224 persons suffering from AIDS nationwide.

Projections by medical researchers and insurance companies were that between 7.5 million and 10 million South Africans will be HIV-positive by 2001.

Mr. Osborn predicts that by 2000, about 48 per cent of the adult population will either be HIV-positive or sick with AIDS.

Possible future scenarios include a rapid increase in AIDS-related deaths towards the end of the century, reaching a peak of more than one-million deaths by 2007, Mr. Osborn said.

The government figures show that of the 255 AIDS cases among whites since 1982, 224 were transmitted through homosexual and bisexual activities while of the 156 cases among blacks, only two were transmitted through homosexual and bisexual activities.

Some 123 black AIDS sufferers had contracted the disease through heterosexual activities.

Of the other 19 AIDS sufferers nine were Coloured (mixed-race) homosexual males.

The only section of South Africa's four officially classified race groups to escape the disease were Asian women.

According to the figures, the most AIDS sufferers, namely 109, were males in the age group 30-39 while 30 females in the age group 20-29 suffered from the disease.

In his article, Mr. Osborn says the predicted surge of AIDS-related deaths could push the costs of medical treatment to 90 billion rands (34.74 billion dollars) in the next century -- some 20 billion rands (7.7 billion dollars) more than the present total medical budget.

"A horrendous but conceivably realistic alternative lies with AIDS colonies similiar to leper colonies, as has been reported to be the case in Zimbabwe on Lake Kariba," Mr. Osborn said.

The South African labour market could change drastically as a result of AIDS, putting upward pressure on wages as skills shortages increase, he added.

HAMBURG (AUG. 13) - Heating oil prices in West Germany on Monday fell to levels significantly below those of one week ago in the immediate aftermath of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, reflecting price drops in Rotterdam and other international markets, traders reported.

In Hamburg, heating oil dealers were selling at rates of 45 to 50 Deutschmarks (28.6-31.7 dollars) per 100 litres, compared to the 50.80-53.50 marks price span of a week ago.

Oil industry traders noted that the price declines mirrored developments in Rotterdam and London.

The Rwe-Dea oil company in Hamburg said a tonne of light heating oil on Rotterdam was priced at about 224 dollars, about 30 dollars cheaper than Monday a week ago.

In London, North Sea crude oil prices fell to 25.80 dollars per barrel for September deliveries, compared to 26.40 dollars a week ago. In Rotterdam, September deliveries were quoted at 25.90 dollars, while those for October were pegged at 24.79 dollars per barrel.

Oil traders here said that West German consumers had behaved with greater discipline than they had shown in the past towards turbulence on oil markets. There was scarcely any panic buying of heating oil, as consumers decided to wait out further developments.

SANAA (AUG. 13) - Pro-Iraqi demonstrators threw stones at the U.S. and Saudi embassies here Monday in the fifth consecutive day of protests against the deployment of U.S. troops in the oil-rich kingdom, diplomats said.

The protestors also demonstrated outside the British embassy but unlike previous days they failed to attack the Egyptian diplomatic mission.

The first U.S. ground troops landed in Saudi Arabia on Thursday while London sent British forces and warplanes to the Gulf as part of an international military buildup to protect Saudi Arabia against any Iraqi attack following Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Egypt has moreover committed troops as part of an Arab force to Saudi Arabia.

Several hundred protestors have been taking part daily since Thursday in the demonstrations.

Witnesses reported that the hugest pro-Iraqi rally occured Saturday when several thousand Yemenis took to the streets to denounce international sanctions against Iraq.

The protestors clashed with police who used water cannons to stop them from attacking the Egyptian, Saudi and British embassies.

Yemen, along with Algeria, abstained on Friday from an Arab League vote to send forces to Saudi Arabia. The resolution to commit troops was endorsed by 12 of the League's 20 members, with three votes against and three members who expressed reservations.

On Sunday, Yemeni President Ali Abdallah Saleh said the Arab summit had been a "failure" because foreign troops had deployed in the Gulf ahead of the meeting.

"Instead of providing the (Iraqi-Kuwaiti) problem with a solution, the summit's resolutions legalised the foreign presence (in the Gulf)," General Saleh told a press conference here.

He also charged that the resolutions had been planned and were "dictated to us."

BEIJING (AUG. 13) EFE - Chinese Prime Minister Li Peng arrived in Thailand Monday for the last official visit of his fence-mending Asian tour.

Li Peng, accompanied by Foreign Minister Qian Quichen and Foreign Commerce Minister Zheng Tuobin, was welcomed at Bangkok's airport by Thai Prime Minister, Chatichai Choonhavan.

During ther visit, the two leaders were expected to discuss the U.S. policy reversal last month ending Washington's recognition of Cambodia's tri-partite coalition of anti-government rebels.

The rebel coalition, made up of communist Khmer Rouge and two non-communist groups led by former monarch Norodom Sihanouk and once prime minister Son Sann, has also been heavily supported by both China and Thailand.

Over the last week, China has formally established diplomatic relations with Indonesia, and this weekend reached an agreement with Singapore to open official ties in the near future.

Observers said Li Peng's tour was aimed at restoring and strengthening economic and cultural ties with Asian nations, following the souring of relations with the West as a result of Beijing's bloody crackdown on pro-democracy protesters in June 1989.

China has also recently established diplomatic ties with Saudi Arabia.

In exchange for Singapore and Saudi Arabia's agreement to shift their recognition from the government of Taiwan to Beijing, China has said that it will not oppose unofficial commercial relations between these two countries and Taiwan.

China has said that it supported trade between other countries and Taiwan as long as it was carried out on a private level and not between governments.

BOGOTA (AUG. 13) EFE - A former judge and three police officers died in separate attacks throughout Colombia Monday, police reported.

Police said two men stopped the car of the former judge, Carlos Campo Donado, and fired repeatedly before fleeing in the northern city of Barranquilla.

Campo Donado, the one-time president of the Atlantic Higher Court, died immediately from three gunshot wounds in the head, doctors said.

Police launched a massive operation to track down the murderers of Campo Donado who, relatives said, had never received death threats.

Judicial figures have been one of the favorite targets of hitmen hired by Colombian drug traffickers in their year-long war against the government which, according to police statistics, has claimed some 3,000 lives.

Earlier Monday, guerrillas took over four small settlements in the southwest department of Narino, murdering three police officers in the process, the Defense Ministry reported.

The guerrillas, from the communist Colombian Revolutionary Armed Forces (FARC), also wounded one police officer and kidnapped three others in attacks on police posts in the four settlements some 750 km southwest of Bogota near the Ecuadorean border.

Police and troops from the Third Army Brigade were sent to the area to control the rebels and rescue the kidnapped policemen.

Colombian President Cesar Gaviria, who was sworn in last Tuesday, has promised new strategies to persuade the country's five active leftist guerrilla groups to lay down their arms.

UNITED NATIONS (AUG. 13) EFE - An Argentine official told a United Nations meeting Monday that "valid reasons" for delaying talks with Britain over the sovereignty of the Falkland Islands were now running out and that a solution must be found to the 'anachronistic colonial situation'.

Argentine representative Alfredo Chiaradia added, however, that Buenos Aires was looking for a peaceful settlement and would allow the U.N. to sort out the future of the islands.

Britain's Falkland Islands dependency was invaded by Argentine forces in 1982 sparking a ten-week war which cost the lives of some 1,000 servicemen.

In the U.N. committee debate on decolonialisation Monday Chiaradia said the question of sovereignty was +bound to the most profound sentiments of my people and is the priority of the Argentine government's foreign policy.

He said the Falklands - known as the Malvinas by the Argentines -- was a 'special colonial case' which the U.N. had decided was a matter to be negotiated between Britain and Argentina taking into account the wishes of the inhabitants of the islands.

Although diplomatic relations between the two countries had been renewed in February and there were now closer development ties, the dispute over the Falklands and other British territories in the region such as South Georgia and South Sandwich Islands, remained, he said.

Because of this Argentina was ready to 'renew efforts' to bring a 'just, peaceful and lasting solution that will put an end to the anachronistic colonial situation that violates the territorial integrity of our country'.

Chiaradia asked the committee to approve a resolution put forward by Cuba, Chile and Venezuela urging Britain and Argentina to renew negotiations.

MADRID (13 AUG.) EFE - As a group of 200 Westerners, among them 18 Spaniards, made their way out of war-torn Liberia Monday, a Spanish Hercules military transport plane arrived in Sierra Leone to fly them back to Spain, Spanish diplomats said.

The group, including Swedes and West Germans, left the Liberian capital Monrovia earlier in the day and headed through rebel-held territory for the 100 km journey to the port of Buchanan where they boarded a U.S. Navy ship bound for Sierra Leone.

Among the group was the Spanish ambassador to Liberia Manuel de Luna and the embassy secretary.

Meanwhile in Liberia, rebel leader Charles Taylor, fighting to overthrow President Samuel Doe, has accepted an invitation to visit Gambia, Gambian officials said Monday.

Taylor's invitation was issued by Gambian President Dauda Diawara, who also heads the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS).

ECOWAS has sent a military force to Liberia in an effort to bring an end to the eight-month-long civil war, although so far the bulk of the force's arrival has since been delayed.

Taylor, head of the National Patriotic Front has rejected the intervention charging it would only serve to keep Doe in power.

Taylor has previously turned down offers to visit Gambia, and observers suggest the principal topic for discussion will be a rebel acceptance of the ECOWAS force, and an immediate cease-fire.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (AUG. 13) MCS -- A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

IN THE NEWS:

World stock markets are lower as the Nikkei nose dives 1153 points, losing more than 4% to close at 26,176, lowest in more than 2 years. bonds are lower. ... The EXMI, measuring overseas trading in 20 U.S. stocks, is about 2 points lower.

ROBERT CAMPEAU is ousted as chairman and CEO of the firm that bears his name. ... "Crains's Chicago Business" cites unidentified boards members as saying SEARS directors have given Chairman EDWARD BRENNAN six months to post significant gains in retail operations or face ouster. ... GENERAL MOTORS is forced to close additional plants in Michigan and Louisiana because of a strike at its Flint, Mich., plant. ... UNITED AUTO WORKERS say they are not interested in CHRYSLER's offer to give them a stake in the company.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT issues retail sales figures for July tomorrow. Other economic reports this week include manufacturing and trade inventories and sales on Wednesday, and the merchandise trade balance on Friday. But the big day is Thursday when the following reports are due out: consumer prices, industrial production, capacity utilization, housing starts and real earnings.

FROM THE BULLS:

"So what if there's a recession? Interest rates would plummet and the stock market would go straight up," says the bullish ROGER ENGEMANN, a growth-stock manager in Pasadena Calif. The Aug. 6 letter to his clients was headlined, "Buy now!" (WSJ, 8/13)

"Even though confidence is not out there, I think this is a good time to buy stocks for the long pull," says JULIUS WESTHEIMER. His position is that stocks which investors thought we good buys a few days ago are even better buys now that their prices are down 10% or 15%. ("Wall Street Week", 8/10

FROM THE BEARS:

"We could be in for an old-fashioned bear market where there's a long, slow bleed," says analyst FRANK GRETZ of SHIELD & CO. "Stocks have been vulnerable for some time. [Saddam] Hussein just triggered it." RICKY HARRINGTON of MARION BASS SECURITIES says there could be a brief rebound on good news from the Middle East, but "for the next six to nine months the market will likely be lower." ("USA Today", 8/13)

"I think we might have a few months where we're in for a tough period here " says KATHLEEN MILLARD, a CHASE MANHATTAN vice president who oversees $400 million in equity investments. "We've resumed kind of a downtrend, and I don't think anybody can really deny that. ... But I expect to be looking for a bottom in the next six months or so where it's going to be a great buying opportunity more than anything else." ("Wall Street Week", 8/10)

"Corporate profits are inflated by credit and deflated by stagnation of credit. If people can't borrow, their spending power is limited," says MICHAEL ARONSTEIN of COMSTOCK PARTNERS. As a result, he says, consumer-related growth stocks are in for a sharp re-evaluation. Mr. Aronstein derides hopes for lower interest rates and rising stock prices this year as believing in "the liquidity fairy." Comstock Partners is staking its reputation on a bear market, as Mr. Aronstein muses, "We've been bears in a bull market. If we're wrong here, we aren't only going to be laughing stocks, we will be out of the investment management business [by] this time next year." (WSJ, 8/13)

STOCK MARKET:

While looking for lower prices short term, JIM STANTON of NEW LONDON TRADING believes the S&P 330 and Dow 2500 area lows of last October and January should withstand any selling over the next two weeks. "We're looking to enter the market on the long side from there," says Stanton, who thinks the Dow could then rally to 2800-2900 before another move down. "It's in sort of a big trading range and I think there's an opportunity to make some money on the long side." (FNN "World Business Update", 8/13)

When looked at from a long-term perspective, stocks are now at a point where they are attractive, says MONTE GORDON, director of research for DREYFUS CORP. "There is buying going on out there, very quietly." According to Gordon, most asset allocation models are still calling for 60% in stocks. Falling stock prices have pushed the equity value of many portfolios below this target level, forcing their managers back into the market to buy stocks, says Gordon. (CNBC "World Business", 8/13)

Last week's declining stock prices led to the biggest one-week drop in small investors' portfolios since January 1988. Small investors are redeeming their shares in stock and bond mutual funds, says JORDAN GOODMAN of "Money." They are moving to money market funds which jumped by $4.2 billion last week, the year's largest increase. But while mutual fund holders are selling, individual stock pickers are buying. At SCHWAB last week, $40 million of mutual fund redemptions were offset by a net $70 million purchase of stock by investors, reports Goodman. (CNN "Business Morning", 8/13)

"I think it's still a little early [to be buying stocks]," says BERNADETTE MURPHY. "I think we've gone through the period where cash has been raised so that in case the situation deteriorates further investors have capital to work with. ... But I think we should sit back and just watch events develop a little bit more here so, maybe, we can have maybe a better buying opportunity." ("Wall Street Week", 8/10)

"Aggressive traders could play the expected rally, while defensive players could use the rally to lighten up if they did not want to stay in the market long-term," says money manager THOMAS BASSO of TRENDSTAT CAPITAL

MANAGEMENT. "One should not sell out now, nor should one jump in too much and try to be a hero." ("Investor's Daily", 8/13)

"Even if the Iraqi problem disappears, the market still has to confront the fundamentals of a weak economy and earnings disappointments," says STEVEN EINHORN, chief investment strategist at GOLDMAN SACHS. He says stocks remain overvalued. (NYT, 8/12)

"The market is jittery and that tells us that although the decline may be near its final phase, it's not over," says portfolio manager ROBERT WALSH of JENSWOLD KING & ASSOCIATES in Houston. "I don't think it will be completed until the situation in the Mideast and the economy are better defined." Walsh thinks the market is in an intermediate-term correction and that the Dow over the next three to six months will trade between 2300 to 2400 on the downside and 2800 to 2900 on the upside. ("Investor's Daily", 8/13)

"The easy thing to do is say 'It's the 1970s all over again and look for a bear market as he had in 1974 or 1975,' but I don't think we're going to have that now," says ROBERT STOVALL of STOVALL/TWENTY-FIRST ADVISERS. "Inflation is much less now and money has been tighter. ... I think what we're going to see now is a reduced volatility compared to the 1970s. ... It's a day-to-day thing, but I don't believe we have to gear ourselves for a shooting war type of economy in the stock market." ("Wall Street Week", 8/10)

"The market is now driven by Middle East events and that will continue to dominate stocks," says LARRY GREENWALD of SANFORD C. BERNSTEIN. ("USA Today", 8/13)

"The Middle East is keeping people very nervous [in all world markets] and keeping people in cash," says DAVID ROBBINS, head of the international securities department at UBS SECURITIES. He says that even without an escalation in the Persian Gulf world markets are likely to drift lower. "And whenever you get a bad piece of news out of the Gulf, the markets will sell off again." (NYT, 8/13)

"It's simply that people don't want to be long over the weekend because of the Mideast," says CRAIG CORCORAN, an analyst with DAVIS/ZWEIG FUTURES INC., on the market's steep drop Friday. "The sentiment is think the worst and sell now." He adds that the market may be trying to test the 2700 level. (Reuters, 8/10)

"We just had some very nervous investors today after some belligerent talk out of Iraq about a holy war," says NEWTON ZINDER, analyst at SHEARSON LEHMAN HUTTON, INC. "With the weekend coming up people didn't want to hold stocks. What they did was flock to what they always do in times of turmoil, gold. Gold stocks were strong and everything else was weak."

(UPI, 8/10)

"I think there's an absence of buyers here," says THOMAS GALLAGHER of OPPENHEIMER & CO. "There's a feeling ... on Wall Street that the weekend is coming and there's no sense having any positions. No one wants to take the chance that over the weekend something happens and then you have a real calamity on the downside." (CNBC "Business View", 8/10)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (AUG. 13) MCS - A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"It's a surprise that the dollar is not higher" given events in the Middle East, says VICTOR POLCE of ALGEMENE BANK NEDERLAND in New York. "The dollar is going to be heading south," probably to 1.50- 1.55 marks and the "low 140s" against the yen, as soon as the last of it's "safe haven" appeal is worn off. AARON COHEN, a senior analyst at DAIWA SECURITIES., says, "Looking ahead we expect the dollar to go back down by the last quarter of the year." (WSJ, 8/13)

"The world is in a position where there just is not enough money," says MICHAEL ARONSTEIN, one of the three COMSTOCK PARTNERS. If you live in Iraq, you invade your neighbor. If you live in South America, you produce more commodities. If you live in Eastern Europe, you revolt against your government and don't eat as much. From a financial perspective, the difference between the U.S. and the rest of the world is that we have periodic auctions of three-year, 10-year and 30-year government debt and people attend them. But we are approaching a point where a government borrowing without limit is coming to an end." ("Barron's", 8/13)

"The Fed had ground down the economy to fight inflation and was about ready to have a victory celebration," says STAN SHIPLEY of SHEARSON LEHMAN. "Instead, the only victory celebration is in Iraq." ("Investor's Daily", 8/13)

BRIAN FABBRI, chief economist at MIDLAND MONTAGU, says he doubts whether the Fed can move fast enough to avoid a recession "before the full force of a recession hits us before the fourth quarter. The longer the Fed delays, the less effective its efforts will be. The economy needs more than modest declines in interest rates, such as the Fed's quarter-point cut in the funds rate on July 13." (NYT, 8/13)

"Apart from a resolution of the political crisis in the Persian Gulf, it is unclear what conditions might be necessary to trigger another easing move by the Fed, as inevitable as such a move appears," says ROBERT DiCLEMENTE, a senior economist a SALOMON BROTHERS. "The increasing likelihood of recession, reinforced by temporarily higher oil prices, makes a more aggressive cut in the [federal] funds rate a possibility when the Fed finally grudgingly deems that an easing is again appropriate," says PHILIP BRAVERMAN, an economist with DKB SECURITIES. ("Investor's Daily", 8/13)

"I don't think you can expect the Fed to ease money at the same time we're spending hundreds of millions of dollars on a weekly basis to transport tens of thousands of troops and activate National Guard units and reserves " says ROBERT STOVALL of STOVALL/TWENTY-FIRST ADVISERS. "This isn't the time for that. I think the Fed is just going to have to stay pretty snug and I don't think we can see much help from that score." ("Wall Street Week", 8/10)

"The risk of military engagement [in the Mideast] is still considerable and the [bond] market implications of that scenario are probably negative " says JAMES KOCHAN, chief fixed income strategist at MERRILL LYNCH CAPITAL MARKETS. "But the implications of the more likely scenario -- prolonged economic blockade -- have now been factored into market prices." ("Investor's Daily", 8/13)

"While the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and the surge in oil prices it produced dominated the headlines last week, the bond market's focus this week will swing back to the worsening economy," says IRWIN KELLNER, chief economist at MANUFACTURERS HANOVER TRUST CO. "After the battering the credit market took, it now knows it cannot continue to react to the minute-to-minute news developments in the Mideast and must deal with the main question: whether Dr. [Alan] Greenspan will finally prescribe the chicken soup of lower interest rates to avoid the recession that many in the market believe is already upon us." DAVID JONES of AUBREY G. LANSTON & CO. agrees that "while the events in the Mideast cannot be ignored, the credit markets will definitely swing back to fundamentals, which point to a resumption of the downward trend in interest rates because the economy is in such poor shape and getting worse." (NYT, 8/13)

At Thursday's sale of 30-year Treasury bonds, Japanese investors purchased only between 5% and 15% of the $10.26 billion of bonds sold. It is a trend that analysts expect to persist. "The Japanese have got all the dollars they need," says ROBERT FELDMAN, an economist with SALOMON BROTHERS INC. in Tokyo. Besides, KOICHI TORIHARA, an international investment manager at DAI-ICHI KANGYO BANK LTD., adds, "It's not the right time to do long-term investments." (WSJ, 8/13)

"It's not good sense to buy U.S. Treasuries," says HIDEAKI NISHISAKA, a manager at DAIDO MUTUAL LIFE INSURANCE CO., which has $20 billion in assets. He says the Japanese company has trimmed its holdings of U.S. Treasury bonds to about two-thirds of the amount it would consider a full load. (WSJ, 8/13)

Without big Japanese interest, "the bonds have to be bought by domestic investors," says SCOTT PARDEE, chairman of the U.S. subsidiary of YAMAICHI SECURITIES CO. in New York. "To the extent that our savings can't cover our fiscal deficit, the savings and loan bailout, the state budget deficits and the legitimate needs of U.S. industry, then our rates are going to have to go up." (WSJ, 8/13)

THE ECONOMY:

"Now I think what's going on in the Middle East has given us the excuse we needed to perhaps put a name on what was already in place, which is a recession," says KATHLEEN MILLARD, of CHASE MANHATTAN. "The effect of higher oil prices will be like a tax on the consumer, who will retrench even further and that will cause a pullback in economic momentum." ("Wall Street Week", 8/10)

"We continue to maintain that the U.S. economy has enough forward momentum to avoid contraction -- even in the face of an energy shock," says STEPHEN ROACH, senior economist at MORGAN STANLEY & CO., issuing a post-oil-crisis assessment of the U.S. economy. (WSJ, 9/13)

"This will be the first recession in 20 to 30 years where we can't use fiscal stimulus to help turn things around," says JOE CARSON, economist at CHEMICAL BANK. "The Fed won't ease monetary policy right away, either, because of the inflationary implications of higher oil prices. The absence of both those remedies will have a tendency to prolong the period of economic contraction." ("Barron's", 8/13)

The consensus view calls for the July CPI to log a moderate 0.3% increase. "But no one will care," says BRIAN FABBRI, chief economist at MIDLAND MONTAGU BANK in New York. "The obvious focus is on what the CPI and PPI will do in the next two months: They're both probably going to be up over one percentage point." (WSJ, 8/13)

"I'm not sure high oil prices will stick, for political and economic reasons," says economist SAM KAHAN of FUJI SECURITIES. "Even if they do, [inflation] won't filter down, won't feed on itself." ("Investor's Daily", 8/13)

Producer prices declined 0.1% last month according to a LABOR DEPARTMENT report released last Friday. "Absent the still undecided energy situation producer inflation is not threatening the economy," says RON SCHREIBMAN, vice president of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF WHOLESALERS-DISTRIBUTORS.

"Thus, the economic evidence favoring lower interest rates is still compelling." GORDON RICHARDS, of the NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF MANUFACTURERS, adds, "Perhaps the supreme irony in these figures is that without the Middle East crisis, the Federal Reserve's gradualist disinflationary strategy would have been successful." (WSJ, 8/13)

"Oil prices would have to be a lot higher to put Europe into a recession," says PETER GUTMANN, an economist at the NATIONAL WESTMINSTER BANK, one of Britain's largest. (NYT, 8/13)

Higher oil prices are hurting the real estate market. Most inflation estimates have been revised upward to 6% for 1990 and 5% for 1991, says RICHARD HOEY, economist with BARCLAYS DE ZOETE WEDD. "Because people have revised up their inflation estimates ... long term interest rates have risen. And we now see rising mortgage rates out there on the front lines of a real estate market that is already very, very depressed." ("The Wall Street Journal TV Report", 8/13)

IN WASHINGTON:

TREASURY SECRETARY NICHOLAS BRADY says the Persian Gulf crisis could bring the economy's growth to nearly zero and urges the Fed to cut interest rates. But in an interview published Sunday by "The Washington Post," the secretary says there is "still a rate of growth" in the economy and called it "resilient." ("The Washington Post", 8/12)

"The New York Times" reports that "the freeze on Iraqi and Kuwaiti investments and bank deposits ... is not likely to be costly to American banks, according to government data and bankers' estimates." SHARIF GHALIB director of the Africa/Middle East department at the INSTITUTE FOR INTERNATIONAL FINANCE in Washington estimates that institutions in other parts of the world are more vulnerable that Although down year-to-year, earnings for the second quarter increased over first quarter earnings, continuing the company's positive earnings trend.

For the six month period ended June 30, 1990, net revenues were $21,642,000 compared to $22,397,000 for the same period last year. Net income during the six month period was $497,000 or $.07 per share compared to $1,223,000 or $.18 per share for the first half of 1989. Order backlog

Commenting on the results, Gary L. Luick, president and chief operating officer said, "As we stated in our most recent annual report, we expect 1990 to be a year of continuing improvement. This improvement is evident in the $.05 per share increase in net income in the second quarter of 1990 compared to the first quarter. We remain confident of continued earnings gains as we secure new business and continually implement new cost reduction measures."

Luick also stated that GTI's Circuits Group is experiencing slow improvement in demand from the automotive industry and is focusing on attracting new business opportunities. In addition, while the market still remains soft at GTI - Ireland, the Electronics Group showed a strong first half aided by the glass agreement with Corning and expanded IBM business. GTI's Distribution Group has been affected by the same sluggishness affecting electronic component distribution nationally, but has been able to maintain its high standards of profitability.

As announced in May of this year, GTI Corporation has agreed to acquire 90 percent of the stock of San Diego-based Valor Electronics as part of its strategy of acquiring businesses which concentrate on electronics based technologies. The acquisition of Valor, which is expected to close in August, will give GTI entree into the Local Area Networking (LANS) market, one of the fastest growing areas of the electronics industry.

CALGARY, ALBERTA (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Canada Southern Petroleum Ltd. (TSE, PSE: CSW) said gas sales from the Kotaneelee field will begin in November 1990.

The company, which has a 30 percent carried interest in the field, said it has been advised of a one-year contract for sales to British Columbia Petroleum Corporation, but that further details are not now available to Canada Southern.

The large Kotaneelee field, located in the southeastern Yukon Territory, is the subject of continuing litigation in the court of Queens Bench, Calgary, where Canada Southern has filed a lawsuit seeking unspecified damages as well as a return of the interests held by the working interest holders, Amoco Canada and its Dome Petroleum unit, Esso Canada, Mobil Canada, and Columbia Gas Development of Canada.

A Canada Southern spokesman said the sales contract with British Columbia Petroleum does not remedy the defendants' earlier failure and refusal to market Kotaneelee Gas, and that the lawsuit is proceeding through discovery toward trial. He also pointed out that, if the defendants' interests were forfeited, Canada Southern would then have a 90 percent interest in the field.

The spokesman further noted that Kotaneelee, which was discovered by Canada Southern, has been connected to a major pipeline system since 1978, and is capable of producing 120 million cubic feet of gas per day on a sustained basis.

MILWAUKEE (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Sybron Acquisition today announced its financial results for the first three quarters of its fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1990, and results for the third quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Net sales for the three quarters totaled $244.2 million, compared to $222.5 million for the same period of fiscal 1989, an increase of 9.8 percent. Earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization for the first three quarters of fiscal 1990 were $61.5 million compared to $56.7 million for the 1989 three quarters, up 8.5 percent.

Net sales for the third quarter ended June 30, 1990, totaled $83.5 million compared to $75.0 million for the same period in 1989, an increase of 11.3 percent. Earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization were $22.5 million, compared to $20.0 million for the corresponding 1989 period, an increase of 12.5 percent.

The company had net income of $2.3 million for the three quarters of fiscal 1990. Kenneth F. Yontz, chairman, president and CEO, explained that for the first time since the acquisition of the company's subsidiaries in September 1987, the company reported year to date net income despite charges due to non cash amortization of goodwill and financing costs related to the acquisition. The results were within the company's expectations. Sybron also reported net income of $3.2 million for the most recent quarter.

Yontz stated that income resulted from improved gross and operating margins during the current periods when compared with the periods one year earlier. Gross margins increased to 48.1 percent from 47.2 percent and to 49.2 percent from 48.3 percent for the nine and three-month periods ended June 30, 1990, respectively. Operating margins increased to 18.1 percent from 17.2 percent and to 20.9 percent from 18.0 percent for the nine and three-month periods ended June 30, 1990, respectively.

BOSTON (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Stephen G. Rabinovitz, general partner of Cenith Partners L.P. announced today that Cenith had delivered letters to Instron Corporation (AMEX: ISN) a Canton, Mass., producer of instruments and systems for advanced materials testing, and The First National Bank of Boston, as Rights Agent for Instron, advising Instron and The Rights Agent that Cenith believed the Instron Poison Pill had been triggered by the formation of an Instron management group to oppose any change in control.

The existence of the management group led by Instron Chairman Harold Hindman and Vice Chairman George S. Burr was reported in an Instron press release of July 31, 1990, which stated that the group owned approximately 39 percent of the outstanding stock. Cenith demanded, on behalf of all shareholders other than the group, that certificates evidencing rights to acquire an Instron Preferred Stock at an exercise price adjusted to reflect a "triggering event" under the Instron Rights Agreement dated November 2, 1988 be issued immediately to shareholders and that all further actions be taken to permit the exercise of those rights by shareholders other than said group.

Rabinovitz said, "It appears to us that the Instron management group has triggered the Poison Pill on themselves and therefore must be prepared to swallow the harsh medicine. On a pro forma basis, a complete exercise of rights by all other shareholders would have the effect of reducing the management group's percentage ownership to approximately 25 percent."

MARLBOROUGH, MA (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Cytyc Corporation announced today that it has raised $8 million in a second round of venture capital financing to support expanded clinical trials of the company's new technology for Pap smear screening, a preventive healthcare technique widely used for early detection of cervical cancer.

Stanley N. Lapidus, president of Cytyc, said: "Our ability to raise funds in a tight financial market reflects investor assessment of Cytyc's performance to date, the market opportunity for our improved Pap smear technology, and our competitive position.

"These funds will be used to expand our clinical trials program. Trials, currently being conducted at New England Medical Center, will also be initiated at Brigham and Women's Hospital and Salem Hospital, as well as at other sites, in the near future.

"In addition, these funds will support the establishment of both domestic and overseas distribution capabilities in anticipation of product introduction in 1991," he added.

According to Lapidus, Cytyc's products are designed to improve the screening of a wide variety of cytologic (cell) samples, the first of which is the Pap smear. By significantly improving the quality of the Pap smear itself, as well as offering computer-based visual and quantitative analysis of the smear, Cytyc's products will address widespread concerns about the false negative rate of Pap smear screening, said Lapidus.

"Unlike monolayer preparations, Cytyc's ThinPrep(tm) process for preparing slides reduces the amount of non-diagnostic material without losing or destroying cells, yet it maintains critical diagnostic cell clusters," he added.

Cytyc Corporation is developing a range of products for the clincal cytology laboratory to lower test cost while improving the accuracy of cytologic diagnosis. The products are initially geared to Pap smear screening, with future applications planned in other areas of cytology, histology and pathology. The company's headquarters and research and production facilities are located in Marlborough, Mass.

TUALATIN, ORE. (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The first PC LCD projection system capable of displaying almost 5,000 different colors begins shipping today from In Focus Systems, the company said. Now companies which use personal computers to create presentation graphics will have the ability to project full spectrum photographic-quality color images with the 5000CX PC Viewer(R) projection system.

The 5000CX PC Viewer is an LCD overhead projection panel that displays full-color computer screen images directly from a PC onto a wall or screen using a standard overhead projector. As its name implies, the 5000CX offers a color palette projection spectrum of almost 5,000 colors that virtually matches the actual screen colors from a Macintosh II or VGA monitor.

Color projection technology has advanced rapidly in the last year, led by the In Focus R & D efforts. In October of 1989, In Focus Systems introduced the industry's first color LCD projection system with an eight-color palette. Six-months later, the company introduced a 64-color model, the 480CX, that offered a wider palette suitable for most business presentations. In less than one year after the original color breakthrough, the 5,000-color unit was conceived, designed, tested, and brought to market.

"We've had increasing demand from our users for a very high quality, advanced graphic presentation system," said Andy Leonard, In Focus Systems' vice president of marketing and sales, "companies that require slide-quality boardroom presentations on-line can now have a presentation system that is up to their graphic standards." In Focus Systems dealers agree with Leonard's assessment; initial orders have exceeded the company's original estimates both domestically and abroad.

In Focus Systems offers a complete line of LCD projection products and accessories. The company was founded in October 1986 to develop, manufacture and market innovative information display products. The company shipped its first product, an LCD projection panel, in February 1987 and introduced the industry's first true color panel in October 1989. GRASS VALLEY, CALIF. (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Brush Creek Mining and Development Co. Inc. (the company) (NASDAQ: BCMD) announced today the discovery of five major ore shoots of phenomenal bonanza grades.

Assay results from an independent laboratory disclosed the following:

1st Ore Shoot -- Tests averaged an uncut 16.51 ounces of gold per ton across an average width of 4 feet. These assays range from 10.38 to 34.79 ounces of gold per ton. Previous assays averaged 14.73 ounces of gold per ton.

2nd Ore Shoot -- Tests averaged an uncut 7.27 ounces of gold per ton across an average width of 4.7 feet. These assays range from 4.7 to 11.65 ounces of gold per ton.

3rd Ore Shoot -- Tests averaged an uncut 3.6 ounces of gold per ton across an average of 5 feet. Assays range from 0.028 to 10.68 ounces of gold per ton.

4th Ore Shoot -- Assays ran 7.89 ounces of gold per ton across 5 feet, 1.35 ounces of gold per ton across 5 feet, and 7.25 ounces of gold per ton across 4.7 feet.

5th Ore Shoot -- Assays ran 21.9 ounces of gold per ton across

4 feet and 17.14 ounces of gold per ton across
5 feet.

One grab sample over 2 inches returned 44.4 ounces of gold per ton in quartz gouge.

All of the assays occurred within a strike length of 125 feet. The strike length potential of these vein systems is 4,100 feet in length and is thought to extend into additional ground currently controlled by the company.

These bonanza-grade ore shoots were tested in two levels with a distance of 400 feet vertical separation. Should the intervening ground prove similar in grade and width, the ore reserve potential would be tremendous. The Empire Mine, which is geologically similar, went to a depth of over 11,000 feet on the decline. It is very possible that these systems will do the same. The company is working to determine the magnitude of its discovery and further evaluate its findings. Results will be announced from time to time as the company deems appropriate.

Michael Pickering, president of the company, stated, "Brush Creek's management is extremely elated with the findings, since 0.33 ounces of gold per ton is considered an excellent gold mine anywhere in the world. We believe these high-grade ore zones, coupled with the consolidation of the area, will lead to tremendous benefits for Brush Creek shareholders."

PITTSBURGH (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Chambers Development Company Inc. (AMEX: CDVB), a leading national environmental services firm, today announced that it has agreed to acquire a 256-acre parcel of land in Scott County, Miss., from Betco Inc., for which it has a permit to construct a 19-acre sanitary landfill.

Located in central Mississippi, the new site has received a permit from the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) for construction of a sanitary landfill.

The acquisition is conditional upon re-issuance by the Mississippi DEQ to Chambers of the permit to operate the landfill. The transaction will be consummated when Chambers receives the necessary approvals from the DEQ for the transfer of the permit.

The Scott County facility is the only permitted facility within 12 counties and a radius of 40 miles, company officials said, adding that once constructed, the landfill will be operational in early 1991.

Chambers reported that its engineers have performed stringent geotechnical tests on the Scott County landfill and that the site is environmentally excellent.

"This landfill and the surrounding acreage is situated on more than 300 feet of bentonite clay for use as an impermeable liner to protect groundwater," said Alexander Rangos, Chambers' executive vice president. "Overall, its natural landfill features are among the best in the South."

Rangos added, "These outstanding characteristics and the proximity to the Jackson and Meridian areas make the Scott County landfill a valuable asset for environmental safety in Mississippi and to Chambers." The landfill is expected to serve a number of adjacent and nearby counties.

"Chambers has established an excellent reputation in the South for collection and hauling services," Rangos said. "We are also earning an outstanding reputation for landfill development and operation.

"We're no stranger to the South. We've been providing environmental services to citizens for years in Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, and Texas. Now we welcome the opportunity to provide these services to Mississippi in an environmentally safe and economically efficient manner," Rangos said.

The 19-acre landfill footprint is located within a previously undeveloped 256-acre site. The landfill will be constructed using Chambers' state-of-the-art technology.

Kaufman, Vikonics' president and chairman of the board, "Although operating results for the first quarter continued to be adversely affected by contract award delays, and the non-award of any significant new contracts, we remain optimistic about receiving significant business from the more than 20 high level security contracts that Vikonics is currently pursuing. These contracts represent more than $200 million of potential revenue to the company."

Kaufman continued, "As reported previously, Vikonics has entered into teaming agreements with Fortune 100 companies, and is aggressively pursuing multi-million dollar government and industrial and industrial security projects with Teledyne Brown Engineering, a division of Teledyne Brown Industries Inc. We are hopeful that these joint efforts will soon yield positive results."

Kaufman noted that operating costs and expenses before interest for the three months ended June 30, 1990, were $476,090, compared to $697,261 for the same period last year. This was due primarily to cost reduction procedures instituted in January 1990.

Vikonics Inc. designs, manufactures, markets, installs, and supports a line of sophisticated, computer-based security systems. The company markets its systems to defense contractors and government agencies as well as general commercial customers.

The earnings for the three and nine months ended June 30, 1989 included an extraordinary gain of $300,000 ($0.21 per share).

Morton H. Kinzler, chairman and chief executive officer of Barnwell, commented "Earnings for the nine months ended June 30, 1990 exceeded fiscal 1989 earnings, which was Barnwell's best year, by $830,000 or 15 percent. NORWOOD, MASS. (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Microcom, Inc. (NASDAQ: MNPI), today announced the availability of the QX/4232hs(tm) -- the company's first CCITT V.32 modem offering support for V.42/V.42bis. Compatible with all relevant international modem standards, the QX/4232hs transfers data at speeds to 38.4 Kbps.

"What we're offering is compliance and more," states Richard Sterry, Microcom's vice president of product marketing. "Compliance with existing standards in today's market is mandatory in order to remain competitive. We've exceeded the requirements of mere compliance by layering innovations in the Microcom Networking Protocol(tm) (MNP(R)) on top of standards like V.32 and V.42/V.42bis, offering the user the added benefits found in MNP Class 10."

First available in Microcom's international modulation products, MNP 10 features Adverse Channel Enhancements(tm), or ACE(tm). ACE is specifically designed to overcome connection and transmission problems caused by poor-quality lines such as those encountered with rural, cellular, satellite and international links. Notes Sterry, "MNP Class 10 anticipates bad line conditions so you can successfully make and maintain a connection the first time where other modems fail."

As the de facto standard for error control and data compression, and an integral component of the CCITT V.42 standard, MNP is engineered to work with existing standards to provide the highest performance possible. Using modulation standards as a foundation, Microcom has constructed various building blocks that not only comply to standards, but offer additional enhancements like MNP 10. Future benefits of these MNP Extended Services might include remote management capabilities on modems located in the field. A feature-rich modem, the QX/4232hs provides for two methods of data compression-MNP 5 and V.42bis. The net result is a 400 percent increase in transferring data, with a significant cost-savings. The QX/4232hs also includes features specifically enhancing performance for users of UUCP and Kermit products in UNIX and other connectivity environments.

Auto-Logon, Microcom Password Connection Security(tm) and Microcom Remote Access(tm) round out the feature set. Auto-Logon enhances productivity by fully automating logon procedures and eliminatinng the need to manually type in a logon sequence. The security capability prevents unauthorized access through transparent password comparison. Microcom Remote Access, another password-protected function, enables users to conveniently reconfigure and troubleshoot a modem at a remote location.

Priced at $1,099, the QX/4232hs is available 30 days ARO. For additional product purchase information, please call 800-822-8224.

LANGHORNE, PA. (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Ecogen Inc. (NASDAQ: EECN) today announced that an $8.5 million investment in the company by New York City investor David Blech has closed.

Definitive agreements were signed on August 2 and proceeds of $7.6 million have been received by Ecogen. The balance of $900,000 is anticipated next month when the company's shareholders are expected to approve the issuance of the 450,000 shares of common stock needed to complete the transaction.

In a related transaction, ML Technology Ventures, L.P. (MLTV), a Merrill Lynch research and development partnership, has purchased 400,000 newly issued shares of Ecogen common stock for $1 million ($2.50 per share).

The MLTV investment was triggered by a May 10, 1990 amendment to Ecogen's 1987 research and development funding agreement with MLTV. (Ecogen stock closed at 2-1/8 bid -- 2-3/8 asked on May 10.)

Also under the terms of the May 10 amendment, Ecogen issued 50,000 shares of common stock to MLTV to purchase the biofungicide technology developed by Ecogen under the R&D funding agreement with MLTV.

Ecogen Chairman and CEO John E. Davies said, "The investment by Blech provides Ecogen with the resources to continue operating as an independent company and to aggressively promote the company's three new biopesticides."

Davies also said, "Mr. Blech's reputation as a knowledgeable biotechnology investor will be of considerable value as Ecogen seeks additional sources of funding for its biopesticide development programs."

In March of this year, Blech invested $1.5 million in Ecogen. This and his recent $8.5 million investment increased his share of the company's common stock to approximately 40 percent.

Ecogen Inc. is an agricultural biotechnology company, specializing in biological pest control. Ecogen's products include Cutlass(TM) vegetable bioinsecticide, Foil(TM) potato bioinsecticide, Condor(TM) forestry and soybean bioinsecticide, Dagger(TM) G cotton biofungicide and Collego(TM) rice bioherbicide. NEW YORK (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Sexual fantasies by married men are normal, common and even necessary, according to a noted sex therapist.

Psychiatrist Helen Singer Kaplan, M.D., Ph.D., states in the current (September) issue of Redbook, "I believe any fantasy is good. A good marriage needs a healthy amount of mental stimulation, which fantasies can provide."

The "classic male fantasy," according to experts interviewed by the magazine, is the man making love with two women. Psychologist Herb Goldberg, Ph.D., of California State University, attributes its sexual power to the fact that, "there is no emotional involvement. The man is there to please and be pleased, period."

Another archetypical sexual fantasy is the "omniavailable woman." She's a beautiful woman eager to please a man sexually in any way she can, anywhere he'd like. Why do men need her? "For a man," states Dr. Goldberg, "having sex amounts to having his ego stroked. Add to that the image of a beautiful woman, a woman who makes every other man who sees her envious, and the fantasizer then feels, 'I'm irresistible. This gorgeous woman wants me.'"

Fantasizing about the omniavailable woman is more than just a mindless ego-booster. Psychiatrist Wayne Myers, M.D., of Cornell University Medical College, says it can be therapeutic. "These fantasies can work to undo all the slights he ever experienced and ultimately make him feel better about himself," says Dr. Myers.

Many men also fantasize about light S&M acts, such as blindfolding, bondage, spanking or gentle whipping. Contrary to traditional wisdom, the turn-on for men is when they are placed in the submissive position. "Many men like to be dominated," states Dr. Myers in Redbook, "more than you might expect."

JACKSON, MI (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Consumers Power Company's support of Michigan's emerging waste-to-energy industry can be seen in its recent signing of power purchase contracts for such facilities in Genesee, Clinton, and Shiawassee counties.

Upon commercial operation of the facilities, the utility will purchase a total of 37.5 megawatts of electric power from the three projects to help meet increasing customer demand. Waste-to-energy facilities convert either solid waste, or landfill gas, into electricity through onsite power generation equipment.

One waste-to-energy developer signing a contract with the utility is Pollard Generating Station, Inc., located in Montrose in northwestern Genesee County. Its solid waste facility, capable of producing 35 megawatts of electric capacity, is scheduled to begin operation by mid-decade.

Two other power sale contracts were signed by Granger Renewable Resources, Inc. of Lansing. These contracts enable Granger to sell the utility 1.5 megawatts of capacity from its Landfill Number One facility, located in DeWitt Township, Clinton County, and one megawatt from its plant in Venice Township, Shiawassee County. Commercial operation of the Landfill Number One facility is projected to begin in 1993, and the Venice Township plant is scheduled for 1992.

"Purchasing electricity from these facilities has a double benefit for Michigan," said Paul A. Elbert, the utility's vice president of marketing, rates and wholesale power transactions. "It will help Consumers Power meet the demand for electricity and help address the critical landfill space shortage problem," Elbert said.

Previously, the utility announced a power purchase contract for two megawatts from Granger Renewable Resources Landfill Gas Number Two, located in Watertown Township, Clinton County. Other waste-to-energy facilities the utility has contracts with include incinerators in Kent and Jackson counties, and Elsie-based Green Meadows Farms, Inc.

Consumers Power Company, the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy Corporation (NYSE: CMS), is Michigan's largest utility serving almost six million of the state's nine million residents in 67 of the 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

MANHATTAN BEACH, CA (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Fairchild Controls, a division of Fairchild Space & Defense Corporation, announced it has been awarded a multi-million dollar subcontract by Rockwell International's Space System Division for the Orbital Maneuvering System (OMS) regulators for the space shuttle program.

The four OMS regulators on each orbiter control and maintain constant pressure to feed bi-propellants into the thrusters, supporting more extensive maneuvering of the shuttle, such as changes in orbit. In addition to the OMS regulators, Fairchild will continue to provide the Reaction Control System (RCS) regulators. Those perform a similar function in the RCS, allowing more delicate attitude changes of the orbiter, such as those required to retrieve the Long Duration Exposure Facility (LDEF) spacecraft.

The OMS pressure regulator is a high-precision, mechanical, series-redundant regulator, with both a primary and secondary back-up regulator built into one housing. Fairchild regulators feature a precision pilot assembly including large-sensing bellows and a patented reference spring assembly that produces the required pre-load with a low spring rate for high accuracy, as well as a high natural frequency for insensitivity to shock and vibration.

Fairchild is a major component supplier to the space shuttle program, providing more than 300 items for each orbiter, including service couplings for OMS and RCS, valves and disconnects for the main propulsion system, and the complete Ammonia Boiler Subsystem for cooling during re-entry of the orbiter. The company also provides similar systems for the Delta, Atlas and Titan expendable launch vehicles.

Fairchild Controls, located in Manhattan Beach, specializes in the design, development, manufacturing, and testing of valves, quick disconnects, regulators and subsystems for aerospace applications, and is on the leading edge of providing innovative solutions to the requirements of fluid control in space and aerospace systems.

Fairchild Space & Defense Corporation, a member of the Matra Group, is a U.S. space and defense electronics company with operations in Germantown, Md., and Manhattan Beach. The company, with a workforce of 2,000, has annual revenues of approximately $230 million. DEERFIELD BEACH, FLA. (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Devcon International Corp. (NASDAQ: DEVC) today reported that an increase in second-quarter profits brought net earnings for the first half practically even with the results for the first six months last year. Devcon Chairman and President Donald L. Smith Jr., said, "Notwithstanding the soft construction market in the United States, we realized increased earnings for the quarter."

For the three months ended June 30, 1990, net income increased three percent to $3,253,000 from $3,162,000 a year ago. Earnings per share were 72 cents on a higher number of weighted average shares outstanding compared with 76 cents last year. Revenues were $23.8 million vs. $20.1 million. Smith said, "Increased profit contributions from our island operations, primarily from our new operations in St. Maarten, the Netherlands Antilles, and from the U.S. Virgin Islands, essentially offset the decline in Florida construction activity."

For the six months, net income amounted to $6,056,000 compared with $6,121,000 earned a year ago. Earnings per share of $1.35, vs. $1.47 last year, also reflect the higher number of shares. Revenues totaled $41.1 million, up from $40.3 million.

Smith said he remains optimistic about the second half of the year and he anticipates a continuing increase in the construction materials business in both the U.S. Virgin Islands and St. Maarten. He added, "While we are winding down several large construction contracts in our Florida operations, we are encouraged in our negotiations for two large contracts in Florida."

He noted that third-quarter earnings will benefit by approximately 20 cents per share after taxes from a real-estate sale completed in July. "This $4.1 million cash transaction also bolstered our balance sheet significantly."

Devcon operates ready-mix concrete and aggregate plants and performs harbor-dredging and other heavy construction work on St. Thomas and St. Croix in the U.S. Virgin Islands, on the independent island of Antigua and on St. Maarten, Netherlands Antilles. In South Florida, where the company is headquartered, Devcon is in the heavy construction business, mainly preparing sites for shopping malls, residential developments, country clubs and industrial parks.

SYOSSET, NY (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Viatech, Inc. (AMEX: VTK) chairman and chief executive officer, Donald J. Bainton, today announced record results for the second quarter and first six months ended June 30, 1990.

Revenues for the second quarter of 1990 increased more than three- fold to $64,354,000, compared with $21,274,000 in the second quarter of 1989. Net income for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, increased significantly over the previous year's quarter, reaching $1,403,000, or $.81 per share, versus $366,000, or $.29 per share.

For the first six months of 1990, revenues were $120,474,000, nearly three times greater than revenues of $44,577,000 reported in the first six months of 1989. Net income for the 1990 six-month period was a record $1,861,000, or $1.09 per share, compared with $618,000, or $.50 per share.

"We are extremely pleased with the performance of Viatech and the record results reported today. Our strong revenues and earnings are a direct result of the successful integration of Ferembal, the second largest food can manufacturer in France and fifth largest in Europe, which we acquired in the fourth quarter of 1989. In addition, our other operating subsidiaries -- LKB, Dixie Union and Onena -- contributed nicely to our record earnings. Viatech also benefited from foreign currency translation rate differences and increased interest income in the U.S.," said Bainton.

Bainton noted that the earnings per share for the second quarter of 1990 increased 179 percent even with the dilution resulting from the sale of 460,000 shares of common stock in January 1990. According to Bainton, weighted average shares outstanding in the second quarter and first six months of 1,754,000 and 1,715,000, respectively, is approximately 40 percent higher than the same prior year periods.

Bainton continued, "Our strategy and vision remains the same -- to aggressively pursue acquisitions in the plastic and metal packaging industries around the world which will have an immediate positive impact on our bottom line. Thus far, both Dixie Union and Onena remain on course with our expectations, while Ferembal's 1990 results are running strongly ahead of our projections. We expect our 1990 financial performance to be significantly ahead of last year."

Viatech, Inc., through its subsidiaries, manufactures cans, films and equipment for the packaging industry, and prints and laminates packaging for the food and snack food industries. The company's subsidiary, Lockwood, Kessler & Bartlett, Inc., provides engineering services principally in the fields of mapping and survey, transportation, structures, site and landscape development, recreation and environmental studies, and mechanical and electrical engineering.

ST. PAUL, MN (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Yukon Energy Corporation (NASDAQ: YUKN) today announced record second-quarter sales and earnings for the period ended June 30, 1990.

Sales rose 52 percent to $532,000 compared to $349,000 for the second quarter of 1989. The net loss was reduced to $71,000, compared to $106,000 for the second quarter of 1989. Loss per share was the same for two quarters at 2 cents a share.

"Our newer, more energy-efficient furnaces are being well received in the marketplace, which is reflected in our increased sales volume," said Dave Tjosvold, president of Yukon. "The first half of the year is usually slower for us, but we have seen several truck load orders coming in sooner than anticipated as our expanding distribution network is becoming increasingly excited about our energy-efficient furnaces. In addition, the current oil pricing questions that plague the world, provide a unique opportunity for Yukon furnace efficiencies to be promoted. During the last oil embargo, we experienced a significant increase in business. If this crisis continues, Yukon is in a strong position to provide extremely efficient furnaces in a variety of styles which benefit users by dramatically reducing their heating bills."

Yukon Energy Corporation develops, manufactures, and markets a variety of energy-efficient residential and light commercial furnaces. These furnaces employ advanced heating technology and proprietary features to achieve total home comfort with substantial fuel savings. FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Ambassador Financial Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: AFGI) reported a net loss of $4,384,136 for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, or $1.76 per share, compared to a net loss of $4,030,743, or $1.65 per share, for the same period of the prior year.

The company reported an accumulated deficit of $7,532,519 at June 30, 1990. The regulatory capital of the company's subsidiary, Ambassador Savings and Loan Association, at June 30, 1990 was a deficit of $6,473,201. As a result, the Association did not meet its leveraged, tangible or risk-based capital requirements at that date, with deficiencies of $12,437,590, $9,455,395 and $16,768,606, respectively.

The results for the second quarter of 1990 reflect a $4,000,000 provision for discontinued operations of the Association's home building operations. These operations were discontinued effective Dec. 31, 1989, however, the Association has been unable to divest its real estate holdings as promptly as had originally been envisioned, due to a continued deterioration of the Florida real estate markets and regulatory restrictions which limit the Association's ability to finance its divestitures of real estate. The $4,000,000 provision is anticipated to cover the Association's activities over the next year in liquidating its real estate holdings in home building operations.

WILMINGTON, DE (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Airgas Inc. (NYSE: ARG) reported today that for its first quarter ended June 30, 1990, earnings from continuing operations increased 46 percent to $1,278,000 or $.21 per share from $875,000 or $.14 per share in the first quarter last year.

After-tax cash flow (earnings from continuing operations plus depreciation amortization and deferred taxes) increased 19 percent to $7,227,000 or $1.01 per share from $6,052,000 or $.87 per share in the first quarter last year. The increase in earnings from continuing operations is primarily due to lower interest costs resulting from the use of the proceeds received upon the sale of the company's Jackson Products operations in October 1989, to reduce long-term indebtedness, a reduction in interest rates since April 1, 1989, and improved earnings by the company's joint venture which produces calcium carbide, partially offset by higher insurance costs and higher corporate expenses and depreciation and amortization expenses incurred in connection with the acquisition of 56 industrial gas distribution companies during the past two years.

Net earnings for the three months ended June 30, 1990, decreased 34 percent to $1,278,000 or $.21 per share from $1,932,000 or $.30 per share in the first quarter of last year. The decline in net earnings is primarily due to earnings dilution resulting from the company's sale of Jackson Products in October 1989, higher insurance costs and higher corporate expenses and depreciation and amortization expenses incurred in connection with business acquisitions, which were partially offset by improved joint venture earnings and lower interest costs due to a reduction in interest rates since April 1, 1989.

Net sales increased 12 percent to $79,331,000 during the first quarter ended June 30, 1990, over the same period in the prior year mainly due to the acquisition of 27 industrial gas distribution companies since April 1, 1989.

ITHACA, N.Y. (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Glare on VDT terminals is creating more than complaints from computer users. It's also resulting in visual health problems and significant losses in worker productivity, according to a new study from Cornell University.

Cornell's Department of Design and Environmental Analysis set out to determine the most effective lighting for VDT environments, since a leading complaint of computer users is poor office lighting. Researchers studied the effects of two types of lighting systems on managerial and professional computer users in a nearly windowless building.

The study found that one system -- lensed indirect lighting -- dramatically reduced visual health complaints and accompanying losses in productive worktime by those managerial and professional users. Nearly a fourth of the computer users said they lost 15 minutes or more every day because they had trouble focusing their eyes in areas with conventional office downlighting designed for computer areas. In contrast, only 1 percent of the computer users working under the indirect lighting system lost more than 15 minutes a day because of focusing problems.

Among the computer users working under conventional computer-area lighting more than 10 percent said they lost at least 15 minutes a day because of watering and itching eyes, compared with only 4 percent in the indirect lighting section. Between the two groups, loss of productive worktime caused by tiredeness or lethargy was four times as great in the group with conventional computer-area downlighting.

Led by Dr. Alan Hedge the Cornell study was begun in 1988 at a major facility of Xerox Corp. in upstate New York. Researchers developed a benchmark survey to evaluate overall worker satisfaction in the building, then Xerox renovated the building and standardized decor and lighting. Half the offices were equipped with state-of-the-art overhead fluorescent lighting (parabolic lighting), usually seen in new or renovated buildings. The other half were equipped with lensed indirect fluorescent lights which direct light toward the ceiling (uplighting). This new type of lighting is being used by companies such as AT&T, US West, IBM and other companies relying heavily on computer-equipped workstations.

Hedge and his team surveyed the workers several months after the renovation and found that the indirect uplighting had a positive effect on worker performance, satisfaction and visual health. Indirect lighting ranked much higher on several subjective scales: better overall, more comfortable and less glaring.

Cornell researchers then returned to Xerox 12 months later to conduct a follow-up survey to make sure their findings were accurate and to be certain the results of the first "after" study were not due to simply a change made in their environment, commonly known as The Hawthorne Effect.

The most recent findings were startling, according to Hedge. In addition to visual health problems and lost productivity researchers discovered that employees had modified nearly half of the conventional parabolic lights to try to improve their visual environment. These employees said they lost productivity because of direct glare and bright, unpleasant or uncomfortable light.

Very few complaints emerged from the employees working under indirect lighting. Only 1 percent said the lighting was unpleasant, and few employees said that uplighting led to any loss in productivity.

Employees strongly preferred the lensed indirect lighting: 71 percent of those working with the indirect system preferred it, and 74 percent of those working under the parabolic system preferred uplighting.

"This is an overwhelming preference," said Hedge. "We didn't expect to see results this one-sided, especially given that the parabolic lighting was designed for computer areas."

Hedge said that a leading objective of the Department of Design and Environmental Analysis is to help business create workplaces that are pleasant, healthy and effective. The Xerox Corp. study was conducted by Cornell University under a grant from Peerless Lighting Corp., Berkeley, Calif.

Financial terms of the transaction were not disclosed.

The new company, Leeds Building Products, Inc. will be based in Atlanta and will concentrate on the Southeastern market. Miron has been elected president and chief executive officer of Leeds. Since 1969, Miron, 51, served as president and chief operating officer of Miron Building Products Co. Inc., based in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. Net income in the second quarter, ended June 30, 1990, was $58,366 or two cents per share compared with net income of $1,052,872 or 20 cents per share, for the same period in 1989.

Unaudited revenues for the six-month period ended June 30, 1990 were $39,481,334, as compared to revenues of $34,820,166 for the same period in 1989. Net income in the first half of 1990 was $925,196 or 16 cents per share compared with net income of $1,982,314 or 38 cents per share for the same period last year. Optrotech's management has taken steps to deal with the present market conditions. A comprehensive cost reduction program, including a re-organization of the company's structure, has enabled the company to reduce manpower and allowed it to reinforce its sales force.

Simultaneously, with these measurements, all research and development projects are being continued as planned, to ensure the future market position of the company.

Optrotech's management believes that the quality of its products, their capability to provide CIM (Computerized Integrated Manufacturing) solutions for the production of printed circuit boards, its professional and aggressive marketing and high standard of service, as well as continuous intensive research and development efforts, will enable the company to maintain its strong position in the printed circuit board industry, diversify into related market segments and improve margins.

DETROIT (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. District Judge George La Plata dismissed a lawsuit filed against Jay Alix, trustee of Fred Sanders, Inc., Heller Financial, the confectioner's primary secured lender during its bankruptcy, and its attorneys by two former Sanders officers and a shareholder.

The judge ruled the suit lacked merit, and that the claims were barred because the plaintiffs had opportunities to raise them during bankruptcy proceedings, but failed to do so.

The suit was filed in early February 1989 by Sanders Confectionery Products, a publicly held shell corporation no longer related to the Sanders confectionery company, John Sanders, its chairman, Filipp J. Kreissl, president, and shareholders Sam J. Merigian.

It alleged that Heller forced the company into bankruptcy and the sale of its assets and that Alix should not have been appointed trustee because he was biased against Kreissl.

"When a judge throws a suit out the very first day of oral arguments," Alix said, "that says it all. The court was able to reach this conclusion without the need for an answer to the complaint, any pre-trial investigation of fact or evidentiary hearing." "If there were any truth to their allegations," he said, "they would have brought them up during the bankruptcy, not months later."

As trustee, Alix saved the then-113-year-old ice cream, topping, and baked goods producer and retailer from being closed during Sanders' second bankruptcy in five years through its sale in the spring of 1988 to Country Home Bakers of Connecticut.

Alix' attorney Michael B. Lewiston of Bodman, Longley & Dahling, said "the court's ruling relieves Jay and the bankruptcy estate of the burden of defending against a baseless suit that never should have been filed."

AUSTIN, TEXAS (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Motorola's (NYSE: MOT) Microprocessor Products Group today announced two high performance additions to the popular 8-bit 68HC11 microcontroller family. The 68HC11K4 (K4) and 68HC711K4 (711K4) double the bus speed of the original 68HC11 family members and feature a variety of memory configurations and on chip peripherals to bring the highest level of integration and performance to 8-bit microcontroller applications. The increased bus speeds allow the HC11K devices to challenge many existing 16-bit microcontrollers.

Motorola's 68HC11 family powers a variety of automotive, consumer, and industrial electronic applications including cellular telephones, remote industrial controllers, medical equipment, identification systems, cameras and automobile engine controls. In 1988, Motorola introduced the first 32-bit microcontroller, the 68332. Motorola has announced plans to introduce its first 16-bit microcontroller later this year.

The K4 and 711K4 feature 768 bytes of RAM, 640 bytes of EEPROM (Electrically Erasable Programmable Read-Only Memory), 62 I/O lines, 16-bit timer, 4 eight-bit pulse width modulators, 8 channel 8-bit A/D, and enhanced serial peripheral and serial communication interfaces. The K4 includes 24K bytes of ROM and the 711K4 integrates 24K bytes of EPROM (Erasable Programmable Read-Only Memory) or OTPROM (One-Time Programmable Read-Only Memory). Both devices allow for memory expansion up to one megabyte .

The 68HC711K4, primarily used for emulation, will be available September 1990 in sample quantities for $250 in 84 pin PLCC. The ROM-based 68HC11K4 will be sampling in 1Q 1991 and will be priced at $25 in 84 pin PLCC. Volume production on the K4 is expected in the second half of 1991 with volume pricing estimated at $15 for 100K volumes. Motorola also provides the 68HC27 (HC27) port expansion device used to regain the ports lost when the microcontroller is operating in the expanded mode. The HC27 is available now and priced at $10 in sample quantities.

ATLANTA (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - At the request of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Regional Administrator Greer C. Tidwell, Congressman Cass Ballenger has asked the Government Accounting Office (GAO) to initiate a review of the Caldwell Systems Inc. (CSI) sites.

An agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry (ATSDR) health advisory, issued on July 25, indicates the possibility that CSI workers and their families, as well as residents living near the closed CSI incinerator site in Lenoir, N.C. have experienced health effects apparently stemming from the operation of the facility. Tidwell told Congressman Ballenger that EPA is concerned about environmental and worker protection regulation of CSI in view of the fact that serious injuries may have resulted from the operation of this facility.

Tidwell stated: "While EPA is itself reviewing the facts and cirumstances surrounding the CSI sites, EPA Administrator William K. Reilly and I believe there is also substantial merit in terms of public confidence in obtaining an independent review of this matter."

Tidwell indicated that GAO's independence and the breadth of its authority make it an appropriate vehicle for this review. The issues as well as the potential solutions may be relevant to several environmental and worker protection laws, Tidwell said.

GAO is the investigative arm of Congress and is charged with examining all matters relating to the receipt and disbursement of public funds. Among its functions are audits and evaluations of government programs and activities. Congressman Ballenger represents the 10th District of North Carolina, which includes the Lenoir area.

NEW YORK, (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Oak Hill Sportswear Corporation (NASDAQ: OHSC) announced today that the company incurred a net loss of $762,000 or $.37 per share in the second quarter ended June 30, 1990 compared to net income of $157,000 or $.07 per share in the comparable quarter last year. Sales of $27,753,000 in the second quarter ended June 30, 1990 were 9 percent higher than those recorded in the second quarter of the previous year. In the first half ended June 30, 1990 the company's net loss was $2,098,000 or $1.02 per share compared to net income of $262,000 or $.12 per share in the same period in 1989, as sales increased 4 percent to $53,594,000.

Arthur L. Asch, chairman of the board of Oak Hill Sportswear Corporation, stated that "the loss our company experienced in the second quarter and first half of 1990 was in large measure attributable to sluggish consumer spending, which led retailers to delay their purchases. We adjusted to this climate by reducing our prices in an attempt to keep our inventories in line with sales, thereby creating downward pressure on our gross profit margins. In addition, we absorbed start-up expenses related to a new product line and also recorded unsatisfactory results in a new division.

While there does not as yet seem to be an upturn in the retail environment our company expects to return to profitability in the third quarter as we benefit from the usual seasonal factors. The future outlook remains cloudy due to uncertainty regarding the level of consumer demand for apparel."

ST. LOUIS (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Thermadyne Holdings Corporation and its wholly owned subsidiary, Thermadyne Industries, Inc., announced today that the second quarter for Thermadyne generated $120.1 million of sales, which represent 100 percent of targeted sales and a 2 percent increase over the first quarter sales. Sales of $120.1 million for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990 were down slightly from the second quarter ended June 30, 1989 sales of $123.7 million. Earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization (EBITDA) for the three months ended June 30, 1990 were $27.2 million, representing an increase over EBITDA of $26.1 million and $25.5 million for the three months ended June 30, 1989 and

March 31, 1990 respectively.

The economic signals for the rest of 1990 remain mixed. As a result, Thermadyne is focusing most of its efforts in three areas: new marketing programs, new products and new cost reduction efforts. During the second half of 1990, Thermadyne will be implementing several new marketing programs aimed at specific products to increase their sales volume. In addition to the 14 new products introduced during the first six month of the year, an equal number of new products are planned for introduction in the second half of 1990.

Thermadyne's cost reduction efforts implemented in the second half of 1989 continue to be a key to Thermadyne meeting its earnings targets. Several new cost reduction projects have been recently announced for the second half of 1990. These projects include the consolidation of the Marison Cylinder plant into Thermadyne's Coyne Cylinder plant in Huntsville, Ala.

Internationally, Thermadyne is expanding its Koblenz, West Germany facility to meet current production demands. Thermadyne is also consolidating its Canadian Cylinder Co. operations sales and marketing functions into Thermadyne Welding Products of Canada and its manufacturing requirements with its Coyne operation. These projects should result in substantial cost savings and better product availability.

During the second quarter, Jackson Products, Inc.'s permanent capital structure was put into place. As a result, Thermadyne increased its ownership of Jackson from 30 percent to 40 percent, with an option to acquire an additional 11.4 percent, at the present holders original share price, plus interest, at anytime during the next 3 years.

The company reported a net loss of $7.1 million for the three months ended June 30, 1990 compared to a loss of $8.3 million for the three months ended June 30, 1989. For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the company's net loss was $15.5 million compared to a loss of $58.9 million for the six months ended June 30, 1989. Additional interest expense, transactions related cost and amortization of intangibles and deferred costs created as a result of the April 12, 1989 transaction increased the company's net loss in 1989 compared to 1990.

HOUSTON (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. cement producers have been materially injured by imports of Mexican cement dumped on the market, according to a final ruling by the U.S International Trade Commission (ITC).

This decision clears the way for the imposition of duties on all imports of Mexican cement into the United States. In order to continue importing Mexican product after Aug. 31, 1990, importers will be required to tender cash deposits to the U.S. Customs Service equal to the estimated dumping duties, approximately 58 percent for the largest Mexican producer.

Southdown, Inc. (NYSE: SDW), six other domestic producers and two labor unions were the petitioners who requested this investigation of Mexican cement imports.

Clarence C. Comer, president and chief executive officer of Southdown and chairman of the petitioning committee of producers, stated, "This ruling is an important victory for the U.S. cement producers with plants located in the southern states, because it will enable the industry to expand and modernize, creating jobs and other economic benefits for this country.

"Without this favorable ruling, the industry would have continued to contract, as the flood of unfairly priced imports would have continued to prevent the U.S. industry from earning returns sufficient to justify reinvestment in plant and equipment."

In recent years, Mexican cement producers have exported between four and five million tons of cement a year into the United States, primarily into Florida, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, and southern California. This compares to virtually no Mexican imports in 1982.

Because of sharply increased Mexican imports into these markets since 1982, cement prices have been depressed despite unprecedented growth in cement demand in southern California and Florida.

In 1988 (prior to the filing of the anti-dumping petition in September 1989), Mexican cement imports accounted for approximately 22 percent of the Florida market, 14 percent of the Texas, New Mexico, and Arizona market, and seven percent of the southern California market.

On July 11, 1990, the U.S. Department of Commerce announced that Mexican cement is being dumped into the United States. The Commerce Department found a dumping margin of 58 percent of the customs value for CEMEX, the dominant Mexican cement producer and exporter. That margin equates to a duty of about $17 per on, assuming a typical customs value of approximately $30 per ton.

AUSTIN, TX (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Dell Computer Corporation (NASDAQ: DELL) announced today that it has again been awarded a contract by the General Services Administration (GSA) that will expedite the procurement process for government purchasers of Dell personal computer products. The new GSA Schedule C contract, number GS00K90AGS5213, is effective through March 31, 1991.

"The GSA schedule has been an important element of our increasing success in the government marketplace," said Joel J. Kocher, senior vice president of U.S. sales and operations for the company. "That success is based largely on Dell's commitment to serve the distinct requirements of government customers, and on our ability to provide end-users with comprehensive after-sale service and support."

Sales of Dell products to governmental customers doubled in fiscal year 1990 (ended Feb. 2, 1990). Growth in this segment also contributed significantly to increased national account sales which represented 45 percent of worldwide revenues in the first quarter of fiscal 1991, up from 37 percent of revenues in the prior-year quarter. National accounts include major corporate, governmental and educational customers.

Dell has formed specialized account teams consisting of sales, technical support and customer service representatives which are dedicated solely to serving the unique needs of governmental customers. These teams provide customers with a single source for assistance.

"Obtaining this schedule was a demanding process," said Dennis Jolly, director of Dell's Public Sector sales organization. "The GSA staff has a variety of issues to consider when reviewing proposals and awarding schedules, and we acknowledge and appreciate their efforts."

ATLANTA (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Health Images Inc. (NASDAQ: HIMG), today announced second quarter 1990 net income of $715,700 or $0.11 per share on net revenues of $11,184,100 as compared to second quarter 1989 net income of $601,900 or $0.09 per share on net revenues of $7,919,900.

Share earnings are after preferred stock dividend requirements in the 1989 period and are calculated on 6,747,500 and 5,402,900 common share and dilutive common share equivalents outstanding for the 1990 and 1989 periods respectively.

Robert D. Carl III, president and chairman, commented: "We are generally pleased with second quarter 1990 results. The opening of five new imaging centers and one radiation oncology center during 1990's first half as compared to two new imaging centers during the same period in 1989 has, however, put some pressure on our short term earnings growth. As these centers mature, we expect an increase in our earnings growth rate."

Carl commented further on the impact of special items which affected Health Images' earnings in the 1989 second quarter. "Shareholders should remember that during the quarter ended June 30, 1989, Health Images sold its 25 percent interest in its former Pasadena, Texas imaging center," he stated. "The non-recurring gain on this sale, partially offset by non-recurring expenses related to the settlement of certain litigation and the writeoff of the company's Canton and Columbus, Ohio imaging center projects, was $84,510."

Health Images Inc. operates 24 magnetic resonance imaging centers and one radiation oncology center, manufactures magnetic resonance imaging scanners, and provides equipment maintenance services for major medical diagnostic imaging equipment.

MELVILLE, NY (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The Allen Group Inc. (NYSE: ALN) has completed two separate acquisitions, which will extend its position in two strategically important markets.

Allen purchased a 50 percent interest in a new partnership joint venture with Metropolitan Air Research Testing Authority of Nashville. The joint venture's predecessor was founded in 1984 to operate centralized automotive emissions test programs for states and municipalities and recently was awarded the Jacksonville, Fla. program, which will begin in early 1991.

The joint venture, which has been named MARTA Technologies, will continue these operations and actively pursue additional centralized emission test programs.

Separately, Allen purchased 80 percent of the outstanding stock of Grayson Electronics Company of Lynchburg, Va. Grayson is a specialized producer of radio frequency circuit boards for use in the communications industry.

Commenting on the two acquisitions, Philip Wm. Colburn, chairman and chief executive officer of Allen, stated, "These two acquisitions, while modest in size, will extend Allen's capabilities in two important growth areas.

"The acquisition of a substantial interest in MARTA Technologies provides Allen the opportunity to participate in centralized automotive emissions test programs and complements our Allen Testproducts Division's position as a market leader in the manufacture and sale of equipment for automotive emissions test programs.

"Allen Testproducts' emission test equipment will be used in the Jacksonville, Fla. program. We believe that federally mandated improvements to current clean air standards will lead to a sizable number of new automotive test programs, both decentralized and centralized, over the next several years. Until now, we have had no access to the centralized programs which seem to be preferred by the Federal government.

"The Grayson acquisition will provide Allen with a source of unique technology in the communications industry that will benefit our Antenna Specialists division, which has been a major customer for Grayson's products."

The Allen Group Inc. is a manufacturer and marketer of automotive products, including automotive test equipment, automated manufacturing equipment, truck components, and mobile communications antennas and accessories.

HOLLAND, MICH. (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Donnelly Corporation (AMEX: DON) today reported financial results for the fourth quarter and year-end of the 1990 fiscal year.

Net sales for the fourth quarter were $62,320,000, which represents an increase of 14.4 percent over $54,477,000 for the same period last year. Net sales for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, were $213,086,000, an increase of 7.4 percent over $198,323,000 for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1989. Sales increased significantly in the automotive markets, up 14.2 percent at $189,024,000 from $165,462,000 in 1989. This was primarily due to an increase in the number of new products being sold by Donnelly. The Coated Products segment of the business declined significantly from 1989 levels to $24,062,000, down 26.8 percent from $32,861,000 in 1989.

Net income for the fourth quarter was $2,019,000, compared to $2,209,000 for the same period last year. While down slightly from last year, this was a 91.4-percent increase over the third quarter and represented a major improvement over profits earned early in the year. Net income for 1990 was $2,337,000, down from $6,216,000 for fiscal 1989. Income per share was down from $1.11 in 1989 to $0.41 in 1990.

Early in the fiscal year, it became apparent that a sharp downturn was being faced in both the transportation and electronic information display markets. Management took action quickly to cut non-strategic programs to conserve resources, including implementation of selective salary reductions, reduced capital spending from planned levels, elimination of nearly 60 staff positions, layoffs of production and office employees, and reduced administrative spending. These actions helped the company achieve strong performance during the fourth quarter and enabled Donnelly to complete another profitable year.

Dr. J. Dwane Baumgardner, CEO and president, stated, "Our 1990 fiscal year can best be characterized as challenging and difficult. But it was also a year in which decisions were implemented to improve the company's performance and to position it for new growth opportunities. All in all, Donnelly just completed another year of solid achievement, considering the challenges which were encountered.

"Donnelly demonstrated flexibility and resilience during the past year and is well-positioned to resume its rapid growth rate in the future. Rarely has there been a time when the company has had so many opportunities to pursue and been in a position to turn these opportunities into reality. We have always taken a long-term view of our business and our long-term future appears bright."

Donnelly Corporation is an international company dedicated to serving customers around the world with high quality fabricated, molded and coated glass products for the transportation and electronics markets.

HOUSTON (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Zapata Corporation (NYSE: ZOS) reported an operating loss of $8.1 million for the third quarter of fiscal 1990, compared with a third quarter loss of $1.5 million the year before, Zapata Chairman and Chief Executive Officer R.C. Lassiter said today.

The company reported a net loss for the quarter which ended June 30 of $20.0 million (63 cents a share), versus a net loss of $26.1 million (82 cents a share) a year earlier. Results for the 1989 third quarter, however, reflected a $16.4 million pretax write-down of Zapata's coal-related assets.

Revenues for the quarter totaled $39.1 million, while those for the year-earlier quarter were $51.7 million. Improved performance by Zapata's offshore drilling division could not offset the decreased contributions from the company's marine protein and oil and gas divisions.

Due to improved utilization and day rates compared with the previous year, the drilling division reported an operating loss of $500,000 on revenues of $22.2 million for the third quarter of 1990 versus a 1989 operating loss of $7.2 million on revenues of $15.5 million. While the overall results have improved based on a relatively strong international market, the weak Gulf of Mexico market, where one-half of Zapata's company-owned rigs are located, remains a problem. Aside from any significant long-term impact that the recent Middle East crisis might have on the outlook for oil and gas exploration, the fundamentals of the drilling market continue to reflect a worldwide oversupply of offshore drilling equipment.

Hampered by a third consecutive season of low fish catch, coupled with this year's low product prices, the marine protein division generated a $6.7 million operating loss on revenues of $11.5 million for the quarter. These results compared unfavorably to the year-ago report of $1.2 million operating income on revenues of $24.8 million. Fish catch continues at below-1989 levels and the division is not expected to generate positive cash flow from operations during 1990.

A decrease in both gas prices and production caused the oil and gas division to post operating income of $900,000 on revenues of $5.4 million for the quarter. The quarterly results for the 1989 period, including a $2.1 million gain from the settlement of a contract dispute, were $6.3 million of operating income on $11.4 million of revenues.

Zapata Corporation is a Houston-based international company that operates a fleet of offshore drilling rigs, conducts menhaden fishing operations that produce fish meal and edible oil, and produces oil and natural gas.

INDIANAPOLIS, IN (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - USAir today officially opened its new $3.9 million Indianapolis Reservations Center, located on an 11.5 acre site in the Northwest Quadrant of the airport.

The new facility replaces a smaller reservations office located in the administrative building of the airport terminal. Approximately 500 USAir reservations employees are now in the process of relocating in the new center, which will take its first calls from the public on Wednesday, Aug. 15.

"This new reservations center and our adjacent $19.6 million aircraft maintenance facility now under construction are examples of USAir's successful partnership with Indianapolis," said Russell D. Meade, regional manager - reservations at Indianapolis. "Because of our excellent working relationship with the city and the Airport Authority Board, USAir has been able to expand its facilities, increase flight schedules and establish Indianapolis as a key connecting hub on the USAir system."

At an official opening ceremony today at the new USAir facility, Gordon St. Angelo, Indianapolis Airport Authority Board vice president, said the new center "is further evidence of the solid relationship between this airport and the new USAir. It reaffirms the role of the airport and USAir in the economic vitality of our city. These new facilities mean jobs for our community -- 500 permanent USAir jobs in the reservations office alone. When you include the maintenance hangar under construction and USAir's terminal operations, USAir employment in Indianapolis surpasses 1,000."

Construction of the 26,000-square-foot reservations center began in the fall of 1989. Included in the new center are 202 telephone sales agent positions, administrative offices and training rooms. Like the current facility, the new office will be staffed from 6 a.m. to 1:30 a.m. the following day, seven days a week. Agents answer a daily average of 25,000 telephone calls, making flight reservations and providing schedule and fare information to callers from throughout the Midwest.

USAir operates 50 daily jet flight departures from Indianapolis International Airport. Its USAir Express affiliate operates another 47 daily flights here, making Indianapolis the primary connecting point for many smaller cities.

HADERA, ISRAEL (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - American Israeli Paper Mills Ltd. (AMEX: AIP) today reported results for the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990.

Consolidated sales for the three month period amounted to $60.6 million (NIS 125.9 million), an increase of 6.6 percent compared with sales of $56.8 million (NIS 118.1 million) in the same quarter last year. Consolidated sales for the six-month period were up 5.2 percent, and amounted to $123.9 million (NIS 257.4 million), compared with $117.7 million (NIS 244.6 million) in the first six months of 1989.

Net earnings for the three month period amounted to $2.2 million (NIS 4.7 million), similar to that reported in the first quarter of 1990, and compared with $0.3 million (NIS 0.6 million) in the second quarter of 1989.

Net earnings for the six month period rose by 141 percent over the same period a year ago, and amounted to $4.4 million (NIS 9.2 million), compared with $1.8 million (NIS 3.8 million). Net earnings per share for the first half of 1990 reached $1.16 (NIS 2.41), compared with $0.48 (NIS 1.00) per share in the first six months of last year.

The upswing in sales resulted from: improved dollar prices, especially for paper; increased volume of sales; and expanded activities.

The achievements of the company's reorganization program were notable during the first six months of 1990, resulting in increased efficiency, and cost savings in several areas, such as fewer work-hours per ton of paper produced and reduced percentage of broke.

The price of imported pulp dropped somewhat, following a thee-year period of steady price rises. This decrease had only a minor effect on production costs, however, since there was a 10 percent increase in energy costs during the first half of 1990, compared with last year.

Operating profit for the first half of 1990 rose by some 93 percent, and amounted to $7.7 million (NIS 16.0 million), compared with $4.0 million (NIS 8.3 million) in the same period last year.

Net financial expenditure amounted to $0.9 million (NIS 1.8 million) in the first six months of 1990, compared with $1.5 million (NIS 3.1 million) in the first half of 1989. This decrease is mainly due to a significant drop in the company's net liabilities due to a positive cash flow from operating activities.

The company's financial reserves (including cash and short-term deposits) amounted to some $46.5 million (NIS 96.6 million) at June 30, 1990, compared with $35.7 million (NIS 74.1 million) at the end of the corresponding period last year.

During the first half of 1990, the company invested about $4.6 million (NIS 9.6 million) in fixed assets, compared with about $4 million (NIS 8.2 million) during the same period last year. The investments were in various projects, including some which had been initiated in 1989.

CLEVELAND (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Charter One Financial, Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS: COFI), holding company for The First Federal Savings Bank, today reported that net income for the second quarter of 1990 rose 19 percent to $4.9 million from $4.2 million in the 1989 second quarter. Net income per share was up 11 percent to $0.69 versus $0.62 per share last year.

Net income for the first six months increased to $8.5 million, or $1.19 per share, from $8.4 million, equal to $1.21 per share, last year.

Charles John Koch, president and chief executive officer, said, "We are particularly gratified that second quarter net interest income, which is the major component of our core earnings, increased 16 percent over the prior year's quarter. The increase was primarily attributable to $1.2 billion in interest earning assets acquired midway through the second quarter with the acquisition of certain assets and the assumption of certain liabilities of the former Broadview Federal Savings Bank from the Resolution Trust Corporation. Even though the assimilation of Broadview is as yet incomplete, positive effects are already being seen in current results. The acquisition of assets was especially noteworthy because, based on the preliminary allocation of the purchase price, it resulted in no goodwill being recorded and no dilution of earnings per share."

Koch said the assimilation is proceeding on schedule. "We are extremely pleased with the high quality of the Broadview assets we selected. These are all exceptional quality, performing residential mortgages located principally in Ohio where the economy has been stable for some time."

During the quarter, Charter One also benefited from a $10.8 million pre-tax gain on the sale of 177,800 shares of Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (Freddie Mac) common stock. The decision to sell the shares was influenced by favorable market conditions and management's desire to increase the level of regulatory capital following the Broadview asset acquisition. After the sale of securities, the bank retains 253,560 shares of Freddie Mac stock at an average cost of $21.24 per share. On August 10, Freddie Mac closed at $68.00 per share.

During the quarter, the company established a $5.5 million provision for loan losses. Approximately $2 million of this provision was applied to a specific reserve against loans, previously reported in the first quarter, to a single commercial developer who has been experiencing cash flow difficulties. The balance of $3.5 million was based upon management's decision to increase the unallocated portion of the allowance for loan losses to accommodate growth in the loan portfolio and uncertain national economic conditions.

Koch noted that no other significant problem loans have developed and that First Federal's ratio of nonperforming assets to total assets of 1.15 percent is excellent and remains well below industry levels. He said the superior quality of the portfolio is attributable to the high concentration of single family residential mortgages in Ohio.

Charter One Financial, Inc.'s subsidiary, The First Federal Savings Bank, operates 69 offices in Ohio, covering the Greater Cleveland, Akron, Youngstown and Portsmouth markets, and Toledo, where the bank operates under the name People's Savings.

TORONTO (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - ARC International Corporation (AMEX, TSE: ATV) today announced consolidated operating results for the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990.

Net sales for the second quarter of 1990 were approximately $24.2 million compared to $24.8 million last year. For the six months ended June 30, sales were $44.1 million compared to $44.6 million. It should be noted that the 1989 comparative figures include sales of approximately $714,000 and $2.3 million, respectively, obtained from the microwave component manufacturing business which was sold earlier this year.

Second quarter net income from operations grew to $1,385,251 from $982,792 last year. For the six months, income from operations was $1,964,239 compared to $1,936,900.

Second quarter net income of $291,228 or $.04 per share compares to a net loss of $120,068 or $.02 per share last year. Year to date, net income of $169,194 or $.02 per share was achieved, compared to a net loss of $79,229 or $.01 per share a year ago.

Second quarter operating cash flow (net income plus the non-cash charges of depreciation and amortization) was $752,273 or $.11 per share compared to $209,886 or $.03 per share last year. Year to date, operating cash flow amounts to $1,079,122 or $.15 per share, compared to $710,964 or $.11 per share.

Commenting on the results, Arnold S. Tenney, president and chief executive officer of ARC, said: "We are pleased to report the improvement in operating performance and the return to profitability. The weakening North American economy however, gives us concern for the near term.

The recently formed Digital Cinema Disc Joint Venture is proceeding on schedule, and we expect to complete the project development by year end, and begin product manufacture and delivery to theaters in early 1991.

The Precision Technology subsidiary operated profitably during our second quarter and contributed modestly to the accompanying income statement.

Other marketing opportunities continue to be explored, including the distribution of products made by other manufacturers and contract manufacturing for others where such strategic associations could be beneficial for both partners. These developments show that opportunities for growth remain available to ARC even during periods of economic uncertainty as currently prevail in North America."

TAYLOR, MI (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Mazda Motor Corporation today announced the formation of a joint venture to manufacture transmissions for small cars in Thailand.

The new company will be called Sukosol and Mazda Engineering Co., LTD. (SMEC) and will be incorporated in September. Start-up operations are planned for January 1992. The new company is a collaboration between Mazda Motor Corporation, Toyo Menka Kaisha, Co., LTD., a Japanese trading company, and Kijkamol Sukosol Co., LTD., an existing Mazda distributor in Bangkok, Thailand.

The government of Thailand has been promoting its policy for the nation's localization of automobile components. In response to this, the new company will be established under the approval of the Board of Investment (BOI) with a total investment of about 4.2 billion yen.

The automotive market in Thailand has been active for Mazda vehicle sales, especially the Mazda 323 and Familia pickup. Both models continue to show positive performance, outpacing the overall increase in automotive sales. As a result of increasing sales, Mazda expects to expand its market share and improve its parts supply within the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) through this new company.

COEUR D'ALENE, ID (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Coeur d'Alene Mines Corp. (NYSE: CDE) today reported net income for the second quarter of 1990 of $707,000, or 7 cents per share, on total revenues of $13.1 million, compared to second-quarter 1989 net income of $2.5 million, or 25 cents per share, on total revenues of $18.3 million.

During the first six months of 1990, the company had net income of $3.1 million, or 32 cents per share, on total revenues of $27.5 million. First-half 1989 net income was $3.2 million, or 32 cents per share, on total revenues of $32.3 million.

The decline in total revenues and net income in the second quarter of 1990 was due to a decline in silver prices, a decrease in gain from the company's forward sales program and lower silver and gold production due to an accumulation of unprocessed inventory resulting from the commissioning of a new leach pad at Coeur d'Alene Mines' Rochester silver-gold mine. The new pad is now operational.

Silver prices during the second quarter of 1990 continued to decline to an average of $5 per ounce (Handy & Harman), compared to $5.51 per ounce for 1989's second quarter. Gold prices also declined in the second quarter to an average price of $365.07 per ounce (London final quotation), compared to $374.35 for the same quarter in 1989.

Gold production for Coeur d'Alene Mines in 1990's first half was 27,593 ounces, while silver production was 2,485,770 ounces. Gold production in 1989's first half was a record 34,954 ounces, and silver production was 2,584,357 ounces.

JACKSON, MS (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Mobile Telecommunication Technologies Corp., or Mtel (NASDAQ-NMS: MTTL), today reported an 85 percent increase in second quarter revenue compared with the same quarter a year ago.

Revenue totaled $15,339,757 for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, compared with $8,290,060 in the second quarter of 1989.

Net loss for the second quarter was $5,610,032 or 20 cents per share, versus a net loss of $2,581,349 or 10 cents per share, for the second quarter of 1989.

Mtel's net loss for the first half of 1990 was $10,288,309 or 36 cents per share compared with $5,640,762 or 23 cents per share for the first half of 1989.

"Mtel's second quarter revenue growth was driven by continued strong demand for the nationwide paging and voice mail services of SkyTel Corp.," said Robert Fugate, chief financial officer and treasurer of Mtel. "The net loss is in line with our expectations and reflects investment spending in marketing and network development to build up the number of SkyTel subscribers."

According to Fugate, the company had 95,800 units in service at the end of the second quarter. This figure includes 62,200 SkyPager(TM) units and 11,300 SkyTalk(TM) voice mail units in the United States, as well as 22,300 paging subscribers in the United Kingdom. Since the end of 1989, U.S. subscribers are up by 43 percent, and U.K. subscribers are up by 17 percent.

On Aug. 2, 1990, Mtel announced that it purchased the right to access the direct subscriber base of Metrocast, a nationwide paging service that will cease operations on Oct. 4, 1990. This move enables Mtel to offer SkyTel service to 1,500 Metrocast customers and also provides the opportunity to work with Metrocast's resellers to transfer their customers to the SkyTel system.

Mtel, headquartered in Jackson, Miss., is engaged in businesses that include nationwide paging and voice messaging services in the United States; nationwide paging services and paging system manufacturing in the United Kingdom; interests in other satellite-based telecommunications systems; air-to-ground and marine telecommunication systems; telephone answering service operations; and a digital microwave system serving southern California.

ST. PETERSBURG, FL (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Medcross, Inc. (NASDAQ: MDCR) President Robert M. Irvin, today said, "The many steps we have taken during the past six months are beginning to pay off. We have greatly reduced expenses while creating new business opportunities."

Medcross, Inc. today reported a net profit of $14,393 or $.002 per share for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990 compared to a loss of $92,745 or $.018 per share for the same quarter in 1989. Revenues for the second quarter of 1990 were $978,531 compared to $1,049,596 for the same quarter of 1989.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, revenues were $1,891,721 compared to $2,213,229 for the same six-month period of 1989. Medcross realized a net loss for the six months ended June 30, 1990 of $13,510 or $.002 per share compared to a net loss of $77,473 or $.015 per share in the comparable 1989 period.

Irvin went on to say, "The status of gallstone lithotripsy is still uncertain. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has not yet indicated what steps will be necessary for the lithotripsy manufacturers to receive approval to sell their products to us and other lithotripsy customers. We are confident that once FDA approval is received, Medcross will be in an even stronger position to be a major provider of lithotripsy services. Most prospective users have indicated that they will want service on a shared, mobile basis instead of purchasing their own in-house system. Mobile lithotripsy is more cost effective.

"We cannot afford to sit and wait for FDA approval of gallstone lithotripsy. We are moving forward in other areas to increase the company's revenues and profits. We are marketing our mobile magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) partnership and hope to be in operation before the end of the year. We also intend to have a new mobile kidney lithotripsy program in operation by year end. Both of these projects look very favorable and should greatly increase the company's profits.

"We are actively pursuing acquisitions of other companies. Our goal is to make at least one profitable acquisition before year end."

Medcross provides management services to healthcare ventures and consulting services to hospitals, clinics and healthcare professionals. The businesses that Medcross owns and/or operates include mobile and fixed-based computerized tomography, mobile and fixed-based kidney lithotripsy, mobile gallstone lithotripsy, and mobile ultrasound services.

EVANSTON, IL (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Citibank and the National Lekotek Center (NLC) have launched a joint venture to develop resource centers in three Latin American countries for families of children with disabilities. With the opening of the first Lekotek Center in Argentina, Citibank is providing $150,000 over three years to allow Lekotek to start up centers in Argentina, Brazil and Ecuador.

Four years ago, Citibank helped Lekotek develop its United States network of services for children with disabilities. Now Citibank is making it a priority to build these same services for families in Latin America. On Tuesday, Aug. 8, Citibank's Chairman, John Reed was present for the opening of the Lekotek site in Buenos Aires. Reed, addressing a gathering of Argentine officials and Citibank and Lekotek representatives said, "As an international bank, Citibank recognizes that there are certain needs in society that exist in every part of the world. We'd like to be involved not only in economic investments, but in social investments as well. It's very important for the Citibank family, and we have participated in similar projects around the world."

The National Lekotek Center, headquartered in Evanston, Ill., now has 52 sites in 20 states. Based on a model developed in Sweden, Lekotek provides information and support to families of children with a disability.

At the core of Lekotek services is play modelling. "Play is the way all children learn and the natural way that parents and children relate. Play is especially critical for a child with a disability if he is to reach his fullest potential," said Marilyn Lederer, acting executive director of the National Lekotek Center.

In monthly sessions, specially trained professionals demonstrate play techniques to family members. Using conventional toys and games -- and some that are especially adapted for children with physical or cognitive impairments -- play is used to encourage acceptance of the child and his abilities by family members.

In 1986, Citibank granted the largest, single private donation to NLC to create 13 new sites in the United States. Now in an unprecedented move, Citibank is providing a new major donation to help meet some of the critical needs of families in Latin American countries. Lekotek will set up each of the sites (in Buenos Aires, Sao Paulo and Quito) and provide the training of Lekotek leaders, offer advice on the inventory of toys for each site, and suggest methods of recruitment of families for each program.

After the technical assistance stage, the Citibank branch in each city will support the actual operation of the site for a three-year period. During that time, NLC will provide evaluation and support of each site.

Citibank is the nation's largest commercial bank with assets totalling $230 billion. It has more than 1,000 offices in 43 states and more than 2,000 additional offices in 89 countries around the world. In 1989 Citibank gave $22 million for education, health and human services, community development, and cultural programs worldwide.

MIAMI (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Eastern Airlines said customers can beat the industry-wide fare increases for fall travel by buying a seat at Eastern's "beat the increase" price by Aug. 29. The new fares range from $69 to $139 each way, for travel from Sept. 5 through Dec. 16.

"For a limited period we're offering fares well below current prices at a time when most fares are increasing," said George Brennan, senior vice president-marketing. "Now is the time to lock in a low fare with Eastern for travel during the fall season."

Brennan said previously announced fuel-related fare increases will not apply to these fall sale prices. The fall fares are good for travel to all of the airline's 62 domestic destinations.

Eastern said most of the roundtrip fares are based on a mileage formula: Trips less than 300 miles are $138; 301 to 1,260 miles, $158; 1,261 to 1,800 miles, $218; and more than 1,801 miles $278. Fares may be $20 more each way in certain markets during peak travel times. Off-peak travel rates are available noon Monday through noon Thursday and all day Saturday.

Eastern said all tickets must be purchased by Aug. 29, but remain fully refundable, without penalty. A Saturday night stay is required and the fall sale rates are not available during the peak Thanksgiving holiday period, Nov. 21 and 25-26.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FL (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - BankAtlantic (NASDAQ-NMS: ASAL), as part of its continuing commitment to expand its retail banking business, has introduced a new, "bundled" tiered savings/checking account that offers one of the highest money-market yields in the nation for large balances.

The tiered structure yields a return of 8.33 percent for balances in the plan's highest tier, 7.79 percent and 7.25 percent for mid-size balances, and 6.45 percent and 5.65 percent for balances in the two lower tiers. The plan combines money-market checking, several discounted or free bank services, and a number of other features with the tiered savings structure.

The interest rate increases on the savings balance as the balance moves up from one tier to the next. The higher the balance, the higher the return. Moreover, as customers add increments to move from one tier to the next, they can earn very high rates on the incremental additions. For example, by adding $1,000 to a $9,000 balance, the extra interest on the $1,000 increment will be at a rate of 14.5 percent.

"We have carefully constructed this full-service retail banking package to make it very compelling for people to come to BankAtlantic to take advantage of the package's high-yield savings, money-market checking, discounted consumer loans and host of other services," said John O'Neill, BankAtlantic's executive vice president-Community Banking.

"Our goal is simple and straightforward: we want to increase substantially the number of customers who utilize BankAtlantic as their primary banking institution," O'Neill explained. "And we're doing this by delivering a complete package of banking products that people have told us they want and that they can't find elsewhere."

The new account combines money-market checking with a tiered interest-rate structure that O'Neill said is "very attractive" in comparison to other money market funds in the South Florida region and nationally. The following tables shows the rate and annual yield for the plan's varying balance tiers. Interest is compounded daily.

TORONTO (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Rayrock Yellowknife Resources Inc. (TSE: RAY) announced today that net earnings for the period ended June 30, 1990, were $1,654,000 or $0.16 per share compared with $3,111,000 or $0.32 per share in 1989.

The decline in earnings resulted from higher exploration and depreciation expenses. Funds provided by operations were $3,914,000 or $0.40 per share for 1990 compared to $6,120,000 or $0.63 per share during 1989.

Total revenue was $36.7 million, an increase from $28.9 million in 1989, as a result of higher sales volumes from both the agricultural mineral and gold mining businesses. Western Ag-Mineral's sales volume was 23 percent higher in the first half of 1990 compared with the same period last year due mainly to sales that were deferred from the fourth quarter of 1989, as well as increased export demand.

On a July 1989 to June 1990 fertilizer year basis, record sales were achieved by Western Ag. Rayrock's share of gold production increased 53 percent to 23,779 ounces at an average price of US$401 per ounce in 1990 compared with 15,566 ounces at US$417 in 1989.

The increase in the company's pro rata gold production is due to the inclusion of production from the new Marigold gold mine and from the additional interest in the Dee mine acquired last October.

Ore mined at the Dee gold mine remained below reserve grade during the first half of 1990. Tonnages mined and milled increased to partially offset this lower production, resulting in higher operating costs. Some improvement is anticipated; however, grades will remain below budget for the remainder of the year.

Rayrock's composite direct cash operating cost averaged US$243 per ounce of gold compared with US$202 per ounce in 1989. Depreciation costs were approximately $1.2 million higher.

As a result of increased exploration activities, Rayrock's exploration expenses were $1.3 million in 1990 compared to $800,000 during the same period in 1989.

At the Stonehouse gold deposit located on the Marigold property, the initial 150-hole exploration drilling program has been completed. A number of mineralized zones have been outlined in an area 3,000 feet by 1,000 feet based on widely spaced drilling.

This deposit remains open to the east and the south and at depth. An infill drilling program is currently in progress and applications for stripping permits have been made in order to obtain additional geological information from test mining. It is still too early to calculate reserves at this discovery.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Devon Energy Corp. (AMEX: DVN) today reported an increase in earnings for the second quarter and first half of 1990. Net income for the second quarter of 1990 rose to $63,000, compared with a loss of $100,000 for the 1989 second quarter. However, on a per common share basis the company reported a net loss of $(0.06) per share versus $(0.01) for the second quarter. The difference in absolute versus per share comparative results was due to preferred stock dividends payable in the 1990 period but not in the 1989 period.

Net income for the first half of 1990 rose to $335,000, versus a loss of $(263,000) for the same period in 1989. On a per common share basis, a net loss of $(0.10) was reported for the first six months of 1990 after payment of preferred stock dividends. This compares with a loss of $(0.03) for the first half of 1989, when no preferred dividends were due.

Decreases in every category of expense for 1990 more than offset a decline in total revenues for both the second quarter and first half of 1990, resulting in the improved earnings. Revenue declines from $7.4 million to $5.7 million, or 23 percent, in the second quarter, and from $14.7 million to $12.5 million, or 14 percent, in the first half were primarily due to decreases in both oil production and the average oil price. Most of the remaining decrease was the result of a $522,000 settlement of a gas contract claim in the 1989 second quarter which did not recur in 1990.

Total assets increased over 20 percent to $118.4 million, compared to $97.9 million at year-end 1989. A $7.4-million acquisition of certain Texas properties in the first quarter of 1990 and a $7.2 million acquisition of additional interests in the Northeast Bianco Unit of New Mexico provided most of the advance in total assets. These acquisitions also raised the company's natural gas reserves by 34.4 billion cubic feet.

Devon Energy Corp. is an independent energy company engaged primarily in oil and gas producing property acquisitions, exploration and production activities, and oil and natural gas remarketing.

LEXINGTON, KY (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Kentucky Central Life Insurance Company (NASDAQ: KENCA) posted net income of $13.7 million for the first six months of 1990, equal to $1.01 per share.

The announcement was made today by W.E. Burnett, Jr., chairman of the board and president of the 87-year-old Lexington-based insurer.

Net income for the corresponding period in 1989 was $19.7 million, equal to $1.45 per share.

The company showed an increase in revenue for the period. This was offset however, by higher than anticipated expenses, particularly in benefits paid on life and claims paid on property and casualty policies. Operations of subsidiary companies adversely affected the six-month results; a severe freeze at the citrus groves and, following a national trend, a decline in advertising revenue of the broadcasting properties.

For the three-month period ended June 30, net income was $5.9 million, equal to 43 cents per share. Net income for the same period a year ago was $13.2 million, equal to 97 cents per share.

Growth of life insurance in force continued at a steady pace. The goal of $50 billion of life insurance in force was reached in the first quarter of the year and the total was $52.6 billion at the end of the second quarter. This represented an increase of $8.5 billion, or 19 percent, over the $44.1 billion in force at mid-year 1989.

Life insurance sales for the first six months of 1990 amounted to $8.4 billion, with $4.1 billion coming in the second quarter.

Total revenue for the first six months of 1990 was $236.8 million, compared to $206.8 million for the first half of 1989, an increase of 15 percent.

Revenue by category for the first six months was as follows: Insurance premiums, $93.7 million, up 24 percent. Policy charges from Universal Life and other investment contracts, $39.5 million, up 21 percent.

CLEVELAND (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - ProLine(TM), a family of server-based tape backup and optical disk subsystems specifically designed for Novell networks, was unveiled today by Tecmar.

Each ProLine system is a complete solution consisting of a high capacity Tecmar drive, SCSI interface board, NetWare-optimized ProServe(TM) software, storage media, and all necessary cabling.

Unlike most LAN backup systems, ProLine attaches directly to the central file server, rather than to a dedicated workstation on the network. As a result, backup operations are faster because server data does not have to travel across the network.

According to Tecmar, ProLine is the first complete LAN backup system that allows industry standard tape and optical disk drives to operate at their maximum performance levels within a network environment. Data transfer rates as high as 14.4 MB per minute are possible with the ProLine 2200 8mm tape drive.

The key to achieving such performance lies in the architecture of ProServe, ProLine's powerful network management software. Tightly integrated into the Novell environment, ProServe functions as a Novell-certified Value-Added Process (VAP) under NetWare 286 and as a Network-Loadable Module (NLM) under NetWare 386. This allows the Novell LAN administrator to run ProServe concurrently with other Novell software and perform network backup as a background operation.

The ProServe software allows all backup operations to be stored in a queue that is defined, controlled, and prioritized by the supervisor, resulting in greater network data security.

Other features of the ProServe software include database management of tapes and backup data, generation of reports from a transaction database, and the ability to maintain a log of workstation and server tape operations.

ProServe also provides job scheduling, so that any backup session can be scheduled and assigned a place in a priority queue. Job scripts may be created, stored, and re-used for common backup sequences. Both DOS and Macintosh files may be backed up on the same ProLine system.

Available immediately, Tecmar is offering ProLine in a variety of storage configurations: 250MB or 525MB quarter-inch tape drives, 1.3GB 4mm DAT tape drive, 2.2GB 8mm helical scan tape drive, and 650MB erasable optical disk drive. Prices range from $2,595 to $8,495.

WHITE HAVEN, PA. (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Electronics, Missiles & Communications Inc. (NASDAQ: ECIN) today announced the results of its first quarter of fiscal 1990 as follows:

Quarters ended	Fiscal 1991 June 1990	Fiscal 1990 June 1989
Net sales	$1,618,136	$2,499,943
Net income (loss)	(152,341)	234,265(A)
Earnings per common share:

Net income (loss) per common share	(.04)	.06

(A) An extraordinary tax benefit of $79,000 is included in net income for fiscal 1990.

During the first quarter, sales were down due to a soft economy, and the fact that no major contracts were included. On the up side, the gross profit as a percentage of sales remains constant at 29 percent. With the anticipated increase in sales volume, profitability will return.

Company management projected a potential loss in the first quarter based on sharp reduction in orders for April. This affected sales in May and June. In addition, a major customer postponed a significant release for production which was scheduled for June.

Order backlog is up from $2.5 million in April '90 to more than $3 million by the end of June '90. This will increase output in July and August.

DENVER (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Scientific Software-Intercomp Inc. (NASDAQ: SSFT) today reported unaudited net income of $35,000 or $0.01 per share on revenues of $5,902,000 for the quarter ended June 30, 1990. This compares with net income of $197,000 or $0.05 per share on revenues of $5,666,000 for the quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Dr. Robert C. McFarlane, president of the Denver-based supplier of proprietary software and consulting services to the worldwide oil and gas industry, stated that revenues for the quarter were up $236,000, or 4 percent from second quarter 1989 and up almost $1,000,000 or 19 percent from first quarter 1990. Increased software licenses and revenues from newly signed consulting contracts were the principal reasons for these increases.

McFarlane also noted that operating results were on-target with the company's operating plan which is aimed at repositioning the company's software products and consulting services from main frame computer dependence to desktop computers. During this period the company has maintained high levels of research and development expense and has introduced two major new products, the SSI Petroleum Workbench and SAMMI II. Additional expenditures have been required to build a sales force to effectively introduce these products to this marketplace.

The SSI Petroleum Workbench was formally announced and demonstrated at the recent Society of Petroleum Engineers Computer Show in June and was the hit of the show. The system is currently in beta test with three oil companies and deliveries are scheduled to begin in late September. Initial impact of this product on revenues is expected in late fourth quarter and early 1991.

McFarlane said, "SAMMI II, our human interface management system, gained acceptance by several major aerospace contractors related to America's space station, Freedom, and is under evaluation by the U.S. Air Force and European Space Agency. In addition, we have begun discussions with system integrators and other industries. Initial deliveries should commence later in the year and initial revenue impact should begin during the second half and increase through 1991."

SSI, for more than twenty years, has provided high technology software and consulting services to the oil and gas industry. The company has offices in Denver, Bakersfield, Houston, Calgary, London and Cairo.

KING OF PRUSSIA, PA (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - International Mobile Machines Corp. (NASDAQ: IMMCC) today announced that the company is completing installation of Ultraphone(R) wireless digital radiotelephone systems in five locations in Mexico under a $1.64 million contract with Telefonos de Mexico S.A. de C.V. (Telmex) sold with the assistance of their representative, Rolm Telecommunicaciones S.A. de C.V.

Beginning this July, residents of the Cancun to Tulum tourist district, Cuatemoc in the state of Chihuahua, Los Cabos in the Southern Baja California Peninsula, Cuidad Juarez in the state of Chihuahua and Culuacan in Sinaloa state will have their own phones for the first time. Installation for these five sites is expected to be completed in September.

The first installation, completed the first week of July, brought service to Mennonite households in Cuatemoc. That site currently has a capacity of 120 subscribers with potential expansion into the thousands.

Currently, millions of Mexican citizens, especially in rural areas, lack phone service. Telmex estimated expenditures to rework its national infrastructure -- directed toward digitizing the network and solving the rural backlog -- at $12-$14 billion.

Telmex has standardized the IMM Ultraphone radiotelephone system as the technology of choice to serve customers who do not yet have phone service.

"We spent the past 24 months working with Telmex," said G. James Bracknell IMM's executive vice president. "We're very pleased that Telmex has standardized on the Ultraphone system to address their mounting backlog of requirements."

"Telmex is a first-class organization to work with," Bracknell said, "and we look forward to a long and rewarding future as an approved supplier to the Mexican PTT."

IMM is a world leader in wireless digital access technologies.

SOUTH NORWALK, CONN. (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - American Equine Products, Inc. (AEP) (OTC) announced today that it acquired Docktor Pet Centers, Inc., the largest franchiser of pet stores in the United States. Stores in the Docktor Pet Centers chain sell purebred puppies, kittens, birds, tropical fish and other small animals, as well as a broad selection of dry goods for pets. AEP currently owns ten Docktor Pet Centers franchise stores located in shopping malls in New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

In connection with this acquisition, the former owners of Docktor Pet Centers received shares of Series E preferred stock of AEP that may be converted into AEP common stock representing 20 percent of the equity in AEP. Each share of series E preferred stock has voting rights equivalent to the number of shares of common stock into which it is convertible. In exchange for certain payments, the former owners of Docktor Pet Centers have agreed, among other things, not to compete with Docktor Pet following the acquisition.

AEP also announced that, concurrently with the acquisition, it completed a private placement to institutional investors of approximately $3 million of its Series C and Series D redeemable preferred stock, priced at $2.50 per share. Each share of preferred stock is initially convertible into 25 shares of AEP common Stock. The 880,00 shares of Series D preferred stock have voting rights equivalent to the number of shares common stock into which they are convertible. Most of the investors participating in the private placement are holders of outstanding shares of other series of AEP preferred stock. These investors have the power to designate a majority of AEP's board members.

Of the proceeds received by AEP in the private placement, approximately $500,000 was used to reduce the balance due under a mortgage of the headquarters building of Docktor Pet Centers and will be credited against the purchase price of the building if a purchase option granted to Docktor Pet Centers is exercised. The balance of the proceeds will be used to pay transaction expenses and for working capital of AEP and Docktor Pet Centers.

In addition to its Docktor Pet Centers operations, American Equine Products manufactures and markets several lines of horse care and equine health products, including Redglo, Vetrolin and Forshner's Medicated Hoofpacking, and has the exclusive distribution rights for Hylartin V.

The loss for the quarter and the net income for the year are the same as the preliminary earnings release made on Aug. 1, 1990. During the quarter ended June 30, 1990, LSI Industries continued to experience softness in its indoor/outdoor commercial lighting business. Additionally, sales of its graphics group were below prior year levels for the June quarter principally due to graphics programs of certain petroleum customers being deferred or reduced in scope. Further, Duramark Ltd., LSI's U.K. graphics subsidiary, experienced significant unexpected costs relating to entering the U.K. and European architectural graphics markets.

Correction actions are being taken by all LSI operations to speed introduction of new products, increase sales and reduce spending. To address quality and installation problems related to the European graphics program, the products for that market are being redesigned to reduce costs and better meet local market needs.

LSI board of directors is pleased to also announce that its third annual dividend of $.05 (five cents) per share will be payable on Sept. 14 to shareholders of record as of Aug. 31, 1990.

LSI designs, engineers, manufactures and markets a wide range of high-quality indoor, outdoor and landscape lighting fixtures and graphic products to retail gasoline facilities and a major supplier to the fast-food restaurant and automobile dealership markets. TULSA, Okla. (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Samson Energy Co. Ltd. Partnership (AMEX: SAM) today announced its financial results for the quarter and the six months ended June 30, 1990.

THREE-MONTH FINANCIAL RESULTS Revenues for the three months ended June 30, 1990, were $3,544,000, an increase of 5 percent compared with $3,368,000 for the three months ended June 30, 1989. Cash flow from operating activities for the current quarter was $2,778,000, compared with $2,875,000 for the second quarter 1989, a decline of 3 percent. Cash flow from operating activities in both quarters includes certain payments in excess of gas sales. Based on average units outstanding, cash flow from operating activities for the second quarter of 1990 was 62 cents per unit, compared with 66 cents per unit for the second quarter of 1989.

Samson Energy's net loss for the quarter was $1,022,000 (23-cent loss per unit), compared with a net loss of $251,000 (6-cent loss per unit) for the second quarter of 1989. The increased net loss is attributable to the recent settlement of a pricing dispute involving a gas well in which Samson Energy owns a 36 percent working interest. In the lawsuit, in which an affiliate of Samson Energy was the plaintiff, both parties sought damages. In the settlement, neither party recovered any damages. However $753,000 was recorded in the second quarter of 1990 as an adjustment to what Samson Energy had previously recorded as a receivable from the gas purchaser but which is now no longer recoverable based on the settlement. This expense did not affect cash flow, and no additional expenses related to this dispute will be incurred.

SIX-MONTH FINANCIAL RESULTS Revenues for the six months ended June 30, 1990, were $7,892,000, an increase of 6 percent compared with $7,446,000 for the six months ended June 30, 1989. Cash flow from operating activities for the current six months was $6,824,000 ($1.53 per unit), compared with $6,764,000 ($1.72 per unit) for the six months ended June 30 1989. Cash flow in both periods includes certain payments in excess of gas sales. Net loss for the current six months was $659,000 (15-cent loss per unit), compared with net income of $21,000 (1 cent per unit) for the first six months of 1989. The current six-month loss is attributable to the lawsuit settlement described above.

COMMENTARY "In light of the very warm winter and resultant industry-wide weakness in natural gas demand and price, Samson Energy's results are encouraging. For the current six months, average prices of natural gas and oil and production of oil were higher than the like period in 1989, and gas production was only 1 percent lower. During the past six months, cash flow from operating activities was evenly divided between cash distributions for unitholders and reserve replacement through new drilling and producing property acquisitions. Approximately $3,000,000 has been spent on development drilling and $500,000 on the purchase of producing properties. We expect to aggressively pursue our reserve development activities while maintaining our attractive cash distribution," stated Dennis R. Neill, senior vice president and chief operating officer of Samson Properties Inc., the general partner.

Samson Energy Co. is a publicly traded master limited partnership whose principal business activities include the development and operation of oil and gas properties and the acquisition of additional producing properties. Depositary receipts evidencing units are traded on the American Stock Exchange under the symbol SAM.

PITTSBURGH (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - PNC Financial Corp (NYSE: PNC) today announced the introduction of a program which will make available tax-deferred annuities and mutual funds for sale throughout its network of 530 bank branches.

The program, ProVest, will begin operation today in 63 Ohio and Kentucky branches of PNC's Central Bancorporation. Over the next year, additional PNC banks will begin to offer ProVest products.

ProVest is offered in conjunction with GNA Corp., a financial services company, which specializes in the design and marketing of annuities, insurance and securities products for financial institutions.

R. Steven Bonnett, PNC senior vice president of retail investment, said, "Research confirms that people prefer to consolidate their financial affairs where they bank. This program allows us to keep up with the changing financial needs of our customers by offering a wider selection of products and services."

Bonnett added that the program will benefit PNC both immediately, and in the long term. "It will earn fee-income, plus it will strengthen customer relationships at all levels of our banks and will expand our customer base as ProVest attracts new business," he said.

"This income will be earned with essentially no added overhead," said Bonnett. "And by offering these products to the extent that the law now permits, PNC is positioning itself to bring them in-house if banks gain the additional powers."

ATLANTA (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency will hold a public meeting on a proposed plan for addressing soil contamination at the Ciba-Geigy Superfund site on Thursday, Aug. 16 in McIntosh, Ala.

The meeting will be held at the McIntosh Town Hall in Washington County. The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. with a presentation on the remedial investigation/feasibility study and the proposed plan. EPA will then answer questions and accept comments from the public.

The Ciba-Geigy site, located 1,000 feet northeast of McIntosh, was placed on the National Priorities List (NPL) in September 1983. The McIntosh Plant covers approximately 1,500 acres (or 2.4 square miles) about 50 miles north of Mobile, Ala. The plant, adjacent to the Southern Railroad on the west and the Tombigbee River on the east, has been in operation since the early 1950s producing various agricultural chemicals. In September 1989, EPA selected a remedy for one portion of the site which endorsed the pumping and treating of contaminated groundwater begun by Ciba-Geigy in 1988.

This proposed plan calls for addressing the soil contamination in 11 waste management areas identified at the site. The three alternatives being proposed for cleaning up these areas include containment and stabilization for some areas; stabilization and on-site land vault containment; and on-site incineration, stabilization and on-site land vault disposal.

The public is encouraged to review EPA's Proposed Plan and submit comments to the agency during the 30-day comment period which began July 30 and extends to Aug. 30. The plan and other documents pertaining to the site are available for review at the McIntosh Town Hall and the McIntosh Library. Comments should be mailed to Charles L. King Jr., Remedial Project Manager, U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, 345 Courtland St. NE, Atlanta, GA 30365 postmarked before Aug. 30.

ST. LOUIS (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Comprehensive Care Corp. (NYSE: CMP) today announced that the dissident group of stockholders waging a consent solicitation to remove and replace the company's current directors had delivered to the company on Aug. 1, 1990, written consents purporting to represent in excess of a majority of the company's outstanding common stock and purporting to remove and replace the company's current directors. On Aug. 2, 1990, in connection with the company's litigation against the dissident group of stockholders, the U.S. District Court for the Central District of California granted the company's application for a temporary restraining order prohibiting the defendants (including the dissident group) from tendering any consents and purporting to exercise control over the company prior to the company's preliminary injunction motion scheduled for Aug. 6, 1990. The restraining order also temporarily restrained the effectiveness of the consents that were tendered by the dissident group on Aug. 1, 1990.

On Monday, Aug. 6, 1990, the District Court ruled that it would issue a preliminary injunction and, although the District Court has not formally issued the order, the company believes, based on the Aug. 6 hearing before the District Court, that the preliminary injunction will enjoin the dissident group from tendering any consents prior to Aug. 19, 1990, at 4:30 p.m. EDT, using any consents prior to that time, and purporting and/or attempting to exercise control over the company prior to that time. The company also believes that the preliminary injunction order will provide that the consents tendered by the dissident group on Aug. 1, 1990, will have no force or effect prior to expiration of the preliminary injunction. The company's complaint in the litigation alleged violations of the federal securities laws and regulations relating to the dissident group's consent solicitation, their acquisitions of the company's securities and their filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

HOUSTON (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Plains Resources (AMEX: PLX) today reported a net loss of $672,000, or 12 cents per share, on total revenue of $8,567,000 for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, as compared with net income of $1,516,000, or 32 cents per share, on total revenue of $6,086,000 for the second quarter of 1989. Operating cash flow for the quarter was $1,316,000 as compared with $2,849,000 for the corresponding quarter in 1989. Plains said that the sharp contrast in its quarter-to-quarter comparison of net income and operating cash flow primarily reflects the one-time effect of its settlement of certain natural gas contract litigation during the second quarter of 1989.

During the second quarter of 1990, Plains' oil production increased 183 percent to nearly 82,000 barrels from 29,000 barrels in the prior year's second quarter, despite the temporary loss of production from certain fields during the quarter due to flood conditions in southeast Texas and Louisiana. The substantial increase in Plains' oil production resulted primarily from work performed since the beginning of the year on properties acquired during the latter half of 1989, Plains said. Plains' gas production also increased 20 percent during the quarter to 1.2 billion cubic feet from about one billion cubic feet in the prior year's quarter, the company said.

Although its oil and gas production increased significantly during the quarter, Plains said that the oil and gas prices realized for its production registered sharp declines from the prior year's level. The average price received by Plains for its oil production fell to $16.73 per barrel, down $2.50 from the $19.23 barrel received in the prior year's quarter. Plains' average gas price for the second quarter declined 37 percent to $1.76 per Mcf from the prior year's second quarter level of $2.79 per Mcf which included the effects the company's settlement of gas contract litigation.

For the first half of 1990, Plains recorded a net loss of $865,000, or 17 cents per share, on total revenue of $15,894,000. This compares with net income of $741,000, or 7 cents per share, on total revenue of $10,258,000 for the same period in 1989. Operating cash flow for the first six months of 1990 was $3,152,000 as contrasted with $3,719,000 for the comparable period in 1989.

TROY, MICH. (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - R.P. Scherer Corporation reported today record operating income for the quarter ended June 30. Sales increased 2.5 percent from the same period last year.

Sales for the first quarter of the current fiscal year were $82.1 million, an increase of 2.5 percent over $80.1 million reported for the same period last year. Sales for the company's core drug delivery systems segment increased to $72.0 million from $63.0 million last year, an increase of over 14 percent. Offsetting this sales increase was a $7 million reduction in the company's contract packaging segment, reflecting delays in the start-up of certain new customer programs, as well as the scheduled termination of contract R&D services.

Operating income for the first quarter increased 31 percent, reaching $16.1 million; compared with operating income last year of $12.4 million, before a non-recurring restructuring charge of $5.4 million. This improvement is the result of increased gross margins in the drug delivery systems segment, as well as significant cost reductions implemented following the acquisition of Scherer last year. The effects of these improvements in operating income were partially offset by a $0.9 million increase in goodwill amortization resulting from the accounting for the acquisition.

Income from continuing operations before income taxes and minority interests was $3.8 million; compared with a first-quarter loss of $4.4 million for the previous fiscal year. During the current quarter ended June 30, the company experienced a $10.9 million increase in interest expense as a result of incremental debt incurred in connection with the acquisition. The results for the prior-year quarter include the previously mentioned restructuring charge of $5.4 million, and $9.6 million of non-operating expenses for investment banking, legal, stock option cancellation, and other acquisition-related costs.

A net loss of $1.9 million was recorded for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, since the pre-tax earnings were more than offset by a $4.3 million income tax provision. The income tax provisions for the first quarter of both 1991 and 1990 fiscal years represent principally foreign income taxes. The company is unable to recognize any federal income tax benefit on its domestic losses which resulted from the heavy interest expense burden in fiscal 1991, and the restructuring and other non-recurring charges in fiscal 1990.

MAYFIELD HEIGHTS, OH (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The Progressive Corporation (NYSE: PRG), the nation's 10th largest auto insurer, will make safety the number one criteria for choosing vehicles for its company car fleet, according to Peter B. Lewis, President and CEO.

"Cars built and equipped for safety will save lives, reduce injuries and help control the rising cost of auto accidents," said Lewis. "We want to protect Progressive employees by providing fleet cars that increase their chances of walking away from a crash. We want to create an incentive for auto manufacturers to continue to improve structural design integrity and safety features."

According to Lewis, Progressive will choose its fleet vehicles each year by reviewing all available independent data on vehicle safety, interviewing auto safety experts and visiting auto manufacturers to review their safety programs. For 1990, Progressive will offer its 900 fleet drivers a choice of the Ford Taurus, Mercury Sable or Volvo 240.

"We used the best independent published data on vehicle safety we could find to make this year's selections," said Lewis. "Based on available information, the Volvo is the best choice among imported cars and the Ford Taurus/Mercury Sable has the best rating of American cars. But there is no single, objective, independent source that allows accurate comparisons of all makes, models and model years in all crash and emergency situations. More testing and analysis needs to be done to help all consumers choose the safest car.

"We seek and welcome new data to help us make future selections of Progressive fleet vehicles," said Lewis. "We will continue to monitor new safety rating information as it becomes available to insure our fleet cars have excellent safety standards."

DENVER (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - MinVen Gold Corp. (AMEX; TORONTO: MVG) announces today that mining operations at its Blackdome Mine, located in British Columbia, Canada will cease late in the fourth quarter of 1990. The Blackdome Mine began production of gold and silver in April, 1986. By the end of July, 1990 this high-grade mine had produced 202,652 ounces of gold and 627,537 ounces of silver from 336,951 tons of ore.

On March 23, 1990, MinVen reported that it had written down the carrying value of its investment in the Blackdome Mine due to a significant decline in grade of ore being mined. MinVen has since reported the discovery of a high-grade zone in the No. 18 Vein. At current rates of mining, it is expected that this high-grade shoot will be mined out by November, 1990 and the ore processed by late December, 1990.

James A. Anderson, president and chief executive officer, said, "MinVen's efforts to replace the high-grade gold ore mined at Blackdome have been unsuccessful to date. It is prudent at this time to cease mining operations until MinVen has assessed the full potential of the property. Ore reserves are not sufficient to continuously operate the mill past November, 1990. However, operations will re-commence in the event Blackdome develops additional reserves."

MinVen Gold is a publicly held, Denver-based mining company with interests in five operating mines in the United States and Canada, including the Blackdome Mine. Its shares are traded on the American, Toronto and Vancouver stock exchanges under the symbol MVG.

ARLINGTON, VA (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Columbia First Bank, a Federal Savings Bank (NASDAQ-NMS: CFFS) reported net income available to stockholders of $44,000, or 1 cent per share, for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, compared to $533,000, or 19 cents per share, for the same quarter in 1989. For the nine months ended June 30, 1990, the bank reported net income available to stockholders of $2,364,000, or 80 cents per share, compared with $465,000, or 17 cents per share, for the prior year period.

The $489,000 decrease in third quarter earnings from a year ago resulted from a $2,123,000 increase in the provision for loan losses offsetting increases in net interest income of $1,694,000, a gain on the early retirement of debt of $619,000 net of taxes, and decreases in compensation of $693,000, annual meeting and litigation costs of $1,161,000, and income tax expense of $824,000. The third quarter 1989 earnings also reflect a before tax gain of $3,400,000 from the sale of Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation preferred stock.

The $1,899,000 increase in earnings for the nine months ending June 30, 1990, compared to the same period in 1989 reflects increased net interest income of $2,076,000 and decreased costs for compensation of $998,000, marketing of $985,000, and annual meeting and related litigation costs of $2,258,000. These improvements from operations are offset by increases in the provision for losses on loans of $2,770,000 and income taxes of $809,000. The 1990 earnings also reflect a $2,450,000 before tax gain from settlement of an insurance claim and litigation while the 1989 earnings reflected a $3,400,000 before tax gain from sale of Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation preferred stock.

The increased provision for losses on loans reflects increases in certain loan portfolio segments and the deteriorating regional real estate market. The bank has established a program to further increase, by Sept. 30, 1990 the allowance for losses on loans from the current balance of $4,500,000 to $7,800,000, subject to change to reflect improvement or deterioration in the loan portfolio and regional real estate market. Due to the increased level of commercial and consumer loans, the bank has also embarked on a program to strengthen the allowance for loan losses through fiscal year 1991 with an additional increase of approximately $2,400,000 in the coming year.

Columbia First Bank currently operates 27 banking offices and five loan origination offices in Virginia, Maryland, and the District of Columbia, with total assets of $2.2 billion. The bank's capital base exceeds all current Office of Thrift Supervision capital requirements.

RALEIGH, NC (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Firstcorp, Inc. (AMEX: FCR) reported a net loss of $5.5 million, or $1.70 a share, for the three months ended June 30, 1990, due principally to its portfolio of troubled assets.

The nonperforming assets cost the Company approximately $6.3 million from interest income foregone, net losses on the sale of real estate, expenses related to selling and managing the troubled assets and some additional reserves.

Pursuant to the terms of a capital plan filed with the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) by the Company's principal subsidiary, First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Raleigh (FFR), FFR plans to sell its nonperforming assets to an unaffiliated liquidating entity. The OTS is reviewing FFR's plan and a decision is anticipated this fall.

Willard G. Ross, Acting President, stated that FFR had received a letter from the OTS stating that during its review of the plan and based on the institution's current capital position, it had classified FFR as "subject to greater restrictions" under the provisions of applicable OTS regulations.

While so classified, FFR will be permitted, within limitations, to make one-to-four family mortgage loans, FHA and VA loans, secured consumer loans, and overdraft protection loans, as well as open new accounts and accept deposits, provided growth does not exceed certain limitations.

FFR also will be permitted to continue to sell its real estate owned and fund those legally binding commitments existing as of August 13, 1990; however, effective immediately, certain other activities, including commercial and construction lending, have been limited to those preapproved by the OTS.

At June 30, 1990, the Company's total assets were $700.5 million, up slightly from the March 31, 1990 total of $696.8 million. Real estate owned decreased to $86.8 million from $92.6 million. Stockholders' equity totaled $440,000 at June 31, 1990.

MT. KISCO, NY (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Responding to President Bush's call to industry leaders to assist in controlling fuel-related inflation, Trans World Airlines (TWA) announced today that it will not increase domestic fares. Instead, the airline will slash non-refundable fares by 20 percent or more (up to 30 percent) in most markets. The discounted fares must be purchased between Aug. 14 and Aug. 29, for travel between Sept. 5 and Dec. 16, 1990, within the continental United States, Hawaii and Puerto Rico.

If fuel prices remain at or above current levels, TWA may be compelled to consider fare increases at a later date. TWA had previously announced a $20 fare increase for international travel.

Carl Icahn, TWA chairman and CEO, said, "In these times of increasingly expensive vacations and other travel, we are pleased to afford the public the opportunity to rethink their travel plans for the fall."

These non-refundable tickets must be purchased 24 hours after booking. Sample roundtrip midweek fares are $158 from New York to St. Louis and $218 from New York to Denver.

MIAMI (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Crest Industries, Inc. (NASDAQ: CRII) today announced record net sales and net income for the first quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Net sales for the three months ended June 30, 1990 were $25.5 million, up 24 percent from $20.5 million for the three months ending June 30, 1989. Substantially all of the increase in net sales was attributable to air conditioners, which increased 59 percent to $14.8 million from $9.3 million during the comparable prior year period.

Net income increased slightly to approximately $850,000, or $0.42 per share for the quarter as compared to pro forma net income of $832,000, or $0.33 per share for the three months ended June 30, 1989.

Pro forma provisions for income taxes and net income amounts for the three months ended June 30, 1989, assume that Crest was subject to income taxes. It revoked its subchapter S election effective Jan. 1, 1990. The increase in per share net income is primarily due to a decrease in weighted average shares outstanding as a result of the purchase of 500,000 shares from a former shareholder. The company completed its initial public offering in July 1990 and currently has 3,380,000 shares outstanding.

Crest Industries, Inc. is primarily engaged in the wholesale distribution of home improvement products, including ceiling fans, room air conditioners, track and recessed lighting products and plumbing fixtures. The company designs ceiling fans, track lighting products and plumbing fixtures and contracts for their manufacture by independent suppliers located in the Far East. Crest room air conditioners are produced domestically and its recessed lighting products are assembled by the company at its facility in Cleveland.

BEVERLY HILLS, CA (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Twentieth Century Fox has signed Paul Schiff to an exclusive production deal, it was announced today by Joe Roth, chairman, Twentieth Century Fox.

Schiff comes to Fox from Morgan Creek Productions, where he served for three years as vice president of production. While at Morgan Creek he produced "Young Guns," "Young Guns II" and "Coupe de Ville," and co-produced "Renegades," starring Kiefer Sutherland and Lou Diamond Phillips.

Joe Roth commented: "I hired Paul as a novice to work on 'Streets of Gold' in 1986. He showed that he could handle any and all production problems, and quickly turned into a first-rate producer. The exclusive nature of Paul's deal with Fox is yet another signal of the premium we are placing on working filmmakers at this studio."

Schiff commented: "Being at Morgan Creek during the first three years of its existence and enjoying the trust and support of Joe Roth and Jim Robinson, I had an opportunity to produce a number of pictures in a short period of time. Now Joe has given me the opportunity to move into independent production, while continuing my working relationship with the man who gave me my start in this business."

A 1981 graduate of Wesleyan University, Schiff freelanced in a number of capacities in New York City's independent film community before joining the then newly founded MTV network in 1982 as a staff producer. He left in 1985 to freelance as a producer and director of commercials, music videos and independent television programs.

After meeting Joe Roth in 1986, he became associate producer of Roth's first film as a director, "Streets of Gold." Before Roth and James G. Robinson founded Morgan Creek, Schiff also served as associate producer on Roth's second directorial effort, the hit comedy "Revenge of the Nerds II: Nerds in Paradise."

LINCOLNSHIRE, IL (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Russ Welton has been selected by the National Polystyrene Recycling Company (NPRC) to be its vice president for sourcing and marketing, effective immediately.

Welton brings to his new position over 16 years of polymer marketing experience to manufacturers of packaging and consumer products. In his most recent position, he developed and implemented solid waste strategies for Chevron Chemical Company (Houston). Prior to that, Welton managed a wide range of responsibilities for Chevron and Gulf Oil Corporation, including the marketing and product management of polystyrene, styrene monomer, polyethylene and polypropylene.

"The NPRC is a pioneer of a new recycling industry that will provide a means for post consumer polystyrene recycling throughout the nation," said Welton.

As vice president of sourcing, Welton will be responsible for developing an infrastructure designed to provide post consumer feed stock to the NPRC plants. He will coordinate community and industry resources to build the most efficient polystyrene recycling system possible.

As vice president of marketing, Welton will develop end-use markets for NPRC's recycled polystyrene resins. His responsibilities for the sale of NPRC's consistent, quality resins will include expanding market penetration of recycled polystyrene to both direct customers and compounders.

"We want our product to speak for itself. Consistent, quality resin will help drive the demand for recycled polystyrene," said Welton. "Recycled polystyrene resin must be subjected to the same quality and consistent criteria that are expected of primary resins."

Welton holds a bachelor of science degree in business administration from the University of North Dakota and served in the United States Marine Corps from 1967-1970.

The National Polystyrene Recycling Company was launched in June 1989, and is the nation's first network of polystyrene foam recycling centers. The company has a goal of facilitating the recycling of 250 million pounds of polystyrene annually, by 1995, which represents 25 percent of the polystyrene used in food service and other packaging applications. This goal is consistent with the Environmental Protection Agency's solid waste reduction plan.

HOUSTON (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - U.S. Home Corp. (NYSE: UH) today announced the company sustained a net loss for the quarter ended June previously announced litigation costs, provisions for discontinued operations and provisions relating to the disposition of excess land and housing inventories in markets where the company has further reduced its operations. While second quarter results are disappointing, housing operations were modestly profitable before giving effect to the provisions which relate to areas of operations in which the company has been working to eliminate future potential losses.

As previously announced, during the quarter, the company recorded provisions of approximately $7.6 million to reflect litigation settlements in the second quarter and estimated costs of pending litigation. The company also incurred additional losses of approximately $3.1 million, in the second quarter of 1990, relating to the curtailment of the scope of operations in the Arizona market and to the withdrawal from the Atlanta, North Carolina and New Mexico housing markets. The deterioration of the Arizona housing market left the company with a noncompetitive land base and a large number of unsold homes. U.S. Home has now repositioned both its housing and land operations in the Arizona market. Today, the company has only 11 completed unsold homes in Arizona, has achieved a downsizing of its operations in this market and now has a more competitive land base.

Also in the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, the company recorded provisions of approximately $4.8 million for discontinued operations to chiefly cover the cost relating to a loan guarantee and various litigation costs, as previously announced, and the carrying cost of its manufactured housing plant in Salt Lake City, which was previously covered by a lease agreement.

For the quarter ended June 30, 1990, U.S. Home reported a net loss of $15,720,000, or 36 cents per share, compared to net income of $406,000, or 1 cent per share, for the second quarter of 1989. Total revenues for the quarter were $141,958,000 compared to revenues of $172,394,000 for the quarter ended June 30, 1989.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the company sustained a net loss of $15,594,000, or 35 cents per share, compared to net income of $827,000, or 2 cents per share, for the six months ended June 30, 1989. Total revenues for the six months ended June 30, 1990 were $301,504,000 compared to revenues of $335,118,000 for the same period last year. The dollar value of the June 30, 1990 backlog was $241,930,000 compared to the value of the June 30, 1989 backlog of $246,886,000. The average sales price of homes delivered in the second quarter was $126,400 compared to an average sales price of $115,800 in the second quarter of last year.

Homes delivered during the second quarter were 1,240 compared to 1,404 in the second quarter of 1989 which included 181 homes and 29 homes, respectively, delivered by joint ventures in which the company participates. New orders in the second quarter, including new orders by joint ventures, were 1,150 compared to 1,418 new orders last year. The housing industry is experiencing the lowest level of housing starts since the recession of the early 1980s and is confronting uncertainty with respect to consumer confidence and the course of interest rates. U.S. Home's strategy has been to implement a business structure based on geographic diversity, low overhead and low inventories capable of withstanding the inevitable cyclicality of the housing industry. While certain markets in the United States are declining, U.S. Home has positioned itself to abide a market slowdown with lower land inventory and fewer unsold houses. An indication of the company's new operating strategies is its low inventory to backlog ratio and its low number of completed unsold units -- the lowest in over 15 years. Despite the slowing market, gross margins, in markets other than those in which reserves were taken, remain stable; and selling, general and administrative expenses, excluding reserves, have continued to decline.

U.S. Home will continue to focus on providing quality homes at the best value for its homebuyers. Though the company expects improved performance in the third and fourth quarters, in the event national housing starts continue to decline, future earnings performance could be adversely affected.

Sales for the second quarter increased 102.9 percent to $12,408,000 over the second quarter of 1989, and operating income for the three month period was $1,801,000 vs. an operating loss of $1,507,000 for the same period of 1989. In the first six months of 1990, the company reported a net, after-tax profit of $1,891,000 compared to a loss of $4,555,000 for the comparable period in 1989.

TULSA, OK (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - Vintage Petroleum Inc. (NYSE: VPI) today reported financial results for its second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990. Total revenue was $9.6 million for the quarter, down 13 percent from the $11.0 million in the like quarter in 1989, and net income was $0.5 million, down 62 percent from the $1.3 million in the like quarter in 1989.

For the six months, Vintage reported revenues of $21.6 million and net income of $1.8 million, down 6 percent and 22 percent, respectively, compared with the like period in 1989.

Chairman and chief executive officer Charles C. Stephenson, Jr. said, "the decreases in revenues and net income during this quarter were as expected and were primarily a result of declines in oil and gas prices received by Vintage." He further stated that, "Vintage is presently receiving significantly higher oil prices due to the recent events in the Middle East which should have a favorable impact on its revenues and net income. However, due to the uncertainty surrounding such events, it is difficult to predict the magnitude of the ultimate effect on Vintage's financial results for the balance of this year."

Vintage expects third quarter oil and gas production to increase significantly as the result of the closing of its previously announced acquisition of oil and gas properties from Chevron U.S.A. Inc., the commencement of gas sales from the company's Fruitvale Field, and the recent connection of five of its development wells to its Shawnee gathering system.

Vintage recently completed its initial public offering of 4 million common shares at $10.50 per share.

Vintage Petroleum Inc. is an independent energy company engaged in the acquisition, exploitation and development of oil and gas properties, and the marketing of natural gas and crude oil. The company is headquartered in Tulsa, and its common shares are traded on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol VPI.

DALLAS (AUG. 13) PR NEWSWIRE - The Southland Corp. today reported that its earnings from continuing operations before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization (EBITDA) for the quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990, were $90.9 million and $122.4 million, respectively. Revenues for the two periods were virtually unchanged from the prior year at $2.15 billion and $4.09 billion, respectively.

The company reported net losses of $58.1 million and $127.5 million for the quarter and six months, respectively. Results for the six months include the recognition of an extraordinary credit of $52.0 million representing the tax benefit from the utilization of net operating loss carryforwards. This benefit is available as a result of the recognition of the tax gain from the sale of the company's remaining 50 percent interest in Citgo Petroleum Corp. during the first quarter.

During the second quarter and six months, the company's 7-Eleven and other convenience stores increased average merchandise sales per comparable store month by 2.50 percent and 3.04 percent respectively. Total merchandise gross profits increased 1.0 percent for the six months and declined slightly for the quarter. Total retail gasoline gross profits declined for both the quarter and the six months due to fewer gasoline locations and lower per-gallon margin that more than offset increases in average gallons sold per store.

On July 16th, Southland announced a revised plan to restructure its outstanding public debt and preferred stock. The plan calls for Ito-Yokado and 7-Eleven Japan, two longstanding Southland business partners, to make a cash infusion of $430 million into Southland in exchange for 70 percent of new Southland common stock. Bondholders and preferred shareholders will receive a total of approximately 25 percent of Southland's common stock, and Southland's existing shareholders will retain approximately five percent of the common stock, subject to the consummation of the exchange offers.

Southland is the world's largest convenience retailer, with approximately 6,800 7-Eleven and other convenience units supported by the five Southland Distribution Centers, as well as the Southland Foods Division's six food centers. In addition, area licensees and affiliates operate almost 6,100 7-Eleven stores in the United States, Guam, the U.S. Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico and 18 foreign countries.

#90225u0057 08/13/1990 ~United Press International
(AUG. 13) UPI - What was this about a two-team race in the NL East?

While the New York Mets and the Pittsburgh Pirates continued to spin their wheels Sunday, the streaking Montreal Expos downed the Philadelphia Phillies 6-3 to draw within 5 1-2 games of first place.

''Basically, the Mets and us have played the rest of the league back into the race,'' said Pirates Manager Jim Leyland after his club had been shut out 6-0 by the St. Louis Cardinals to stay one-half game behind the Mets. ''Montreal is hotter than heck, we woke them up.''

Dave Martinez drove in five runs with a pair of two-run homers and a single and rookie Chris Nabholz got his first major-league decison to send

Montreal to its fifth straight win.

Nabholz, who was called up from Class AAA Indianapolis before the game, worked 5 2-3 innings before giving way to Tim Burke, who picked his 14th save.

''Chris had good stuff and he should improve his next time out,'' Montreal Manager Buck Rodgers said. ''His record in Indianapolis (0-6) doesn't mean a thing because he proved he can pitch.

''I guess I am the designated Phillies pitcher,'' said Nabholz, who has gotten both of his starts against Philadelphia. ''I think I threw better the last time I faced them in Philadelphia (a no-decision on June 11). I had better control then. But it helped to be up five runs.''

''Our pitching is getting stronger both in starting and relieving,'' Rodgers said. ''We are still in the race.''

The Mets and Pirates are helping the Expos out.

A bad decision and a terrible outing by Frank Viola helped the Chicago Cubs pound New York 10-2, sending the division leaders to their sixth loss in their last nine games.

With the score tied 1-1 in the second inning, Shawon Dunston and Domingo Ramos singled, putting runners on first and third. Joe Girardi grounded to third baseman Tom O'Malley, who threw home instead of trying to go around the horn.

But he left Dunston time to scramble back to third, leaving none out and the bases loaded.

''I was thinking double-play,'' O'Malley said. ''It was just a reaction when he hit the ball. Obviously we've got to get one out. He hit it off his hands, so it wasn't an automatic double play. I should have gone for two.''

Chicago went on to score four runs in the inning and pin the loss on Viola 15-7.

After starting the season with seven straight wins, the left-hander has struggled. Since the All-Star break, Viola has won just two of six decisions, with a 4.17 ERA.

The Mets, however, hung on to their slim division lead because Pittsburgh is having its own problems.

The Cardinals pounded out a season-high 17 hits to hand the Pirates their fifth straight loss.

''We are dead right now,'' said Leyland after watching his club get handcuffed by Bob Tewksbury, 7-3. ''We're flat, moving slow, not crisp. We're not hitting, not pitching, not catching the ball. That is what adds up to losses.''

''Those guys (Pirates) hurt us bad last year down the stretch,'' said Todd Zeile, who had five hits in the series and three RBI in St. Louis's three-game sweep. ''We wanted to come in here and play hard against them. There's still the third place spot to shoot for.''

... And the first place spot, too, it seems.

Elsewhere in the National League: Cincinnati topped San Francisco 6-4, Los Angeles belted Atlanta 7-3, and San Diego clubbed Houston 9-0.

In the American League it was: Minnesota 5, Toronto 4; Cleveland 9, Detroit 5; Kansas City 7, Milwaukee 1; Baltimore 11, California 6; Oakland 6, New York 1; Boston 7, Seattle 2; Texas at Chicago was postponed due to rain.

-- AROUND THE NL --

Reds 6, Giants 4

At Cincinnati, Hal Morris singled home a run in Cincinnati's four-run first and added a solo homer to help the Reds open up a 5 1/2-game lead in the NL West. Cincinnati has won two of the first three games of the four-game set that finishes Monday. Tom Browning improved to 12-6.

Padres 9, Astros 0

At Houston, Derek Lilliquist allowed four singles en route to his first major league shutout and complete game. Lilliquist, 3-8, was acquired in a July 12 trade with Atlanta. San Diego has won 16 of its last 21 games.

Dodgers 7, Braves 3

At Atlanta, Hubie Brooks belted a three-run home run to help Jim Neidlinger earn his first major league victory in his third start. Jim Gott earned his second save. Tom Glavine, 6-9, took the loss.

CHICAGO (AUG. 13) UPI - The Mount Greenwood neighborhood boys on the city's far South Side say they're tired of seeing bodies like Sylvester Stallone's, so they've taken things into their own hands. And their mouths. And their stomachs.

These are no 98-pound weaklings. As a matter of fact, an entrant to the First Annual Fat Party had to weigh at least 225 pounds, as verified by a scale, to get inside the door.

A dozen people with a combined weight of more than 3,000 pounds gathered Saturday at Bob Gill's home for a 12-hour siege of eating to ''celebrate the beauty of bigness.''

Gill lived to tell about it Sunday after a meal of steak, crab meat twice-baked potaotes, chicken wings, two types of sausage and corn on the cob. There was plenty of beer to wash it all down.

The party moved to a local tavern in the midst of the Chicago Bears pre-season game to take advantage of free spaghetti.

''This place is the best. It has the widest doors of any joint on 111th Street,'' said Joe Murphy. ''Now we'd like to see wider seats on CTA (Chicago Transit Authority) buses ... and more fat women in Chicago.''

Terry McNamara was the biggest entrant at 360-375 pounds, but Gill said some of the ''superheavies'' couldn't make it because of a birthday party. The traveling entourage rectified that by stopping by the friend's house to share some birthday cake.

Along the way, Gill said the big boys who grew up in the neighborhood headed to a local swimming pool for ''a cannonball contest - biggest splash takes all.''

''We're tired of seeing Sylvester Stallone (types) beaching their bodies around the neighborhood this summer. We want our respect,'' said Gill.

The winner was the man who gained the most weight. That turned out to be Frank Stack, who put on 4.5 pounds.

Gill, who said the group came up with the idea a month ago while at a local tavern, said ''why not'' if next year will include the Second Annual Fat Party.

''It was done for a laugh. It turned out to be a good time.''

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 13) UPI - On the fringe of the windswept Arabian Desert, a high-tech archeological effort has pierced cascading sand dunes to reveal what may be the remnants of a lost civilization.

Using computer-enhanced radar images transmitted from space, scientists have uncovered clues in Oman's Rub al Khali desert to the burial place of a legendary society believed to be the bustling hub of the world's frankincense trade 5,000 years ago.

Known as Ad, the civilization is chronicled in the Koran and mentioned in the tales of ''The Arabian Nights,'' among others. There are indirect references to the region in the Bible. It is likely that the wise men who bore gifts to the infant Jesus carried frankincense traded there.

Members of a California-based scientific expedition claim this summer to have discovered links to Ad literally buried in the sands of time.

''The clues are tantalizing,'' said George Hedges, a Los Angeles attorney and part-time explorer who is a member of the expedition sponsored by oil magnate Armand Hammer and backed by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena. The expedition included an archaeologist, a geologist, a computer scientist, a documentary filmmaker and renowned British explorer Sir Ranulph Fiennes, a co-leader of the project.

Hedges said his crew surveyed geological evidence of a buried trail that was likely one of the routes used by camel-riding frankincense traders. He said they also stumbled upon what may be artifacts from Ad.

Hedges said he hopes the now-barren land of high-rise sand dunes eventually will yield the once-thriving city of Ubar, a main frankincense shipping center operated by the people of Ad and described by adventurer T.E. Lawrence as ''the Atlantis of the sands.''

''This was an initial shipping point for frankincense, which was an extremely important trade commodity in the ancient world and found markets as far away as China and Rome,'' Hedges said.

Frankincense, an aromatic resin produced from the sap of trees indigenous to East Africa and the Middle East, was once a coveted incense. It was used by emperors and common folk alike in ceremonies and religious rituals including imperial processions and cremations.

The Ads' lucrative trading society lasted roughly from 3000 B.C. to the 1st century A.D. It died a victim of economic, political and climatic forces that coincided with a drop in demand for the fragrance and the rise of Christianity, which preached burying bodies instead of burning them.

Eventually the villages of Ad were buried by encroaching tides of sand, which now rise like mountains 200 to 600 feet high.

Although historical or scholarly writings on the subject are scarce and many - because of the lack of ruins - thought the Ad civilization was mythical, members of the expedition had always believed the Ads lived somewhere in the sprawling Rub al Khali desert.

Space-age technology made it possible to try to pinpoint the Ad city and trade routes.

Unlike British explorer Bertram Thomas, who had tried in the 1930s to map the area but gave up after finding himself isolated amid the sand dunes with no water in sight, the team was able to use sophisticated computers and radar images generated by satellites as their compass.

''We applied new techniques to help define where we should begin looking '' said Ronald Blom, a senior scientist at JPL who joined the expedition. ''It's impossible to search the whole desert, so we helped to target the approximate location for the archaeologists to start looking.''

Studying satellite topography images generated by computer, Blom and JPL assistant director Charles Elachi were able to distinguish at least one 100-yard-wide hoof-trodden path lying under tons of sand, which they believe was one in a network of roads that cut across the desert.

''It's very subtle. The ground has been worn away ever so slightly into the desert floor,'' Blom said. ''We found modern tracks and ancient ones. The new ones go around the dunes, the old ones go under them.''

Although the Ad team had been planning for six years to explore the region they had not intended to start excavating until January 1991. But they stumbled upon 900 pottery shards and flint pieces and the trade route during a three-week ''reconnaissance'' in July.

Because of high-powered desert winds, the team could not stay longer and left the artifacts with the Oman Department of National Heritage until the expedition returns.

''We hope during the main expedition that we can definitely prove these legendary people existed,'' Hedges said.

PARIS (AUG. 13) UPI - Penelope Nabokov, the American girl stranded in Kuwait during the Iraqi invasion, was reunited with her parents and said she felt safe throughout the weeklong ordeal except for once when she ''got hysterical.''

''I felt safe because people were taking good care of me,'' the 10-year-old girl said Sunday at a hastily called news conference in Paris.

Seated between her parents, the youngster thanked the crew of the British Airways flight she was taking that was grounded in Kuwait, and U.S. Embassy staff in Baghdad who accompanied her on a 17-hour road journey into Jordan.

She described her treatment by Iraqi troops as ''nice,'' adding that an officer from the Iraqi army offered her water in the searing heat.

The sandy-haired girl from Albany, Calif., wearing a lavender print dress, fielded questions from reporters and appeared poised despite the week's tribulations.

''A lot of us felt we would get out the second day,'' she said. ''On the third day, the hostesses started freaking out, and that got me even more scared, and that's when I got hysterical.''

The child and others aboard the flight were virtual captives at an airport hotel in Kuwait for the first part of the ordeal. There, Penelope became aware of the gravity of the situation.

''I realized I was trapped in a war zone when we moved to the airport hotel, and from my window we could see all the troops going into the airport grounds, lots of troops and tanks,'' she said.

She was taken to Baghdad by bus and train with other passengers from the British Airways flight, and was placed in a hotel with other Americans. In the Iraqi capital, she was able to make contact with U.S. diplomats.

After several days in Iraq, Penelope was taken by U.S. diplomats and dependents in a six-car convoy across the desert to Amman, Jordan. The trip took 17 hours, she said, ''including the waiting.''

Penelope was nearly turned back at the border because embassy personnel did not place her name on a telex list of diplomats who were to leave the country. Although border guards hesitated, she said, ''Finally, they let me go anyway. They stamped my passport.''

From Amman she flew to Paris on an Air France flight.

Her father, Peter Nabokov, an archaeologist, flew to Paris from California. The girl's mother, Isabelle Nabokov, arrived from India, where she was studying village culture.

Penelope had been visiting her grandparents in France and was on her way to join her mother and to attend school in India when her flight was grounded in Kuwait as a result of the invasion.

''I'm anxious to get to Madras (in India) to go to school,'' she said.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Kuwait's ousted government has asked the White House to enforce U-N sanctions against Iraq. Presidential news secretary Marlin Fitzwater says Washington plans to respond to the Kuwaiti request by having American forces in the Persian Gulf area intercept Iraqi vessels. Bush administration officials refused to refer to the planned action as a blockade, saying instead that it was a possible method of enforcing the U-N embargo.

The situation in the Middle East continues to have a negative impact on the world's financial markets. The Monday morning session at the Tokyo Stock Exchange closed with the key price indicator slipping by 763 yen. The slide brought the Nikkei Average to less than 27-thousand yen, its lowest level since April 1988. The Nikkei has lost nearly 14 percent of its value since the August 2nd Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Oil industry analyst Trilby Lundberg says the public perception of gas retailers as price-gougers is NOT accurate. In a survey of more than 13-thousand retail gasoline outlets across the country, Lundberg found that prices at the pump have risen 10 cents a gallon from prices three weeks ago. But she says retailers have lost nearly one cent of profit margin since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. The average price of a gallon is about a dollar-28.

The head of the Red Cross in Lebanon tells U-P-I that his group has NOT received confirmation of the reported release Monday of a Swiss Red Cross worker. The worker was taken captive 10 months ago. Last week, the group freed a Red Cross worker taken hostage with Erriquez.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Jury selection is scheduled to begin Monday in Painesville, Ohio, in the aggravated murder trial of cult-leader Jeffrey Lundgren. Lundgren is accused of orchestrating and carrying out the massacre of five members of one family in the Spring of 1989. Defense lawyers have called for a change of venue... claiming that the recent conviction of Lundgren's wife on related charges rules out an impartial jury.

A group of Chicago men got together Sunday to chew the fat. A baker's dozen of some portly chums from the Mount Greenwood neighborhood was on hand to take part in the First Annual Fat Party. But, bear in mind that the gathering was NOT for the faint of heart. Organizers decided that a person would have to tip the scale at at least 225 pounds to qualify. The day of activities centered, as you may have guessed, around food stuffs.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Around the world... around the clock, U-P-I has the latest news.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein says he would consider negotiating a settlement in Kuwait if Israel first withdraws from the occupied territories... the United States pulls out of Saudi Arabia... and a trade embargo against Baghdad is lifted. The Bush administration flatly rejects the proposal.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater says the United States, along with the United Nations, is calling for the immediate, UNconditional withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait. The White House also says the United States, acting on a request from Kuwait's exiled leader, ''will do whatever is necessary'' to intercept shipments of oil and other vital goods in and out of Iraq.

A 10-year-old California girl who was stranded in Kuwait and then detained in Baghdad with other Americans has been reunited with her parents. Penelope Nabokov joined her parents in Paris last night after a week-long ordeal that included a 17-hour road journey across the desert into Jordan.

F-A-A officials say a Continental Airlines Boeing 727 made an emergency landing in Bozeman, Montana, last night after one of three engines caught fire. The incident occurred shortly after the plane took off from Bozeman en route to Denver with 157 people aboard. The plane landed safely, and NO injuries were reported.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Army troops have been called in to help fight hundreds of CAIRO, EGYPT (AUG. 13) UPI - An earthquake measuring 4.9 on the Richter scale Monday rocked portions of the Iranian province of Gilan, site of the devastating June 21 temblor, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

The earthquake shook Roudbar at 9:48 a.m. and also was felt slightly in Rasht, the provincial capital, IRNA reported.

There was no immediate word on damage or casualties.

The 4.9 quake's epicenter was about 130 miles northwest of Tehran, Tehran University's geophysics center told IRNA.

The June 21 earthquake, which the U.S. Geological Survey measured at 7.7 on the Richter scale, killed at least 50,000 people, left 500,000 homeless and injured thousands.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Thunderstorms soaked the eastern Mojave Desert Monday, threatening two interstate highways that run through the normally bone-dry area, and storms also hit Texas and Indiana.

Strong thunderstorms with heavy rainfall covered much of the north and west Texas panhandle and parts of eastern New Mexico early Monday, dumping up to an inch of rain in some areas, the National Weather Service said.

The storms stretched east to the Oklahoma state line and caused flooding in low-lying areas of the towns of Dalhart and Cactus in the extreme northern reaches of Texas, local authorities said.

Heavy rains soaked the Mojave as thunderstorms hit Needles and surrounding sparsely populated areas near the Nevada-California border.

Forecasters warned the storms could produce wind gusts up to 45 mph and drivers on interstates 40 and 15 were warned to take extra caution because of low visibility, heavy rain and the possibility of flooding.

Nearly three-quarters of an inch of rain fell at Indianapolis Airport during an hour of strong storms Monday. The thunderstorms were moving quickly eastward toward eastern Indiana.

Thunderstorms, some with heavy rain, hit northwest and north-central Arkansas, leading forecasters to warn campers along the Buffalo River to be on the alert for rising waters.

High pressure kept the South relatively clear. Temperatures were generally in the 90s under sunny skies Sunday. Montgomery, Ala., had a 100-degree reading and Jackson, Miss., 97.

A strong low pressure center approaching the Pacific Northwest was expected to bring welcome relief for crews battling Oregon and Washington's wildfires.

Thousands of firefighters gained ground on hundreds of wildfires burning over the drought-parched West, where smoke obscured some of the most famous scenery in the world, the spires and domes of Yosemite National Park.

Fire had blackened more than 400,000 acres - about 625 square miles - in seven Western states by Sunday night, and an estimated 20,000 firefighters were on the lines.

Fires were also burning in Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah and Washington. Most were started by dry lightning, and officials said tens of thousands of strikes were reported in the last several days.

It was only 99 degrees in Las Vegas Sunday but expected to climb back into triple digits Monday with a 105 reading forecast. The heat will be accompanied by scattered thundershowers.

Heavy rains hit parts of Western Pennsylvania Monday morning and clear skies gave way to fog over much of the Middle Atlantic region.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, under fire from many Arab governments because of his invasion of Kuwait, said Monday his critics were under foreign influence and urged Iraqis to support other Arabs despite their rulers.

The appeal came a day after Saddam announced a three-point initiative to end the Persian Gulf crisis, calling for the unconditional and immediate withdrawal of Israel from the occupied territories and removal of Syria's presence in Lebanon before negotiations on ''arrangements'' for Kuwait could begin.

Saddam said if the United States did not accept his proposals, Iraq would ''strongly resist with force ... its aggressive plans.''

The United States and Israel quickly rejected Saddam's plan, which also called for the end of an economic boycott against Iraq, removal of U.S. and foreign forces from Saudi Arabia and replacement of those troops with a U.N.-organized all-Arab force excluding Egypt.

The commander of the U.S military efforts in the Middle East said Sunday deployment of U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia was running ahead of schedule in the operation aimed at fending off any Iraqi attack.

While Iraq continued Saddam's appeal to the Arab masses to fight foreign intervention in the gulf, Egypt said Saddam's initiative contradicted the decision of the divided Arab League for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, which Iraq invaded Aug. 2 in an oil and border dispute.

Boutros Ghali, Egypt's minister of state for foreign affairs, said despite little chance for peace, efforts must be exerted to find a peaceful solution to the crisis.

Iraq has stepped up criticism of the Egyptian government - President Hosni Mubarak specifically - since the Arab League decided Friday to deploy a pan-Arab force to Saudi Arabia and the gulf. Mubarak is sending a reported

3,000 Egyptian troops to the region as the first contingent in the all-Arab force.

Saddam, who has declared a holy war on the West, has urged uprisings against Arab leaders he described as corrupt.

Monday, Saddam said in a statement carried by the Iraqi News Agency that Iraqis should treat all Arabs equally regardless of their rulers' attitudes because ''many of (the leaders) are of foreign choosing.''

''They are our sons, brothers, and support them in the face of treason and deviation,'' Saddam said.

In special weekend broadcasts on Iraqi Radio aimed at Egyptian listeners, Iraq had urged Egyptians to rise up and hit ''imperialists and Zionist interests everywhere on Egyptian soil.''

The broadcasts, similar to programs introduced after the late Egyptian President Anwar Sadat visited Jerusalem in 1977, urged Egyptians to stop foreign powers from passing through the Suez Canal and to defend the Islamic holy cities of Mecca and Medina from desecration.

The appeals called on Egyptians to evaluate Mubarak's actions, allowing foreign fleets to use the waterway to ''invade Arab lands and conquer our brothers.'' Foreign ships have passed through the Suez Canal on their way to the gulf, including a French frigate on Monday.

''It is paid agentry and treason,'' one broadcast said. ''It is a conspiracy and a betrayal of the Egyptian people, of Egypt's conscience and of Egypt's role. Can this go unpunished while we watch Arab destiny being determined at the hands of agents?''

Despite an estimated 170,000-strong Iraqi force in Kuwait, Cairo Radio reported a group calling itself the Kuwaiti National Resistance Movement announced it would step up attacks within the occupied country. Iraq has denied a report it had executed the former speaker of the Kuwaiti National Assembly, Ahmad Saadun.

The issue of whether foreigners may leave Iraq and Kuwait remained cloudy Monday. Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz said late Sunday all foreigners ''were safe and secure'' and travel restrictions were ''precautionary and temporary,'' INA reported.

The Bulgarian news agency, BTA, has reported more than 350 Bulgarians would be allowed to leave Kuwait after an agreement was reached with Iraq.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (AUG. 13) UPI - President Corazon Aquino ordered Monday the implementation of energy conservation measures, fearing an increase in petroleum prices following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

Aquino also formed a seven-member group to respond to the oil situation.

In ordering conservation measures, Aquino cited ''the very fluid political situation in the Middle East brought about by the invasion and subsequent annexation of Kuwait by Iraq.''

The measures include a 5 to 10 percent reduction by government agencies in monthly energy consumption, limiting use of air conditioners, neon and electric lights for signs and cutting down operating hours of supermarkets department stores and movie theaters.

Aquino directed the defense department to prohibit motor races, sky diving and water skiing contests.

Companies using large amounts of oil were ordered to submit conservation plans.

CHICAGO (AUG. 13) UPI - An engine malfunction forced an American Airlines DC-10 bound for Los Angeles to return to O'Hare International Airport, police and an American spokeswoman said Monday.

American Airlines Flight 435, which was carrying 195 passengers and 11 crewmembers, returned to O'Hare shortly after takeoff late Sunday after the pilots were alerted by a panel light that indicated an engine malfunction, O'Hare Police Unit Patrolman William McCann said.

The flight, scheduled to leave at 10:45 p.m., actually took off at 11:13 p.m. due to bad weather, he said. The plane landed safely and no one was injured, he said.

American spokeswoman Karen Cook confirmed one of the plane's four engines had a mechanical problem but she did not know which engine or the extent of the problem.

Most of the passengers were transferred to another flight to Los Angeles, which took off at 1:15 a.m., she said.

(AUG. 13) UPI - California officials say this could be a critical day in the fight against hundreds of wildfires. Stronger winds are expected... following a weekend in which firefighters were able to make gains against the lightning-sparked blazes. Thousands of acres are burning in several other Western states as well, including Idaho, Oregon and Utah.

Police in Los Angeles say a weekend of violence left 12 people dead, including two youngsters. Authorities say a 17-year-old gang member went on a rampage and killed a six-year-old girl after her uncle chastised him for kicking her. Gang members also are believed responsible for the death of a 13-year-old who was gunned down in front of a Long Beach home Saturday night.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange nosedived Monday as Mideast instability and higher domestic interest rates burned 4.22 percent off the market's leading indicator. Trading was described as shallow.

The blue-chip Nikkei Stock Average of 225 selected issues, which dropped 286.18 points Friday, lost a whopping 1,153.12 points - or 4.22 percent - to fall to 26,176.43.

The Nikkei suffered a series of staggering blows last week, including a 1,327.67-point loss last Tuesday.

Since Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2, the Nikkei has plunged just over 4,000 points - or about 13.5 percent - and is now at its lowest level since April 1, 1988.

The broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Price Index of all major shares was also battered, sinking 63.84 points to 1,993.04, its lowest close since Feb. 17, 1988. The key index had lost 11.53 points in Friday's session.

Trading was extremely thin, as summer vacations combined with investor hesitation to keep buyers off the floor. An estimated 250 million shares changed hands, compared with 318 million shares Friday.

Declines overpowered advances 934 to only 34 while 70 issues escaped the selloff.

Worries about the Middle East were compounded by a rise in short-term interest rates, analysts said, deepening the pessimism that has gripped the market in recent days.

''There were no buyers in town,'' said Yutaka Nakai, an analyst with Daiwa Securities Co.

Investor psychology has turned bearish, despite market fundamentals that are essentially sound, Nakai said.

''People are tending to take the worst-case view right now. They expect higher interest rates,'' he said.

Short-term interest rates have been inching up for much of the summer, driving down the stock market. On Monday, three-month certificates of deposit rose a fraction of a percentage point to 7.90 percent.

The Nikkei's loss, the seventh-worst in its history, was attributed to futures arbitrage by brokers.

Arbitrage, the attempt to profit from price differentials between the spot and futures markets, has been blamed for many of the year's most spectacular falls. Its influence in the market is felt more heavily when trading is thin.

But the arbitrage effect gained a new twist Monday when rumors hit the floor that the financial authorities are considering changes in the composition of the 225 stocks that make up the Nikkei.

Several of the stocks in the Nikkei average no longer trade on their own merits but serve almost exclusively as vehicles for futures arbitrage, Nakai said.

He said arbitrageurs tried to rid themselves of stocks that might be dumped from the Nikkei.

The Ministry of Finance refuses to comment on its market intervention in advance.

Elsewhere in Asia, stock prices closed lower in sparse trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange as investors waited for further news on the crisis in the Middle East. Activity was concentrated among the blue chips.

The closely-watched Hang Seng Index, which lost 12.15 points Friday, dropped 38.69 points or 1.2 percent to 3,040.28.

Among the narrower indexes, financials lost 20.01 points, utilities dropped 24.02, industrials declined 41.72 and properties sank 87.95 points.

Volume amounted to a thin 88 million shares, down from 1.4 billion shares changing hands Friday.

With the sound of the opening bell, sellers sprang into action, pushing the market down more than 9 points in the first few minutes.

Trading in a narrow band, stocks drifted higher around midday amid some light bargain hunting, analysts said.

Profit-taking, especially in the leading issues, took hold during the afternoon session as investors wanted to scale down their positions in the wake of the Middle East crisis, analysts said.

''It was a quiet day. There was no aggression on the part of sellers,'' said David Harman, a senior manager at Morgan Grenfell. ''The market is continuing with a general bearish sentiment.

''There is still caution around, but people are nibbling at stocks that are particularly attractive. They are aware of the value of the market.''

The Hang Seng Index avoided the falls experienced in other Asian markets because Hong Kong already had its downward adjustment and investors are anticipating an upswing in the economy after a recent downturn, market watchers added.

In Singapore, stock prices closed sharply lower in moderate trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange as escalating tensions in the Middle East continued to erode investors confidence.

The key Straits Times Industrial Index, which fell 32.06 points Friday, dived 54.77 points to 1,288.89. The narrower All Singapore Index dipped 17.18 points to 370.37.

An estimated 79.8 million shares changed hands, compared with 71.3 million shares Friday.

The plunge on the Tokyo Stock Exchange and the absence of market effecting news indicating an easing of the crisis kept selling pressure up.

Market watchers said they expected sentiment would remain nervous as long as the Middle East situation stays tense.

''Everyone thinks the market is cheap, but nobody wants to come in to buy stocks now,'' one local broker said.

On the trading floor, Rothmans (M) paced the declining issues, followed by Development Bank of Singapore foreign shares and Overseas United Enterprises.

Gainers were few and included Gold Coin and Spore Fodder.

In Bangkok, the Stock Exchange of Thailand was closed Monday in respect for the birthday of the Thai Queen. Trading will resume on Tuesday.

In Seoul, stock prices on the Korea Stock Exchnage plunged 1.5 percent to their lowest levels of the year in moderate trading.

The Korean Composite Stock Price Index fell 10.03 points to 645.86.

Declines outpaced advances 581 to 110, while 152 issues remained unchanged.

In Australia, stock prices closed sharply lower on the Sydney Sharemarket in sympathy with the Tokyo market.

The All Ordinaries Index, which added 6.3 points Friday, eased 14.0 points to 1,555.2. The Gold Index, propelled by a $10 rise in the bullion prices - climbed 79.0 points to 1,586.1.

An estimated 79.4 million shares changed hands, compared with 77.8 million shares Friday.

Declines edged out advances 156 to 142 while 210 issues remained unchanged.

Brokers said the fall would have been far worse if not for the strong support for the top gold issues.

On the trading floor, among the top golds, Placer Pacific gained 30 cents to $3.70, Homestake Mining added 6 cents to $1.56 and Newmont Mining gained 8 cents to $1.22.

Oil issues were weaker in line with softer crude oil prices. BHP Oil fell 25 cents to $11 and Santos Oil eased 9 cents to $4.95.

Elsewhere, industrials and banks were hammered after Tokyo's dive.

LONDON (AUG. 13) UPI - Stocks were lower in thin trading at midday Monday on the London International stock exchange, as prices were dragged down by a disappointing retail sales picture.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which fell 11.1 points Friday, was down 21.1 points to 2,212.7. The narrower top 30 industrial average was off 18.6 points to 1,724.4.

Volume amounted to around 162 million shares compared with 192 million shares traded during the same period Friday.

Analysts said prices fell following a Central Statistical Office report showing Britain's retail sales rose a provisional 1.0 percent in July from June and rose 2.3 percent from July 1989.

Market forecasters were expecting a month-on-month increase of 0.4 percent.

Traders said the rise in sales indicated that the governments monetary policy was not in keeping with a tight reign on consumer spending.

Among the most widely traded stocks, Polly Peck International jumped 40 cents to $7.47 after the company said it was in talks that could lead to an offer being made for the concern.

Among some of the international issues, Imperial Chemical Industries added 2 cents to $16.95, Barclays Bank PLC lost 11 cents to $6.57 and British Petroleum eased 4 cents to $6.46.

Elsewhere, stock prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange were sharply lower at midday in light trading as investors continued to worry over tensions in the Middle East.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which lost 6.29 points Friday, was off 34.10 points to 1,715.24.

DETROIT (AUG. 13) UPI - The founder of Detroit's notorious Young Boys Inc. drug gang wants to work with an anti-drug group when he's released from prison but law enforcement officials are skeptical.

Last week, Butch Jones completed eight years of a 12-year federal drug conspiracy sentence and was transferred to the Michigan Department of Corrections to finish a three-to-five-year sentence for being an accessory to murder.

He should be back on the streets by December, said his lawyer, Jeffrey Collins.

When released, Jones said, he wants to join forces with schools to enlist students in an enterprise called Drug War Awareness Inc., which would steer youngsters toward completing their schooling and away from drugs and crime.

''I want to tell them that they don't have to go out on the streets and sell drugs and carry guns,'' he said. ''I can be an asset.''

Jones, 35, who started the gang in the 1970s, said in an interview published in Monday's Detroit Free Press that his years in prison have made him a different and better person.

But law enforcement officials who battled Young Boys Inc. into the 1980s recoiled at the suggestion.

''I would think two or three times - real hard - before giving him access to kids,'' said Detroit City Councilman Gilbert Hill, who headed the police homicide section during YBI's bloodiest era.

''The last time he got an idea about organizing kids, it was to sell dope. We paid that price. In fact, we're still paying.''

BEAUFORT, SC (AUG. 13) UPI - Like thousands of other Marine, Navy and Army wives, Autumn Woodley is playing an anguished, tense waiting game to find out where her husband is and what he's doing.

She believes that her husband, Marine Staff Sgt. Chess Woodley, was sent to the Middle East from Japan, but she has had no word from him since she talked to him on Tuesday and the suspense and uncertainty is taking its toll.

''The hardest part is not knowing for sure where he is or what's going on '' Autumn Woodley told The State newspaper in Columbia. ''I pace the floor for hours, stay close to the telephone and pray a lot.''

Sgt. Woodley, who is assigned to the Second Wing based at the Marine Corps Air Station in Beaufort, inspects F-18s.

If his squadron went to the Middle East from Japan, it may be impossible to call her. And once delayed, the sergeant would be able to communicate with her only by mail.

The exodus of marines and other military personnel going to Saudi Arabia to defend it against a threatened invasion by Iraq hit the Beaufort community hard.

''Every house you walk into around here is grim,'' said Woodley, the mother of three small girls. ''Even if they haven't gotten orders, it is like they have already left.

''When you live with the military, you know this can happen at anytime. But they don't send families through a boot camp to deal with this, so I don't think anyone is really ready for it when it happens,'' Woodley said.

Woodley is completing a nursing degree at Armstrong College in nearby Savannah, Ga. She said many of the students in her classes whose husbands have left are helping each other through the frustration of not knowing where they are.

The husbands of four other wives in her classes had less than an hour to pack before departing with their Army units and could reveal nothing about their orders. Fort Stewart, an Army base, is near Savannah.

Both the husband and wife in another family she knows received orders to the Middle East, so they had to leave their young son with grandparents.

''It has been really tough to hold a lot of this back from the children,'' Woodley said of her daughters Anna, 3, Audry, 7, and Melissa, 9.

''I just keep going like he will be here in January for our late Christmas that we have planned, and I am praying that is the way it will be for everybody's sake.''

JERUSALEM (AUG. 13) UPI - Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy Monday warned Jordan's King Hussein against aiding President Saddam Hussein by allowing goods to be transported across Jordan to Iraq, Israel Radio reported.

Levy was quoted by the radio as saying ''Jordan was walking a tightrope'' by giving assistance to Iraq and possibly allowing goods to reach Iraq by way of Jordanian territory.

Israeli officials have repeatedly warned Jordan against allowing Iraqi troops onto its territory, but they have been ambiguous about the seaport of Aqaba. During the Persian Gulf war, goods and supplies were trucked from the Gulf of Aqaba port through Jordan to Iraq.

Sunday, Defense Minister Moshe Arens would not comment directly on the possible use of Aqaba by Iraq to transport goods, saying only that Israel supported the United States position to impose on economic embargo on Iraq.

Last week, Israel welcomed a statement by Hussein that Jordan would not become a transit point for foreign troops. But the king has not joined in the condemnation of the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and has criticized the Western military buildup in the gulf.

Levy made the comments before leaving for Europe, where he will meet with his Italian and West German counterparts. Levy said he will ask for European cooperation to prevent the sale of arms and technology to Iraq, the radio reported.

The Israeli foreign minister also said a proposal by Saddam to end the gulf crisis, including a demand that Israel withdraw from the occupied territories, was a diversionary tactic to escape from the ring of economic sanctions and military forces closing around him, the radio said.

Palestinians in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip continued to express support for Saddam. The outlawed fundamentalist Islamic Resistance Movement circulated a leaflet in the Gaza Strip Monday denouncing the U.S. military presense in Saudi Arabia and calling on Moslems to prepare for a holy war, or jihad, against outsiders.

The group, known by its acronym Hamas, called for a U.S. withdrawal and for Kuwait and Iraq to solve their dispute without foreign intervention.

Hamas urged Iraq ''to attack the heart of Tel Aviv if the heart of Iraq is attacked by the Western crusaders.''

BOSTON (AUG. 13) UPI - Child abuse, poverty and drug abuse will result in an ''epidemic'' of murders committed by juveniles before the century ends, a researcher says.

Charles Patrick Ewing, who is working on a book on young murderers, said the number of slayings by juveniles likely will quadruple by the end of the decade.

''I'm terribly pessimistic,'' Ewing told a meeting at the American Psychological Association's convention on Sunday.

The number of murders by juveniles more than doubled nationally between 1984 and this year - from 1,004 to 2,208. Ewing, who studied more than 200 juvenile offenders, said that figure will reach 8,000 by 1999.

Ewing, who is credited with creating the so-called ''battered women's defense'' for women who kill their abusers, said he fears the ''federal government isn't going to do anything about'' the rising rate.

''To be brutally frank, we're reaping the seeds of what I call the war on the poor by the Reagan administration. When you make life less livable for human beings, you're going to pay a price.''

Ewing, among other things, blamed cuts in anti-poverty programs in the early 1980s, increasing drug abuse, the availability of guns, and child abuse for the rise in juvenile violence.

''The major thing that makes kids who kill different is the degree of child abuse, the degree of brutalization,'' he said.

He said the death penalty would not deter young murderers.

''There's very little that can be done to deter most juvenile homicides,'' said Ewing, who holds a law degree from Harvard and a doctorate in psychology from Cornell University.

He said that is ''partly because they're so impulsive and partly because they're committed while the killer is under the influence of drugs.''

HOUSTON (AUG. 13) UPI - The domestic rig count jumped last week as the rig utilization rate in the Gulf of Mexico increased slightly, energy industry surveys showed Monday.

Bakers Hughes Inc. reported a total of 992 rotary rigs worked last week compared with 966 the week before and 858 rigs the same week one year ago.

Offshore Data Services reported two more rigs left the Gulf of Mexico in search of better markets while one more rig came off contract in that area.

The result was a slight improvement in the utilization rate among mobile offshore rigs in the Gulf to 65.6 percent with 139 rigs working out of a fleet of 212.

A year ago, the same number of rigs were working in the Gulf but the fleet totaled 220 for a utilization rate of 63.2 percent.

Activity was unchanged in European waters for the third consecutive week with 129 rigs working out of a fleet of 136. The utilization rate remains strong at 94.9 percent.

Worldwide, two more rigs were working last week, pushing the global utilization rate among offshore rigs to 81.5 percent with 545 rigs contracted out of a total fleet of 669.

Other rig counts included: Louisiana, 150 rigs last week, 147 the week before and 146 the same week a year ago; Oklahoma, 124, 124 and 111 rigs; Texas, 320, 306 and 252; and Canada, 106, 117 and 99.

ATLANTA (AUG. 13) UPI - The new leader of Atlanta's Roman Catholic community called for renewal and revival in the church, rocked by sex scandals that prompted the resignation of the nation's first black archbishop.

Bishop James P. Lyke, serving as temporary head of the Atlanta archdiocese urged worshipers at the city's Cathedral of Christ the King Sunday afternoon to support ''our priests, who feel the weight of intense scrutiny and who are experiencing, at all levels, an onslaught of inquiry and comment.''

''The demands of the poor and the needy do not stop because of internal crisis,'' said Lyke, former auxiliary bishop of Cleveland, who assumed administration of the archdiocese Saturday.''

Lyke took over after the July 10 resignation of Archbishop Eugene Marino, who later admitted a two-year affair with a 27-year-old woman also linked romantically to a nun and two other priests - one of whom she accuses of fathering her child.

''I had planned to come here, have a few days to unpack, place books on the shelf, get my jazz and classical records organized and maybe tour Atlanta,'' the new bishop said. ''My first principal event was going to be this liturgy with a representative group of lay people.''

Instead, Lyke was in town Aug. 2 answering questions about Marino's affair with Vicki Long, a former lay minister from the Atlanta suburb of Riverdale.

Two days later, the Rev. Michael Woods, a priest from the suburb of Sandy Springs, offered to resign because of involvement with Long.

Long claims she also was involved with a priest from Columbus, Ga., who she claims fathered her child.

She also says she was approached sexually by a nun and has been threatening legal action against the church.

In his sermon Sunday, Lyke compared Marino - the highest-ranking black in the church before stepping down - to the apostle Peter, who walked on water at Christ's command but sank when his faith wavered.

''We pray that like Peter, who faltered and whose faith momentarily weakened, Archbishop Marino will reach out and grasp firmly the outstretched hand of Christ and will once again climb into the boat to enjoy anew the fellowship and comfort of the church,'' he said.

The sex scandals have put local church officials under scrutiny, especially by parishoners who are concerned about allegations that church money has been paid to Long.

FLINT, MICH. (AUG. 13) UPI - Negotiatiors met again Monday after efforts during the weekend failed to end a five-day-old strike by 3,200 General Motors Corp. parts makers that already has idled nearly 8,000 other workers at GM assembly plants.

More GM assembly plants were expected to run out of parts by Monday afternoon because of the walkout by workers last Wednesday at GM's AC Rochester West parts plant and a smaller facility, both in Flint.

At issue are several longstanding and unresolved disputes between GM and the United Auto Workers Local 659 over health, safety, subcontracting and outsourcing issues at the Flint plant.

An official for UAW Local 659 said the two sides met until 1:30 a.m. EDT Monday and were back at the table by 10 a.m. But he would not comment on whether any substantial progress was made.

Several more GM assembly plants were forced to close Friday because of the strike. Pickup truck plants in Pontiac, Mich., (Pontiac West) and Shreveport, La., were closed because of a resulting parts shortage, idling a total 4,400 workers.

An additional 288 workers were idled at GM's Flint Truck & Bus Metal Fabrication plant, which employs about 3,500.

On Thursday, GM's light truck plant in Moraine, Ohio, was forced to close, idling about 3,200 workers who remained off the job Monday because of a shortage of gas tanks made at the AC West plant.

That brings the total layoff so far to nearly 8,000 workers.

''If the strike continues, there is a definite likelihood that additional plants will close,'' said GM spokesman Tom Pyden. ''But I cannot say at this time which plants or when.''

It is believed that plants at risk include GM's Buick City plant in Flint, as well as large car plants in Lake Orion, Mich., and Wentzville, Mo.

GM operates on a streamlined inventory system called ''just-in-time'' manufacturing, which cuts costs and improves quality - but makes its assembly plants more vulnerable to strikes at parts facilities like Flint.

Like the strikers, idled workers receive $100 a week in strike benefits and get continued health benefits, but they are ineligible for GM's Supplemental Unemployment Benefits (SUB) program.

''Unemployment compensation is determined by the state agencies, and no SUB benefits are payable because these layoffs are a consequence of a labor dispute,'' Pyden said.

The Flint strike began Wednesday over disputes concerning work speed-ups, subcontracting and a lapse in health and safety conditions at the plant, which also makes engine valves, exhaust manifolds, van doors and truck grilles for GM vehicles.

The walkouts include about 2,700 workers at the AC West plant and 360 at GM's Flint Tool & Die, which is located outside the AC complex and supplies die designs for various GM vehicle. Both are part of UAW's local 659.

So far both company and union officials say the Flint walkout has not affected the steady pace of the national contract talks that began July 18. Those talks are aimed at reaching a new agreement covering about 330,000 GM workers. The current three-year pact expires Sept. 14.

''This is a completely separate issue from the national talks,'' agreed Ruben Burks of UAW's Region 1C, with other UAW bargainers conceding it is highly unusual to call a local strike during national bargaining.

But some industry analysts suggested the strike is aimed at showing the union's muscle during the national talks, with the prime issue being outsourcing, or the transfer of work outside the carmaker and union.

''This is really about subcontracting and outsourcing,'' said David Healy, of Barclays de Zoete Wedd in New York. ''Those are some vital issues that are sure to come up in the national talks, so I am not really sure both sides are being totally frank.''

DALLAS (AUG. 13) UPI - A resident of a group home for mental patients was charged with arson Monday in an early morning fire that gutted the facility, killing four women and injuring three others, authorities said.

Margaret Ann Wright, 46, a current resident of the home for nine women, was charged with arson, but additional charges in the deaths of the four women also may be filed, said Dallas Fire Department spokeswoman Carolyn Garcia.

''She was an occupant of the building,'' Garcia said. ''Charges have been filed. She told investigators she started the fire downstairs.''

The two-alarm fire began shortly before 4 a.m. and gutted the two-story house, which is run by the Dallas County Mental Health-Mental Retardation

Agency. Three of the victims died at hospitals and a fourth was pronounced dead at the scene, fire officials said.

The women have not been identified, but officials listed their ages as 18, 29, 40 and 63.

Three women were treated for minor burns and smoke inhalation at the scene authorities said. An off-duty firefighter was injured while getting residents out of the house and was taken to a hospital.

Firefighters were told after arriving that some of the nine residents were trapped inside the home. One woman who escaped the fire said she awoke to find her room filled with smoke. Firefighters rescued her and other residents from second-floor windows.

Garcia said no flammable liquids were used. A fire investigator at the scene said the flames spread quickly from the living room to the stairs, preventing residents upstairs from escaping.

The fire was brought under control shortly after 4:30 a.m., and damage to the building and its contents was set at $120,000.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Saudi Arabia today turned back an Iraqi oil tanker trying to load oil at a terminal along its Red Sea coast. Also today, Egypt's foreign minister met in Cairo with the Soviet ambassador to Egypt... as well as U-S Assistant Secretary of State John Kelly, who held talks last week with Syrian leaders on U-S moves to isolate Iraq.

President Bush has American warships engaged in a de facto naval blockade today to enforce U-N-ordered trade sanctions against Iraq for its invasion of Kuwait. The White House has been careful to avoid using the word ''blockade'' but says the United States will do ''whatever is necessary'' to intercept shipments of oil heading to or from Iraq.

Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy today warned Jordan's King Hussein against helping Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein by channeling goods through Jordan to Iraq. Levy was quoted by Israel Radio as saying ''Jordan was walking a tightrope'' by aiding Iraq. The Jordanian king did NOT join in condemning the August 2nd Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Dallas investigators have arrested a 46-year-old woman for setting a fire this morning that killed four residents of a county-owned group home for former mental patients. A fire department spokeswoman says the suspect... Margaret Ann Wright... has been charged only with arson but that additional charges in the deaths of the four women also may be filed.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Underwater skimmers were unleashed again today in the Houston Ship Channel to clean up 21-thousand gallons of heavy crude oil that spilled when a barge buckled yesterday while being loaded. Workers used booms to contain the oil and seal off the area in the Sim Turning Basin. It's the third significant spill in the channel this summer.

The founder of a notorious Detroit drug gang called Young Boys, Incorporated, says he wants to work with an anti-drug group when he's released from prison. Last week, Butch Jones completed eight years of a 12-year sentence for drug conspiracy but must finish three-to-five years for accessory to murder. The 35-year-old says he still wants to work with kids... but this time, to teach them to say ''NO'' to drugs.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Researchers say the problems of child abuse, poverty and drug addiction could give way to an ''epidemic'' of murders committed by juveniles in the next 10 years. CHICAGO (AUG. 13) UPI - Sears, Roebuck & Co. on Monday denied a published report that Chairman Edward Brennan has been told by the board of directors to turn around retail operations in six months - or face the prospect of losing his job.

Crain's Chicago Business said Brennan was handed the ''ultimatum'' at ''a tumultuous'' board meeting Wednesday.

Sears spokesman Gerald Buldak termed the story ''absolutely false and misleading. At the moment that's all I can give you.''

The weekly quoted an outside Sears director as saying Brennan was told, ''You say you can turn this around. Then do it yourself.''

Brennan last week took on the additional job of chairman of the company's Merchandise Group in what the report described as ''a last-ditch effort to improve retailing results,'' with the division's chairman and chief executive officer, Michael Bozic, dropped back a notch to president.

Last week also brought the announcement that Sears and Montgomery Ward & Co. -headed by Brennan's brother, Bernard - had ended discussions on the possibility of merging their retail operations.

''Brennan is on real thin ice and he has a very short time period,'' one source close to the company told the business weekly. ''He has taken over the helm of a ship that has a rotten bottom and he has been running around trying to patch up the holes with tar, but he has too many gushers.''

The report said the company appears to be positioning Philip J. Purcell, who is chairman of its Dean Witter Financial Services Group, as a successor to Brennan should he fail in efforts to turn the company around by early 1991.

Sears, headquartered in Chicago, is the largest U.S. retailer, with a far-flung empire of department stores and a large catalog operation; it also sells financial services, insurance and real estate through its Dean Witter, Allstate Insurance and Coldwell Banker subsidiaries.

CHICAGO (AUG. 13) UPI - Grain and soybean futures extended their opening losses at midmorning Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Follow-through selling pressured the grains in a continuation of Friday's weakness, while soybeans were depressed by liquidation and profit-taking.

New-crop wheat was the strongest commodity on the floor. Commercial buying was based on news the Philippines was in the market for 210,000 tons and that Algeria bought 150,000 tons of wheat overnight.

Widespread rain during the weekend and the prospect of favorable growing conditions over much of the Grain Belt this week contributed to the weakness in corn and soybeans. Lower basis levels and a slight increase in farmer selling also kept the market on the defensive.

Losses in corn were limited by indications of a pick-up in export demand in the coming weeks.

The midmorning prices:

Corn Sep 2.46 3/4 off 3 5/8; Dec 2.42 3/4 off 2; Mar 2.51 1/4 off 2 1/4.

Soybeans Aug 6.03 3/4 off 5; Sep 6.07 1/2 off 6 1/2; Nov 6.18 1/4 off 7 3/4; Jan 6.29 1/2 off 7.

ISLAMABAD, PAKISTAN (AUG. 13) UPI - Pakistan Monday accused Indian forces of firing heavy artillery and mortars across the border into a well populated area of the Kashmir region in what was seen as an escalation of the regional conflict between the two nations.

India denied there had been an exchange but state-run Pakistan Television reported Pakistani troops repulsed the Sunday attack. The Pakistani report said the attack was aimed at capturing a post on the Pakistani side of the Kashmir region and that Pakistani forces inflicted casualties on the Indians.

It was not clear if Indian troops crossed the border and there was no immediate word on whether the Indian shelling, the first such attack in a populated border area, caused casualties.

Both nations claim sovereignty over Kashmir, with India occupying two-thirds of the region and Pakistan in control of the remainder.

''In spite of the fact that Indian troops used heavy artillery and mortars Pakistani forces repulsed the attack, inflicting casualties on the intruders,'' Pakistani broadcast said.

''India's violation of the line of control and use of heavy artillery has been reported to the U.N. military observers group for India and Pakistan '' the television said.

A government spokesman in India, responding to queries about the Pakistani news reports, denied there had been any Indian attack across the line of control in Kashmir. He also denied reports that Pakistan had rebuffed Indian troops and inflicted casualties.

Indian and Pakistani troops frequently exchange gunfire across the line of control but the Indian spokesman said nothing out of the ordinary occurred in the region.

''There has been no attack and no engagement and India has suffered no casualties,'' he said.

Small-arms skirmishes have occurred in the area of the U.N.-monitored cease-fire line in Kashmir since a popular uprising errupted in India's Jammu and Kashmir state. India's alleged use of artillery and mortars would mark an escalation of the conflict.

Television said use of heavy weapons between the two sides previously had been restricted to the disputed Siachen Glacier area to the north.

''India's use of heavy artillery is an attempt to escalate the situation along the line of control in order to divert attention from the freedom struggle in occupied Kashmir,'' Pakistan television said.

New Delhi has accused Islamabad of inflaming the Kashmir situation by arming and training the Moslem militants operating on the Indian side. Islamabad denies the accusation but acknowledges providing moral support for the movement.

The alleged incident came two days after Indian and Pakistani officials concluded a second round of talks in New Delhi aimed at easing tensions between the two rival nations over Kashmir. Officials said the talks had made some progress, but the two sides failed to sign a formal agreement.

The 20-month-old government of Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto was dissolved by President Ishaq Khan, who accused her administration of corruption.

ATHENS, GREECE (AUG. 13) UPI - Venezuelan Foreign Minister Reinaldo Planchart arrived in Iran Monday to meet with officials and discuss possible changes in OPEC production, Tehran radio said. Planchart, on an unannounced visit, flew to Tehran in a private plane from Jeddah, Saudi Arabia, Tehran radio indicated.

Last week, the U.N. Security Council imposed economic sanctions on Iraq following its invasion of Kuwait, effectively removing the two countries' oil from the world market.

Tehran radio said Saudi Arabia was planning to make up for the shortfall by producing above its quota set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Venezuela was due to discuss with Iranian leaders how OPEC could deal with the issue of production quotas considering the impact of the Persian Gulf crisis, the radio said. Planchart was scheduled to fly to Algeria from Tehran and also visit other OPEC member countries, Tehran radio indicated.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Officials from both East and West Germany attended memorial ceremonies today to mark the 29th anniversary of the now-obsolete Berlin Wall. From the hasty building of the wall on this date in 1962, until its collapse on November 9th, 1989, a total of 77 people were killed trying to escape to West Berlin. The last victim was a 20-year-old who was shot by guards only nine months before the wall fell.

A former mental patient has been charged with arson for allegedly igniting a fire in a Dallas group home for recovering mental patients. Four women were killed when fire swept the two-story residence in the early morning hours today. Fire officials say Margaret Wright... a resident at the home... has been charged with arson and may face additional charges in the deaths of the four women.

Underwater skimmers on the Houston Ship Channel are trying to clean-up 21-thousand gallons of heavy crude oil that spilled yesterday from a barge that buckled while being loaded. Coast Guard Commander Rex Prosser says the accident is under investigation, but human error during the loading operation apparently led to the spill. Officials say the environmental threat from the spill is minimal because the area is flanked by ship channel industries and refineries.

CHICAGO (AUG. 13) UPI - Recyclers, as soul singer James Brown might say, have a brand-new bag. A Massachusetts company introduced trash bags Sunday that include recycled plastic as part of the annual Hardware Show going on in Chicago.

Webster Industries of Peabody, Mass., said its RENEW trash bags - made up of more than 80 percent recycled plastics - and its GOOD SENSE bags - made with more than 50 percent recycled plastics - have won certification from Green Cross. Green Cross is a private, not-for-profit organization that sets environmental product standards. "These products, at present," are the first and only plastics products to receive the award," Webster said in a statement.

Green Cross President Dr. Stanley Rhodes said the tough standards, combined with independent certification of claims "can help to reassure consumers that it is working for true environmental solutions. The Green Cross certification verifies Webster's commitment to using state-of-the-art technologies to create products with the highest possible recycled content."

Webster President Rajeev Bal said the trash bags show the company is "committed to manufacturing quality products in way that address environmental concerns."

Webster said it pioneered plastic recycling technology in the 1970s and is one of the nation's largest plastics recyclers, reclaiming more than 50 million pounds of plastic scrap each year. The company said each box of RENEW garbage bags includes two pounds of plastic that otherwise would have ended up in a landfill.

Webster since 1982 has focused its consumer and institutional product manufacturing at plants in Montgomery, Ala., and Macomb, Ill. The Peabody site handles retail packaging manufacturing and is the company's distribution center.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 13) UPI - Teamsters members at United Parcel Service voted to accept a new three-year contract, ensuring the continued delivery of about 11 million packages a day, the union announced Monday.

Teamsters General President William McCarthy announced the vote was 65,463 in favor, with 53,091 voting to reject the contract. The new contract, retroactive to Aug. 1, covers some 146,000 full- and part-time UPS employees and expires on July 31, 1993.

"The membership has spoken, in a particularly large vote return, and in spite of the fact that the negotiating committee recommended rejection," McCarthy said in a statement.

The new contract includes a raise from $16.10 an hour for the average driver to $17.60 an hour over a three-year period and improved benefits. UPS also will give full-time workers a $1,000 bonus within a month of ratification and part-time employees will get a $500 bonus, company officials said. In 1989, UPS made 2.8 billion deliveries and had revenues of $12.4 billion.

UPS Chairman Kent C. Nelson said, "We are pleased that we were able to offer a package to our people they obviously found to be fair and responsive to their needs. UPS people work hard and they deserve to be compensated well."

The International Brotherhood of Teamsters, which represents the workers, has never conducted a nationwide strike against UPS, which delivers about 11 million packages a day in the United States. Even before the vote was announced, a UPS spokesman had said the union had agreed "to continue working regardless of the outcome of the vote." The Teamsters began counting votes Friday. The old contract expired July 31.

A walkout would have created a massive shipping problem, even for rival shippers and the U.S. Postal Service, which had developed contingency plans to handle the extra load.

NAIROBI, KENYA (AUG. 13) UPI - Kenyan lawyers accused security police Monday of torturing four polticial activists, charging they were interrogated naked about an alleged plot to topple President Daniel arap Moi.

Lawyers for the men told Chief Justice Allan Hancox during a bail hearing that the four men were subjected to ''inhuman, degrading, beastly and extremely harsh condition(s)'' at Kenya's notorious Kamiti maximum security prison.

The human rights activists were arrested last month during a week of democracy riots in which they called for a multi-party system in Kenya, ruled by a single political party since 1982.

The lawyers said the men were stripped and interrogated, left overnight in water-logged rooms, and forced to do ''exercises'' when they were totally exhausted. The men were also kept for hours in total darkness and were not allowed to wash, the lawyers charged.

''The prison authorities are feeding our clients on food unfit for human consumption in filthy cells throughout,'' the lawyers said.

Hancox said he would consider on Thursday whether to release the men, who have been charged with sedition and possession of seditious documents critical of Moi's administration.

The democracy debate has heated up in Kenya since the fall of communism in East Europe last fall.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 13) UPI - A prolonged crisis in the Middle East could significantly harm first-time home buyers, whose median income was about one-third short of what was necessary to purchase a typical starter home during the second quarter, the National Association of Realtors said Monday.

Higher family incomes allowed first-time home buyers to offset rising home prices and mortgage rates in the second quarter, but their purchasing power remained much below that of repeat buyers.

NAR President Norman D. Flynn said if the situation in Kuwait blows over quickly, interest rates will return to their earlier pattern of trending downward.

But Flynn warned that ''if the crisis is of longer duration we expect there to be a significant negative impact on housing markets and affordability, especially for first-time buyers.''

A prolonged crisis in the Middle East could force the Federal Reserve to maintain or increase interest rates to contain inflationary pressures created by higher oil prices.

NAR's First-Time Home Buyer Affordability Index measured 72.9 for the second quarter, indicating the typical entry-level buyer had only that percentage of the income needed to buy the typical starter home. The index was at 73 in the previous quarter and at 71 in the same period a year ago.

The index shows the ability of renters, who are prime potential first-time buyers, to qualify for a conventional mortgage on a starter home. Their median income represents the typical income of a renter family with wage earners between the ages of 25 and 44. Half the renter families earned more and half earned less.

The 72.9 index for first-time buyers was 29.9 percent lower than NAR's composite Housing Affordability Index, which measures affordability for all buyers of existing homes. The composite index measured 104 for the second quarter.

During the second quarter, the median income of first-time home buyers was $23,368, up $245 from the first quarter. The median starter-home price rose to $81,800 from $81,500 in the first quarter.

The interest rate - the closing contract rate plus fees or points paid at settlement - used in the index rose to 10.15 percent from 10.04 percent. The additional charge of private mortgage insurance raised it to 10.40 percent, the NAR said.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Fears that a U.S. de facto blockade of Iraq could erupt into a ''shooting situation'' as Iraqi President Saddam Hussein moved more troops into occupied Kuwait drove world oil prices up early Monday with gasoline rising more than 3 cents a gallon.

''At some point, Saddam Hussein is going to have to challenge this (blockade) and the market reflects that fear,'' said Peter Beutel, vice president of Merrill Lynch Futures Inc. in New York.

''Any time now, it could erupt into a shooting situation. The market is on 'tender hooks' waiting for the next shoe to drop,'' the trader said.

''It's a little tense. There's a general assessment that we might be moving toward a flash point,'' agreed Peter Gignoux in the London office of Shearson Lehman Hutton.

''Saddam is not acting like a man who will withdraw (from Kuwait),'' Gignoux said.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, unleaded gasoline for September delivery was up 3.15 cents a gallon in midday trading at 82.60 cents a gallon, while home heating oil was up 2.19 cents at 74.80 cents a gallon.

The benchmark West Texas Intermediate for September delivery was being at quoted around midday at $26.74 a barrel, 51 cents higher than Friday's close.

On the European spot market, United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude from the Middle East shipped mainly to the Far East - was adding 50 cents over Friday at $22.95 cents a barrel. Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent alsol was gaining 50 cents at $25.95 a barrel.

On the U.S. Gulf Coast cash market, prompt delivery WTI was being quoted at $26.65 a barrel, 40 cents higher than Friday.

Over the weekend, Saddam increased the presence of Iraqi forces in Kuwait from slightly more than 100,000 troops to an estimated 170,000 after Arab nations Friday such as Egypt and Syria agreed to deploy troops in Saudi Arabia to join those arriving from the United States.

From his vacation retreat in Kennebunkport, Maine, President Bush ordered U.S. warships to impose a de facto naval blockade Monday to enforce a trade embrargo against Iraq ordered by the United Nations last week after the Aug. 2 invasion.

The administration also rejected a proposal by Saddam to withdraw his forces from Kuwait if U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia were replaced by a U.N.-supervised Arab force, Israel left the occupied territories and an international trade embargo were lifted.

In Tokyo, the Japanese government adopted numerous energy-saving measures to help ease the impact of a halt in crude oil imports from Iraq and Kuwait.

The measures include setting air conditioning at no lower than 82 degrees and turning off about one third of lighting at government offices. The general public will be asked to observe similar steps and drivers will be advised not to exceed 50 mph.

MOUNT PLEASANT, SC (AUG. 13) UPI - The USS Yorktown, a battle-scarred relic that braved enemy torpedoes, bombs and suicide attacks in three wars may end up sinking ignominiously in a sea of red ink and community indifference.

The 47-year-old aircraft carrier called ''The Fighting Lady'' founders in a floating naval museum in the Charleston Harbor. Its enemies are not submarines or torpodeo planes but bankruptcy, expensive repairs and a drop in tourism.

A group of retired Navy and Marine officers are joining other supporters in an effort to keep the ship afloat, but the prospects appear dim.

Since 1975, the Yorktown has docked in retirement in the harbor, the centerpiece of the Patriots Point Naval and Maritime Museum.

A destroyer and submarine from World War II, a Coast Guard cutter and the nuclear powerd merchant ship, Savannah, keep it company in the shadows of the twin Cooper River Bridges.

Off the marshy shores of the Charleston suburb of Mount Pleasant, its jagged gray turrets overlook the city's docks and spires in a city tied by history and geography to ships and the sea.

The fortunes of the Yorktown and the naval museum began to sink two years ago.

The Patriot's Point Associates, a private partnership, planned to build a $21 million hotel and marina complex on land leased from the Patriots Point Authority, a quasi-state agency that runs the museum.

The Patriots Point Associates went bankrupt in 1988.

The hotel stands incomplete and vacant, battered by Hurricane Hugo. Creditors want their money. The authority says it has already paid $750,000 to contractors and for other costs for the hotel and marina.

The authority, which maintains it is separate from the failed project, is trying to get its money back.

The U.S.Bankruptcy Court has not made a decision.

Officials say the authority has to spend about $700,000 repairing damage from Hugo and installing fire safety devices the South Carolina Fire Marshal's Office is requiring if youth groups continue overnight visits.

The youth program brought in $250,000 last year.

At the same time, visitors to the museum are off more than 20 percent, reflecting a drop in tourism throughout Charleston.

In an effort to rescue the Yorktown, a group of retired Navy and Marine officers formed Save the Yorktown Inc. last March to raise money. Comedian Bob Hope did a benefit for the effort at The Citadel, but the group had to give away tickets and it was not clear if it raised any money.

Community response disappointed retired Navy Cap. William Kerr, president of the group.

''I think it's on the knife's edge of disaster,'' Kerr said of the Yorktown. ''If things keep going the way they're going, they're looking at millions of dollars to bring it up to a presentable state.''

The 888-foot ship extends nearly the length of three football fields. In service, it was a living city, housing more than 3,000 men and caring for them with a butcher shop, dentist, hospital and bakery.

The Yorktown was christened Jan. 21, 1943 when Eleanor Roosevelt broke a bottle of champagne across the ship's bow.

It was the second World War II carrier to bear that name, and fought in Korea and Vietnam, destroying or damaging 2,358 aircraft and sinking 119 ships.

Joe Sharkey, who served aboard the Yorktown during World War II, said the ship's troubles are heartbreaking.

''I am married and I have nine beautiful children, but this is my first love,'' said Sharkey, a 67-year-old retired dance instructor and bridge painter who now organizes reunions for the Yorktown.

''When I fell in love with the Yorktown, I had no one else. When I married my wife, she knew it. She played second fiddle. I cried when I left the Yorktown because I didn't want to leave my ship.''

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 13) UPI - The Fairmont Hotel on Nob Hill has boosted the price of its Penthouse Suite to $6,000 a night.

The $1,000-a-night increase for the eight-room suite with round-the-clock butler and maid ''makes it the most expensive in the United States, and possibly the world,'' a hotel spokesman said.

The suite includes a walk-in vault, 24-karat gold plated fixtures in its four bathrooms, a two-story circular library, a game room with a stained glass skylight, an outdoor terrace with a view, a dining room for up to 50 kitchen and three bedrooms.

Limousine service to and from the airport is thrown in, the hotel said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 13) UPI - Peter Janz has been a diplomat for more than 12 years. Like most of his colleagues, the spokesman of the East German Embassy, father of two children, is facing possible unemployment.

"Our embassy will be closed as soon as the two German states are united," he said. Another East German diplomat said, "In principle it is just a matter of weeks."

What will happen to the members of the East German diplomatic corps is still unclear. A large number of East German diplomats are known to have worked for the East German secret service (Stasi), and most of them were loyal members of the Communist Party.

"I think the staff members of the East German foreign ministry will be retrained so that they can start new careers in other areas. I could very well imagine that some will become journalists," said East Germany's charge d'affairs, Norbert Reemer, 47, who joined the foreign service 22 years ago after studying in Moscow.

According to West German diplomats, only a few might be allowed to join the West German diplomatic service. "The all-German foreign ministry cannot take on people who have worked for the Stasi or people who were apologists for the former Stalinist system," said Gunter Pleuger, the minister for political affairs at the West German Embassy. "That is a question of credibility for the all-German foreign service."

The East German foreign minister, Markus Meckel, announced recently that his ministry would be dissolved after the unification and, therefore, staff members would have to look for new jobs.

"I have no idea what will become of me," said Janz, 37, in the embassy on the eighth floor of an apartment building on Washington's embassy row. A dentist married to another diplomat has returned to East Germany hoping to set up her own practice so that she can provide for her family of four if her husband is out of work.

Those who were affiliated with the old suppressive regime might face a difficult future at home. Yet, Reemer said, only a few embassy employees are considering staying in the United States. "Unification is an altogether good thing and I am absolutely in favor of it. I expect that in the all-German state everyone will get good opportunities."

The embassy staff of about 30 people has been cut back by more than 20 percent already. Many are on vacation, and it is uncertain if they will return to their jobs. East German Ambassador Gerald Herder, who had been a loyal representative of the old communist regime, left Washington in June to take early retirement at 62.

Meanwhile the West German and East German staffs, who in the past largely avoided each other, are constantly in contact in these more relaxed times. "Our relationship has become cooperative and businesslike", a spokesman for the West German Embassy said.

Since the fall of the Berlin Wall in November, members of both embassies have been asked to take part in a variety of events jointly. In May Washington saw its first German-German joint venture, when the two ambassadors issued a joint invitation to a preview showing of a documentary film on the life of Johann Sebastian Bach.

LONDON (AUG. 13) UPI - Prices closed lower on the London International Stock Exchange Monday following a disappointing report on Britain's retail sales picture for July and continuing jitters over the Persian Gulf crisis.

Stock markets in Frankfurt, Paris and Amsterdam registered sharper losses Monday.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which fell 11.1 points Friday, lost another 14.3 points to 2,219.5 but managed to retrace some of its earlier losses. The narrower top 30 industrial average lost 10.8 points to 1,732.2.

Volume amounted to around 294 million shares, compared with 312 million shares changing hands on Friday.

Analysts said prices fell in slow trading following a Central Statistical Office report showing Britain's retail sales rose by a provisional 1.0 percent in July from June and by 2.3 percent from July 1989.

Market forecasters were expecting a month-on-month increase of 0.4 percent.

Analysts were surprised by the figures, which they said showed the government's economic strategy of using high interest rates to fight inflation was not curbing consumer spending as quickly as expected.

On the trading floor, Polly Peck International climbed 48 cents to $7.56 on news that Chairman Asil Nadir is considering taking the fruit and electronics company private.

Among some of the day's other highlights, Rothmans fell 26 cents to $13.03 and Eurotunnel plunged 45 cents to $8.55 on reports of financing delays.

Elsewhere in Europe, prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange closed sharply lower in listless trading as investors continued to worry over tensions in the Middle East.

The closely watched German Stock Index, which lost 6.29 points Friday, tumbled 43.29 points, or 2.5 percent, to 1,706.05 - its lowest closing level in more than eight months.

At the Amsterdam Stock Exchange, stocks tumbled across the board, hammered by continued worries over the Mideast situation and a clutch of local economic negative factors. The exchange's CBS Tendency Index tumbled by 2.4 percent in falling 2.6 points to 105.3.

In Paris, stock prices on the Paris Bourse fell sharply, with the exchange's CAC 40 Index off almost 3.30 percent to 1,721.01.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Sudanese rebels say five days of fighting between government troops and rebel forces left 82 government soldiers dead. The clandestine radio station of the Sudanese People's Liberation Army says the fighting is for control of approaches leading to the the regional capital of Juba, 770 miles south of Khartoum. Since 1983, the predominantly Christian black African rebel group has fought a series of governments for control of southern Sudan.

Teamsters union members at United Parcel Service said ''yes'' to a three-year contract, over the objections of a negotiating committee that recommended the offer be rejected. Teamsters General President William McCarthy announced that some 65-thousand members voted in favor of the plan, while about 53-thousand others rejected it. Ratification of the deal ensures continued delivery of about 11-Million U-P-S packages a day. The deal includes a pay raise and a one-thousand-dollar bonus within a month of ratification for full-time U-P-S workers.

Motorists concerned about the rising price of gasoline can brace for another jolt when they get ready to winterize their autos. The price of anti-freeze also is on the way up. BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (AUG. 13) UPI - Economic sanctions imposed on Iraq for its invasion of Kuwait have produced early evidence of Iraqi food shortages, NATO officials were told Monday.

NATO's political committee met at the Western alliance's headquarters in what has become a daily session on the Persian Gulf crisis.

''There was an evaluation of the preliminary effect of sanctions, and there is some evidence that food shortages have already started to appear in Iraq,'' a NATO source said.

The source stressed, however, the information shared at a meeting of high NATO officials was based on preliminary indications, and it was ''too early to draw any real conclusions'' on the impact of food shortages in Iraq or Kuwait.

He also declined to say which foodstuffs were in short supply in Iraq as a result of the sanctions imposed by the United States, the European Community, Japan and many other nations.

Iraq imports much of its food, purchased by oil revenues.

NATO's political committee also discussed, and gave a positive reaction, to the Soviet Union's ''helpful position'' in the Gulf crisis, the alliance source said.

Representatives of six Eastern European countries, including the Soviet Union, told NATO officials they were ''appreciative of actions NATO was taking,'' the source said.

The diplomatic liaisons from Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Poland, Romania, Hungary and the Soviet Union were briefed last Friday on a meeting of NATO foreign ministers. The unprecedented exchange of information stemmed from the peace declaration toward the Warsaw Pact issued by Atlantic alliance leaders at their landmark London summit in June.

NATO officials also discussed the differences expressed by Arab nations at their special meeting in Cairo last Friday, in which a slim majority of Arab League members voted to send forces to Saudi Arabia.

Several NATO representatives ''expressed concern'' regarding their nationals living in the various Arab countries, the alliance source said.

NATO's political committee is comprised of senior diplomats from the 16 countries.

NIAGARA FALLS, NY (AUG. 13) UPI - The first 10 of 236 homes to be resettled in the Love Canal area of Niagara Falls will be sold Wednesday, officials said Monday.

Pamela Cramer, administrative assistant of the Love Canal Revitalization Agency, said 237 people have inquired about purchasing a home in the neighborhood surrounding the former toxic chemical dump.

''Seven people are interested in one home in particular,'' Cramer said. ''The vast majority of the people are from the Niagara Falls area or Niagara County.''

One of the last obstacles for selling the homes was cleared last week when the state Disaster Preparedness Commission approved the plan to resettle the area.

Cramer said the first homes will go on sale despite threats of possible legal action to block the sales.

Several environmental groups, including the Citizen's Clearing House for Hazardous Waste, headed by former Love Canal resident Lois Gibbs, have threatened to launch the legal action.

The state and federal governments declared a state of emergency at Love Canal in August 1978, leading to the immediate, permanent relocation of 237 families living along the canal itself and the eventual evacuation of 1,000 families from the surrounding area over a three-year period.

The Occidental Chemical Corp., which acquired the Hooker Chemical Co. in 1968, dumped tons of toxins, including the potent carcinogen dioxin, in Love Canal in the 1940s and 1950s. Later, the canal was sealed with a clay cap and homes and a school were built on top of it.

Chemicals began oozing from the ground and, coupled with high incidences of birth defects and cancer, led the EPA to order the evacuations.

State Health Commissioner Dr. David Axelrod ruled in September 1988 that two-thirds of the area north and west of Love Canal were now suitable for resettlement.

Under terms of an agreement, the state is committed to repay a $7.5 million loan to the federal government from the sale of the homes. Payments have been due since 1983, but delays in resettlement of the area led to a moritorium on payments.

DES PLAINES, Ill. (AUG. 13) UPI - Motorists concerned about the rising price of gasoline can brace for another jolt when they get ready to winterize their autos.

The price of antifreeze also is on the way up and the Middle East situation is one of the reasons, one of the nation's largest antifreeze marketers said Monday.

''Chemicals needed to produce antifreeze, such as ethylene, ethylene glycol and naphtha, already are in tight domestic supply,'' said Michael Barcum, senior vice president of Old World Automotive.

''Supplies of naphtha are expected to decrease even further because supply ships cannot pass through the Persian Gulf.''

He said production also will be hampered by the fact Japanese producers are selling ethylene to plastics manufacturers, rather than for antifreeze because they can charge more in that market.

Barcum said his company, which markets antifreeze under such brand names as PEAK, Full Force and Advance, is ''not happy'' at the prospect of a shortage.

''But we feel it's only fair to alert consumers to the situation so they will be prepared during the winter months,'' he said.

''We are anticipating a price increase for antifreeze within the next 30 days as a result of the current events in the Middle East,'' he said.

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine (AUG. 13) UPI - The Bush administration said Monday the de facto military blockade of Baghdad is ''being maintained'' and that some ships have already backed off from the Persian Gulf rather than risk confronting U.S. warships.

''We've had reports in recent hours of two or three ships turning away,'' White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said.

Fitzwater said the vessels made no contact with U.S. forces and turned away voluntarily. He said he had no further details.

Bush ordered U.S. forces Sunday to block all Iraqi imports and exports under week-old economic sanctions approved by the United Nations after Iraq occupied neighboring Kuwait Aug. 2. The invasion prompted Bush to order American troops and planes to Saudi Arabia to protect the oil kingdom from a possible Iraqi attack.

Briefing reporters near Bush's summer home in Maine Monday, Fitzwater said no Iraqi ships have left their ports.

''We are very optimistic at this point that the embargo will hold and that it will be effective,'' Fitzwater said. ''The embargo is being maintained.''

Fitzwater said the embargo covers ''everything'' - food as well as oil - but said some materials may eventually be permitted through for humanitarian reasons.

''The purpose of the embargo and the sanctions is to put them pinch on them (Iraq),'' Fitzwater said. ''You don't don't give them the essentials to carry on the war.''

Fitzwater also announced that Bush, who began a 25-day vacation in Maine late Friday, will return to Washington Tuesday for a 24-hour visit, including meetings with military and economic aides.

He said one issue will be how the massive and costly U.S. military operation in the Persian Gulf will affect budget plans.

Fitzwater said Bush would go to the Pentagon Wednesday for a briefing on the military operation before returning to Kennebunkport.

On Monday, Bush called President Carlos Andres Perez of Venezuela, a major supplier of oil to the United States, to discuss future energy needs. The United States had relied on Iraq and Kuwait for about 4 percent of its oil.

The administration, in formally announcing its decision Sunday to interdict any Iraqi imports or exports, refused to use the word ''blockade.''

Some nation's consider a military blockade an act of war, and Bush has said the United States is not at war with Iraq.

Fitzwater said Monday, ''We're not interested in semantics. We're interdicting these ships. That's our policy. We choose to use the words that we believe best describe our policy.''

The press secretary refused to say what U.S. forces would do if a ship refused to backed off.

He also declined to say what other nations would join the United States in enforcing the embargo, saying the administration would leave it up to those countries to announce their participation.

While avoiding the term ''blockade, the White House announced Sunday that the United States, acting on a request from Kuwait's exiled leader, ''will do whatever is necessary'' to intercept shipments of oil and other vital goods in and out of Iraq.

Speaking to reporters, Bush asserted that the U.N. Charter ''gives us broad authority, working in conjunction with others, to do whatever is necessary to see that no oil gets out.''

The first elements of Arab forces began joining Americans in Saudi Arabia, where the buildup of U.S. troops and aircraft continued. U.S. naval vessels also converged on the region, with the American presence expected to reach 50 ships, inclduing three aircraft carriers.

SANTO DOMINGO, DOMINICAN REPUBLIC (AUG. 13) UPI - Businesses in Santo Domingo and other cities were largely paralyzed Monday in the first day of a two-day general strike called to protest sharp price increases ordered by the government.

The strike was marred by the death of a student in the province of San Cristobal, 14 miles south of the capital. Witnesses said the student, identified as Juan Evangelista, was shot in the head by an army soldier.

In addition, there were reports of three demonstrators wounded by gunshots in the Los Mina neighborhood of Santo Domingo. The three were not identified, but witnesses said they had been demonstrating in favor of the strike.

A labor union and the leading opposition parties called the strike to protest the increased prices for fuel and basic foods ordered last week by President Joaquin Balaguer.

The 82-year-old Balaguer, who will start his second consecutive four-year term as president Thursday, warned he would send the army into the streets if the strike turned violent.

Juan Pablo Gomez, spokesman for the strike organizing committee, said Dominicans were firmly supporting the strike and that commerce was shut down in the capital.

Hardly any vehicles could be seen in the streets of Santo Domingo, and in the neighborhoods of the upper section of the capital, youths were seen burning tires while police stood guard against further violence.

Reports from around the country said the strike was also successful in most cities.

In Santiago, the major city in the north of the country, commerce and public transportation were halted.

In the poor section of El Cirielito two homemade bombs exploded, and an unidentified youth was injured, according to reports received in the capital.

The strike committee said several people had been arrested in Santiago.

In addition, another committee spokesman, Juan Gabriel del Rio, said several labor leaders had been arrested in the province of Villa Altagracia, near the capital.

MONROVIA, LIBERIA (AUG. 13) UPI - President Samuel Doe plans to remain in office for at least a year after an African peace-keeping force intervenes in the country's bloody civil war, a government spokesman said.

The spokesman was talking to reporters of three Western news agencies who had been arrested and beaten by government soldiers and threatened with being shot as spies. They were later released.

''The best thing is for Doe to stay,'' spokesman Selley Thompson told foreign reporters Sunday at the heavily guarded presidential mansion. This was a radical switch from Doe's previous offer to resign before the end of the year in order to end the conflict, which has degenerated into tribal warfare.

''If he decided to leave tomorrow morning there would be a bloodbath. The soldiers would go on a rampage,'' Thompson said.

''It's likely that if Doe decided to leave, the government's soldiers might even take power,'' Thompson said.

Meanwhile, a 2,400-member African peacekeeping force to be dispatched to Liberia began assembling in Sierra Leone under the jurisdiction of the Economic Community of West Africa States. The Nigerian contingent arrived in Freetown, Sierra Leone's capital, Sunday night, and contingents from Ghana, Guinea and Gambia are expected to arrive Monday, Leoneon Maj. Gen. M. S. Tarawlie said Monday.

Tarawlie said the schedule for the troops to enter Liberia was a secret, but military sources said they were expected to leave by Thursday by sea and air routes.

The forces have not been able to fly into Monrovia because rebels led by Charles Taylor, who opposes the introduction of peacekeepers, controls the international airport. His troops also are fighting government forces for control of Spriggs Payne airfield.

A rival guerrilla leader, Prince Johnson, said last weekend he would send a delegation to Freetown to make arrangements for the peacekeeping force to land in Monrovia's port, which he has controlled for two weeks.

The troops are also delayed by the need to carry all their supplies because Monrovia has been without fresh food, running water, electricity and regular telephone service for more than a month, military sources said.

Thompson said an earlier offer by Doe to step down before the end of his presidential mandate in October 1991 was no longer valid.

Thompson spoke to reporters who had been brought to the executive mansion under arrest after they crossed the front line on foot from rebel- to government-controlled territory in the center of Monrovia.

The three reporters had watches, wallets, money and other valuables forcibly taken from them by soldiers. Some items were returned under orders of senior officers, but others vanished.

The reporters, accused of being spies, were forced to walk shoeless and were on several occasions slapped and punched and threatened with rifle butts. They also had their shirts ripped from their chests and were accused of being spies.

Thompson and other senior officers apologized for the behavior of their troops. ''You have to understand they're very nervous,'' said Lt. Col. Moses Thomas, head of an elite anti-terrorist squad.

The reporters were escorted after two hours to the Barclay Training Center and then made their own way back across the lines without incident.

Thompson said U.S. forces in Liberia were again involved in the conflict, this time spraying tear gas from a helicopter on government troops in the city center Sunday.

The United States, which has stationed a four-ship naval squadron and helicopters off the coast to evacuate Americans and other foreign nationals and protect the U.S. Embassy, has consistently denied any involvement.

The Liberian government in the past has said Doe's mansion was attacked from a U.S. helicopter and that a U.S. submarine fired at Doe's fortress.

The soldiers paraded Isaac Nyenplu, former minister of justice, who they said was wounded in his throat and back by fire from a U.S. helicopter Thursday.

''I was standing beside Doe on the sixth floor of the mansion,'' he said. ''The gun must have had a telescopic sight. When I dropped, the helicopter moved out to sea.''

Nyenplu was bandaged and said he planned to go to the United States for treatment. The United States has denied its helicopters attacked anyone.

PASADENA, Calif. (AUG. 13) UPI - Other than a few minor glitches, NASA's Magellan probe sailed into orbit around cloud-choked Venus in good shape, officials said Monday, with tests of the spacecraft's critical radar mapping system on tap later this week.

Capable of showing surface features as small as a football field - 10 times better than every before - Magellan, the centerpiece of a $551 million project to map Venus's hidden surface, dropped into orbit around the planet Friday after a 15-month voyage from Earth.

James Doyle, a spokesman for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, said Monday the spacecraft ended up in a near-perfect orbit tilted 85.5 degrees to Venus's equator with a low point of 183 miles and a high point of 5,253 miles.

Engineers had been aiming for an orbit measuring 170 by 5,000 miles. Given the accuracy of the rocket firing Friday, a ''trim burn'' to fine-tune the orbit using Magellan's liquid-fueled maneuvering rockets will not be necessary.

Otherwise, the spacecraft survived the jarring braking maneuver Friday in excellent condition with only a few minor glitches.

Over the weekend, engineers tried to figure out what caused a computer chip in a backup guidance system to perform erratically after the spacecraft's spent solid-fuel braking motor was discarded Friday night.

''They were getting telemetry that was indicating an intermittent problem '' Doyle said. ''It's part of a backup system. It's like having a stuck traffic signal. This part of the subsystem takes commands and redirects them to other parts of the spacecraft. They can reroute those commands. It's not a significant problem at all.''

Engineers planned to aim Magellan's high-data-rate main antenna at Earth Monday to study detailed telemetry from the spacecraft in bid to find out what caused the original problem, which was not expected to have any impact on the probe's mission.

''It is not a continuing or significant problem at all,'' Doyle said. ''Everything else is coming out very well.''

Magellan, built by Martin Marietta Astronautics Group of Denver, was designed to map at least 90 percent of Venus's surface during its planned 243-day mission, photographing features as small as 350 feet across to revolutionize knowledge about the mysterious planet.

Engineers plan to begin testing the radar imaging system Thursday and if all goes well, mapping will begin in early September. But if preliminary tests generate any particularly interesting images, project officials may decide to release them to the public.

''There's a slim possibility,'' Doyle said. ''If they can get something within the first couple of days ... they will release it before the end of the month. They don't want to promise they're going to come out with an image until they start mapping.''

WASHINGTON (AUG. 13) UPI - Mayor Marion Barry, a lifelong Democrat, will switch his political party affiliation to independent to keep his options open for a possible bid for a fourth term or an at-large seat on the City Council, a spokeswoman said Monday.

Barry, who has until midnight Monday to change parties if he is to seek a post in this fall's elections, scheduled a 3 p.m. EDT meeting at the District of Columbia Board of Elections and Ethics to register as an independent, spokeswoman Vera Jackson said.

By shedding his political affiliation, the three-term mayor would have until Aug. 29 to file as an independent candidate. Such a switch would enable Barry to run for a post in the Nov. 6 general election.

Barry, convicted Friday of a single misdemeanor cocaine possession charge, reportedly is interested in a council seat as a way to fulfill the 20-year requirement he needs to retire with full government pension. The date for filing as a Democrat has passed.

There are currently five candidates for two at-large council seats, including incumbent Hilda Mason.

Barry served on the council from 1974 until his election as mayor in 1978.

At-large candidate Terry Lynch predicted if Barry runs, he will be plagued by his ''negative track record'' and an electorate ''desperate about the situation of the city.''

Barry was convicted Friday of one misdemeanor cocaine possession count and acquitted of another by a federal jury. A mistrial was declared on 12 other cocaine and perjury counts against him.

Barry still could be retried on those charges, which include three felonies.

Under city law, Barry would be precluded from holding office only if jailed after a felony conviction.

U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens has said he will announce at a Sept. 17 court hearing whether Barry will be retried, but the mayor Saturday called on Stephens to let the jury's ruling ''be our last judgment.''

In a speech to hundreds of cheering city residents, Barry asked forgiveness ''for any hurt I may have caused.''

Barry supporters could be heard shouting, ''Four more years!'' and many Washington voters - especially blacks - interviewed since the verdict have said they would still vote for the veteran mayor and former civil rights activist.

Ten government witnesses during Barry's 10-week trial testified the mayor used cocaine or obtained the drug dating back to 1983, and an FBI videotape of the Jan. 18 sting at which Barry was arrested showed him smoking crack.

Barry faces a maximum sentence of one year in prison and a $100,000 fine under his single conviction. But as a first-time offender, he is not expected to receive a prison sentence.

Barry announced June 13 during jury selection at his trial that he would not seek a fourth term as mayor, calling it a ''time for healing; for me personally and for you politically.''

If he should run for a fourth term, he would face Maurice Turner, the city's former police chief who converted to the Republican Party last summer, and the winner of the Sept. 11. Democratic primary.

In the past, the Democratic primary has been considered the defacto general election in a city where more than 80 percent of voters are registered Democrats.

(AUG. 13) UPI - The international effort to isolate Iraq appears to be on solid ground. In the first instance of a U-N-approved embargo against Iraq Saudi officials today refused to give docking clearance to an Iraqi oil tanker. Meanwhile, the multi-national armed force in the Persian Gulf region keeps growing. France today sent more than 22-hundred troops to the area.

An oil industry source in Cyprus says pumping has stopped in the Kuwaiti half of a neutral zone that separates Iraqi-controlled Kuwait and Saudi Arabia. The Saudi side of the zone is pumping as usual. Western diplomats refuse to say if U-S troops are located in the Saudi portion of the neutral zone to fend off any possible Iraqi attack.

A source at the NATO headquarters in Brussels says economic sanctions against Iraq appear to be creating Iraqi food shortages. The source stressed that the assumption of an impending food shortage in the Middle East nation is based on a preliminary evaluation of U-N-backed sanctions. He added it is- quote- ''too early to draw any real conclusions.''

A spokeswoman for life-long Democrat Marion Barry says the Washington, D-C mayor is meeting this afternoon with election officials to register as an independent. Vera Jackson says the switch would give Barry time to consider running for a fourth term... or for a seat on the City Council. A jury last week convicted Barry of a single misdemeanor charge of cocaine possession.

MONTREAL (AUG. 13) UPI - Mohawk Indians and Canadian authorities signed a preliminary agreement to resume talks toward ending two lengthy armed standoffs in a controversy that triggered a riot by residents, officials said Monday.

The riot by rock-throwing, stick-wielding protesters began late Sunday and lasted until early Monday. Seventeen policemen were wounded before police used tear gas to disperse the demonstrators.

Kanesatake Mohawks erected a roadblock about four months ago at a golf course expansion site on land they claim as theirs. Police arrived on the scene and a standoff ensued. On July 11, an abortive police raid on the roadblock left a policeman dead.

Mohawks also blocked a Montreal bridge in solidarity.

The agreement reached Sunday calls for the Mohawks to tear down the barricades and calls for observers from the International Federation of Human Rights or the United Nations as well as the free movement of food, supplies and Indian advisers across the barricades.

The federal government will appoint a negotiator and both sides will wait for the observers to start talks, government spokeswoman Helen Fisher said. The observers may arrive as early as Tuesday.

Even as the agreement was being reached Sunday, some 5,000 Chateauguay residents frustrated with traffic delays at the blocked Montreal bridge demonstrated against the barricades and alleged police brutality.

When police arrested seven protesters, the crowd followed police back to the nearby St. Martin police station. The crowd broke all windows at the station and shattered windows on two police cars.

Riot gear-equipped Royal Canadian Mounted Police and Quebec police fended off the crowd, and 17 policemen were wounded, Quebec police spokesman Constable Richard Bourdon said. It was not known how many civilians were hurt.

The crowd then returned to the Mercier bridge at Chateauguay to protest and police dispersed protesters with tear gas early Monday, Bourdon said.

Quebec police arrested 18 people on charges of assaulting police, damaging public property and the obstruction of justice, Bourdon said.

The Quebec government will review the incidents, representative Johanne Denault said.

Many of the Mohawk Warriors guarding the barricade at Kanesatake and the bridge barricade are members of the Warriors Society from the troubled St. Regis Indian reserve that straddles the U.S.-Canada border near Massena, N.Y.

The St. Regis Mohawk Warriors sided with pro-gambling forces and against traditional chiefs when pro and anti-gambling factions clashed in May, leaving two dead. Canadian government officials have accused the Warriors of being criminals who are holding the reserves hostage.

MINNEAPOLIS (AUG. 13) UPI - An expert on human behavior, testifying Monday at the trial of three former Northwest Airlines pilots accused of flying under the influence of alcohol, said a person with alcoholic parents would likely have a greater tolerance to alcohol than would the general public.

James Wilson, professor of behaviorial genetics and psychology at the University of Colorado, took the stand to buttress defense claims that although the crew members had consumed alcohol the previous night, they were not impaired March 8 when at the controls of a Boeing 727 with 91 passengers aboard during a flight from Fargo, N.D., to Minneapolis.

Wilson said heavy drinkers build up both physical and psychological tolerances to large amounts of alcohol and that the brain learns to compensate for the impairment alcohol causes in people who drink less frequently and in smaller quantities.

The tolerance many alcoholics develop also can be passed on to their children, Wilson said.

The flight captain, Norman Prouse, testified last week that both his parents were alcoholics and that he is chemically dependent with a long history of heavy drinking. Prouse, 51, of Conyers, Ga., entered a treatment program shortly after his arrest.

Wilson said later that back-calculating a person's blood-alcohol level to determine earlier intoxication levels has ''pitfalls and it should be done very carefully. ''Wilson also said performance, rather than blood-alcohol content, is the more accurate barometer to gauge the impact alcohol has on individuals.

''Everybody is different,'' Wilson said in direct contrast to prosecution witnesses who testified that the pilots' tested blood-alcohol levels indicated they would have been seriously impaired during the flight.

Prouse tested with a blood-alcohol level of .12 percent about 2 1/4 hours after the flight landed, with co-pilot Robert Kirchner testing at .06 percent and flight engineer Joseph Balzer, .04 percent. A blood-alcohol level of .10 for motorists is considered legally drunk in many states.

The pilots are the first to be charged under a 1986 federal law making it a crime to operate a plane with a blood-alcohol level higher than .10. But pilots can be charged with flying under the influence at lower blood-alcohol levels if impairment is proven.

Wilson said many people show little or no impairment at levels of .10 percent or greater.

Peter Wold, Prouse's attorney, also called an Edina, Minn., eye doctor who testified that the pilot has an eye condition, pingueaule, which causes the eyes to appear bloodshot much of the time. Several prosecution witnesses said they observed Prouse with bloodshot eyes the day of the flight.

Wold was expected to conclude his arguments late Monday and give way to Bill Mauzy, who will begin his defense of Kirchner, 36, of Highland Ranch, Colo. Kirchner also is expected to testify in his own defense, probably Tuesday.

Balzer, 34, of Antioch, Tenn., could be on the stand by Thursday.

Also Monday, U.S. District Judge James Rosenbaum allowed testimony by Steven Sapp, a friend of Balzer's for 12 years, to testify on Balzer's honesty and truthfulness. Sapp will be unable to testify later this week and was allowed to testify out of order.

LIMA, PERU (AUG. 13) UPI - Bank employees walked off their jobs Monday in the opening round of a series of labor actions aimed at protesting the economic austerity plan of President Alberto Fujimori.

State employees were urged to stage a slowdown by union leader Cesar Pasalacqua, who said the job action would constitute ''insubordination.''

He and other union leaders have also announced a march against hunger for Thursday.

Unionized miners have anounced a two-day walkout for Aug. 20 and 21.

Fujimori, inaugurated July 28, last week raised the price of gasoline from the equivalent of 8 U.S. cents a gallon to $1.88 a gallon to bring fuel prices in line with production costs.

He also ended price and exchange controls, bringing steep price increases for bread and milk.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Saudi Arabia and Syria demonstrated their solidarity with U.S.-led efforts to prevent further Iraqi aggression Monday, while support for Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein displayed by Jordan and on the streets in the region reflected the divided Arab response to the crisis.

As Syria deployed a ''symbolic military force'' to Saudi Arabia, the oil-rich kingdom forbid an Iraqi tanker from loading oil Monday at a Red Sea port in a major test of the U.N.-sanctioned trade embargo against Iraq.

The dispatch of Syrian forces, along with non-Arab but Moslem Pakistan's announcement it will also send troops, follows deployments by Egypt and Morocco - the first to act on an Arab League decision that created an Arab peacekeeping force to stand alongside U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia.

Only Libya and the PLO openly sided with Iraq in the crisis, but Jordan and several other members of the 21-member Arab League have refused to condemn the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

In addition, Saddam's call last Friday for Arabs and Moslems to rise up against their pro-Western leaders and launch a holy war against the U.S.-led foreign presence in Saudi Arabia has generated daily pro-Iraqi demonstrations in the Middle East.

Tens of thousands turned out for anti-U.S. protests over the weekend in Jordan, Lebanon, Yemen, Algeria, Somalia and the Israeli-occupied territories, with especially strong showings by the disenchanted Palestinian communities.

Monday, several thousand Sudanese marched to the U.S. Embassy in the capital Khartoum to express support for Saddam, protesting foreign intervention in the Arab world and calling for the immediate withdrawal of foreign troops from Arab lands.

Thousands of U.S. soldiers are now in Saudi Arabia and defense sources said last week the total buildup could reach 50,000 men. Dozens of U.S. warships are among an international armada now forming in the Persian Gulf in response to Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of its southern neighbor Kuwait.

The Sudanese demonstrators organized by the fundamentalist Islamic students' union and three other trades unions, chanted and sang as they marched.

''Down, down U.S.A.,'' ''Go away, C.I.A.,'' ''One Arab army for one Arab nation,'' ''Allah akbar yaa Yahood,'' (God is great, you Jews), ''Shame on you American Arab agents'' were some of the slogans they shouted.

Iraq's top envoy to Italy spoke to a group of pro-Iraqi Arab residents of Rome gathered at the Iraqi Embassy Monday and called on Italians to oppose their country's participation in what he called ''the aggressive American campaign against the Arab world.''

The Persian Gulf crisis has shattered traditional Arab alliances and forced leaders to take sides.

Syria on Monday joined the United States and Israel in rejecting Saddam's conditions for ending the crisis, which included a call for the end of to a trade embargo against Iraq, removal of U.S. and foreign forces from Saudi Arabia and replacement with a U.N.-organized Arab force excluding Egypt.

Faced with the economic isolation and the military buildup around his country, Saddam Sunday also called for the unconditional and immediate withdrawal of Israel from the occupied territories and removal of Syria's presence in Lebanon before negotiations on ''arrangements'' for Kuwait could begin.

Jordan's King Hussein, who faces domestic pressure from Jordanians and Palestinians who support Saddam, supported the Iraqi leader's claim saying he could not understand why foreign governments condemned Saddam while tolerating Israel's occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

''We have no explanation for this contradiction except for the industrialized nations' determination to reshape our area ... to serve its interests without paying attention to the legitimate interests of the people of the area,'' Egypt's Middle East News Agency quoted the king as saying.

The Palestine Liberation Organization, meanwhile, also expressed support for Saddam's proposals, calling them ''positive and realistic.''

On the other hand, as the first of Syria's forces headed for Saudi Arabia, Pakistan announced its decision ''to join the Islamic contingents for the defense of Saudi Arabia.''

Frontline state Turkey has passed a bill giving the government of Prime Minister Yildirim Akbulut special powers to declare the country in a state of war, in case of an emergency. The new law permits the government to deploy foreign allied troops on Turkish soil and to order its own forces abroad.

MIAMI (AUG. 13) UPI - A man poisoned by a cocaine-tainted malt drink was declared brain dead Monday and his mother has decided to disconnect life-support systems, hospital officials said.

Maximo Rene Menendez, 25, had been in a coma since drinking the contaminated bottle of Pony Malta de Bavaria on July 26.

Dr. Armando Bienes, a neurologist at AMI Kendall Regional Medical Center, conducted tests last week and found no sign of neural activity.

Additional exams conducted by a second neurologist, Dr. Juan Simon, confirmed the finding, and Menendez was declared brain dead Monday.

Doctors, administrators and lawyers met with his family Monday before Judge Robert Newman. Menendez's mother, Margarita Rabaza, decided to disconnect the life-support systems, a hospital spokeswoman said.

The judge offered his condolences to the family, and signed an order agreeing with the decision to end life support. The order does not go into effect for 24 hours, Newman said.

A hospital spokeswoman, Roxana Fernandez, said the machinery probably would be disconnected Tuesday morning.

''I want justice performed,'' the mother said.

Federal officials are still looking for the source of the cocaine. The bottle Menendez drank was purchased at a Miami supermarket. The non-alcoholic malt drink was pulled from the shelves, and the FBI later discovered 20 bottles of Pony Malta de Bavaria were contaminated with lethal doses of cocaine. Some contained 200 times the lethal dose.

Investigators believe Colombian drug traffickers were attempting to smuggle the cocaine into the United States by dissolving it in the malta, and planned to filter it out later but somehow lost track of the shipment.

The FBI, Customs Service, the Drug Enforcment Administration and the Food and Drug Administration have formed a task force to investigate. They are searching for Hugo Alfredo Rios, a Colombian man who imported the beverage through his company, Miami Sweet.

The company's warehouse has been abandoned. The malta's manufacturer, Bavaria S.A. of Bogota, Colombia, said neither Rios nor Miami Sweet was authorized to import the drink.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - About 500 Americans have managed to get out of Kuwait since the Iraqi invasion, but the State Department began broadcasting warnings Monday telling the estimated 2,500 Americans left behind that it would be dangerous to try any large-scale breakouts.

But the broadcasts over the Voice of America tells the Americans to prepare for eventual evacuation and that they will be told how and when to get out.

The broadcasts on VOA say, ''We do not, repeat, do not, recommend Americans try to cross the Kuwaiti border.''

Apparently because of rumors in Kuwait that the border to Saudi Arabia was open, 40 to 50 carloads of Americans headed out of Kuwait City Monday, but were stopped at the border, where they sat for hours in the blazing heat.

State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said she would not describe the methods used by the various Americans who succeeded in getting out of the country, in order not to compromise the methods.

One British citizen was reported shot and killed Sunday when Iraqi troops fired on a small convoy of cars at the Saudi border. At least one American was in that convoy, according to U.S. sources. He was not injured and is now in Saudi Arabia.

In Iraq, where 500 to 600 civilian Americans are still unable to leave the country, the embassy reported that food supplies are getting short in the city, affecting foreigners like everybody else.

The State Department said the U.S. interdiction will prevent food shipments from reaching Iraq ''for now'' since the situation is not desperate enough to qualify Iraq for humanitarian aid. Humanitarian food supplies and medicines would be specifically excluded from the world-wide embargo if the situation in Iraq became desperate.

Tutwiler said that the State Department would try to get another group of diplomatic personnel and dependents out of the country this week. Ten diplomats and dependents succeeded in getting to Jordan Saturday, along with Penelope Nabokov, a 10-year-old American girl from Albany, Calif.

Iraqis have said that diplomats can leave Iraq and Kuwait, seven days after applying for an exit visa.

There are about 120 diplomats at the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait and another 27 in Baghdad. Tutwiler said that the plan is to reduce the size of both staffs.

The State Department said it is in frequent contact with the Iraqis about getting the Americans out of Kuwait and Iraq, but the answers from the Iraqis so far have been ''unacceptable.''

The Iraqis, in a move that suggests there a deliberate policy to keep the Americans and Europeans stranded, are letting some Africans, south Asians and Latin Americans out of the country, but other nationalities appear to be in the same boat as the Americans.

PAINESVILLE, OH (AUG. 13) UPI - A judge trying to seat a jury in the murder trial of a cult leader overruled defense objections Monday to two prospective jurors who had read extensive media coverage about the case.

Jeffrey Don Lundgren, 40, a native of Independence, Mo., could face the death penalty if convicted in Lake County Common Pleas Court on any of the five aggravated murder charges against him.

He is the alleged triggerman in the April 17, 1989, slayings of a five-member Kirtland family that belonged to a cult Lundgren organized after breaking away from the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

The bodies of the five Avery family members, including children ages 15, 13 and 6, were found in a Kirtland barn east of Cleveland Jan. 3-4 after authorities received a telephone call from a tipster.

Since then, the activities of the cult and the alleged events the day of the shootings have received intensive media attention in northeast Ohio and Lundgren's attorney, Paul LaPlante, has sought to have the trial moved elsewhere.

Judge Martin Parks, however, said last week he first wanted to attempt to seat a jury.

LaPlante objected to the first two candidates interviewed Monday after they said they regularly read newspapers, but Parks refused to dismiss the prospective jurors and moved both of them on to a second interviewing phase.

More than 50 prospective jurors are to be interviewed individually. It took more than two hours hours to interview the first two candidates Monday morning.

Five cult members have already pleaded guilty and agreed to testify in remaining cases.

Alice Lundgren, wife of the cult leader, was convicted last month on five counts each of conspiracy to commit aggravated murder, complicity to commit aggravated murder and kidnapping. She could be sentenced to life in prison.

Still awaiting trial on aggravated murder charges are the Lundgrens' son, Damon Lundgren, Ronald Luff and Daniel Kraft.

Lundgren is said to have led several Reorganized Church members from Independence, Mo., to Kirtland, home of a historic church temple. The one-time lay minister then left the church to lead his small cult, which allegedly at one point plotted to take over the temple.

The group left the Kirtland area the day after the shootings to move near Davis, W.Va., in April 1989 and then on to Chilhowee, Mo., in October before breaking up.

The Lundgrens were arrested near San Diego.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Army troops, newly trained in the basics of firefighting, were enroute Monday to relieve some of the thousands of weary crews battling wildfires that have ravaged the West.

Hundreds of fires, most sparked by lightning strikes, had blackened more than 400,000 acres across seven Western states by Monday. Twenty-eight of the blazes were still burning Monday across 330,000 acres in California, Idaho, Washington, Oregon and Utah. Fires in Montana and Nevada had been controlled.

Although progress had been made, weather forecasts were mixed.

''The good news is, there is a chance of significant precipation'' in Southern California, Nevada and Utah, said Arnold Hartigan, spokesman for the National Fire Information Center in Boise, Idaho.

''The bad news,'' he added, ''is that the same conditions will create conditions for dry thunderstorms and 15 to 20 knot winds in northern California, Oregon and Washington - where the worst fires are still burning.''

By Tuesday, some 20,000 firefighters on the lines since the blazes began raging Aug. 6 were expected to see some relief as more than 2,000 active-duty soldiers join the effort to douse fires in Oregon and California.

The fires hit hardest in California, where some 12,000 firefighters battled about 1,300 fires that had charred more than 200,000 acres. Most of the fires were sparked by more than 30,000 lightning strikes reported in the last week.

Fires that forced the closure of Yosemite National Park at the height of the summer tourist season consumed more than 18,000 acres and moved perilously close to a grove of ancient redwoods.

Still, firefighters were gaining the upper hand.

One of three major lightning-caused blazes in Yosemite, the 4,000-acre A Rock fire, was nearly 40 percent contained after jumping the park's boundaries Sunday and spreading into the Stanislaus National Forest.

The 13,243-acre Steamboat fire in Yosemite was 50 percent contained with full containment expected Thursday evening. A third blaze, the 550-acre

Tuolumne Grove fire, forced evacuation of 12 summer homes Sunday.

Weather forecasts Monday warned that the area could be hit by afternoon lightning strikes that could spark more fires in the picturesque, drought-stricken mountains that surround the park.

Park officials said Yosemite, which was closed Thursday, would remain shut down to visitors at least through Wednesday. The fires there have not touched famed Yosemite Valley, but have covered the breathtaking rock formations that tower above it with a smoky haze.

The absence of thousands of tourists who normally flood the park each day in the summer has brought the area a pristine summer stillness that has not been seen in a generation. It has also left merchants hurting.

The park's main concessionaire, the Yosemite Park & Curry Co., stands to lose ''a few hundred thousand dollars'' each day, a company official said, and business at motels and restaurants throughout Mariposa County is down 50 percent in what is usually the busiest week of the year.

Fourteen major fires elsewhere in California had burned more than 200,000 acres of timberland. All were still burning Monday, though no new major outbreaks were reported.

Injuries were reported to more than 45 firefighters in the state's largest blaze in Tehama County, most stemming from extreme fatique, a California Department of Forestry spokesman said.

Firefighters had dug lines around about 70 percent of the largest of the blazes in Tehama, which had burned 114,000 acres. Another fire, about 4 miles to the north, was 50 percent contained after burning 17,500 acres.

Barring the outbreak of new fires elsewhere, about 1,200 soldiers from Fort Carson, Colo., were en route to join the firefighting effort in Northern California.

The troops received preliminary training at Fort Carson before their departure.

Additionally, two battalions totaling about 1,200 soldiers were on their way from Fort Lewis, Wash., to fire lines in Oregon, where weary firefighters have worked for a week to contain fires that have blackened more than 123,000 acres in the eastern part of the state.

The largest of the Oregon fires had burned about 75,000 acres in the Ochoco National Forest and was 90 percent contained by early Monday. Full containment was expected at 6 p.m.

Progress was also reported in other states:

-In Washington, firefighters managed to stem dozens of wildfires burning in the eastern part of the state despite temperatures that soared to near 100 degrees during the weekend.

-In Idaho, nature gave firefighters a break during the weekend as fire crews managed to contain Idaho's largest range fires, including the 65,000-acre Thorn Creek blaze.

-In Utah, showery, cooler weather helped firefighters control the state's largest four wildfires over the weekend. The majority of the crews freed from the Utah lines were sent to help California battle its wildfires, officials said Monday.

-In Nevada, seven blazes last week consumed more than 11,225 acres.

-In Montana, two fires scorched 870 acres. Both are contained.

HOUSTON (AUG. 13) UPI - Two Texas women may have been the first patients in the nation to die after developing infections associated with a new anesthetic, a published report said Monday.

The elderly women were among 16 patients who developed infections in June and July after receiving propofol, sold under the trade name Diprivan, during surgery at Houston's Twelve Oaks Hospital, said Dennis Perrotta, chief epidemiologist for the Texas health department.

Perrotta told the Houston Chronicle that the Diprivan-related infections have not been proven to be the direct cause of the women's deaths and the investigation is continuing.

Clusters of infections stemming from the use of Diprivan have also been reported in at least 24 patients at four other hospitals in California, Illinois, Maine and Michigan. The federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta and the Food and Drug Administration are investigating the reports.

Diprivan, approved last year by the FDA, is an injectable, fast-acting anesthetic agent that can be used in a number of ways. Its chief advantage is that it induces sleeps rapidly and patients awake quickly.

Diprivan has been administered to an estimated 10 million patients worldwide and 650,000 in the United States since it was introduced by Stuart Pharmaceuticals of Wilmington, Del.

CDC spokeswoman Gail Lloyd said her agency had received no reports of deaths linked to the infection outbreaks. But the CDC statistics did not include the Houston cases, Perrotta said.

Joan Tracy, assistant administrator at Twelve Oaks Hospital, said one of the deaths may be attributable to the Diprivan-related infection. The other woman also developed an infection after receiving Diprivan, but Tracy said her death does not appear to have been caused by the microbe involved.

The drug apparently was not contaminated when it reached the hospital. CDC and FDA investigators said they found such infections appear to stem from the ''failure by hospital personnel to adhere to aseptic (germ-free) techniques leading to contamination of Diprivan.''

Stuart Pharmaceuticals sent a letter to doctors across the nation July 6 warning that Diprivan should not be used for more than one patient and should be given under sterile conditions, FDA spokeswoman Faye Peterson said.

The drug is packaged in a soybean-oil-in-water emulsion that does not contain a bacteria-inhibiting agent. Studies at the CDC found that bacteria introduced into the medication grow quickly during a 24-hour period.

Eileen Cuniffe, a spokeswoman for Stuart Pharmaceuticals, said Diprivan is a single-use anesthetic, which means it should be given to one patient and then thrown away. ''The problems seem to occur when it is used for more than one patient and allowed to sit for a while,'' Cuniffe said.

NEW YORK (AUG. 13) UPI - A three-alarm fire in a substation near the Brooklyn Bridge knocked out power Monday to most of lower Manhattan, including the American Stock Exchange, the twin towers of the World Trade Center and subway lines.

People were reported stuck in elevators, and traffic lights were blacked out, snarling traffic in most of lower Manhattan.

The New York Stock Exchange was not affected by the fire that broke out at 11:49 a.m. in a Consolidated Edison building near the South Street Seaport.

Acrid smoke drifted north toward the Brooklyn Bridge, forcing police and firefighters into masks.

Thousands of officer workers, many of whom never made it back from lunch or had to walk down dozens of flights of stairs, milled around in the streets.

Many stores with no lights or air conditioning closed for the day.

Traffic officials declared an emergency and asked motorists to stay out of Manhattan south of Canal Street.

The smoke from the fire overcame 13 firefighters and drifted north past City Hall and the Brooklyn Bridge. Eight firefighters were taken to area hospitals. There were no reports of other injuries.

It was unclear what sparked the blaze or when power would be restored.

When power went out, people were trapped in about 40 of the World Trade Center's 198 elevators, said Armando Arrastia, a spokesman for the Port Authority, which operates the twin towers.

Using emergency power, Arrastia said the trapped office workers were being helped from the building, along with others on upper floors. Many workers were walking down long flights of stairs.

Although office lights were out, stairwells were lit with emergency power, he said.

The city's Commodity Exchange Center, housing the Commodity Exchange Inc., Coffee, Cocoa and Sugar Exchange, the New York Cotton Exchange and New York Mercantile Exchange, were knocked out by the power failure.

The exchange center employs about 1,900 employees, including 950 traders.

Pace University also lost its power and was closed, officials said.

There were sporadic power outages immediately after the blaze hit, and officials shut off power to all of Manhattan south of Nassau Street, with the exception of the New York Stock Exchange at about 1:30 p.m.

The Brooklyn Bridge was not closed, but officials asked motorists and pedestrians to use other routes.

A spokesman for the New York Stock Exchange said the exchange was functioning normally.

''We're up and running and we have no plans at this time to halt trading '' the spokesman said.

But the American Stock Exchange was not functioning, apparently because a backup generator failed to come on line at 1:13 p.m.

The brokerage firm of Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc., housed in the 51-story World Financial Center, was ''maintaining skeleton operations'' after the power outage, said spokesman Steve Faigen.

''We have an auxiliary power system in place, but many of our computer screens are blacked out,'' Faigen said. ''We're continuing to trade as needed, but it's far more inconvenient.''

Dean Witter Reynolds at the World Trade Center was operating on emergency power, although the lights, elevators and Quotron machines were out, said Jim Flynn, communications director for the firm.

Flynn said he saw the fire from his office on the 70th floor. ''It's very, very smoky,'' he said.

Robert Previdi, a Transit Authority spokesman, said subway service on the West Side of Manhattan was virtually halted.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 13) UPI - Actor Marlon Brando has put up his $4-million mountaintop estate to secure the release of his son, Christian, charged with the murder of his half-sister's boyfriend, the defense lawyer in the case said Monday.

However, until the paperwork concerning Marlon Brando's 12-room home in the Santa Monica Mountains is processed and approved, Christian Brando will remain in custody in lieu of $2 million bail in the Men's Central Jail.

The defense attorney, Robert Shaprio, said he did not expect Christian to be freed until Tuesday evening or Wednesday morning.

Christian has been in custody for nearly three months since the May 16 fatal shooting of his half-sister's boyfriend, Dag Drollet, at the actor's home.

Christian was initially denied bail, but last month, following a preliminary hearing, had bail set at $10 million, the highest ever set in Los Angeles County.

His family said it was unable to meet the high bail, and last Thursday, Santa Monica Superior Court Judge David Perez, calling the $10 million bail excessive, slashed it to $2 million.

Under California law, when property is posted to meet bail, the property must be worth twice as much as the bail amount. Shapiro said the actor's home has been valued at $4 million.

Prosecutors allege that Christian Brando, 32, pre-meditated the slaying of Drollet, 26. They claim Christian Brando accused Drollet, the son of an influential political figure in Tahiti, of beating his half-sister.

Deputy District Attorney Steve Barshop said Drollet was shot in the head at point-blank range while watching television and that his body was found with a television remote control in one hand and a cigarette lighter in the other hand.

Christian Brando told police that he accidentally shot Drollet while he and the victim were wrestling for the weapon, a .45-caliber handgun.

''I shot him, man, but not on purpose,'' Los Angeles police quoted Brando as telling them after the incident. ''Please believe me. I wouldn't do it my father's house.''

However, prosecutors say that Cheyenne Brando in mid-June gave a statement to police in which she indicated that Christian had pre-meditated the slaying. Shortly after giving that statement, Cheyenne returned to Tahati, where she is a citizen, in an apparent move to avoid testifying against her half brother.

She has since given birth to Drollet's child.

Marlon Brando was home at the time of the shooting, but was in a different room. He telephoned police after hearing the gunshot. Shapiro said the actor has lived in the home for 30 years.

NEW YORK (AUG. 13) UPI - The jury viewed dozens of graphic pictures Monday of the battered body of a woman jogger as the panel deliberated the fates of three youths accused of the Central Park attack.

The teenagers stood trial on 13 criminal counts, including rape and attempted murder, stemming from the rampage in the moonlit park on April 19, 1989.

The jury of l0 men and two women asked for the color photographs of the investment banker's injuries and the scene of her attack.

Jurors asked for any evidence found at the crime scene. They also requested a 12-inch ruler and a 24-inch piece of string, apparently to measure curved roads on a map of the park.

Antron McCray, 16, Yusef Salaam, 16, and Raymond Santana, 15, are accused of being part of a gang of up to 30 youths that roamed through the park, randomly attacking nine victims.

The jury's requests indicated it could have reached a verdict on the counts concerning attacks on two male joggers and now has turned its attention to the gang rape of the Wall Street banker.

As Assistant District Attorney Elizabeth Lederer stacked the 61 pictures, reporters caught another glimpse of the jogger's bashed-in face, so disfigured from four fractures that her eyes were swollen shut.

She was so badly beaten that a former roommate who rushed to Metropolitan Hospital after hearing news of the attack testified he could not recognize her. He was able to identify her only by a tiny gold ring she wore.

The photographs of the crime scene show a 350-foot trail of blood that began at the point on the 102nd Street Transverse where she was jumped by the gang and struck with a metal pipe.

It ended in the muddy gully in nearby woods where her unconscious body was found nearly four hours after the attack.

In the meantime, Salaam's mother, Sharonne Salaam, pressed her attempt to get back into the courtroom when the verdict is announced.

Justice Thomas Galligan ordered her out of the courtroom and banned from the trial Aug. 6 after she jumped to her feet and screamed ''liar!'' at a prosecution witness.

Mrs. Salaam sought the help of civil rights lawyer William Kunstler, who said he would seek a court order to allow her inside when the verdict is read.

(AUG. 13) UPI - International pressure on Iraq mounted Monday when Saudi Arabia prevented an Iraqi tanker from loading oil at a Red Sea port and Syria announced it was sending ''symbolic'' soldiers to join forces with U.S. troops in the Saudi kingdom.

Embattled Iraq, faced with a U.N.-sanctioned economic blockade and the deployment of a burgeoning multinational military force, reacted by stepping up its verbal attacks on its Arab neighbors, apparently attempting to shame them into siding with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein against the United States in the spirit of Arab nationalism.

Iraq had offered a three-point settlement plan Sunday that demanded the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Saudi Arabia and of Israel from the occupied territories, but the initiative fell flat as the United States and Israel rejected it outright.

The crisis, triggered when Iraq invaded the oil-rich emirate of Kuwait Aug. 2 and annexed it a week later, has created a schism in the Moslem world, with Syria and Pakistan demonstrating solidarity with U.S.-led efforts to prevent further Iraqi aggression while Iraq supporters hold almost daily demonstrations in Jordan, Lebanon, Somalia, Yemen, Algeria and the Israeli-occupied territories.

A U.S. plan to enforce the U.N.-sanctioned embargo by blocking Iraqi ships similarly divided the Western world, with Britain backing the plan Monday and France distancing itself from the prospect of confronting Iraqi ships. Sources within the United Nations said few member states back the the Bush administration's avowed intention of using military ships to block Iraqi exports.

A U.S. defense official in Washington said the Iraqi oil tanker Al Qadisiya had been scheduled to pull into the Saudi port of Mujjiz on the Red Sea to pick up 900,000 barrels of Iraqi crude, transported to the port through a pipeline that runs from Iraq and across Saudi Arabia.

The official said Saudi Arabia refused to send out tugboats and the Iraqi tanker, which could not dock, left the area.

Saudi Arabia has said it will abide by the embargo, ordered by the United Nations last week in an effort to pressure Iraq into withdrawing from Kuwait.

The closure of Saudi ports leaves Iraq with only two possible maritime outlets, the Jordanian port of Aqaba and Iraq's tiny sea outlet in the northern gulf.

Meanwhile, thousands of U.S. troops continued to arrive in Saudi Arabia to guard against a possible attack by Iraqi troops massing at the border. The State Department estimated Monday there were 140,000 Iraqi troops in Kuwait, while observers have estimated the United States is deploying 50,000 troops to Saudi Arabia.

An unidentified 27-year-old sergeant from Fort Bragg told a group of Pentagon pool reporters in Saudi Arabia, ''They are telling us to be ready to stay here for four or six months.''

Iraq stepped up its verbal attack against the United States and against Egypt for its role in leading Arab opposition to the invasion of Kuwait.

Iraqi radio broadcast special appeals to Egyptians, telling them Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak had betrayed his people and urging them to revolt against foreign influences.

Assistant Secretary of State John Kelly, in Cairo for meetings with Egyptian officials, came to Mubarak's defense.

''Egypt has been in the front of the international and Arab response to the situation and it is normal and vital for us to coordinate for this crisis,'' he said.

Boutros Ghali, Egypt's minister of state for foreign affairs, said he believed there was little chance for peace but said Arabs had to continue their effort to find a solution to the crisis.

The British Broadcasting Corp. reported that Iraq protested Monday the alleged violation of Iraqi airspace Saturday, saying the Iraqi News Agency reported that a Turkish aircraft flew five miles into Iraqi territory.

Britain Monday announced it would support a U.S. plan to enforce the economic sanctions by blocking Iraqi ships. Foreign Office Minister

William Waldegrave said Kuwait asked Britain to ''make sure that the economic weapon is effective'' and said British soldiers would board ships that try to break the economic embargo.

France, however, vowed its forces would not seize Iraqi cargo ships at sea, saying the move would constitute an act of war. France did announce it was beefing up its presence in the gulf region to help secure the area if Iraq attacked.

FRIDAY HARBOR, Wash. (AUG. 13) UPI - Author Ernest Gann and his wife, Dodie, have donated 760 acres of valley farm land to a trust to help ensure the beauty of the Puget Sound's San Juan islands.

''We hope that our neighbors and other landowners will understand why we have taken this action to help protect the valley and will seriously consider taking similar steps to help preserve the valley,'' said Gann, whose best-sellers include ''The High and the Mighty'' and ''Soldier of Fortune.''

The Friday Harbor property, known as Red Mill Farm, provides views of False Bay and the Strait of Juan de Fuca, produces various forage crops and supports more than 350 cattle, San Juan Preservation Trust officials said Monday.

Dodie Gann said she and her husband want to make sure the land will be ''unscathed'' and saved ''for generations to come.''

Under terms of the agreement, the Ganns will continue to own the property, while the trust has the right to conserve the land, said Bob Myhr, trust executive director.

A special covenant does allow the Ganns to sell 55 acres for up to 11 homes, Myhr said.

The Ganns in 1980 donated 38 acres of eagle habitat to the trust.

The trust now protects a total of 2,500 acres on eight islands in the San Juans.

PARIS (AUG. 13) UPI - France dispatched a fresh naval contingent to the Persian Gulf Monday, but said the new force would not be part of a U.S. military plan to enforce U.N.-endorsed trade sanctions against Iraq.

The aircraft carrier Clemenceau, the missile launcher Colbert and the oil fuel ship Var along with 2,650 French troops and technicians left the port of Toulon Monday to bolster the French naval presence in the Persian Gulf region.

The contingent is expected to arrive in two weeks in the region, boosting the number of French troops to 3,200, the second largest Western force in the area after the United States.

A French Foreign Ministry official said while France would abide by the U.N. trade embargo against Iraq, the French forces would not seize Iraqi cargo ships at sea as suggested by the United States because such an action would constitute an act of war.

President Bush ordered U.S. forces Sunday to block all Iraqi imports and exports under economic sanctions approved by the United Nations after Iraq conquered neighboring Kuwait on Aug. 2.

The French official said the only action French ships would engage in would be to stop vessels for questioning about their nationality and cargo. The official did not say what action would be taken if the ship were Iraqi or had an irregular cargo.

Hours after the latest French contingent left Toulon, President Francois Mitterrand announced a ''diplomatic offensive'' that included sending special envoys to meet with leaders of 24 nations.

Mitterrand said the diplomatic effort was aimed at examining ''perspectives of strengthened cooperation,'' but gave no further details.

The French contingent in ''Operation Salamander'' comprises 2,650 soldiers and technicians. The carrier Clemenceau's forces include 40 helicopters - 30 Puma combat helicopters and 10 Gazelle transport units - and a crew of 984 men. Also on board were 900 members of the French army's Rapid Action Force. The carrier is equipped with anti-aircraft and anti-tank missiles, and includes medical and technical personnel.

Four Alize reconnaissance aircraft were to join the Clemenceau at sea.

NEW YORK (AUG. 13) UPI - Pumping and refining activities in the Kuwaiti half of the Neutral Zone shared by Saudi Arabia and the emirate have stopped since storage tanks are full due to the embargo against Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil, Texaco Inc. said Monday.

"Early last week, the refinery and the partitioned Neutral Zone were shut down because the holding tanks for the products there had been filled and there was no way to ship out the product with the embargo," said Texaco spokesman Dave Dixon at the company's headquarters in White Plains, N.Y. "All our foreign workers in the area, including 17 U.S. nationals, are accounted for and safe," Dixon said.

Western diplomats in the Persian Gulf region confirmed that Iraqi troops, who headed toward the Saudi border after their conquest of Kuwait, have entered the Kuwaiti half of the Neutral Zone and were in control of the 2,200 square-mile area established in 1922 to ward off Saudi nomadic incursions into Kuwait.

Texaco, which acquired Getty Oil Co. in 1984, operated a refinery in the Kuwaiti side of the Neutral Zone and also pumped crude oil before the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait Aug 2.

The refinery, with a maximum capacity of 75,000 barrels a day, produced about 54,000 barrels of refined oil products for Texaco before the invasion. Texaco said it also produced about 54,000 barrels of crude before the invasion. "The shutdown of our operations in this area is not significant at all compared with our worldwide operations," Dixon added.

Schlumberger Ltd., the leading company servicing the oil industry around the world, said it has halted its operations in Kuwait and the Neutral Zone. "Since the invasion, we have not been able to operate since oil companies can no longer operate there," Schlumberger spokesman Seth

McCormick said. "All our foreign employees - and we had not more than one American there - are safe and accounted for."

Oil industry sources in the Middle East confirmed operations have stopped at the Mina Saud refinery on the Kuwaiti side due to the impact of the international embargo.

In a sign that U.N. trade sanctions against Iraq were being enforced, Saudi Arabia turned away an Iraqi oil tanker Monday from a Red Sea port. The United States Sunday said it would begin blocking all Iraqi oil shipments.

Before the invasion, the state-owned Kuwait Oil Co. was operating the onshore fields of Wafra, South Um Gudair and South Suwaris with an estimated production of 150,000 barrels a day, but all operations there now have ceased, an oil industry source in Nicosia, Cyrpus said.

Oil industry sources in Bahrain said Iraqi troops had full knowledge of the layout of the Neutral Zone because Kuwait allowed Baghdad access to it during the eight-year-long Iran-Iraq war.

"Kuwait allowed Iraqi troops access to its ports and allowed Iraqi oil exports to go through the Neutral Zone during the Gulf war," an oil source in Bahrain said.

Western diplomats in the Saudi capital of Riyadh would neither confirm nor deny that U.S. troops were guarding the Saudi half of the oil-rich Neutral Zone.

"All I can say is that the Iraqis are in the Kuwaiti half, but they don't look as if they're about to attack ... the situation could change within hours, however," a diplomat said.

"Some of the American and British oil workers have asked to be moved out of the Neutral Zone, where working face to face with Iraqi troops is a bit unnerving for them, especially with the current U.S. military buildup in the region," the oil source in Bahrain said. "The Saudis have opposed this and Japanese managers have also asked their people to stay on until further notice."

NEW YORK (AUG. 13) UPI - Pumping and refining activities in the Kuwaiti half of the Neutral Zone shared by Saudi Arabia and the emirate have stopped since storage tanks are full due to the embargo against Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil, Texaco Inc. said Monday.

''Early last week, the refinery and the partitioned Neutral Zone were shut down because the holding tanks for the products there had been filled and there was no way to ship out the product with the embargo,'' said Texaco spokesman Dave Dixon at the company's headquarters in White Plains, N.Y.

''All our foreign workers in the area, including 17 U.S. nationals, are accounted for and safe,'' Dixon said.

BEIRUT, LEBANON (AUG. 13) UPI - The International Committee of the Red Cross announced the release late Monday of Elio Erriquez, the second Swiss hostage to be freed by Palestinian extremists in Lebanon in less than a week.

''Elio was handed over to Syrian military authorities in West Beirut this evening, and the Syrians were driving him immediately to Damascus (Syria) '' a Red Cross spokeswoman said at the agency's Geneva headquarters.

''We expect Elio to fly home to Geneva tomorrow (Tuesday),'' the spokeswoman said.

The release appeared to be a carbon copy of the freeing last Wednesday of Emanuel Christen, a Red Cross colleague of Erriquez, who was held for 10 months by a group calling itself the Organization of Revolutionary Palestinian Factions.

The neutral, all-Swiss ICRC, guardian of the Geneva War Conventions of 1949, said it still was unsure of the real identity of the two men's abductors.

The first word of Erriquez's release came from Syria, which was instrumental in securing his release from the Palestinian extremist splinter group, the spokeswoman said.

The same group Sunday said Erriquez had been released or was about to be freed, but by Monday afternoon ICRC headquarters in Geneva still had no confirmation of that.

''There was some ambiguity about the original Arab text and the translation,'' Red Cross spokesman Joerg Bischoff said.

''It was unclear whether Elio was already free or was about to be released '' Bischoff said. ''But the announcement was the same as was made when Emanuel was released, and we have open lines and radio links to our people in Beirut as well as Damascus.''

After his release in Beirut, Christen also was taken immediately to Damascus.

Erriquez, 24, and Christen, 33, both delegates of the neutral and all-Swiss ICRC, were abducted Oct. 6 last year in the southern port city of Sidon.

They were training local medical workers in the fitting of artificial limbs for victims of the continuing factional violence in Lebanon.

The motive for their abduction was never made clear, although ICRC and Swiss government officials said it was possibly linked to the imprisonment in Switzerland of Lebanese plane hijacker Mohamad Hariri.

Hariri received a life sentence in 1989 for the July 1987 hijacking to Geneva of an Air Afrique DC-10 airliner and the slaying of a French male passenger.

UNITED NATIONS (AUG. 13) UPI - The United States was all but isolated at the United Nations Monday over whether the U.N. charter gives America the right to enforce an economic embargo by blocking Iraqi ships.

The Bush administration announced Sunday it would enforce the U.N.-sanctioned economic embargo against Iraq by preventing shipments of all goods except food to the country and halting exports of Iraqi oil, a move Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz called an ''aggressive act.''

U.S. officials said the United States had the right to physically enforce the embargo under Article 51 of the U.N. charter, which allows countries to defend themselves.

The Security Council met Monday to discuss the U.S. interpretation of the charter, and sources said afterwards that few members agreed with the Bush administration's contention that the document justifies the interdiction of naval traffic to and from Iraq.

''I believe the U.S. has gone too far in its interpretation,'' one veteran diplomat and U.N. officer said.

The U.N. Security Council passed a resolution last week mandating an economic embargo against Iraq and occupied Kuwait after Iraq invaded the oil-rich emirate Aug. 2 and annexed it a week later.

Resolution No. 661 says all U.N. member states shall prevent any vessels ''from taking part in the sale or supply of any commodities or products, including weapons or any other military equipment'' to Iraq and Kuwait.

It also bans the exports of products from the two countries.

The United Nations has been trying to avoid the word blockade and Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar told reporters Monday that ''from the U.N. point of view there is not yet a blockade.''

Perez de Cuellar also said the United Nations was not involved in the military buildup in the gulf.

''It is the result of agreements between Saudi Arabia and Kuwait and some governments,'' he said. ''It is not in the framework of a U.N. blockade.''

Other diplomats also shied away from a possible blockade of Iraq.

''As far as Canada in concerned there is no blockade,'' Canadian Ambassador Yves Fortier said.

U.S. Ambassador Alexander Watson said Monday the government was taking the action under Article 51 of the U.N. charter and because Kuwait had asked for help in implementing Resolution 661.

Article 51 states: ''Nothing in the present charter shall impair the inherent right of individual or collective self defense if an armed attack occurs against a member of the United Nations....''

Several diplomats, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, said their interpretation of Article 51 differed from that of the Bush administration and said they felt the United States had gone beyond the spirit of Resolution 661.

Britain said Monday it supported the U.S. action while France disagreed with the move.

NEW YORK (AUG. 13) UPI - Moderating Mideast tensions and a new focus on U.S. economic problems pressed the dollar lower in New York trading Monday before foreign exchange dealings were disrupted by a huge power outage.

Fears of a military conflict between Iraq and the United States bolstered the dollar in recent days, currency traders said, but the calming of tensions in the Persian Gulf region curtailed buying the dollar as a "safe haven."

"The quieter the Mideast becomes, the more people are going to focus on economic fundamentals," said Barclays Bank corporate trader Bob Hatcher. "And that does not bode well for the dollar."

In late New York trading, the dollar was quoted at 1.5782 German marks, down more than a pfennig from 1.5885 marks Friday, and at 150.35 Japanese yen, down marginally from 150.40 yen late last week.

Hatcher said the Barclays trading room pursued limited dealings after an electrical substation blaze in lower Manhattan cut off power to the New York financial district, blacking out many traders' computer screens.

Hatcher said his office managed to square positions with currency brokers over the telephone. But a trader at another downtown bank said that "basically, the market is shut down."

In midtown, trading at Chemical Bank was not interrupted, said Curtis Perkins, a trader. "We're affected insofar as a lot of the counterparties downtown are not around," he added. "So things are kind of quiet."

Currency vice president Robert White of First Interstate Bank said the market had been quiet anyway, with the dollar off after selling in Asia and Europe on expectations that a recession was due for the U.S. economy.

With the Mideast relatively calm, "the market starts to focus on other subjects at hand, and the subject at hand is the sad state of the U.S. economy," White said. But, he added, high U.S. bond yields and low asset prices should pull long-term funds into the dollar to give it a price floor.

Other New York dollar rates: 1.3160 Swiss francs, off from 1.3365; 5.2940 French francs, down from 5.3265; and 1,156.50 lire, down from 1,164.25. The British pound strengthened to $1.8820 from $1.8735.

In Europe, the dollar moved sharply lower in quiet trading against most major currencies as dealers also focused on the U.S. economy. "The general perception is that the Federal Reserve is going to ease interest rates," said Barclays de Zoete Wedd analyst Mark Brett.

Markets shrugged off the U.S. troop buildup in Saudi Arabia, though in the past U.S. military activity usually put the dollar "through the roof," Brett said.

The dollar moved to a record low in Frankfurt, at 1.5730 German marks compared with 1.5979 late last week.

The U.S. unit also fell to a 2 1/2-year low in Zurich, finishing at 1.3140 Swiss francs against 1.3380 Friday and having declined by about 20 percent this year.

In London, the pound sterling rose over a cent against the U.S. unit to close at $1.8840 from last week's $1.8715.

In Paris, Brussels and Milan, the dollar fell to, respectively, 5.29 French francs vs. 5.3673, 32.88 Belgian francs vs. 32.90 and 1,156.65 lire vs. 1,171.15.

Earlier in Tokyo, Mideast considerations boosted the dollar slightly against the yen in moderate trading, to 150.65 yen vs. 149.75.

Dealers said many investors took precautionary long positions against future developments in the Gulf. But others were not enthusiastic about buying the dollar in the face of clear signs of a U.S. economic slowdown.

Gold prices climbed again. The precious metal gained more than $11 in Zurich to finish at $404 an ounce against $392.75 Friday and advanced $13.50 to end at $404.75 an ounce against $391.25.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold - unofficially, because the power outage closed trading early - at $404.50 an ounce, up from $396.50 Friday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $405.20 an ounce, a gain of $8.30 from $396.90.

Silver moved to its highest point in two months, closing in Zurich at $5.15 an ounce vs. $4.95 and in London at $5.16 an ounce vs. $4.95.

Republic closed cash silver at $5.16 an ounce, up from $4.985. Comex silver gained 17.5 cents to end at $5.145 an ounce against $4.969.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 13) UPI - The Pentagon, under orders to shut down Iraq's trade with the world, was drawing up rules Monday for the U.S. warships sent to enforce the global embargo of Baghdad.

White House spokesman Douglas Davidson said that ''we'd use force, if necessary,'' to ensure that a blockade of Iraq would be effective.

However, orders have not yet been issued to Navy ships in the Persian Gulf or elsewhere to implement the plan to intercept vessels headed for Iraq or fully loaded oil tankers departing Iraq, Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said.

Pentagon planners and legal experts, he said, were trying to determine what the ''rules of engagement'' should be under President Bush's directive Sunday to mount the interdiction of Iraq.

Rules of engagement are regulations governing what military forces - from an infantryman carrying an M-16 rifle to a pilot flying an F-15 fighter - are permitted to do in different theaters of operation under differing circumstances.

For example, the Marines sent to Lebanon in 1983 were not permitted to fire unless fired upon first.

The administration has shied from using the word ''blockade'' to define its enforcement of the U.N. trade embargo on Iraq that was imposed after Iraq's cross-desert invasion of neighboring Kuwait Aug. 2. A blockade long has been regarded as an act that is cause for war.

''It's a great word, 'interdict,''' said Allan Gerson, a former counsel to the U.S. delegation at the United Nations who now is with the American Enterprise Institute, a conservative think tank. ''Everyone's afraid to use 'blockade.' But a rose by any other name is still a rose.''

The United States, at the request of the exiled government of Kuwait, took command of the interdiction effort that is to be conducted by ships of several Western nations. U.S. officials hope that the blockade will force Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to withdraw his forces from occupied Kuwait.

''The government of Kuwait has asked the government of the United States to participate and coordinate the multinational interdiction effort,'' State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said. ''We are now contacting other nations to work out the modalities.''

The legal basis for the blockade is Article 51 of the U.N. Charter, legal scholars said. It provides for self-defense, either by an individual U.N. member that is attacked or a collective self-defense if the beseiged country asks for assistance.

''Kuwait has asked for help under the power of collective self-defense,'' a legal source said. ''The blockade is fully justifiable and authorizes you to shoot.

''There was an armed aggression by Iraq against a friendly state, Kuwait. Kuwait is fighting a war with Iraq. The war is not over.''

Secretary of State James Baker, trained as a lawyer, publicly took the lead for the administration Sunday in defining the blockade as an ''interdiction.'' Tutwiler said Monday the State Department had ''no official definition of interdiction beyond that in the dictionary.''

Intentionally murky phrases in a crisis is nothing new for makers of U.S. foreign policy.

The United States defined as a ''quarantine'' the 1962 blockade of Cuba to prohibit offensive weapons from getting through to the island. The term, Gerson said, was ''dreamed up'' by then-State Department legal adviser Abe Chays and marked the first time it was used outside the medical field.

But the purpose then - as now - is to use military might to support policy.

''With the use of quarantine, we tried to make believe that it was not a use of force, but it was a use of force,'' said Gerson, an international law expert.

''If you're serious about having an interdiction, it means if they put their ships there and they don't obey you, you shoot,'' he said. ''The basic plan is shoot or be shot.''

Why bother with a blockade if most countries have agreed to obey the sanctions?

''Because you will always find people out there trying to make a fast buck '' said the source, speaking on condition of anonymity. ''People will pay extra when there is an embargo, particularly to arms merchants.''

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 13) UPI - The de facto U.S. military blockade of Baghdad was showing results Monday and a White House spokesman said the United States would use force, if necesary, to halt trade flowing into and out of Iraq.

Some ships apparently headed for Iraq already have backed off from the Persian Gulf rather than risk confronting U.S. warships, the White House said.

Press secertary Marlin Fitzwater, briefing reporters near President Bush's vacation home in Maine, refused to say whether the United States would shoot at a ship that refused to back off, saying, ''We won't discuss the orders, the operational authority given'' U.S. forces.

Later, however, following administration consultations, White House spokesman Douglas Davidson said, ''We'd use force, if necessary,'' to enforce the embargo imposed by the United Nations. Davidson refused to elaborate.

Bush ordered U.S. forces Sunday to block all Iraqi imports and exports under week-old economic sanctions approved by the United Nations after Iraq occupied neighboring Kuwait Aug. 2. The invasion prompted Bush to order American troops and planes to Saudi Arabia to protect the oil kingdom from a possible Iraqi attack.

Reporting Monday on the effects of that move, Fitzwater said no Iraqi ships have left their ports and, ''We've had reports in recent hours of two or three ships turning away.'' Those vessels made no contact with U.S. forces and turned away voluntarily, he said, offering no further details.

''We are very optimistic at this point that the embargo will hold and that it will be effective,'' Fitzwater said. ''The embargo is being maintained.''

Fitzwater said the embargo covers ''everything'' - particularly food going in and oil coming out - but in a brief statement later he noted that, in accordance with the U.N. resolution, ''supplies intended strictly for medical purposes'' would be permitted through.

''The purpose of the embargo and the sanctions is to put the pinch on them (Iraq),'' Fitzwater said, with the ultimate goal being to shut down ''the war machine.''

At the State Department, spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler explained the U.S. role in the effort by saying, ''The government of Kuwait has asked the government of the United States to participate in and coordinate the multinational interdiction effort. We are now contacting other nations to work out the modalities.''

At the Pentagon, spokesman Pete Williams said Defense Secretary Dick Cheney would leave Friday to visit U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia and confer with Saudi officials. Cheney, who might visit other countries in the region, planned to return to Washington next Tuesday.

Williams said no orders had been issued to U.S. warships to interdict foreign vessels, but said Pentagon planners and legal experts were working on such plans and the ''rules of engagement'' that would be involved.

He declined to give numbers of U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, but said he would probably be able to release some figures in a few days.

With some Arab forces joining Americans in Saudi Arabia, a defense official in Washington disputed a report there were already 50,000 U.S. troops on the gound Monday, but the buildup of U.S. manpower, aircraft and ships continued.

The fast sealift ship USNS Capella left from Savannah, Ga., carrying tanks armored personnel carriers and artillery of the 24th Infantry (Mechanized) Division from Fort Stewart, Ga., and the similarly loaded USNS Altair was to leave later Monday.

Also, the hospital ship USNS Comfort, with 1,000 hospital beds and facilities for treating victims of poison gas, was expected to leave Monday for the Persian Gulf region after loading additional medical equipment at Norfolk, Va.

The U.S. task force, which may number 50 ships deployed around the Arabian penninsula, includes three aircraft carriers, the battleship Wisconsin, several guided-missile cruisers, plus destroyers, frigates and support ships.

BALTIMORE (AUG. 13) UPI - Doctors Monday gave a Virginia boy umbilical cord blood collected at the birth of his 2-month-old sister in an effort to cure him of a rare and deadly form of leukemia.

Johns Hopkins doctors said they believe it was the first time the procedure, known as cord-blood transplant, has been performed to treat leukemia and is the first of its kind at the hospital.

Cord-blood transplants have been performed successfully twice in France and once in the United States to treat a blood disorder known as Fanconi's anemia.

Dr. John Wagner first gave Michael Sancilio, 4, of Virginia Beach, Va., eight days of high-dose therapy that destroyed his cancerous bone marrow, then 90 milliliters of cord blood that had been taken from the umbilical cord and placenta at the May 1 birth of his sister, Christina.

The blood is rich in stem cells - the young cells that multiply and make up bone marrow - and expected to automatically travel into Michael's bones.

Hospital officials said following the three-hour procedure that there had been no complications, and Michael was in good condition.

Doctors said the cells should begin forming new cancer-free bone marrow in about 30 days.

The procedure is similar to bone marrow transplantation, in which healthy bone marrow from a donor is given to replace a patient's diseased marrow.

But in this case, Hopkins oncologists felt that taking bone marrow from Christina was too risky, and said the cord-blood transplant spared her the risks of anesthesia needed for the procedure.

After he was diagnosed in April, Michael's parents and an older sibling underwent blood testing but were found incompatible as bone marrow donors.

Because of the possibility that Christina would be a match, 90 milliliters of cord blood was collected at her birth at Virginia Beach General Hospital. Tests revealed an identical match and the blood was sent to the University of Indiana for storage.

Michael has juvenile chronic myelogenous leukemia, a disease that progresses rapidly, is resistant to drug therapy and usually fatal within one year of diagnosis, doctors said. Bone marrow transplantation has been the only treatment to increase survival.

Wagner, an assistant professor of oncology and pediatrics, said the cord-blood transplant should provide the same results.

For the patient, a cord-blood transplant carries the same risk as a bone marrow transplant, including infections and a condition called graft-versus-host disease, in which the donated bone marrow cells recognize their new ''host'' as foreign and attack tissues and organs.

Doctors said Michael will be treated with antibiotics and cyclosporin to combat the complications.

Michael will remain hospitalized for at least 30 days after the transplant and continue to be seen as an outpatient for about 70 days, doctors said.

OTTAWA (AUG. 13) UPI - Parliament appeared on the verge of getting its first Quebec separatist member Monday in an election in the Montreal district of Laurier-Ste. Marie, home to a mixture of hard-core Quebec nationalists, ethnics, and unemployed.

The off-year election is a test of the fledgling Bloc Quebecois, a tiny political party espousing a sovereign Quebec formed last month by former Conservative Cabinet minister Lucien Bouchard.

Bouchard left the government when government talks collapsed in June over a proposed constitutional amendment to give Quebec special powers to promote and preserve its French language and culture.

Six other members of Parliament - five Conservatives and a Liberal - joined Bouchard in the new party. Aside from their stand on Quebec independence, however, the members agree on few issues.

Bloc Quebecois candidate Gilles Duceppe, 43, is expected to sweep to victory when polls close at 8:00 p.m. EST. Duceppe, a labor negotiator and son of a well-known Quebec actor, has been endorsed by the province's largest trade unions and many of Montreal's city councillors.

The Laurier-Ste. Marie district, a Liberal stronghold for 73 years, was represented by populist politician Jean Claude Malepart, who died last December.

Political observers said losing the election would be a serious blow to the Liberals nationwide and to attempts by the party's new leader, Quebec-born Jean Chretien, to rebuild the party in Quebec.

But Quebec's Liberals, who govern the province, and the opposition separatist Parti Quebecois have thrown their support behind Duceppe because of his pro-independence stance.

The Quebec polling firm Barometre said the election is a test of separatist feelings in Quebec. "It's essentially a referendum on sovereignty," said Barometre president Rene Pelletier.

Conservative Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, who signed Duceppe's nomination papers, said it was to be expected that some separatists would find their way into Parliament since 60 percent of Quebecers favor independence.

But Mulroney also said anyone who supports Quebec's sovereignty "defends a position that is incompatible with their duty as a Conservative member of Parliament." In the 1988 national election, the Conservatives captured 62 seats compared with just 12 for the Liberals and one for the left-wing New Democratic Party.

Liberal candidate Denis Coderre, 27, appealed to the district's ethnic groups, mainly Chinese and Portuguese as well as the large faction of gay voters who are concerned about wider access to experimental drugs to fight AIDS.

In a second election being held in the Ontario district of Oshawa, near Toronto, the New Democrats are expected to win the seat held by former party leader Ed Broadbent for 22 years. Broadbent left politics last year, but the party will have little difficulty retaining the largely blue-collar riding.

#90225u1963 08/13/1990 ~United Press International
BOSTON (AUG. 13) UPI - Bank of New England Corp. this week faces the first of a series of expected cash squeezes that could determine whether the troubled financial institution will survive.

The company has $706 million in debt on which more than $28 million in interest payments are due over the next seven weeks. The first outlay due Wednesday.

It lost more than $1.1 billion last year in New England's collapsing real estate market and was caught earlier this year in a severe cash crunch.

If it doesn't pay, the bank probably would have to make some kind of a deal with the bondholders or face bankruptcy soon after defaulting on its loans.

Spokesman Thomas Lavelle said, ''It is our intention to keep current on all of our obligations.''

But lenders are skeptical. ''It's easy to say they're planning on paying '' replied a lawyer who said he represents investors who hold bonds with a face value of more than $10 million. ''You know, I'm planning on living to 120.''

The lawyer, who declined to be identified, said bondholders are hoping for a deal that would them hope for future return.

Indeed, he said a deal currently is ''on the table'' and the subject of negotiations. Lavelle and Herbert Wass, a spokesman for the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, which oversees the bank holding company, declined comment on any talks.

As some of the bondholders see it, there are two immediate risks for them: The first is that Bank of New England may not have enough cash to make the payments. The second is that even if the company does have the money, federal regulators may not allow the payouts.

The first risk does not appear great at the moment. Bank of New England has raised large sums of cash by selling off big pieces of its assets and shrinking the company down to about $23 billion in assets from more than $31 billion last year.

But whether regulators will permit the payments is a trickier issue. The federal government is at risk if the bank fails because the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. insures depositors up to $100,000 each. So, the Fed and the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency may be reluctant to allow money for the interest payments to leave the bank, particularly since any such payment would worsen the company's cash position and thus hurt its chances for survival.

That would almost certainly mean the bank would have to buy the bondholders off with some kind of deal.

But what would it take?

Any deal would almost certainly require a swap of bonds for stock in the company. The assumption would be that if bondholders were to forgo interest payments to help the bank survive, they could profit later if Bank of New England returned to a solid footing and its stock rose.

But another representative of bondholders, who also did not want to be identified, said he is pushing for a buyout of the bonds at about 35 percent of face value. The bonds recently have been trading at between 18 to 25 cents on the dollar so anyone who bought in at the low would make a killing under thos terms.

This deal, the broker said, would raise the banking company's capital position by allowing it to retire debt at a discount. But it would also require the outlay of cash, even more cash than the upcoming semi-annual bond payments would need.

''I think the critical issue is of regulatory approval and letting some cash go out,'' the broker dealer said. ''If you try to make people exchange (their bonds) for stock, that won't do it. What would the stock be worth?''

WASHINGTON (AUG. 13) UPI - Two top Energy Department posts have been filled, with a Texas economics professor taking over the Energy Information Administration and an Indiana health sciences professor being sworn in as assistant secretary for environment, safety and health, officials said Monday.

Energy Department officials said Calvin Kent of Waco, Texas, a Baylor University professor, was the new head of the Energy Information Administration, which collects data on U.S. energy production, consumption and prices.

Kent, nominated by President Bush in May and confirmed by the Senate August 4, specialized at Baylor in energy economics and has conducted training programs for top-level managers at over 100 utilities.

The department said Paul Ziemer of West Lafayette, Ind., head of Purdue University's School of Health Sciences since 1983, had assumed his duties as assistant energy secretary for environment, safety and health.

In that post, Ziemer will be responsible for overseeing all radiation safety, environmental protection and worker health programs at Energy Department facilities.

Ziemer's post is considered highly sensitive due to intense controversy over widespread radioactive and toxic contamination at the department's 16 major nuclear weapons production plants in 12 states.

Ziemer has spent more than 30 years at Purdue as a professor of health physics, bionucleonics, radiological control and associated health issues.

Previously, Ziemer served for three years in the late 1950's as a health physicist at the Energy Department's Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Tennessee and the U.S. Naval Research Laboratory in Washington.

NEW YORK (AUG. 13) UPI - Prices closed mixed in very light trading on the New York Stock Exchange Monday as wary investors kept a "wait-and-see" attitude toward developments in the oil-rich Middle East.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which plunged 42.33 points Friday, rose 30.20 to 2746.78.

But declines slightly outpaced advances, 756-722. A total of 1,952 issues traded. Among broad market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 1.48 to 185.63. The price of an average share rose 26 cents.

But Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was unavailable due to a power outage that also halted trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Volume amounted to just 122,820,000 shares, down from the sparse 145,341,890 traded Friday and the lowest number since the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

"People are taking a wait-and-see attitude to see what happens in the Middle East," said Brad Weekes, senior vice president of sales and trading at Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette Securities.

Market watchers said NYSE trading was unaffected by the power outage, triggered by a fire at a Con Edison substation. The outage knocked out power to most of lower Manhattan, including the World Trade Center and the Commodity Exchange Center that houses the Commodity Exchange Inc., the Coffee, Cocoa and Sugar Exchange, the New York Cotton Exchange and the New York Mercantile Exchange.

The volatile situation in the Middle East sent stock prices lower at the opening bell, but a strong rally in gold and some light bargain-hunting lifted prices from these lows, analysts said.

Late afternoon trading got a boost from a round of futures-related program buying, whose impact was strongly felt in such light volume, analysts said.

Despite the late rebound, Weekes said the market remains on a downward trend, a technical correction since the Dow toyed with the landmark 3,000 mark in mid-July.

"This whole correction was not caused by Iraq but by second-quarter earnings and higher interest rates," said Weekes, who predicted the Dow industrials would find their next support level at the 2500 mark. "The trend is still down."

On the trading floor, Pep Boys was the most active, off 1/8 to 15. Global Marine followed, up 1/4 to 6 1/8. Boeing was third, off 3/8 to 52 5/8.

Among oil stocks, Atlantic Richfield was up 2 1/4 to 137 1/4, Ashland Oil was up 1/4 to 32 3/8, Chevron was up 1/8 to 78 1/8, Exxon was up 3/4 to 52 3/8, and Mobil was up 1 1/4 to 67 1/8.

In the oil-sensitive airline sector, Delta Air Lines gained 1/4 to 59 3/8, KLM Royal Dutch Airlines eased 3/8 to 15 1/8 and Midway Airlines, spurred by reports of takeover rumors, climbed two to 9 5/8.

Among the blue chips, AT&T rose 1/8 to 35 1/8, IBM rose two to 103 7/8, General Electric was up 1/8 to 39 1/2, American Express lost 1/8 to 27 3/8, and General Motors was up 1/8 to 39 1/2.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 151,187,100 shares, down from 179,426,750 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices were lower on the American Stock Exchange, where trading was halted at about 1 p.m. As of 1 p.m., the Amex Market Value index was off 1.18 at 338.14. Declines led advances 322-137 among the 667 issues traded. The price of an average share was unavailable due to the power outage. Composite volume totaled 11,774,900 shares, vs. 16,938,125 shares traded Friday.

Salomon's Nikkei put warrants expiring January 1993 led the Amex actives, climbing 7/8 to 13 3/4.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index closed up 0.27 to 408.30.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Paris says an additional 26-hundred-50 French troops are headed to the Persian Gulf. But French officials say the naval contingent will NOT seize Iraqi cargo ships. The Bush administration has O-K'd the use of force by U-S vessels in the region to stop Iraqi commerce. But the French said that such an action would constitute an act of war.

U-N sources say few member states support the White House plan to use force to block Iraqi exports. Britain backs the idea of a de facto embargo while many other allies remained mute. Other aspects of the U-S-led attempt to isolate Iraq are proceeding more smoothly. Syria and Pakistan today joined the list of nations providing troops for a multi-national force to stem further Iraqi aggression. Yesterday, Egypt and Morocco also pledged defensive troops.

Rush hour in lower Manhattan is a mess today as the nation's largest city struggles to cope with the effects of a power outage. An unexplained fire in an electrical sub-station knocked out service to the financial district and trapped hundreds of people in high-rise elevators. More than 150 firefighters tried to put out the fire using a chemical foam. 17 firefighters and one civilian were overcome by the fire's thick smoke. The streets more resemble a pedestrian mall as traffic lights stand useless and thousands of commuters find the subway out of commission. Thousands were walking across the Brooklyn Bridge in near 90-degree heat to reach stations with trains that worked.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 13) UPI - Carolco Pictures Inc. is negotiating to buy back a large block of its common stock from Mario Kassar, the company's chairman, documents released Monday at the Securities and Exchange Commission showed.

Kassar directly and indirectly owns 18.5 million shares of Carolco common stock, which represents 61 percent of Carolco's 30.2 million common shares outstanding. The shares are in the name of a Netherlands company called Beheeren Beleggingsmaatschaapij Petina B.V.

Carolco said in the SEC filing that, if a deal could be made, it planned to make the purchase with the proceeds of recent securities sales to Canal+ Productions, S.N.C. and Pioneer LDCA Inc.

Canal+, a French corporation whose parent company owns and operates pay-television channels throughout Western Europe, spent $30 million June 15 for 30,000 shares of Carolco Series B Convertible prefered stock and an unregistered warrant to buy 150,000 shares of Carolco common stock.

The following month, Pioneer, which distributes films on laser discs in the United States, paid $60 million for 60,000 shares of Carolco Series C convertible exchangeable preferred stock and an unregistered warrant to purchase 300,000 shares of common stock for $18.50 a share.

Carolco said in the filing it would use 50 percent of the $90 million gained through the two sales to buy the Kassar holdings. With Carolco common now selling for about $10 a share on the open market, the company would get 4.5 million shares with the $45 million.

But since the stock would be purchased through a private agreement, it is possible that Kassar would get a premium for his shares.

Carolco officers declined comment on that possibility, and also declined comment on the negotiations with Kassar.

The SEC filing also gave little indication on the progress of the negotiations, other than to say ''No agreement with respect to the purchase of any shares of the company's common stock from, or securities of, (Beheeren), has been made...''

(AUG. 13) UPI - Washington, D-C, Mayor Marion Barry renounced his Democratic Party affiliation today and filed as an independent. The former civil rights leader was convicted on Friday of possessing cocaine. Barry says he still has contributions to make but would NOT say what office he might seek in November. Barry could run for a fourth term as mayor, or seek a job on the city council. A Republican council candidate called Barry's switch ''a bad move,'' saying the mayor is ''looking for a welfare check ... for his retirement.''

The International Committee of the Red Cross has confirmed the release of a Swiss Red Cross worker. The spokeswoman says Syrian officials figured prominently in the release of Erriquez... 10 months after he was taken hostage.

(AUG. 13) UPI - Troops joining battle against Western wildfires Army troops, newly trained in the basics of firefighting, were en route to California and Oregon Monday to relieve some of the thousands of crews battling wildfires that have ravaged more than 400,000 acres across seven Western states.

Twenty-eight major fires were still burning Monday across 330,000 acres in five states - California, Oregon, Idaho, Washington and Utah. Fires in Montana and Nevada had been controlled.

Although progress had been made, weather forecasts were mixed.

''The good news is, there is a chance of significant precipation'' in Southern California, Nevada and Utah, said Arnold Hartigan, spokesman for the National Fire Information Center in Boise, Idaho.

''The bad news,'' he added, ''is that the same conditions will create conditions for dry thunderstorms and 15 to 20 knot winds in northern California, Oregon and Washington - where the worst fires are still burning.''

By Tuesday, about 20,000 firefighters on the lines since the blazes began raging Aug. 6 were expected to see some relief as more than 2,000 active-duty soldiers join the effort to douse fires in Oregon and California.

The fires hit hardest in California, where some 12,000 firefighters battled about 1,300 fires that had charred more than 200,000 acres. Most of the fires were sparked by more than 30,000 lightning strikes reported in the last week.

Gov. George Deukmejian estimated Monday that the state could spend more than $40 million suppressing the fires, which damaged or destroyed 127 buildings statewide.

Three major fires that forced the closing of Yosemite National Park at the height of the summer tourist season consumed more than 18,000 acres and moved perilously close to a grove of ancient redwoods. Deukmejian on Monday signed a declaration of emergency for the area, paving the way for homeowers to obtain low-interest loans to repair damage.

Still, firefighters were gaining the upper hand on the Yosemite fires.

One of three major lightning-caused blazes in the park, the 4,000-acre A Rock fire, was nearly 40 percent contained after jumping Yosemite's boundaries Sunday and spreading into the Stanislaus National Forest.

The 13,243-acre Steamboat fire in Yosemite was 50 percent contained with full containment expected Thursday evening. A third blaze, the 550-acre Tuolumne Grove fire, forced evacuation of 12 summer homes Sunday.

Weather forecasts Monday warned that the area could be hit by afternoon lightning strikes that could spark more fires in the picturesque, drought-stricken mountains that surround the park.

Park officials said Yosemite, which was closed Thursday, would remain shut to visitors at least through Wednesday. The fires there have not touched famed Yosemite Valley, but have covered the breathtaking rock formations that tower above it with a smoky haze.

The absence of thousands of tourists who normally flood the park each day in the summer has left merchants hurting. The park's main concessionaire, the Yosemite Park & Curry Co., stands to lose ''a few hundred thousand dollars'' each day during what is usually the busiest week of the year, a company official said.

Fourteen major fires elsewhere in California had burned more than 200,000 acres of timberland. All were still burning Monday, though no new major outbreaks were reported.

Firefighters had dug lines around about 70 percent of the largest of the blazes in Tehama, which had burned 114,000 acres and destroyed 26 structures in the lower elevations of the Sierra. Another fire, about 4 miles to the north, was 50 percent contained after burning 18,000 acres and forcing the closure of Highway 36, an important east-west link in the region's mountain country.

HOLLYWOOD (AUG. 13) UPI - ''Flatliners,'' a tale of the supernatural drubbed by the critics, came to life at the box office, exorcising ''Ghost'' from the No. 1 spot by taking in $10 million over the weekend on 1,319 screens.

The much-anticipated ''The Two Jakes,'' a sequel to the 1974 hit ''Chinatown,'' failed to lure large audiences despite the presence of Jack Nicholson and some good reviews. The Paramount Pictures release drew a disappointing $3.7 million in its opening weekend at 1,206 theaters, only good enough for seventh place.

''Flatliners,'' which stars Julia Roberts, Kiefer Sutherland and Kevin Bacon as medical students experimenting with life after death, posted a lively $7,608 per-screen average.

''Ghost,'' a love story-thriller starring Patrick Swayze and Demi Moore, was knocked down to the No. 2 spot but still managed a more-than-ethereal $9.5 million in ticket sales over the weekend. The film finished in first place in its second and fourth weekends and has clearly become the summer's surprise hit, scaring up a gross of $85.5 million after five weeks for Paramount.

''Air America,'' a black comedy about CIA pilots in Laos during the Vietnam War, came in at third place with an opening weekend of $8.1 million at 1,902 theaters. The film, starring Mel Gibson and Robert Downey landed a high-flying $4,240 per-screen average.

The courtroom drama ''Presumed Innocent'' placed fourth in its third weekend, taking in $7.9 million at 1,451 screens. The movie, starring Harrison Ford as a prosecutor charged with murdering his estranged lover, has brought in a persuasive $42 million in 17 days of release.

''Problem Child'' continued to behave nicely for Universal in its third weekend, taking in $4.8 million at 1,769 screens, as it moved from fourth to fifth place. Despite some blistering reviews, the comedy about a hellish child has been a hot performer, luring $31.2 million in 17 days.

Fox's ''Young Guns II,'' a Wild West brat-pack sequel, shot from third to sixth place with a weekend gross of $4.7 million in 1,770 theaters to give it a solid $21.3 million in 12 days of release.

Disney's spider-comedy ''Arachnophobia'' spun down from fifth to eighth place in its fourth weekend, with $3.5 million on 1,823 screens. The film has put the bite on moviegoers for $41 million of tickets during 26 days of release.

Fox's ''Die Hard 2'' kept blasting away at the box office with a $3.1 million weekend at 1,691 screens, good enough for ninth place. With those ticket sales, the sequel joined ''Total Recall'' and ''Dick Tracy'' as the summer blockbuster films that have crossed the $100 million benchmark, taking in $101.2 million in six weeks of release.

Disney's animated feature, ''DuckTales,'' waddled from eighth to 10th place with a second weekend of $2.7 million at 1,558 screens for a 10-day total of $9.3 million.

Spike Lee's jazz film ''Mo' Better Blues'' kept up a swinging pace with a $2.4 million take in its second weekend at just 572 screens, for a noteworthy $4,265 per-screen average and a 10-day gross of $8.6 million.

The year's top performer, Disney's ''Pretty Woman,'' added $1.6 million during the week at 729 screens. After 21 weeks of release, the film's gross has reached $165.7 million.

The top 10, last weekend's gross, total gross, weeks in release:

1. ''Flatliners,'' $10 million, 1 week.
2. ''Ghost,'' $9.5 million, $85.5 million, 5 weeks.
3. ''Air America,'' $8.1 million, 1 week.
4. ''Presumed Innocent,'' $7.9 million, $42 million, 3 weeks.
5. ''Problem Child,'' $4.8 million, $31.2 million, 3 weeks.

LIMA, Peru (AUG. 13) UPI - Suspected left-wing guerrillas of the Shining Path rebel organization Monday ''executed'' three government officials in a small town and also killed a peasant and a student, police sources said.

The student, 17-year-old Calin Neme Jaramillo, was riddled with bullets and left dead in the soccer stadium of Ayacucho, the Andean city that is the center of the Shining Path insurrection, police said.

In Lima, police used tear gas and water cannons Monday to disperse hundreds of anti-government student demonstrators protesting an economic austerity program.

When the students barricaded themselves in a building of Federico Villareal University, a police armored vehicle rammed down the door, and officers arrested 35 students inside, witnesses said.

The students, who blocked streets around the university with bricks and planks, are believed to be sympathizers of the center-left Aprista party of ex-President Alan Garcia, which over the weekend announced it would engage in frontal opposition to the government of Alberto Fujimori, Garcia's successor.

Student leader Julian Rojas said four students were injured in the melee but they were ''kidnapped by police so journalists would not see them.''

In other anti-government activity, bank workers struck Monday in what is the first of several expected labor actions to protest the Fujimori economic plan.

In Peru's north, a column of 70 members of the Shining Path, an ultra-leftist group following the teachings of the late Chinese communist leader Mao Tse-tung, invaded the town of Huasa, 170 miles north of Lima.

Police said the insurgents sacked stores, dynamited public offices, and set up a kangaroo court to try Manuel Garro Accospoma, 65, the governor of the surrounding province, Mayor Saul Valdez Cano, 45, and Elias Jara Veramendi, president of the community.

The three authorities, members of the Aprista Party, were subsequently shot.

In Ayacucho, 200 miles southeast of Lima, a band of 15 suspected Shining Path members pulled Neme Jaramillo from his home in the early morning hours before executing him in the soccer stadium, police said.

The Shining Path guerrillas routinely execute government officials of all the major political parties as well students and peasants who are believed to be government collaborators.

DETROIT (AUG. 13) UPI - The supply of domestically built cars as of July 31 slipped to a 46-month low, with the nation's top three automakers posting below-normal inventories despite the threat of a labor strike next month, Ward's Automotive Reports said Monday.

Overall, the supply of cars built in either the United States, Canada or Mexico equaled 55 days at the end of July, down from a 62-day stockpile on June 30, Ward's said. That compares with a 65-day supply posted by carmakers in the year-ago month, the weekly statistical publication said in its latest issue.

Unit stock of domestically made cars declined 12.4 percent from June 30 levels to 1,318,200 units as of July 31, it said, noting that that marked the lowest day's supply and inventory count since Sept. 30, 1986.

Inventories of light trucks among domestic manufacturers stood at 71 days or 1,044,500 units as of July 31, down 9.1 percent from June 30 levels, Ward's said.

Traditionally, inventories are lowest each year in either late August or mid-September, when most automakers change over to production for the new model year.

However, most of the changeovers have already been done for 1991, and automakers are still scheduling a record build of 595,000 cars during August - although the Persian Gulf crisis could alter that, Ward's said.

The thin inventories come as the nation's top automakers - General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. - have six weeks left in which to negotiate new national labor pacts to replace existing three-year agreements that expire Sept. 14.

Many industry analysts feel there could be a strike this year, most probably at industry leader GM, as the United Auto Workers union seeks to strengthen job security and reduce outsourcing, or the transfer of work outside the companies.

While Ward's said the lower stockpiles also come at a time when the market is soft, industry analysts said cumulative sales during the first seven months of the year have become relatively strong.

''Sales are not soft,'' said David Healy, of New York investment firm Barclays BZW. ''The industry has been selling more cars than they have been building recently, and if anything, sales seem to be gradually strengthening.''

During the first seven months of 1990, the U.S. vehicle market ran at an annual pace of about 14.5 million units, said Healy. But July sales were at a 14.8 million unit pace, up from 14.6 million in June.

Among the top automakers, GM saw its domestic car supply shrink from 64 days as of June 30 to 59 days on July 31, while its light truck supply declined from 89 to 81 days, Ward's said.

Second-ranked Ford's U.S. car supplies declined from 68 days, also to 59 days as of July 31, while its U.S. truck inventories went from 70 to 57 days.

Chrysler's car supplies declined from 66 to 60 days as of July 31, while its truck supplies decreased from 86 to 73 days.

Supplies of imported vehicles did not decline as much as those of domestics, Ward's noted. Import car and truck stocks dropped 4.3 percent from June 30 levels, to 602,004 units as of July 31, while the days supply remained even at 59.

But inventories shrank from year-ago levels of 756,714 units on hand, when there was a 66-day supply on hand among importers, Ward's said.

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AUG. 13) UPI - The key indicator of the health of the U.S. semiconductor market dropped in July to its lowest level this year, driven by a seasonal slowdown in orders, the Semiconductor Industry Association said Monday.

The closely watched book-to-bill ratio, which compares incoming orders to outgoing shipments, dropped to 1.0 in July from 1.06 in June, the trade groupreported.

A ratio of 1.0 means that for every $100 of semiconductors shipped to the U.S. market, chip manufacturers received $100 in new orders.

The July figure was the lowest since November, when the computer-chip industry was at the tail end of a six-month slump. A ratio of less than 1.0 is considered unhealthy for the industry.

The book-to-bill ratio is calculated using a rolling three-month average. Average monthly orders, or bookings, for the three months ended in July were $1.19 billion, as were average monthly shipments, or billings, the associationsaid.

Average monthly bookings were down 6.4 percent from June and average monthly billings were off 1 percent, the association said. Actual billings in July were down 16.7 percent from the previous month.

Orders were up 3.5 percent from July 1989, while shipments were were down 4.9 percent, according to the association.

The drop in shipment values this July reflected lower prices for critical memory chips, said Mel Phelps, a technology analyst for the investment firmHambrecht & Quist in San Francisco.

In addition, summer is a traditionally slow period for the semiconductor industry, Phelps said. He said he expects the ratio to bottom out in August and September and then improve in the last quarter of the year.

''It's a 'mini-cycle' within the four- to five-year cycle for the industry '' Phelps said.

NEW YORK (AUG. 13) UPI - Wide compliance with U.N. sanctions against Iraq could make it feel the economic pinch soon, officials and analysts said Monday, but they emphasized that Baghdad's capacity to endure shouldn't be underestimated.

Iraqi stocks of wheat and other staples were believed to have fallen to just three or four months' worth before the invasion of Kuwait, as the country ran short of hard currency to pay suppliers demanding cash.

Iraq may try to mobilize domestic farmers to meet the minimum requirements of its 15 million people. But this would require the incentive of higher prices, which could undermine political support from urban masses.

On the other hand, Iraqis tempered by eight brutal years of war with Iran and cowed by ubiquitous secret police agents are unlikely to challenge the rule of President Saddam Hussein until dire conditions emerge.

U.S. officials voiced satisfaction with initial compliance with the sanctions ordered by the U.N. Security Council last week. All but a handful of nations agreed to boycott Iraqi oil and halt exports to the nation.

Twelve Arab League nations voted last week to abide by the sanctions program, among them Egypt, Syria and Saudi Arabia. Opposed were Iraq, Libya and the Palestine Liberation Organization. Jordan abstained.

Reports Monday from Amman indicated continued commercial traffic from Jordan into Iraq. Middle Eastern sources suggested that Iraq was making use of Jordan's port of Aqaba, on the Red Sea, to offload unspecified goods.

''There seems to be very wide agreement, acceptance and cooperation,'' said one administration official who requested anonymity. ''As far as I know, nothing's going in. There may be some stocks in Jordan that are still being trucked into Iraq, but you're talking about such small quantities that it makes no difference.''

Yahya Sadowski, an Iraqi expert with the Brookings Institution in Washington, said Iraqi food supplies will soon be tight. But keeping them that way could depend on the cooperation of Turkey and Jordan, its neighbors.

Until last week Jordan was aligned with Iraq in the crisis, while Turkey has been a major food exporter to the Gulf power, Sadowski said. ''Turkey has the strongest economic incentive to finesse the embargo,'' he said.

A U.S. Department of Agriculture official estimated Iraqi wheat stocks at two months' worth under normal circumstances, rice stocks at three months, beans and barley at one month each, and two weeks' worth of corn.

But USDA economist John Parker declined to predict how long reserves could be stretched out by Iraq. He said issuing such forecasts would be the job of a committee under formation in the Agriculture Department.

Iraq built up its food reserves before the Iran-Iraq war erupted 1980, Parker said. This year, cash-strapped Iraq sought to buy on credit, which slowed down delivery just as domestic consumption was rising.

As a result, ''stocks in relation to use have been falling,'' Parker said, and ''it's very apparent there was not a big stocks buildup.''

But it may be unrealistic to expect food shortages will bring Saddam to his knees or even to a parlay, said Marvin Zonis, a University of Chicago Graduate Business School professor who has closely studied Iraq's economy.

He said Saddam's rhetoric about an Islamic holy war is aimed at ''girding the local population'' to endure hardships ahead. ''I think it would be a long time collapsing in terms of food supplies,'' Zonis said.

MIAMI (AUG. 13) UPI - Eastern Airlines offered Monday round-trip fares ranging from $138 to $278 for customers planning trips this fall.

Several restrictions applied to the low fares, which will be offered between Sept. 5 and Dec. 16:

-Tickets had to be bought before Aug. 29 but were fully refundable, without penalty.

-A Saturday night stay was required.

-The fares were not available during the peak Thanksgiving holiday period, Nov. 21 and Nov. 25 and 26.

''For a limited period we're offering fares well below current prices at a time when most fares are increasing,'' said George Brennan, senior vice president of marketing. ''Now is the time to lock in a low fare with Eastern, for travel during the fall season.''

Brennan said previously announced fuel-related fare increases would not apply to the fall sale prices. The fall fares are good for travel to all of the airline's 62 domestic destinations.

Rising oil prices as a result of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait prompted Eastern and other airlines to raise fares.

Eastern, financially struggling and in Chapter 11 bankruptcy proceedings, said most of the round-trip fares are based on a mileage formula. Trips less than 300 miles are $138; 301 to 1,260 miles, $158; 1,261 to 1,800 miles, $218; and more than 1,801 miles, $278.

Fares may be $20 more each way in certain markets during peak travel times. Off-peak travel rates are available noon Monday through noon Thursday and all day Saturday.

MT. KISCO, N.Y. (AUG. 13) UPI - Trans World Airlines announced Monday it was reducing non-refundable fares by 20 to 30 percent in most of the carrier's domestic markets.

Officials with the airline, which had earlier announced a $20 fare increase for international travel, said the decision to make the cuts came in response to President Bush's call for assistance in controlling fuel-related inflation.

TWA will slash non-refundable fares for purchase between Aug. 14 and Aug. 29 and for travel between Sept. 5 and Dec. 16 within the continental United States, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, officials said.

However, if fuel prices remain at or above current levels, TWA may be compelled to consider fare increases at a later date, noted Dom Morrison, a spokesman for the airline.

The non-refundable tickets must be purchased 24 hours after booking. Sample round-trip midweek fares under the new prices are $158 from New York to St. Louis and $218 from New York to Denver.

(AUG. 13) UPI - The Pentagon is studying ways to implement the Bush administration's O-K to use force to prevent Iraqi commerce. Earlier today a presidential spokesman said American vessels in the Persian Gulf- in his words- ''would use force, if necessary,'' to block Iraqi exports. But the Pentagon said Navy ships near Iraq have NOT received instructions on how to intercept Iraqi shipments.

The Bush administration continues efforts to sway the global community on the need for a multi-national force to stem further Iraqi aggression. Today, both Syria and Pakistan committed troops to the Persian Gulf. But Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein is NOT without his supporters. Thousands of pro-Iraqi demonstrators marched outside the U-S Embassy in Sudan to shout anti-U-S slurs.

Thousands of New York City commuters are walking home across the Brooklyn Bridge this evening, stranded by a power blackout that affected most of the lower parts of Manhattan. The blackout was caused by a mid-day fire at a Consolidated Edison electrical substation. The blackout cut off both subway service and traffic lights, turning much of lower Manhattan into a veritable pedestrian mall.

U-S Army troops fresh from basic training in firefighting techniques are joining the fire lines across the West, relieving crews weary from several days of battling the blazes. Wildfires are burning across 330-thousand acres of California, Idaho and Washington. Flames already have charred 400-thousand acres across those states and Montana and Nevada, where the fires have been brought under control.

ABOARD THE USS SAIPAN, Liberia (AUG. 13) - U.S. Marines flew helicopters into Liberia's rebel-held territory Monday to evacuate 97 foreign nationals fleeing from fighting in the Capital Monrovia.

The evacuees, which included the Spanish ambassador and the papal nuncio in Liberia, were airlifted during the morning form the port of Buchanan, which is controlled by Charles Taylor's National Patriotic Front rebels. The evacuees included 16 Spaniards, 15 West Germans, seven Indians, six Lebanese, four Swiss, four Americans, three French and two British. There were also 21 Liberians, most of them dependents.

The civilians drove through Sunday night from the East Monrovia suburbs of Congotown and Sinkor. Heavy fighting broke out there Friday when Taylor's troops attacked government forces and told residents to leave.

The rebels insisted that the Marines arrive unarmed. The demand was met, while the heavily armed rebel forces patrolled the beach where the evacuees waited in a tropical storm to leave the war-torn country.

''We are very happy to be here. Our trip was extremely difficult,'' said Manuel de Luna, the Spanish ambassador. His nervous face showed signs of relief as he sat in the admiral's parlor aboard the Saipan, moored 4 miles off Buchanan for the operation.

''People were petrified that the government forces would start using rockets to get the rebels out of the area,'' said Jeanette Carter of Colorado, who lectures in anthropology at the University of Liberia in Monrovia.

''We were frightened of being accused of being rebel sympathisers by the government. That was a real worry in case the rebels withdrew from an area and the government forces returned,'' she said.

One of Taylor's close advisers said the NPFL had received a large arms consignment from Burkina Faso four days ago. The weapons and ammunition were brought into Liberia from neighboring Ivory Coast, the adviser said.

Delays in securing the military supplies have held up Taylor's advance on Monrovia. The new supplies will allow Taylor's forces to move on the city centre this week, he said.

Taylor has again refused to accept the imminent arrival of the peace-keeping force now being assembled by the economic community of West African states Ecovasi in Freetown, Sierra Leone.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AUG. 13) UPI - Actress Esther Rolle, who appeared in 1989's ''Driving Miss Daisy'' and in such television series as ''Good Times'' and ''Maude,'' was hospitalized Monday with serious injuries suffered in an automobile accident.

A 70-year-old Marshall, Texas, woman driving the car was killed in the Sunday afternoon accident.

Rolle, 69, suffered several broken ribs, facial cuts and cardiac contusion or bruising of the heart, when the car careened off a freeway and overturned.

The name of the woman killed was not released pending notification of relatives. Rolle and two other women in the car were airlifted to Las Vegas hospitals.

The Nevada Highway Patrol said the driver was heading north when the car drifted off the side of Interstate 15 near the California-Nevada border. The driver overcorrected and the vehicle overturned, officials said.

Hospital attendants at University Medical Center said Rolle was admitted to the Intensive Care Unit and was expected to remain hospitalized for several days.

''She is in serious but stable condition,'' a hospital spokesman said Monday, adding that Rolle was otherwise ''awake and alert.''

The other two passengers were treated and released. They were identified as Martha Jordan, 63, of Las Vegas and Mary Collins, 63 of Los Angeles.

Michelle Marx, a spokeswoman for Rolle in Los Angeles, said the actress was traveling to Las Vegas with friends for a brief holiday.

Marx described the cardiac contusion as ''nothing life-threatening. ... It is quite common in car accidents if there are chest injuries. It is like bruising your leg,'' she said.

Marx said Rolle is now working with NBC on a series called ''Singer and Son'' is coordinating a one-woman show ''and has a lot of projects going '' Marx said.

''She is very lucky. And she certainly has a lot of friends,'' Marx said. ''We have been getting a lot of telephone calls.''

Rolle is best known for her character Florida Evans, the matriarch on the situation comedy ''Good Times.'' In ''Maude,'' she played the same sassy character.

In ''Driving Miss Daisy,'' Rolle portrayed a housekeeper in a story about a Southern Jewish matron and her black driver.

NEW YORK (AUG. 13) UPI - Iraq with its limited access to seaports will have a difficult time breaking the U.S.-enforced U.N. embargo of its oil shipments, shipping sources said Monday.

President Bush Sunday ordered U.S. warships to begin enforcing the embargo imposed by the United Nations a week ago in the wake of Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion and occupation of Persian Gulf neighbor Kuwait.

''I don't think there's a ghost of a chance of it being challenged or thwarted,'' said Philip Loree, chairman of the Federation of American Controlled Shipping in New York.

''Keeping ships from going into Iraq is very easy because it has limited access to the sea. It's beautifully situated for being bottled up,'' Loree said in a telephone interview.

The federation represents the approximately 200 American-owned oil tankers that fly foreign flags, such as Panama and Liberia, because of the high cost of registering them in the United States and manning them with American crews.

Tankers flying the American flag are used almost solely for domestic runs carrying oil between U.S. ports, Loree said.

Worldwide, there are 3,303 tankers capable of carrying 70,000 barrels or more of crude oil, the executive said. Of this amount, 438 are supertankers each able to tranport 1.4 million barrels or more of crude, Loree said.

Even with this large number, there is little chance of a maverick tanker sneaking into an Iraqi port because the movement of the large vessels can be easily monitored from satellite, he said.

The embargo apparently passed its first major test Monday when the Iraqi oil tanker Al Qadisiya was prevented from picking up oil transported by pipeline from Iraq across Saudi Arabia to the Saudi Red Sea port of Yanbu.

A U.S. defense official in Washington said Saudi Arabia refused to send out tugboats and the Iraqi tanker left the area.

The closing of the Saudi port left Iraq with only limited possible outlets to the sea - the Jordanian Red Sea port of Aqaba and outlets at the northern end of the gulf in Iraq and Kuwait.

''We are very optimistic at this point that the embargo will hold and that it will be effective,'' said White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater at Bush's vacation retreat in Kennebunkport, Maine.

He said some ships apparently headed for Iraq already had backed off from entering the Persian Gulf.

Fitzwater declined to say whether U.S. warships would shoot at any ship attempting to run the de facto blockade. ''We won't discuss the orders, the operational authority given,'' he said.

John Prescott of LLoyd's List in London, which tracks world tanker movement on a daily basis, believed the embargo and blockade had yet to be seriously tested.

''It's very difficult at this early stage to say how effective the embargo and blockade will be,'' he said in a telephone interview.

As the stakes go up, the chances will increase that ''cowboy tankers'' will try to run the blockade, he said.

''If things start getting tough for the Iraqis, anything could happen,'' he said.

Any tanker trying to run the blockade would ''face a tremendous amount of ostracism'' from the world tanker community, Loree said. ''It wouldn't be worth it.''

Prescott noted that insurance rates increased tenfold last week for tankers carrying oil to the Saudi ports on the gulf and Iranian ports on the northern half of the gulf because of a fear of Iraqi retaliation.

Crude oil prices also rose more than a dollar a barrel on European cash markets as traders feared Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein would order military retaliation as the embargo's squeeze began to be felt.

''At some point, Saddam Hussein is going to have to challenge this (embargo), and the market reflects that fear,'' said Peter Beutel, vice president of Merrill Lynch Futures Inc. in New York.

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AUG. 13) UPI - Borden Inc. will pay $150,000 to settle a claim that it marketed thousands of bottles of Canadian maple syrup in packaging that falsely suggested the product came from Vermont, officials said Monday.

''This is a matter of basic fairness to consumers and of protecting those businesses that do, in fact, market Vermont products,'' said state Attorney General Jeffrey Amestoy in announcing the settlement.

Under the deal, Borden - a Columbus, Ohio, food company that posted $7.6 billion in sales last year - will pay $65,000 in civil penalties to the state of Vermont, another $20,000 to reimburse the state for the cost of investigating the matter and $65,000 to a non-profit food bank.

Court documents in the case showed Vermont Maple Orchards, a Borden subsidiary, changed the labels on its Canadian-produced maple syrup on orders from its parent company.

By enlarging the word ''Vermont'' on one section of the packaging, the product's front label appeared to read ''Vermont Maple Syrup,'' court papers said.

The fact that the syrup actually came from Canada was mentioned in fine print on the bottom of the product's back label.

Jeanne Washko, a Borden spokeswoman, said the mislabeling was a mistake.

Washko said a new Borden marketing employee redesigned the label and made the word ''Vermont'' too big without realizing that the new label violated the state's maple products laws.

When the company was told of the violation, Washko said, it ceased production and redesigned the label.

FAIRFAX, VA (AUG. 14) UPI - Mobil Corp. announced Monday that it had agreed to buy Esso Australia Ltd. for an undisclosed price, a move that will raise its share of the Australian oil market to 20 percent and increase its presence in the growing Pacific region.

The acquisition includes Esso Australia's network of 300 service stations and 90 fuel distributors as well as minority share in an Esso-Mobil joint venture operating two refineries and other refining and marketing facilities.

''We have been a major player in the Pacific Rim for many years. The acquisition of these assets will advance our strategy of increasing strength in the world's fastest growing market for petroleum products,'' said Mobil chairman Allen Murray in a statement.

With the addition of the Esso stations to the 700 already operated by Mobil in Australia, Mobil Oil Australia will increase its share of the Australian market from 14 percent to 20 percent, the company said.

The purchase, which does not include any of Esso Australia's oil exploration and production nor chemcial manufacturing units, is expected to be approved by year's end after review by Australia's Foreign Investment Review Board and Trade Practices Commission.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 13) UPI - Ebasco Services Inc. of New York and CEGA, a four-company consortium, have been selected to provide preliminary designs for the Energy Department's two new nuclear weapons production reactors, Energy Secretary James Watkins said Monday.

Watkins said Ebasco, a subsidiary of Dallas-based Enserch Corp., had won a contract to provide initial designs for a heavy-water reactor, which the department plans to build at its Savannah River Plant in South Carolina. The contract is worth more than $1.5 billion over the life of construction.

A similar contract to submit preliminary designs for a modular, high-temperature gas-cooled reactor was awarded to CEGA, a joint company formed by Combustion Engineering of Windsor Locks, Conn., and General Atomics of San Diego, supported by Stone and Webster Engineering Co. of Boston and Burns and Roe Co. of Oradell, N.J. That contract also is valued at more than $1.5 billion.

The department wants to build the gas-cooled reactor at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory near Idaho Falls, Idaho.

The new reactors are needed to produce tritium, a radioactive gas used in nuclear warheads to boost explosive yield. The reactors will replace three aging 1950's-vintage reactors at Savannah River now shut down due to safety problems.

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AUG. 13) UPI - Columbia Pictures Entertainment will undertake an ambitious 15-year plan to renovate and expand its new home, the historic MGM lot that it acquired last year in a swap with Warner Bros., spokesmen confirmed Monday.

The project's price tag will run into the range of several hundred million dollars and could face strong opposition from local slow-growth advocates who would argue that the expansion would worsen an already sticky traffic pattern.

The seven-stage plan, disclosed last week to Culver City officials and residents at a special meeting, calls for 19 new office and production buildings and demolition of more than 700,000 square feet of outmoded space at the 44-acre lot, the longtime home of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio.

Some of the historic structures, such as the commisary and the Hepburn Building where Katharine Hepburn, Spencer Tracy and Lana Turner had star suites, will be restored. The Jean Harlow Building, which was Louis B. Mayer's first office, is currently being restored.

The plans for construction, which will add more than 1.1 million square feet to Columbia's operating space, will have to undergo about a year of environmental and fiscal studies.

The proposal calls for two 11-story buildings, two nine-story buildings, and half a dozen six-story buildings with an art deco design.

Ken Williams, Columbia Pictures senior vice president of finance and administration, said that when the project is completed in 2005, the studio would employ nearly 5,000 people, compared with the current work force of 800.

Columbia moved earlier this year to Culver City, which calls itself ''The Heart of Screenland,'' after a 28-year stay at the Burbank Studios lot, 20 miles to the northeast.

Columbia agreed to swap its property at the Burbank lot, which it shared with Warner Bros., in exchange for the Culver City lot as part of its complicated settlement with Warner to obtain the services of ''Batman'' producers Peter Guber and Jon Peters. Warner was able to extract an estimated $400 million worth of assets from Columbia in return for getting the producers to break their five-year contract with Warner.

Warner had acquired the Culver City lot in 1987 with its purchase of Lorimar-Telepictures Corp.

CAIRO, Egypt (AUG. 13) UPI - Kuwait's government-in-exile has organized small bands of resistance fighters who have been carrying out nightly raids across Saudi Arabia into the occupied emirate, reportedly killing several Iraqi soldiers, a spokesman said Monday.

The spokesman said the Kuwaiti resistance, operating in bands of five or six fighters, was conducting the raids against Iraqi army units to deter atrocities against Kuwaiti citizens.

''We are trying to make the (Iraqi) soldiers afraid to do something against the Kuwaiti people, to give them something to think about,'' Ahmad Fahad al Ahmad al Sabah, a nephew of Kuwait's deposed Emir Sheikh Jaber al Ahmad al Sabah, said in an interview with United Press International at a Cairo hotel.

''Like the Afghanis (fighting the Soviet Union), we want to make (Iraqi troops) always afraid and thinking,'' Al Sabah said.

Gulf-based Western diplomats have reported limited pockets of resistance to Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of the oil-rich emirate, but there were no immediate indications of the effectiveness of the opposition.

Early editions of Tuesday's Al Akhbar newspaper reported the resistance movement said it had destroyed an Iraqi tank and armored personnel carrier Sunday, killing several Iraqi soldiers. The report could not be independently confirmed.

Western diplomats did confirm some reports of atrocities by Iraqi troops, however, including the shooting deaths of a number of women demonstrating against the invasion in Kuwait City.

Al Sabah, whose father was killed defending the Emir's palace during an Iraqi armored advance, said the small-scale resistance that started last week would not be able to budge Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's massive invasion force, but may at least deliver a message.

''The units operate in small bands of no more than five to six,'' he said. ''They are comprised of soldiers and citizens. ... The units sneak across the border between Iraqi troops to carry out the raids in Kuwait City before returning to Saudi Arabia.''

Al Sabah said officials from the Kuwaiti government-in-exile were directing the guerilla bands from the Saudi border. Several hundred of Kuwait's 20,000-strong army managed to flee the invading Iraqis and find refuge in the Saudi Arabian desert.

Al Sabah said Kuwaitis fleeing to Saudi Arabia last week described some mass slayings of families by Iraqi troops. More than 20 civilians a day were being killed for not cooperating with the soldiers, he said, but the report could not be independently confirmed.

The resistance leaders counted on Western nations to eventually offer support for their attacks, but in the meantime Kuwaitis would fight the occupation, Al Sabah said.

''We are not upset (with the United States and other nations) because we understand political decisions and the potential for greater conflict, but we are not going to sit by and wait for outside help,'' Al Sabah said. ''Our brothers are being killed and families are being raped and our land was stolen.

''If you see your brother fighting, you will go help him. God willing, we will kick them out of our country, or they will have to kill all the Kuwaitis.''

Several thousand Kuwaiti citizens between the ages of 21 and 35 have signed up to join the resistance at embassies worldwide, Al Sabah said. Hundreds of Egyptians, other Arabs and five Americans also have volunteered, he said.

''People think that Kuwait is rich and that we are not patient and hard people, but we are. Like President Bush said, listen, watch and learn,'' he said.

Inside Kuwait, citizens separate from the organized resistance also were carrying out suicide attacks against Iraqi soldiers in response to Iraqi atrocities, Al Sabah said.

MIAMI (AUG. 13) UPI - A tropical depression that lost character and was downgraded to a tropical wave over the weekend became Tropical Storm Fran late Monday afternoon, packing 40-mph winds and moving toward the Windward Islands.

A tropical storm warning was issued for Trinidad and Tobago and Genada and its dependencies, and a tropical storm watch was issued for Barbados, St. Vincent and the Grenadines.

The system went from being designated a tropical wave to a tropical storm - skipping the normal progression from wave to depression to storm - because of its characteristics and for safety reasons, said Miles Lawrence a forecaster at the National Hurricane Center.

''We went directly from a wave to a storm because we got a report from a ship that there were tropical storm force winds,'' he said. ''There is some question as to whether this is a full-fledged tropical storm, but its proximity to the islands and the shipping report caused us to go ahead and name it and get the warnings up and we'll deal with the classification later.''

At 6 p.m. EDT, the center of Fran was centered near near latitude 9.3

north, longitude 55.4 west, or about 400 miles east southeast of Trinidad. It was moving west at near 25 mph and tropical storm-force winds extended outward up to 175 miles north of the center.

Lawrence said the system was expected to continue moving west at least through Monday night with some reduction in forward speed on Tuesday. Some additional strengthening was also possible, he said.

Fran was formed from the Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season's seven tropical depression, which developed Saturday midway between the African coast and the Lesser Antilles. The season runs from June 1 to Nov. 30.

Forecasters at the National Hurricane Center gave it little chance of strengthening because it was at such a low latitude.

''If it hits South America it will still dissipate,'' Lawrence said.

The hurricane center downgraded the system to a wave on Sunday, when it lost all identifiable tropical characteristics.

EDMONTON, ALBERTA (AUG. 13) UPI - Chinese Taipei eliminated the United States from medal contention Monday night with a 10-7 victory at the World Baseball Championships.

Starting pitcher Chien-Fu Kuo Lee won his fourth game in a week, limiting the U.S. to two runs through the first six innings.

The U.S. jumped on Kuo-Lee for a 2-0 lead in the first inning on Jim Austin's single and a home run by Brent Gates.

Chinese Taipei countered with three in their half of the first, two scoring on Cheng-Hsien Chang's single.

Chinese Taipei broke the game open in the second inning, driving U.S. starter Mike Hostetler from the mound with three consecutive singles. Paul Byrd came on in relief and gave up a two-run triple to Wei-Chen Chen.

Taipei increased its lead to 9-2 in the third, but the U.S. struggled back on home runs by Darren Bragg and Joe Ciccarella.

The loss drops the U.S. to 0-2 in the second round of the tournament. Even if the U.S. beats heavily-favored Cuba Wednesday night, it will not be enough to qualify for the final round. Chinese Taipei improved to 1-1.

In the first game Monday, Japan disposed of Canada 12-8 to raise its second-round mark to 2-0. Canada dropped from contention with the loss.

Cuba, 1-0, takes on South Korea, 1-0, Monday night.

SUNNYVALE, CALIF. (AUG. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Logic Devices Inc. (NASDAQ:LOGC), a manufacturer of high-performance CMOS integrated circuits Tuesday announced it had signed a non-exclusive agreement with AT&T Microelectronics involving product licensing.

Under the terms of the agreement, Logic Devices licenses AT&T to manufacture and sell products designed by Logic. The initial products licensed include Logic's ultra-fast static random access memories (SRAMs). The two companies have also agreed to extend the current wafer foundry agreement, signed in January 1989 until 1996. The foundry agreement provides Logic Devices finished silicon wafers from AT&T for manufacturing its advanced products.

''We believe this long-term cooperative relationship between AT&T and Logic Devices will result in the proliferation of the world's fastest family of high-speed static memory products,'' said Bill Volz, president of Logic Devices.

Logic Devices manufactures ultra high-performance CMOS digital integrated circuits for applications requiring high operating speeds and low operating power. The company's products include the industry's fastest SRAMs, digital signal processing (DSP) devices, and arithmetic computational building blocks.

The company's devices are used in a wide range of applications, including computers, workstations, video image processing, telecommunications and medical instruments. DAYTON, OH (AUG. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - NCR Corp. announced today that Santa Barbara Cottage Hospital, of Santa Barbara, Calif., is installing NCR Access 2000 networking tools.

The 600-bed, for-profit hospital is providing remote physician offices with access to four key applications: hospital information, laboratory, radiology and operating room scheduling.

''The steering committee of the hospital believes a critical factor for success during the 1990s is its relationship with the physician community '' said Mike Hax, NCR's acting national director of health care systems. ''Its primary goal in installing this network is to provide physicians with better information, which will equip them to improve patient care.''

NCR Access 2000 is a hardware and software solution that includes a connectivity manager and high-level fourth generation language. Running on an NCR TOWER platform, it serves information collected from a variety of different vendors' applications to on-site or off-site PCs or terminals.

At Santa Barbara Cottage Hospital, the Access 2000 network provides simultaneous, multi-user access to three areas: a hospital information system running Spectrum software on an IBM AS/400 computer, a radiology management system running DECRAD software on a DEC VAX 6310 computer system, and an operating room scheduling system running on a Token Ring local area network.

With Access 2000, a user can view all applications simultaneously. In addition, the end user view can be customized for each physician.

Presenting physicians with access to hospital applications is only the first step. ''The administrators examined networking needs, and they realized there was a need for an enterprise-wide network that would address smaller networks within the hospital, in addition to providing remote physician access,'' Hax said.

Providing physician access will be the first step to a campus-wide FDDI (Fiber Distributed Data Interface), which will be implemented by NCR. This backbone network will use high-speed, high-capacity fiber optic cable to connect existing and future Ethernet and Token Ring sub-networks.

Service and maintenance support of NCR products is provided by NCR's 5,000 field engineers located at 400 locations throughout the United States.

RESTON, VA (AUG. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - US Sprint Tuesday announced the introduction of Sprint Express(sm), a service that lets customers make operator-assisted long-distance calls from foreign locations to the United States at significant savings.

Service is now available from the United Kingdom, and other countries will be added later this year.

Sprint Express provides a direct connection to US Sprint operators, letting customers in overseas locations avoid high surcharges billed by hotels for long-distance calling. Business travelers and others who call the U.S. can realize substantial savings.

To use Sprint Express, customers dial a local telephone number in the foreign country, and are immediately connected to a US Sprint operator, who records the information necessary for billing and places the call. Service is offered to holders of US Sprint FONCARDs and local exchange company (LEC) calling cards, and to any customer making a collect call to the U.S.

US Sprint also announced FONCARD service from Canada. Customers traveling in Canada now may use their FONCARDs to make long-distance calls to anywhere in the U.S. The procedure is identical to that for using FONCARD when calling from within the U.S. -- customers dial an 800 number to access a tone, dial ''0'' and the number, and enter their authorization codes.

''The introduction of Sprint Express and the availability of FONCARD service from Canada mean greater convenience and savings for US Sprint customers while traveling abroad,'' said William R. Blessing, vice president of international marketing and operations for Sprint International, the global telecommunications and private networks subsidiary of US Sprint.

''US Sprint, long synonymous with quality telecommunications services within the U.S., now is gaining the same reputation and customer following overseas.''

US Sprint is a unit of United Telecommunications Inc., a diversified international telecommunications company headquartered in Kansas City, Mo.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Lawrence S. Moy, M.D., Ava Shamban, M.D., and Howard Murad, M.D., in Westchester, Los Angeles, have been using a natural fruit acid in sugar cane plants to overcome and reverse some of the damaging effects that sunlight has on human skin.

Dr. Moy and Dr. Murad have been researching glycolic acid, one of a group of alpha-hydroxy acids. In Los Angeles and at UCLA Medical Center with Ronald Moy, M.D., they proved that glycolic acid may be effective in removing wrinkles, mild scars, skin discoloration, and scaly pre-cancerous growths called actinic keratoses that are caused by the sun.

Dr. Moy and Dr. Murad presented their findings to colleagues at the clinical and scientific meeting of the American Society for Dermatologic Surgery in Maui, Hawaii. Patients treated with glycolic acid reported ''marked improvement'' in both the texture of the skin and in skin color or pigmentation. In addition, both fine and coarse wrinkles and the early growths caused by sun damage were improved.

More than 200 patients were studied for effects of glycolic acid on their skin (although 3,000 patients have been successfully treated with various forms of glycolic acid). Some patients underwent a chemical peel using 70 percent glycolic solution applied to the skin several times over a 3-4 month period. An 8 to 10 percent cream or gel of glycolic acid was used for daily applications at home.

Several biochemical tests and histological examinations suggest that glycolic acid may increase the amount of normal collagen and elastin in the skin. Collagen and elastin are natural proteins found in connective tissue in the body which support the skin and make it supple. Both appear to be subject to damage and destruction by sunlight, causing wrinkles.

Dr. Moy said that it is believed that glycolic acid may act in some manner to cause regeneration of the protein. Further studies are definitely required to investigate these findings. The doctors feel that glycolic acid may be very effective in wrinkle therapy because of the deep penetration and specific effects on connective tissue.

Further studies are required. They will be requesting new patients for these studies. Dr. Murad, Dr. Shamban, and Dr. Moy are practicing dermatologists in Los Angeles. They also regularly perform chemical peels cosmetic surgery and skin cancer surgery.

ANAHEIM, CA (AUG. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Starting today, the newest Carl's Jr. Restaurant at 1190 W. Foothill Blvd. in Azusa has its menu at your fingertips with an innovative touch-screen system.

The system, called Touch 2000, allows you to order your meal by touching selections on a touch-sensitive display terminal. Completed food orders are displayed instantly on monitors at cook and cashier stations. With this system, one cashier can handle two lines of customers at the same time, reducing their wait time.

The computer display shows the names of Carl's Jr. items grouped in categories to make ordering hamburgers, sandwiches, salads or beverages easy. At the close of an order, the system checks the order and makes an appropriate suggestion, such as ''Would you like a cool soda or an iced tea?'' or ''Would you like a chocolate chip cookie?''

''This represents the cutting edge of technology in our industry,'' said Bob Altman, vice president of management information systems for Carl's Jr. Restaurants. ''This system has the potential to allow us to use labor more effectively and reduce errors in order-taking, which works to improve service.''

Touch 2000 was developed by Management Information Support Inc. of Denver in consultation with restaurant management employees. The system is driven by International Business Machines Corp. Personal System/2 computers. Carl's Jr. is using a modified version of the system tailored to its menu mix and requirements.

According to independent study data provided by MIS Inc., 77 percent of customers surveyed prefer ordering with the touch-screen system versus traditional over-the-counter ordering methods in quick-service restaurants.

The system is currently being tested in a brand-new Carl's Jr. If the initial test is considered successful, Carl's Jr. will install the system in an already established Carl's Jr. to determine its effects on operations before and after installation.

More than 540 Carl's Jr. Restaurants -- owned, operated, franchised or licensed by Carl Karcher Enterprises Inc. -- are located in California, Arizona, Nevada, Oregon and Japan.

NATICK, Mass. (AUG. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Waban Inc. (NYSE: WBN), a major operator of warehouse clubs, reported today its second quarter financial results.

Sales rose 18 percent to $623 million during the 13 weeks ended July 28, 1990 and for the first half of the year totalled $1.2 billion, up 19 percent from 1989.

Net income for the second quarter reached $6.8 million, or 24 cents per share, vs. $8.8 million, or 31 cents per share, last year. This brings year-to-date net income to $8.2 million or 29 cents per share, compared to net income of $15.3 million, or 54 cents per share, recorded during the first half of 1989.

''Our results for the second quarter, while still down from last year, represent solid improvement over the first quarter,'' commented John F. Levy, Waban president and chief executive officer. ''More importantly, our progress this quarter gives us a clear indication that the programs we put in place at the beginning of the year to build the long-term strength and competitiveness of our company are producing the desired results.''

Second quarter sales at Waban's HomeClub division totalled $349 million, a 23 percent increase over 1989, and aggregated $657 million year-to-date, up 22 percent. HomeClub's operating income totalled $11.3 million for the second quarter vs. $13.3 million a year ago. Year-to-date, HomeClub's operating income now totals $18.2 million compared to $24.3 million last year.

''In February, we announced plans for HomeClub aimed at enhancing the division's long-term performance. Implementation of these plans has led to increased levels of customer service at our warehouses. We have also expanded our marketing efforts significantly through a powerful combination of print and television advertising,'' continued Levy. ''The costs associated with these programs continue to pressure operating margins. However, with sales growth, these expenses will be better leveraged, resulting in increasing levels of profitablility over the long haul. What we have seen during the second quarter is the initial success of our programs, evidenced by the strongest quarterly increase in same-store sales we have achieved at HomeClub in three years.''

Sales at BJ's Wholesale Club were up 13 percent over last year to $247 million for the quarter and for the first half of the year rose 14 percent to $512 million. BJ's recorded operating income of $2.9 million for the second quarter compared to $4.2 million in 1989 and $745,000 for the first half of fiscal 1991 vs. $6.0 million last year.

''Same-store sales volume at BJ's Wholesale Club continues to grow despite the economic slowdown in the northeastern United States and a growing number of competitive wholesale clubs,'' added Levy. ''Second quarter operating income at BJ's improved substantially over the first quarter aided by excellent control of expenses. As we have noted before, the absence of surcharge income formerly paid by non-fee paying members negatively impacts our margins and will continue to do so in the third quarter. The fourth quarter should benefit from the annual renewal of a large portion of our membership base. During the second half of this year we expect to open six new clubs and launch a number of membership drives aimed at the holiday season in which the bulk of BJ's earnings will be achieved.''

Waban Inc. is a major participant in the rapidly growing field of warehouse retailing through its HomeClub and BJ's Wholesale Club businesses. HomeClub is one of the nation's leading merchandisers of home improvement products at everyday low prices, operating 62 warehouses in 10 western states. BJ's Wholesale Club, which currently operates 24 clubs in the eastern United States, is a low-cost, low-margin, high-volume, membership-oriented distributor of food and general merchandise.

SAN JOSE, CA (AUG. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Fujitsu Network Switching of America Inc. Tuesday introduced two terminal adapters for the DMS-100, becoming the only full-line ISDN (Integrated Services Digital Network) CPE vendor to support both AT&T and Northern Telecom switches.

The announcement opens up a large part of the available ISDN Centrex market to Fujitsu. According to NBI (Northern Business Information), it's estimated that AT&T and Northern Telecom combined have 78 percent of the installed digital switch market in the United States. These central office switches are migratable to ISDN through a combination of software and hardware upgrades.

The two terminal adapters, the SRS-400 and SRS-410, feature a removable cartridge; the user simply has to remove the existing feature cartridge and insert a new one to keep abreast of new ISDN voice and data capabilities.

The AT&T 5ESS versions of the products have been on the market since 1988. The Northern Telecom versions have essentially the same features, and an identical user interface, as the AT&T versions.

The SRS-410, a V.35 terminal adapter, is Fujitsu's most often requested model for imaging applications such as video conferencing and Group 4 facsimile, as well as for other high-bandwidth applications such as LAN bridging and host-to-host connectivity. The SRS-410 features an optional analog telephone interface that can be used for Group 3 facsimile.

Like their 5ESS counterparts, the Fujitsu DMS-compatible products support both the V.120 and V.110 rate adaption standards. Rate adaption is required so that a terminal or PC that needs to communicate over an ISDN B-channel at data rates less than 64 Kbps (kilobits per second) can ''rate adapt'' its data up to that rate to fill the available 64 Kbps pipe.

This is needed to allow the ISDN to transparently pass data through the network on a uniform basis. Rate adaption is handled by the ISDN terminal adapter and the method employed is independent of the type of central office switch.

The products also feature passive-bus capability and 56 Kbps Bearer Service. Passive-bus capability means that, for example, two TAs can operate on a single ISDN BRI (Basic Rate Interface) line, effectively cutting line costs in half.

56 Kbps Bearer Service makes the units compatible with existing 56 Kbps digital services as well as with private T-1 based networks. This means that more routes are available for domestic ISDN data calls and that the products can be used for international ISDN calls.

The new products will be available in September from Fujitsu distributors throughout the United States, including RBOCs (Regional Bell Operating Companies), independent telephone companies and other specialized channels.

Fujitsu ISDN Systems, a division of Fujitsu Network Switching of America Inc., develops, designs, markets and supports a full range of ISDN network terminals, including telephones and terminal adapters.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Health Care Property Investors Inc. (NYSE:HCP) Tuesday announced that the company has entered into a commitment with Charter Medical Corp. of Macon, Ga., to acquire and concurrently leaseback 12 medical facilities for an aggregate acquisition price of $76.2 million.

The commitment provides for the properties to be acquired and leased back by Sept. 30.

In addition, if certain conditions are met, the commitment provides for the acquisition and leaseback of five additional properties, near the end of the first quarter of 1991, for approximately $36 million. The acquisition of all properties is subject to receipt of certain governmental regulatory approvals and certain other requirements customary in transactions of this type.

Kenneth B. The properties are located in six states principally in the Southeast and Midwest.

''The acquisition of this group of high-quality properties greatly enhances the diversification of HCP's investment portfolio of medical facilities, by type of property, geographic location and operator.''

TAFT, CA (AUG. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Berry Petroleum Co. (NYSE:BRY) Tuesday announced net income of $2,416,000, or 11 cents per share, on revenues of $12,440,000, for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990.

This compared to net income of $3.5 million, or 20 cents per share, on revenues of $11,883,000 for the second quarter ended June 30, 1989. Net income totalled $6,811,000, or 32 cents per share, on revenues of $26,174,000 for the six months ended June 30, 1990. This compared to net income of $5,799,000, or 32 cents per share, on revenues of $21,168,000 for the six months ended June 30, 1989.

The increase in net income for the six months ended June 30, 1990, compared to the same period ended June 30, 1989, is primarily due to a higher average crude price received and higher interest income earned on cash balances.

The increase in revenues for the same period is primarily due to a higher average crude price received and sales from the company's new blending facility which began its operations in May of this year. The decrease in net income for the three months ended June 30, 1990, over the same period in the prior year is a direct result of the decline in average crude price received during the second quarter of 1990 compared to the second quarter of 1989.

At June 30, 1990, the company had working capital of $62,725,000 and generated $8,453,000 of cash flow from operating activities for the six months ended June 30, 1990.

Revenues of $29.8 million were 15% higher than $26 million in the second period last year. Net earnings of $11.3 in the second quarter were lower than net earnings of $25.7 million last year, which reflected $23.8 million of earnings from discontinued operations.

''Operating earnings for Reinsurance Services in the second quarter were $634,000, reflecting unfavorable mortality as compared to $2.1 million last year.

''While total unit volumes reached a new record level at Home Office Reference Laboratory in the second quarter 1990, revenues did not advance at the same rate due to decreased unit prices resulting from additional volume discounts and competitive pressure.

''Revenues in the second quarter were $21.3 million, a 2.9% increase over first quarter 1990 revenues of $20.7 million, and a 1.8% increase over second quarter 1989 revenues of $20.9 million. Real estate revenues in the second quarter totaled $7.4 million compared to $4.9 million in the second quarter last year. This operating segment reduced losses in the second period to $427,000 from a loss of $822,000 in the second quarter of l989.''

GREENWICH, CT (AUG. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - The Fund American Cos. Inc. (NYSE:FFC) Tuesday reported revised revenues and income from its continuing operations for the six months ended June 30, 1990.

Since the revision was a reclassification between income from continuing operations and income from discontinued operations, net income was not affected. The revision also did not affect any results previously reported for the three months ended June 30, 1990.

As a result of the revision to revenues, income from continuing operations for the six months ended June 30, 1990, originally reported as $59 million, has been revised to $68 million.

WARREN, OHIO (AUG. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - Second Bancorp Inc., headquartered in Warren, announced termination of a subscription agreement to acquire Peoples Federal Savings and Loan Association of New Kensington, Pa.

Financial and regulatory aspects of consummating the transaction have significantly increased since the agreement was first signed. The overall uncertainty of market conditions and these increased financial and regulatory burdens make it difficult and not feasible to finance the proposed acquisition through an underwriting of a public offering of stock.

Alan G. Brant, chairman and president of Second Bancorp Inc., said: ''Our board is extremely disappointed that we are not able to proceed with this acquisition, as a lot of effort was put forth by both institutions in order to accomplish an Ohio/Pennsylvania corporate partnership. We look forward to other opportunities that meet our strategic objectives and that will enhance profitable growth for our company and shareholders.''

MADISON, WI (AUG. 14) BUSINESS WIRE - LUNAR Corp. today announced it has commenced its initial public offering for 1,250,000 shares of common stock at $12.00 per share.

The registration statement covering the initial public offering was declared effective by the Securities and Exchange Commission at 10:30 a.m. EST on Aug. 14, and the shares of common stock will trade in the NASDAQ National Market under the trading symbol ''LUNR.'' Of the 1,250,000 shares of common stock offered, 1,000,000 shares are being sold by the company and 250,000 by shareholders. Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co. Inc.; Volpe, Welty & Co.; and Robert W. Baird & Co. Inc., manage the underwriting syndicate.

Net proceeds to LUNAR will be used to repay long-term debt and will be used for working capital for general corporate purposes.

LUNAR develops products for the diagnosis, monitoring and treatment of osteoporosis and other metabolic bone diseases. The company develops and sells bone densitometers, which are specialized scanning systems used to aid in the diagnosis of bone disease by measuring the density of bone. The company is developing a drug for the treatment of osteoporosis and is currently conducting a Phase I clinical trial on osteoporotic patients.

LUNAR's founder and President, Dr. Richard B. Mazess, together with other researchers at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, pioneered the development of the first commercial bone densitometer in 1972. From its inception through May 31, 1990, the company shipped approximately 1,300 bone densitometers worldwide including approximately 425 of its advanced DPX dual-energy x-ray systems, introduced in June 1988. The DPX product line is sold to leading medical institutions, hospitals, pharmaceutical companies active in the field of bone mineral metabolism, and radiological and other specialty group practices.

LUNAR's DPX and its enhanced version, the DPX-L, introduced in March 1990, perform conventional spine or femur scans, lateral spine scans, and total body scans. The DPX provides users with high precision, rapid scan times, and low operating costs. Existing DPX users can upgrade readily to the DPX-L by adding software and making minor hardware changes. The DPX-L reduces scan times without loss of precision.

In the area of osteoporosis treatment, LUNAR is developing a Vitamin D compound, 1-alpha-hydroxyvitamin D2 (''one-alpha D2''). Clinical studies have shown that dosages of two Vitamin D3 compounds, 1a, 25-D3 and 1-alpha-hydroxyvitamin D3 (''one-alpha D3''), act directly on bone cells to stimulate bone formation, increase bone mineral content, and decrease bone fracture rates. Since these Vitamin D3 compounds and one-alpha D2 have comparable metabolic activity, as shown by animal studies, the company believes one-alpha D2 may similarly stimulate bone formation, increase bone mineral content, and decrease bone fracture rates. While the two drugs (estrogen replacement therapy and injectable calcitonin) currently approved for use in the United States to treat osteoporosis may prevent further bone loss, they do not stimulate bone formation.

One-alpha D2 was invented by Dr. Hector DeLuca, a recognized leader in Vitamin D research at the University of Wisconsin-Madison, and is licensed exclusively to the company. The company has conducted Phase I toxicity studies in humans which have shown that one-alpha D2 is non-toxic at dosage levels which the company believes may prove therapeutic. In addition, animal studies have shown that one-alpha D2 has lower toxicity and similar metabolic activity as compared to one-alpha D3, which is widely used in Japan for the treatment of osteoporosis. The company is currently conducting a Phase I clinical trial on a target group of 60 osteoporotic women, and expects to complete this double-blind placebo-controlled trial by mid-1991.

Results for the 1990's second quarter include the operations of Navarre Corp., a distributor and rackjobber of personal computer software, and Waxie Maxie, a 33-store specialty retailing music and video chain located in the Washington D.C. area. Both companies were acquired by LIVE in the first quarter of 1990.

For the first six months of 1990, revenues of $292,794,000 were nearly double 1989's comparable figure of $156,830,000; operating profit of $23,677,000 was 86 percent higher than a year ago; and pre-tax income of $7,731,000 was 46 percent higher than in 1989's first half. LIVE Entertainment is a diversified entertainment software supplier, distributor and retailer, with headquarters in Los Angeles. LIVE is the parent company of L.A.-based LIVE Home Video, one of the nation's leading suppliers of home video; Minneapolis-based Lieberman Enterprises, one of the country's largest rackjobbers of video, music and personal computer software; the 141-store LIVE Specialty Retail Group, with headquarters in Milford, Massachusetts, which includes Strawberries Records, Tapes & CDs, the leading specialty music retail chain in the New England area, with a significant presence in Upstate New York and the Greater Philadelphia area and the Waxie Maxie music chain in Maryland and Virginia; and indirect subsidiary VCL/Carolco Communications GmbH, a home video distributor based in Munich, Germany.
